Napanee News

W.T. Briscoe Elected Warden L and A County

NAPANEE — William T. Briscoe, deputy-reeve of Ernestown, is the warden of Lennox and Addington for 1967. In the running also, were Reeve Ray Gaffney of Sheffield Township, Reeve Harold Creighton of South Fredericksburgh and Glenn C. Herrington, newly elected reeve of Napanee, a former county councillor.

Warden Briscoe is a part-time farmer living at RR 2, Bath and is also in the employ of the Department of Highways. He has two married daughters, and is a member of the Anglican United Church in Bath. He has twice been president of the Odessa Agricultural Society, and is now a director for a second term as deputy-reeve of Ernestown, after several years of experience as councillor.

Police Report Two Accidents

NAPANEE — Ronald McMullen of Tamworth was treated for injuries Tuesday following an accident to a car driven by his mother, Mrs. Sheila Hunt. Three stitches were required to close a cut in his forehead. Th' McMullen car was in collision with a car driven by Gerald Cassidy of Erinsville, on Keegan's sideroad, half a mile north of Erinsville. Damage is estimated at $150. Charges have been laid. Constable Kyle of the Napanee detachment of the OPP investigated.

A Napanee youth is lodged in the county jail charged with driving while his license was under suspension; also with leaving the scene of an accident.

Kenneth Earl Simpson, of RR 2, Napanee, was arrested by the Napanee detachment of the OPP. The accident occurred late Sunday afternoon. Simpson is reported charged on having hit a parked car.

SLIGHT RISE — A rise in the total labor force accounted for an increase in unemployment to 266,000 persons in December from 238,000 in November, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics says. The rise of 28,000 compared with a rise of 32,000 in the same period of 1965, but the total number of unemployed in December, 1966 was 14,000 above the previous December. (CP Newsmap)

Routine Items Discussed at Council Meet

DESERONTO — The proposed two-room addition to the Deseronto public school was brought to the attention of the town council at its second meeting of the month Monday evening. A letter was read requesting a meeting Thursday evening of the two finance committees, that of the board and that of the council, to discuss the matter.

At one time council set aside approximately $18,000 turned over to it by the former Board of Education after financial matters concerning the disbanded high school had been cleared up. This money had been earmarked for the addition to the public school, but since been used to make up arrears owing the County Council. Debentures must now be issued by the Town Council to finance the proposed addition.

Other matters considered were more or less routine. Permission was granted Mrs. Charles Cole to hold a bingo Jan. 30 for the March of Dimes campaign. Mrs. Cole is the chief Deseronto worker.

A by-law was passed authorizing the expenditure of $20,000 for improvements at the dump.

Announcement was made of an open meeting Tuesday evening which would be attended by Kenneth McQuiggan, of the Centennial projects committee of the Department of Information and Tourism. Since Deseronto's centennial project is the colonial type waterfront park, matters concerning that development and the official opening most probably be the main topics discussed.

Stop Dury Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Distribution of cobalt - containing vitamins used for treating iron - deficiency anemia has been stopped in the U.S., the Food and Drug Administration said in a report of Tuesday. The agency said all manufacturers of the preparations voluntarily agreed to a request FDA made in December to halt distribution.

Quinte Area To Get Tech-Arts College

The Belleville - Trenton district was all but assured of a community college last night when the board of regents, meeting in Peterborough, approved the principle of a split campus.

There were no definite commitments made by the governors on choice of sites and reaction today among district officials was cautious.

However, a major influence in locating one campus in the Belleville - Trenton area was hopefully mooted - based the offer to the board of a site in Sidney township.

"I still think we have a chance of getting something," said Trenton Mayor D. J. MacDonald. "It gives Belleville-Trenton a surer chance of getting even half a campus.

"I'm very pleased," commented Sidney township reeve Ernest Kells. "We'd certainly like it to be in the immediate area."

But, while the decision shut off conflict between the Quinte and Peterborough districts for the college of arts and applied technology, it opened the door for further squabbles in the Kawartha area.

Peterborough's earlier bid for the campus was joined earlier this week by a pitch by Lindsay for the western campus.

Only bid so far for the eastern campus — to be called Loyalist College — has been a combined one from Belleville, Trenton and Sidney Township with the proposed permanent location to be a 125-acre bay site midway between the two communities.

While the decision to have a split campus has settled one of the problems facing the board of governors, they are still faced with the more serious one of meeting the province's deadline of providing temporary facilities.

The governors face a Sept. 1 deadline for organizing the college — and this calls for temporary accommodation while the campus is built.

The decision to divide the college was taken at a Peterborough meeting of the governors and confirmed publicly today by board chairman Rev. H. J. Maloney of Bancroft.

JUDGE J. C. ANDERSON
Vice-Chairman

Father Maloney said the board felt the move was necessary because of the large population area served by the college.

The area involves a geographic sprawl from Haliburton to Lennox and Addington.

"We never really considered the idea of one campus," said Father Maloney, "because we didn't feel this was practical for the district concerned."

Interim housing for college classes has been offered in the new Centennial High School in Belleville.

Whether this would bear on any decision to situate a campus in the area still is not predictable.

Judge J. C. Anderson, of Belleville, last night appointed one of two vice-chairmen of the Board of Governors, said today the board would have "to canvass the whole situation" before arriving at any decision.

The existence of temporary quarters would have some influence on the governors' choice, he said.

"But I don't think it would necessarily mean that other factors would not be considered as well," Judge Anderson added.

"We proceeded on this basis to get things rolling now" he added.

The governors' proposal is to locate one campus serving the northwest district of the region, and a counterpart in the southeast (Quinte) area.

But, emphasized Rev. Maloney, there has been no

Und Der Same Here!

A bitter winter bite dulled overnight as cloud layers moved across the Quinte district.

Temperatures — predicted to nosedive to 10 below in the Trenton - Belleville area — moderated as a warming trend pushed into the region. Light snow flurries also helped keep the mercury from the colder depths.

The overnight low recorded at Canadian Forces Base Trenton weather office was only four below.

Today the weatherman forecast a high of 20 above, dipping to eight above tonight and rising tomorrow to a high of 12 degrees.

However, in the northern reaches of the Quinte district, the cold snap, although lightened, was severe.

For the second successive night Bancroft still recorded the lowest temperature — 25 below — on the Department of Lands and Forests scale.

Other northern lows, all below zero: Tweed 15, White Lake 16, Dacre 18, Plevna-Palmer Rapids 22.

The temperature plunge has helped thicken the ice crust on northern lakes, although aircraft still are warned against using them by the Department of Lands and Forests.

Lakes in the Bancroft and Dacre areas are safe for pedestrians and snowmobiles. However, in the Tweed region caution is advised because of thinner ice surfaces near lake shores.

Dief Asks Vote on Leadership

He Says Call Not Swan Song

OTTAWA (CP)—John George Diefenbaker went to the Conservative people Wednesday, asking for a decision as soon as possible on the man they want to lead their party.

He left open the question of whether or not he would be a candidate when convention time comes.

But he asked for attendances at the convention of those Conservatives to whom he has always appealed most.

Added to that his speech on a national CBC telecast was "no swan song. Those who will interpret it that way do not know me."

Throughout his recent leadership troubles, Mr. Diefenbaker has held a hard core of support from many local riding associations, party rural ones, and from the candidates they picked who now sit as MPs.

In calling for a leadership convention at "the earliest possible date," the 71 - year - old party chief said he would "delegates democratically chosen by the constituency organization, not delegates at large named

Slip He Picked Up Talked of Stickup

CALGARY (CP) — Richard Irving Clark went to the bank to withdraw $10 Wednesday, but made a poor choice of withdrawal slips.

Mr. Clark, 48, owner of an auto body shop, filled out the slip and took it to a teller in the bank where he has dealt for several years. But on the back of the slip the teller found a note:

"This is a stickup. Empty the till."

She went to another employee, who pressed the button summoning police.

Meanwhile, Mr. Clark took the slip to another teller who didn't see the note on the back. He got his $10 and left, but was followed and picked up by police.

After three hours of questioning, and appearing in a lineup, he was released.

Mr. Clark thinks the note's author "must have been some practical joker."

A police spokesman said Mr. Clark was "a victim of circumstance."

"Some clown must have written the note."

A postscript: After being released, Mr. Clark found his car had been towed away for overparking. But when he explained what had happened, he didn't have to pay for its recovery.

Fulton Expects To Run

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

John Diefenbaker's call for a Progressive Conservative leadership convention "at the earliest possible date" has been met by cautious replies from veteran senior party members and an announcement of candidacy from one junior member.

Davie Fulton, Progressive Conservative MP for Kamloops said today he expects to be a candidate for the party leadership when the convention is called to decide it.

John Matheson, 40, of Brockville, Ont., previously not mentioned as a serious contender for the leadership, Wednesday night announced he intends to stand as a leadership candidate.

Meanwhile, other prominent Conservatives widely - regarded as possible leadership candidates, made no early commitments on the question.

Mao's Foes Now Woo 500 Million Peasants

TOKYO (CP) — Followers of Mao Tse-tung disclosed today that his opponents have extended their "counteroffensive" from the cities to the countryside in a bid to win over China's 500,000,000 peasants.

It was a direct challenge to Mao who, in the past, has managed to hold the support of the peasants who make up two-thirds of the mainland population.

Supporters of Mao's chief foe, President Liu Shao-chi, were reported trying to influence the peasants the same way they did workers in the industrial centres—through economic benefits.

Meanwhile, a Japanese correspondent in Peking reports bloody clashes took place between followers of Mao and Liu in Shenyang, Harbin and Dairen in Manchuria and Chengchow in central China. He says wallposters report 58 persons were injured Dec. 21 when about 3,000 Red Guards who had swung over to Liu's side clashed with 600 Maoists in Dairen, major port and gateway to Manchuria.

The correspondent says anti-Mao textile workers and their supporters clashed with pro-Mao Red Guards Jan. 7-8 in Chengchow. One person was reported killed and 23 seriously injured.

Six persons were reported seriously injured and scores slightly hurt Jan. 8 in similar clashes in Shenyang, the report adds.

A Chinese woman arriving in Hong Kong from Canton said about 100 Chinese burned Mao in effigy in that southern city Wednesday. Hundreds of bystanders cheered and applauded, the woman said.

In another development, China's Communist party newspaper calls on forces backing Mao to recapture control of the Chinese press from reactionary elements.

"To seize control of the press is the militant task of the proletarian revolutionaries," the Peking People's Daily says.

The Communist party organ stresses the vital role the press plays in influencing the public.

In the hands of "bourgeois reactionary elements" it could be the tool for "spreading the poison of revisionism and the restoration of capitalism."

The New China news agency, in Chinese - language reports broadcast by Peking radio, indicated that Mao's opponents were trying to win over the peasants by giving them bigger individual shares of the traditional year-end distribution of produce.

This produce is usually apportioned to the state, the commune and individual members of the commune.

During the turmoil since New Year's Day, China's official news outlets have repeatedly accused Mao's opponents of trying to win workers with "economism" — promises of higher wages and other economic benefits.

SEOUL (AP)—North Korean shore batteries sank a 620-ton South Korean Navy patrol ship off the east coast of Korea today and 28 crew members are missing, the South Korean defence ministry announced.

Children Still Missing

ST. JOVITE, Que. (CP) — A search by police in this Laurentian resort area 90 miles northwest of Montreal has failed to turn up any of 30 children who have disappeared from a nearby monastery run by a breakaway Roman Catholic sect.

But while the search continues, the Montreal Gazette reports that it has located at least some of the children "within 100 miles of Montreal."

The newspaper did not divulge either the place or the number of children found.

It says a reporter was taken to the children Wednesday by Father Jean de la Trinite, Quebec head of the sect, known as les Apotres de l'amour infini—the Apostles of Infinite Love.

Sixteen of 86 children originally sought were found earlier in private homes by the provincial police.

The police were called in by Quebec welfare authorities to help find the children when the monastery refused to release them to their parents.

The Gazette says the children its reporter saw are in excellent health, and they are being cared for by a priest and two nuns of the sect with the aid of "disciples" who have turned over their premises to the apostles.

Little More Than Half Doctors Take Direct Calls From Public

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Wednesday night the government must act quickly to ward off a gathering crisis in Ontario's health services.

He said in a speech prepared for a nominating meeting a recent survey shows Ontario has one doctor for every 766 persons.

"But a recent survey involving 5,000 doctors shows that only 54.1 per cent of doctors are taking direct calls from the public. The rest of them are involved with industry, teaching and government."

He said the shortage is acute in some districts.

"Renfrew in the Ottawa Valley, with 9,000 people and 6,000 in the surrounding community, has four general practitioners.

"Chapleau in Northern Ontario, with 4,000 in the town and 6,000 more dependent on it for medical care, has one."

"C.B.C. stop. Would be happy to appear on 'Sunday' stop."

Possible Arthritis Cause Found

OTTAWA (CP) — Four Toronto doctors have isolated for the first time in humans a unique material which may be a factor in causing rheumatoid arthritis.

They reported to the Canadian Society for Clinical Investigation that material with similar properties has been found to be a cause of kidney and blood - vessel damage in animals.

It was the discovery of this cause in animals that led to investigation in humans by Drs. D. A. Bell, D. A. Gordon, Reuben Baumal and Irvin Broder at the Wellesley and Toronto Western hospitals.

At a press conference, they said it is far too early to say whether the material — called RBAF — causes rheumatoid arthritis but their continuing investigations are aimed at trying to learn whether it does.

They studied two groups of patients, finding that among 80 with rheumatoid arthritis 26 had RBAF present and among another 50 there were 30 with RBAF.

They learned that those with RBAF tended to be younger, had greater disease activity and more joint damage than those in whom no RBAF was detected.

At the moment they are trying to determine what characteristics of the disease relate to the presence of RBAF.

Winds Whistle While They Work.

PICTON — It's a chill wind that blows about this area these days, but it's not undoing the good work of industrial expansion.

Despite wintry weather an all-out effort currently is being pushed to speed the spread of one of Picton's leading industries — Proctor Silex Company.

Company plans call for adding another 48,000 feet of floor space to the present appliance - producing plant which employs about 500 workers.

The expansion (above) does not necessarily signify a big boost on the employee rolls, however.

A company spokesman says most of the new building will be reserved for warehousing.

Some working operations may be carried on there and a customers' service department also will be contained in the new wing.

Spads work for the new addition was begun late last October and has been proceeding apace ever since.

Even this week's wintry blite at the Quinte district failed to deter workers. Tuesday for instance, they clung to ice-cold girders (left) and continued at the job in the teeth of frigid gusts reaching 50 miles an hour.

Hastings Council Will Study County-wide Welfare System

Hastings county council will set up a special committee to study a unified county-wide welfare administration system being recommended by provincial authorities.

This decision was made Wednesday morning following a letter from the provincial welfare department offering to assist in every way possible the setting up of a county welfare system.

A member from the provincial department spoke to council on the matter at the December session but it was laid on the table for possible action by this year's council.

Stirling reeve Don Rodgers said county welfare was an important subject and recommended a committee be set up to make further study and bring in a recommendation.

He said that welfare costs this winter were on the way up and suggested that a county system might lead to the collective costs being reduced.

But Rawdon reeve Fred Beckett said he would not like to see the county take on anything else until he saw how the year's mill rate stood.

Thurlow Reeve Carl Thompson said he wouldn't want to see the present system, which is administered by individual municipalities, disturbed unless there was also provision for a county building inspector.

He said that in his township one man did both jobs and was doing a good job. However, the township could not expect to keep him on a part-time basis.

Reeve Beckett replied that new county planning and building by-laws were being studied, which could iron out the Thurlow problem.

County council will lend its support to a request from Stirling village and Rawdon township asking that No. 14 highway from Foxboro to Marmora be rebuilt.

Letters from the municipalities pointed out that heavy trucks hauling crushed stone from Marmora had damaged the roadway and asked that the Ontario Department of Highways give early consideration to re-construction of the road.

Reeve Beckett said that No. 14 highway north of Stirling had been graded in the early 1920's, was paved in 1934, and since then nothing had been done except surface treating.

He said also that there were several bad corners on the highway.

During the morning session, the councillors concurred in the intent of a Peterborough county resolution asking for an amendment to court regulations to allow for a steadie fee to be charged lawyers for entering jury cases for trial at Supreme Court and county court sittings.

The Peterborough resolution asked for a fee of $200 in such cases but on the recommendation of county Judge J. C. Anderson the fee suggested by Hastings is $50.

The reason for the resolution is that jury cases are frequently listed for trial and then withdrawn at the last minute because of out-of-court settlements. However, juries are already called and have to be paid.

Requests for customary county grants were received from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and from the Lake Ontario Development Association.

Speaking on behalf of the LODA, Belleville merchant Jack Ireland said that in the past year the Lake Ontario Development Association had changed its name and also had greatly stepped up its activities.

In addition to industry and tourism, activities of the organization now encompassed agriculture and water pollution. He said the new name of LODA was the Lake Ontario Development Council.

Air Cadets Seeking Recruits

TRENTON — Donald Edwards, supervisor of the highway safety department, Ontario department of transport, talked to cadets from No. 704 Squadron at this week's parade and showed a film on highway safety.

No. 2 Flight was judged the best on parade. Commanding Officer Allan Smith said there was still openings in the corps for cadets. Parades are held every Monday at 6.45 p.m.

Local cadets will take part in a "postal shoot" which involves actual target shooting with scores being recorded and entered into competition with other cadets from all across Ontario.

Starting the week of Jan. 30, cadets will be instructed in radio assembly and will subsequently be required to build a five-tube radio receiver.

Model aircraft construction has been going on for several weeks and one aircraft will be flown in the spring.

TRENTON — Executive members of the Trenton chapter of the Ontario Heart Foundation met Tuesday night to plan a week-long fund-raising campaign for Feb. 12 to Feb. 18.

Conveners for all the 11 communities involved in the house-to-house canvass will be announced later. James Uttley of the Ontario Heart Foundation will head the industrial canvass.

On Feb. 13, at 2 p.m. chapter representatives from Trenton and Brockville will appear on CKWS-TV and a film on the heart foundation will also be shown.

May 2, the local executive will meet to assess the results of the campaign and to elect a new executive.

TRENTON — The Murray Township area school board has applied to township council for approval to buy a site near the new development road for a ten-roomed school.

Council, if it endorses the location, will then make a formal application to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval to raise the $10,000 needed for the site.

Architects are now working on final plans for the school and the school board members hope to clear the way for the official opening in September of this year.

Kingston Firm Gets Contract For County Home at Bancroft

A Kingston building firm, Ball Brothers Construction will build the new 110 - bed county home for the aged to be constructed at Bancroft.

Hastings county council yesterday awarded the contract to the Kingston firm at a bid price of $1,194,000. The Ball Brothers tender was the second lowest of seven bids received, but an earlier completion date promised and other factors resulted in the decision in favor of the successful bidder.

The new county home building at Bancroft will also include space for northern branches of the county Children's Aid Society and the county health unit.

Dungannon Reeve Calvin White as chairman of the Hastings Manor Committee, said the total estimated cost of the new home, including land purchases architects fees and other incidentals was $1,320,192.

PROVINCIAL SUBSIDY

The direct county cost of the home is $1,282,492 of which 50 per cent, or $641,246 will be paid by provincial subsidy.

Proceeds of $129,946 from the sale of the county farm at Hastings Manor just outside Belleville will further reduce the county cost leaving $550,000 to be debentured.

Reeve White said the building contract would carry a 56-week completion date from the time of the contract award although no actual construction was expected to commence until spring. This would allow for completion in late January or early in February next year.

Construction of the new addition to Hastings manor was said to be progressing well with the roof and interior partitions now in place. Occupancy of the addition is expected by late February or early March of this year.

Manor superintendent, Kenneth Yorke, told councillors that there was a waiting list of five or six for admission to the Manor. He said the new addition would relieve present overcrowded conditions.

This may be taken at the next board meeting — February 13 in Bancroft.

"I'm fairly sure (at that time) we'll have a decision on that," added the chairman.

The decision to divide the county into two units must now be approved by the Ontario Council of Regents.

However, Father Maloney felt the council would uphold the governors.

Emphasizing this, he pointed out, was the presence at last night's meeting of N. A. Sisco, deputy minister of education and Tchnology Branch of the Ontario Department of Education, and the liaison officer between his Minister and the board.

"There seemed to be no question in his mind that what we did last night would be approved."

"I think this endorsation by the Regents is a formality," said Father Maloney.

"In view of the presense of Mr. Sisco there was no question of approval in that party's mind."

The governors last night also chose names for their campus twins.

The northwest unit will be called after Sir Sandford Fleming, who devised the international time zone pattern.

Its companion Quinte - district campus will be named Loyalist.

Father Maloney said present estimates predicted an enrolment of about 1,000 at each college unit.

Y's Activities

A bus to Mountain View Ski Club will leave the "Y" building at noon on Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 21 and 22. It is free of charge, whether you wish to ski or toboggan. There will be lots of room for everyone so come and bring a friend.

by provincial organizations," to attend it.

The "average Conservative" should have an opportunity to be heard. Mr. Diefenbaker called them "often silent hosts" who had given of their best and deserved a hearing.

"And he said he wants the party to remain what it has been during his 10 years of leadership—"a people's party. It shall not become the plaything or the puppet of a powerful few."

Mr. Diefenbaker promised a "fight to the limit against any group or interest attempting to make of this party something other than what it has become —a people's party, standing for what is best in Canada, and never losing sight of the needs of the average, humble Canadian, whether young or old."

These statements appeared to be aimed at the sort of situation the Conservative leader faced during the party's national convention last October.

He was hissed and booed at that meeting as he tried to head off a move for an assessment of his leadership spearheaded by Dalton C. Camp, the national president.

CGE Workers Will Take Strike Vote

TRENTON — Workers at the Canadian General Electric plant will take a strike vote today — while awaiting the outcome of contract negotiations.

The vote, to be polled from 180 members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union of America (local 509) would free the workers for an immediate walk - out in the event of a negotiations breakdown.

Talks between company and union officials which started in Tuesday are due to be resumed early next week.

Workers are demanding an across-the-board increase of 25 per cent plus added fringe benefits.

The company counter offer, spread across three years is divided in four categories.

Lowest male wage would increase 33.3 cents from $1.75, the highest 41.8 cents from $2.60.

For women workers corresponding increases would be 24.1 cents from $1.30 and 26.8 cents from $1.50.

The package also includes fringe benefits.

County Council to Further Study Regional Planning

Hastings county council will continue its "go slow" policy with respect to planning on a regional basis.

This was indicated yesterday following the regional planning committee report by Rawdon Reeve Fred Beckett in which it was stated that consideration was being given to preparation of a county building by-law.

There was no further mention of a previous planning committee report which last December recommended formation of regional planning area taking in all of Hastings, Belleville and Thurlow and the township of Murray.

It was admitted that the recommendations in the area planning had been made "with tongue in cheek" with the view of encouraging discussion.

Again yesterday, Thurlow Reeve Carl Thompson made it clear that he did not favor a regional planning scheme and said he would oppose anything but a "county and-all" set-up.

He said that a budget of at least $75,000 would be required for regional planning and the rural area could expect little from it.

Thurlow township has belonged to the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board for nine years and more, but until last fall received nothing out of it," he said.

Reeve Thompson said he would want to see firm figures regarding personnel required before he would vote for regional planning.

Madoc Reeve Thomas Burnside said he couldn't agree with the Thurlow Reeve's view that regional planning would be a step forward.

"It would be difficult to properly plan and ignore the urban centres," he said.

Warden Shannon observed that from the tone of discussions that committee will have to give slow and serious study on the course to be taken.

The report of the Children's Aid Society given by Director Bruce Kerr, showed that 32 children from the county had been admitted into care last year, including 19 children born out of wedlock.

Mr. Kerr said that generally speaking last year had been one of progress for the CAS. During the year a day-worker was established at Bancroft and also a new home for group living by teen - aged girls was opened in Belleville.

He said the Society continues to recommend on the pre-natal services aspects of protection work and stressed the importance of early referrals.

"The society cannot work with families experiencing difficulties if it knows nothing about them," Mr. Kerr said.

During the year 55 children had been placed in adoption. Mr. Kerr said he was pleased to learn that county council was exploring the possibility of a county wide welfare authority and it was also encouraging to hear discussions around community planning.

To assist in construction safety inspector Earl Mackey reported there were no construction accidents in the county last year. Mr. Mackey also works part time for Prince Edward county and reported it was accident (non fatal) in that county.

Mr. Mackey said no attempt is made to inspect small construction jobs as in many instances these were completed before he was notified of the building permit being issued.

Standing Committees

Following are the appointments to standing committees made at this week's inaugural meeting of county council:

Road and Bridges Committee — Allen Ketcheson, Rawdon (two years), Goldie McInroy (five years), R. C. Graham (four years), Ernest Allen (three years), Carl Thompson (one year), William Shannon, Warden.

Finance and Public Property Committee — Morris Irwin, chairman, William McCrea, Carman Gibson, Calvin White, Don Rodgers, William O'Brien, William Shannon, Warden.

Hastings Manor Board — Ray Moran, chairman, Albert Harvey, Earl Rush, Jack Bush, William Shannon, Warden.

Belleville high school teacher Gerald Boyce, who is writing the history scheduled to be out of the printer's hands by July 1, yesterday told county council that the bulk of much more material than can be published in the 300 page book.

The problem is that some of the material can be eliminated to be sold.

However, he suggested one possible solution. Originally it was planned to have 7,000 copies of the 300 page book printed at a cost of $15,800. He wondered if another 80 pages should be included in the book with the number of volumes reduced to 5,000 to stay within the budget.

Mr. Boyce said if it was decided to include the additional pages, extra copies of the book could be printed later at a nominal figure.

ARDA Committee — John Wilkes, chairman, Frank Peck-over, Edward Cumming, Ross Smith, Delmont Card, Maurice Clancy, William Shannon, Warden.

Board of Health—Fred Bennett, Horace Casey, William Shannon, Warden.

Public School Consultative Committee — Donald Armitage, chairman, Donald Rodgers, Mrs. A. G. Allen.

Secondary School Consultative Committee — William McCrea, chairman, Horace Casey, S. J. Carr.

Representatives on Board of Governors of Belleville General Hospital — H. A. Hamilton (two years), J. C. Anderson (one year), Tom Burnside (one year), William Shannon, Warden.

Emergency Measures Organization — Mack Douglas, William Shannon, Warden.

County History Too Big for Its Binding

The History of Hastings County, being published as a centennial year project, is getting too big for its binding.

Belleville high school teacher Gerald Boyce, who is writing the history scheduled to be out of the printer's hands by July 1, yesterday told county council that the bulk of much more material than can be published in the 300 page book.

The problem is that some of the material can be eliminated to be sold.

However, he suggested one possible solution. Originally it was planned to have 7,000 copies of the 300 page book printed at a cost of $15,800. He wondered if another 80 pages should be included in the book with the number of volumes reduced to 5,000 to stay within the budget.

Mr. Boyce said if it was decided to include the additional pages, extra copies of the book could be printed later at a nominal figure.

March of Dimes Foundation Must Face Automation Era

TRENTON — Speaking to members of the Trenton Professional Women's Club last night, general campaign chair man G. M. Henderson, said the March of Dimes foundat i on must prepare itself to meet the problems which automat i o n would present to the disabled workers.

The March of Dimes "enter nial objective is to enlarge the research program in regard to disabling injuries; to develop more services that disabled persons can provide and more products which the disabled could manufacture in March of Dimes sheltered workshops and open wider doors for employment of the disabled in industry.

If Ontario is to carry out the 1967 program, $820,000 must be raised in this year's campaign Jan. 30 and 31.

Southeastern Ontario, (which includes Trenton, Belleville, Kingston and Brockville) must raise $18,000 from March i n Mothers and $22,000 from United Appeals in the last three communities and others where this system of giving is employed.

Trenton's contribution to the campaign should be $2,600 at least, Mr. Henderson said. Around 300 canvassers under the leadership of Mrs. D a v i s Webb, convener, will conduct the door - to - door canvass.

Guests at last night's meeting were members of the Quinte Disabled Persons' Associati o n, Mrs. Jean Sharpe, campaign secretary and Mrs. Henderson.

Sign in Mr. Guest Speaker

Ontario March of Dimes campaign chairman G. M. Henderson added his name to the Trenton BPW's guest book last night. The club's past president, Mrs. Doris Webb, provided helping hands for the speaker who is general secretary for Imperial Oil when he is not doing community service work.

Unrest in China

In China only a few years ago the great rallying cry was "A million flowers shall bloom."

The word then, as it is today, was from Mao Tse-tung, chairman of the Communist party in China and top man in the Peking hierarchy that is under such strain at the moment. His words then had to do with the emergence of China as a world power and with the flowering of its cultural, technical and industrial life, and contained also the implication that China would be friends with those countries that were well disposed toward it.

But for some time now it has been clear that all is not well within China, that political stability it appeared to be enjoying and which permitted Peking the luxury of becoming a member of the nuclear club, a military excursion or two against India, and a hostile attitude toward both the United States and the Soviet Union, is now as nothing beside the domestic difficulties it is facing today.

Token attempts were made of late to indicate that Mao himself was not ailing, as many observers felt was the case, but was fit and very much in charge. Thus pictures were released showing the party chairman taking part in the annual swim across the Yangtze river. There were suggestions the pictures were faked, but Mao has shown up in other places since then and indeed is fighting for his political life right now.

The present confused situation apparently stems from the swift rise to influence of the Red Guard movement. Established in the schools in what seems to have been a popular wave of dissatisfaction with dissident or unpatriotic elements in the country, the Guards have been stumping the land, vocally urging support for Mao, quoting his utterances, painting them on walls and distributing them in pamphlet form. There have been popular demonstrations which in size alone have probably never been duplicated anywhere, before or since, with millions involved. Inevitably there has been violence, and bloody clashes between the Guards and rival factions have been reported.

That the Red Guards are anti-western, and especially anti-imperialist (meaning the United States) was apparent in the early days of the movement. A few months ago a number of Roman Catholic nuns, most of them European but long domiciled in China, were expelled by the Red Guards. The nuns were treated roughly, they endured a long train journey to Hong Kong, and one died after reaching the British colony.

* * *

That the Guards also seem to have captured the imagination of the entire country is borne out by the fact they travel free on trains and are provided with food and housing when on the move. They appear to be the single most important force in the present turmoil and are constantly on the move spreading the gospel according to Mao.

One youthful member, interviewed by a western newsman in Canton, was eager to know what people in the West thought of China, the Chinese-Soviet split and the war in Vietnam. The Chinese at least do not seem to lack for news of the outside world.

Yet the information they obtain is slanted according to the ever-changing propaganda. Concerning the United States the young man said: "The reactionaries are but a handful. The people of America are our friends, and one day they will rise against the U.S. imperialist government."

If the Red Guards hold a dominant position in this Chinese puzzle there are also others jockeying for power. Ho Lung, a marshal in the People' Liberation Army before ranks were abolished, is reported in disgrace as a principal in the anti-Mao faction. Lo Jui-ching, until last year army Chief of Staff, has been purged and is being held captive by the Red Guards. Head of State Liu Shao-chi is another anti-Mao man and follower of the Khrushchev revisionist line who faces expulsion from party ranks. And there are many more, as is evident from a Tokyo report of dismissed Communist Party leaders and intellectuals being forced to kneel before Mao supporters and make confessions of their political sins.

* * *

History may record contemporary happenings in China as one of the great political upheavals of our day. What the outcome will be must await more stable times in China. But the events there may have a profound effect not only on China itself but on its relations with the outside world. It may be that ultimately a climate will be established which will lead to a better understanding between China and the West. Certainly Peking is in no position at the moment to make trouble outside its borders.

Leather Chesterfield Can Be Stepladder to Success

BY RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — In these days of always bigger budgets and ever higher taxes, people tend to think of most Federal civil servants as drones, protected from the rigorous realities of the cold hard, competitive world outside the government hive only by Parkinson's Law.

And that fabled bureaucratic statute, as you'll remember, sternly provides that work— more work, as some people suspect—expands to fit the workforce.

That is why the Bureaucracy booms.

For Parkinson has proclaimed that no matter how many are hired—and few, if any are ever fired—things can be found for them to do.

But they are far from drones. Collectively they operate the nations biggest business — the annual near-$10,000,000,000 Federal establishment.

And the top executives among them, the Deputies of Finance, Defence, Trade, Revenue, Transport and External, make just $27,000, with responsibilities which former business tycoon Robert Winters, now back in politics and the Cabinet, swears in industry would bring them anywhere from $50,000 to maybe $75,000.

Junior deputies and lesser Federal lights such as directors-general rate down to $20,000.

Executives Grades Three and Four range down to an annual $10,000.

DIFFERENT WORLD:

If they all—or most of them—could make twice as much, or even SOME more in business and industry, what are they doing in government?

To hear them and their advocates like Trade Minister Winters, the ex-wheeler-dealer for the Rothschilds, tell it, not for money, certainly.

Maybe so, perhaps to a degree, anyway.

Then for what?

For power, that is what.

And the symbols of power.

It is precisely this situation of a preference for intangible power over tangible money that gives the government service its curious air of unreality.

Symbols of power—for that is the only measure in such a powerhouse as the Federal Capital—like what?

Well, don't laugh—but like such seemingly small and ordinarily meaningless things as the leather chesterfield for the office.

Now there are chesterfields and chesterfields, ordinary models in imitation leather for the Men-On-The-Way-Up, and big, spacious, deep-cushioned luxury jobs upholstered seating four or even five, in the real thing, for The-Men-Who-Have- Arrived.

And here is a tip:

If you're a new executive recruit Headed - For-Big-Things, don't mention the chesterfield.

Someone on your staff will suggest it when they're setting up your office.

Give them the Oh - Don't - Bother bit, remonstrate mildly that you don't really have to have one—sounding like the girl who says she doesn't want to be kissed. That way you'll get the best in your class.

PECKING ORDER:

Same routine with your wall-to-wall broadloom and your conference table.

They all come in various prestige sizes.

But the big thing in the symbols of power is your secretary. Above everything, let her be mature, a veteran.

She'll know where to place your fanny gear—chairs far enough (but carefull not too far) from your desk so that visitors, including perhaps your boss, will have to stand in front of you when you call busily awaiting orders from that direction.

In the One-Upmanship of the Pecking Order, she'll know the essential ploy of Who-Gets-On-The-Phone-First.

If she knows her stuff, she'll be able to keep officials from other agencies or commissions, who may outrank you by several grades, waiting on the line for you.

Instinctively, she'll make you unavailable—but not isolated—unavailable—but not isolated—But when you are, you're usually SO tied up in conference.

She'll sense—if perhaps not always knowing—the rank of your callers.

And if one or more of your superiors, up even to Cabinet levels, rings up in a sulk, she'll be able to calm and charm them as surely as music is said to soothe the savage breast. That's put you on the line.

And one of the others will have to call back — and if discreet you'll be returning the call yourself when you're clear of your conference.

Don't neglect the attache case —the briefcase is out, passé—making sure it is well-worn, even a bit battered at the corners, packing all that high echelon homework of yours. Make it plain, too. No initials, no Governor-of-Canada lettering on it, even in gold leaf—you're too big for that stuff.

Now you're on your way. Up,

Teacher Salaries

Sault Daily Star

Because education is a provincial responsibility, why is there not some action by the Ontario government to improve teacher hiring practices? For instance, why does the government not institute a study of the present teacher salaries to see whether they are equitable and whether they compare favorably with salaries for similar skills in industry? A study of this kind could be used to set down guidelines for the school-boards, or for the recommended central agency, which would ensure fair salaries, and greater uniformity in salaries, for all Ontario's teachers.

That Annual Temperature Check

To Your Good Health

Balanced Diet Essential In Event of Heart Trouble

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please help me. I have a heart condition and high blood pressure and am on a low-salt and low fat-diet. Now my doctor tells me I am suffering from malnutrition, because I have no appetite.

I got reckless today and cooked a very small minute steak in butter and ate it, as I was so hungry, and so far haven't felt any bad effects from it. I also ate a little plain corn and some beets.

What could I eat and not injure my heart? — M. T.

I'm afraid that something is very much wrong here — that something has been misunderstood.

You say, Mrs. T., that you "have no appetite," but you ate a steak because you "were so hungry."

Limited salt, and limited fat, particularly the former, have important roles to play in your condition, but it is even more important that you have enough nourishment.

What do you mean — Am I right? — is that you have an appetite, but not for the things you think you are allowed to eat.

You need protein. That means meat, fish, eggs, cheese. True, you must avoid adding salt to your food, but at the grocery you can get salt substitutes which are made with potassium and not with sodium. These substitutes add a good deal of flavor.

Lemon juice and vinegar both can add a tartness to certain dishes and compensate for the lack of salt.

You can broil meat instead of frying it and thus avoid the added fat required for frying.

I concede that eggs without salt aren't as tasty, but the use of salt substitutes and pepper can make up to some degree.

Another possibility is to use one of the liquid diets, which are readily available and are mainly used by people who want to reduce, because the liquid is high in protein, vitamins and minerals which are needed for health, but the total numbers of calories is kept within fixed limits. These diets, as I've mentioned before, were not originated as "reducing diets," but intended for people with finicky appetites who needed an easy way to eat some of the things they need.

There are ways to get the food you need without damaging your heart or raising your blood pressure. What I suspect is that you have told your doctor that you "have no appetite," when what you really mean, and should have said, is that you need his help in explaining just what you CAN get safely. For when you are hungry, you have appetite.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been married five months and have discovered that I am frigid. Because I am ashamed of my problem, I have not seen a doctor or told my husband.

I think it is because of the way I am built. Is this possible, and can anything be done? — S. K.

Having a problem is nothing that should make you ashamed. It is just something to be solved. Physical abnormalities often can be corrected, but by the far the more frequent cause of frigidity is psychological.

You doubtless will need your physician's help, even if only to assure you that you are anatomically normal. For the psychological aspects (as well as others) two excellent books are "Private and Personal" by Grace Naismith, and "Release from Sexual Tensions," by Harry Stecher Calderone, M. D.

Note to Mrs. E. R. No, I have no booklet on hormones, but there is a chapter, "Hormones, Health and Holism," in my book "Stay Well Every Year of Your Life," which can be obtained through book stores. The book also deals in other chapters with various aspects of hormones.

Bed-wetting is a distressing problem. If your child has the habit, write to Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper for a helpful booklet, "Enuresis — Ten Ways to Stop Bed-Wetting." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Alaska Deal Irks Soviets

Boston Globe

The Russians, according to the Soviet news agency, Tass now regret the sale of Alaska to the United States for $7.2 million in 1867. And who can blame them? The Indians for years have regretted the sale of Manhattan for $24, and even the man next door wishes he had never sold the south end of his little plot.

That's how the cookie crumbles. You win one and lose one. Sell a piece of property, shrewdly not disclosing to the purchaser that a reform school is going to be built next door, and the next thing you know the purchaser has struck oil on it.

Seward's Folly" is what Alaska was called when we bought it, and the Czar of all the Russians thought he was a pretty slick operator when he closed the deal. But several emptor is one of the oldest legal principles, and surely there must be a comparable piece to it which requires the seller to beware, too. Anyway, just because we bought Alaska under one Johnson, we're not going to sell it back under an other. The Indians can quit hankering for Manhattan, too.

Strictly Personal

Courage to Be Oneself

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

The deepest and rarest kind of courage has nothing to do with feats or obstacles in the outside world. And, indeed, there is nothing to do with the outside world — it is the courage to be who you are.

It is commonly easier to make a man mad by impugning his taste than by attacking his ideas, for he considers his ideas as cultural acretions, while he (wrongly) imagines that his taste is inborn.

We use our beliefs to shape our experiences, and then we offer our experiences as evidence of the rightness of our beliefs. Once given this circular process, it is little wonder that we almost always fail to convert others to our beliefs.

To accomplish great things, we first have to know what greatness consists of — for if we lack this concept, we run the strong risk of monumentally achieving what was not worth doing in the first place.

Starting and stopping are the most dangerous parts of any venture, and the ending itself; most ships are wrecked near shore, and most airplanes crash near airports.

Once a year, I like to quote the prayer of Goethe, which to me makes more psychological sense than any other I have heard: Help us, God, and give us light so that we don't stand in our own way; let us do from morning to night what should be done; and give us the ideas of the consequences of our actions.

Character is not so much what we do, why we do it — the world is full of busy people doing the right things for the wrong reasons, and wondering wistfully why the world isn't a better place than it is.

The general public attitude that "you can prove anything with statistics," is exactly the reverse of truth: for one can hardly prove anything with statistics alone, as all honest statisticians will admit.

Many people think that "a sense of humor" consists in the ability to laugh at jokes, but that is only its lowest and crudest form; a genuine sense of humor consists in seeing the joke in things that most people ordinarily take with the utmost seriousness, and, conversely, detecting the profound seriousness at the bottom of every good joke.

The poor in the past were better off than they are today; then they had nothing, and owned nothing; today, they have a little, but they owe much more.

Universities

Independent Status Vital

Toronto Daily Star

Ontario's 14 universities can be protected from tripping over each other's academic feet without the drastic centralization of lumping them all together under one Toronto authority, said one name "University of Ontario."

Most university presidents are opposed to the plan, presented by the Government - sponsored commission on graduate education in the Ontario system. Leddy, head of the University of Windsor, added a criticism that students, graduates and professors would probably echo: it's "not very attractive."

Universities should not be branch factories of an industry called "higher education." They develop their own character and qualities, which students (and their parents) prize. From a public point of view the variety has value since all graduates aren't stuffed with the same BA incredients.

But the variety should be maintained without extravagant overlapping and waste of effort and resources. That's really what the commission's task was: to recommend means by which higher education, particularly postgraduate studies could be co-ordinated for the good of scholarship and the public purse.

LCBO Sets Bad Example

Port Arthur News-Chronicle

Because of the increase of one per cent in the federal sales tax the Ontario Liquor Control Board will raise prices of popular brands from two to six cents. What hope has the public that private businesses will try to absorb tax increases when provincial governments, operating an enormously profitable monopoly, simply jumps the price?

Third British Auto Firm Comes Under U.S. Control

DETROIT (AP) — Lynn A. Townsend took another giant transatlantic step this week in his drive to make Chrysler Corp. a bigger factor in the world auto market.

The Chrysler board chairman dug into Chrysler's treasury for $48,000,000 which will be used in his company's dealings with Rootes Motors, Britain's fourth largest auto-maker.

Half of the money will buy more Rootes stock, with Chrysler—which had held 45 per cent of the company since 1964 —increasing its holdings to a controlling 65 per cent.

The other $24,000,000 is a loan to help Rootes in a five-year, $112,000,000 expansion and modernization program designed to get the company back into the black at the auto sales race.

Agreement by the British government to Chrysler's acquisition of the controlling interest in Rootes was a personal victory for Townsend.

The Labor party objected bitterly when Chrysler made its first move in the Rootes deal more than two years ago.

Chrysler agreed then to have only three seats on the 12-man board of directors of Rootes.

Townsend also gave assurance that Chrysler would make no efforts to control Rootes but would work as a partner with Britone in building the company.

Rootes' financial fortunes dived in 1965 and 1966 as the British auto market sagged. It lost nearly $9,000,000 in fiscal 1966 and said its losses for the six months ending next Jan. 31 were expected to be about $13,000,000.

Anthony Wedgewood Benn, British technology minister who announced Chrysler's latest moves to the House of Commons Tuesday, said Britain's auto companies were asked if there was any possible way of continuing Rootes as a British-controlled company.

"No such scheme proved practicable," Benn said.

The Townsend team proceeded cautiously, to avoid any possible inferences of a U.S. takeover of a British company.

"We only stepped in when we were asked and when it became evident Rootes could not make it on its own," a Chrysler spokesman said.

Chrysler's acquisition of Rootes left three of Britain's top four auto companies under U.S. control.

The leading British automaker, British Motor Corp., is independent; second is English Ford; third, General Motors' British subsidiary and then Rootes.

Chrysler Recalls U.S. Cars

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. Wednesday recalled more than 18,000 of its 1967 model cars because it said some 4,700 of them may have possible mechanical defects.

A company spokesman said the defects could affect brakes and electrical systems in the autos.

The company also advised owners of some 130,215 of its Plymouth Fury and Dodge Polara and Monaco models to heat windshield wiper motors for possible malfunction in cold weather. A spokesman said about 40,000 of the cars may have defects.

Chrysler said 18,126 owners would be notified about possible brake and electrical system defects, but only 4,730 of the vehicles actually may be defective.

"We are recalling all of them because we are not sure which cars may be involved," a spokesman said.

A company spokesman said Chrysler reported the recalls to the U.S. national safety agency in accordance with the new federal Traffic Safety Standards Act.

He said the company discovered the possible defects during quality control engineering tests.

Largest Tires in Europe

A mini-car is dwarfed by the largest nylon earthmover tire ever produced in Europe. The tire, weighs 1¼ tons, contains enough nylon for 7,424 pairs of stockings or 1,840 miles of fishing line. When four of these tires are fitted to a large twin-engined scraper, they can carry a load of 100 tons. The earthmoving tires, made by a British rubber company, will be used in highway construction and on mining and logging sites.

Crown Contends Racan Didn't Buy Invoice Goods

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario Supreme Court jury was told Wednesday that Racan Photo-Copy Corp. of Toronto did business worth $810.75 with Speed-O - Print Business Machines Corp. of Chicago at a time when Lavoies showed the transactions amounted to $171,000.

Crown counsel Clay Powell said it is the Crown's case that the invoices in question were fictitious in the sense that the now - defunct Racan never bought the goods set out in the invoices.

The jury is trying Kenneth George Lennie of Toronto, former president of Racan, on charges of fraud, uttering and conspiracy involving $245,000.

Mr. Powell said Elias Rabbah, 42, of Toronto, founder of Racan who is charged jointly with Lennie, had a personal bank account in Toronto.

He said a Crown witness will say later that Lennie instructed her to alter entries in account books for Rabbish's personal benefit.

It is not the position of the Crown that the $240,000 in question went to Lennie, Mr. Powell said. But the Crown's case is that Rabbish was able to facilitate the transaction through Lennie, and that Lennie is equally responsible for acts that took place.

Burton Tilden, vice-president of Speed-O-Print, said the firm began selling equipment and photo - copy paper to Racan in 1960.

In all, he said his company sold $850,000 worth of merchandise to Racan, which owed it $10,000 when it went into bankruptcy in 1966.

The trial continues.

Milk Qualifying Standards Sought by Dairy Farmers

WINNIPEG (CP)—A resolution asking the Canadian Dairy Commission to set qualifying standards for all milk and cream to receive subsidy payments passed by a narrow, three-vote margin Wednesday at the 25th annual Dairy Farmers of Canada convention.

The resolution, presented by the Fraser Valley Milk Producers Association of British Columbia, said it is recognized the maintenance or improvement of the level of consumption of all dairy products depends on quality.

Quality begins at the farm level and must be maintained at that level. Unfairness exists where producers receive the same prices and subsidies for milk of varying quality, the resolution said.

Other resolutions approved included a request that the federal government permit only "the" agricultural stabilization board to import butter and that such butter meet quality standards of Canada No. 1 grade and priced so it would not reduce the returns to cream producers.

Another asked that the federal government set the price of cream at $1.18 a pound butterfat because the feeding value of skim milk does not exceed 50 cents in 100 pounds.

Easy does it.

Maybe for you. Not for us. When it comes to making 5 Star, there's only one way. The difficult way. Which means selecting whiskies from our five distilleries across Canada (only Seagram's has five, by the way). Then blending and re-blending them to get 5 Star's easy taste.

Is it worth it? For you, definitely. And once you start telling your friends about this easy whisky they're missing, it'll be worth it for us too.

By the way, have you seen our elegant new bottle? Easy on the eye.

Continental Economy Canada's Next Step

VICTORIA (CP)— Canada, which got "just a step out of the bush" in its first 100 years, must in its second century develop both a continental economy and grow as a nation, says Attorney-General Bonner of British Columbia.

Speaking to the Victoria Administrative Management Association, Mr. Bonner said the first 100 years of Confederation were built on "inward-looking" policies of Ontario, which made the rest of Canada its market.

But this situation is changing, partly with the emergence of B.C. as an exporter and money earner, he said.

British Columbia industry last year exceeded Ontario by paying its workers 113 per cent of the national average against 108 per cent in Ontario, he said.

B.C. had been able to improve its position by exporting in large quantities to the United States, Japan, Britain and in growing degree to Common Market countries of Europe.

But allowing B.C. and Ontario, the two principal economic centres of the country to flourish would perpetuate the fixed lines delineating the two economic regions, Mr. Bonner said.

"In the next 100 years the issues of continentalism or confinement are the issues we will have to face."

It is not academic that Canada is involved in the North American economy: It is fact, he said.

There must be free access to the world money market in New York, he said, in order to finance projects such as Peace and Columbia River power development to help industrial growth.

He said more money must be earned by Canadians to provide a government with the money it requires and are going to require in the near future.

"We've got to come a long way up to meet continental standards," Mr. Bonner said.

The country is still "just a step out of the bush, a few days down the road from pioneer times and the problems of overcoming natural difficulty are still with us.

"We should be seeking more financing, more investment, more people from abroad."

Canadians can be insensitive to U.S. policy changes and they must face world economic facts, Mr. Bonner said.

He said notwithstanding Canada's closeness to Britain, for example, "the fact remains they buy on price and they buy on delivery, neither of which are due to be altered by blood or patriotism.

"We are in a very cold world so far as international competition is concerned."

No Harm in Entering Church Without Hat

HALIFAX (CP) — Should a woman enter a church with her head uncovered?

The question was put to a number of Halifax clergymen and the consensus seems to be that it doesn't matter all that much.

Very Rev. E. R. N. Cochrane, Anglican dean of Nova Scotia, says it was formerly traditional within the church to follow an Old Testament directive to show respect. This was interpreted as having women cover their heads and men uncover theirs.

"Over 95 per cent of women in the cathedral do wear hats but today we are breaking away from the old traditions in many things and no one is particularly worried about this practice or taking it very seriously."

Rev. John Hayes, information officer for the Roman Catholic diocese of Halifax, says there have been no major pronouncements by the Catholic church on the question for many years.

"If someone stays away from church because she hasn't a suitable head covering, her emphasis is obviously being placed on the wrong thing."

Rev. G. A. Allen Beveridge, a United Church minister, says it is "only very, very occasionally" that he sees a woman in his congregation without head covered. "We don't pay much attention to it. . . . It's not a habit that's growing to any great extent."

The Presbyterian Church has made no pronouncement on the matter, says Rev. Donald MacKay. He estimates that in summer perhaps 25 per cent of the women in his congregation are bare-headed. During the winter there are rarely any hatless women.

Mrs. William Carey Harvey says he prefers his Baptist congregation to place less emphasis on dressing up to attend church and he adds the church has taken no stand or. head coverings.

"It has just been the previous acceptance of a custom. It's some of the hats that should be covered. The bare head is frequently better than the hat."

CONCERNED FOR WORKING MOTHER—

Doris French, editor of the magazine Canadian Welfare, thinks day care for children of working mothers should be a community responsibility. She says people now feel that the working mother is shirking her responsibilities in the home. (CP Photo)

Community Must Be Persuaded Of Need for Day Care Facilities

OTTAWA (CP)—Day care for children of working mothers should be a community responsibility, says Doris French, a newly-appointed editor of Canadian Welfare magazine.

Mrs. French, who took over the Canadian Welfare Council publication Jan. 1, says the community must be persuaded ofthe essential need for day care facilities.

"People now are inclined to be hostile and feel the woman who works is shirking her responsibilities in the home."

Mrs. French, a slim, pretty blonde, has been the morning commentator for CBC Ottawa since 1960. A divorcee, she lives with her two teen age children in suburbia.

Though she hasn't time for morning coffee parties, she was at a lot of them via her 9:45 a.m. radio show. The 10-minute, five-day-a-week program was a survey of "normal out-of-the-home activities of reasonably intelligent women." It included talks and interviews about art, theatre, politics and social welfare.

Mrs. French was born in Regina, went to school in Raymore, Sask., and attended Regina normal school. She taught school for three years, was a member of the Parliamentary Press Gallery for a chain of weekly newspapers and has published free - lance articles in magazines and newspapers.

She has written two books: Ask No Quarter, a biography of the late Agnes Macphail, with co-author Margaret Stewart of Toronto, and Faith, Sweat and Politics, the story of trade unions in early Canada.

At present she is working on a history of the social status of the woman public school teacher to mark the 50th anniversary in 1968 of the Women Public School Teachers' Association of Ontario.

She thinks the welfare council assignment will give her more time to devote to the particular subjects that interest her.

"Radio was a tyrant, a relentless beast. And I was always uncomfortable with the sound of my voice. It's too light and school-girlish."

Many of her scripts were on welfare topics and she hopes to continue doing free-lance work on the subject.

"There are a lot of unsolved questions in the field such as the rapidly changing balance between the professional and volunteer worker. Many women haven't got the free time for volunteer work any more. I feel a lot of current social problems go directly back to working wives."

Marching Mothers Set For Blitz on January 30

TORONTO (CP)—When the wind is blowing hard she needs help getting across the parking lot from her car. She must have her typewriter on the left side of her desk because her polio-weakened left arm can't reach across the desk. But she is an efficient secretary to a busy woman.

One of her colleagues loves to cook but uses only lightweight pots and pans. She isn't strong enough to handle heavy ones.

Both women work at the Rehabilitation Foundation for the Disabled in Toronto, but, says Betty McMurray, Ontario executive director, either could work in any office.

Mrs. McMurray says one of the many problems faced by the disabled when looking for work is that they don't look to prospective employers as if they can work. This can be misleading. One foundation employee who works in a wheelchair has missed only two days in 10 years.

The foundation was originally part of the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis. With polio licked, it now has broadened its interests to cover other kinds of disabilities.

It is for such foundations as this in all provinces that 100,000 Marching Mothers will set out Jan. 30 on a door-to-door campaign to raise money for the March of Dimes.

"There have been tremendous changes in rehabilitation in the years I've been here — since 1950," Mrs. McMurray says. "In 1954 there was the Salk vaccine. As soon as we could stop worrying about an epidemic of polio every other year we could look at some of the same problems but the wrong disease."

Those benefitting from the foundation's work now may include accident victims and arthritics as well as polio victims.

"We began to develop services for all types of disability and, you know, there was remarkably little change. Originally, just treatments and braces cost all the money you could raise. Few people had insurance and government help was uneven.

"Then came hospital insurance and now one of the biggest problems for the disabled is what they are going to do with the rest of their lives. Once the pain is over, if there is nothing to do, disabled people can wind up in mental hospitals."

And so the foundation, and others like it, began turning most of its attention to assessing the working capacity of the disabled, finding work for them when possible and doing what it can for those who cannot work.

The foundation does medical evaluation, interviews and psychological testing, checks on learning abilities, and operates a workshop where some potentially competitive workers prepare themselves for a job in factory or office.

In1966 the Ontario foundation placed 92 persons in competitive jobs and 92 in sheltered work shops out of 1,107 who went through the assessment procedure. Others were found to be able to do work at homo.

The foundation spent $110,000 for its service during the year but the 184 who found jobs are no longer on welfare and that means a saving of $220.800 in public money.

KIWANIS
LADIES' AUXILIARY

Barmara Lumbers was installed as president of the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary for 1967.

The five new members welcomed into the club were Clara Davenport, Evelyn Ethier, Verna Harrison, Mildred Hepburn and Helena Morlock.

It was announced that Mrs. Jam Pringle will soon be leaving Belleville to live in Orillia.

Plans were made for a centennial cook book, which will go on sale at the annual dessert bridge on March 15.

Theladies will assist the Kiwanis Club in preparing a float for the centennial parade on July 5.

Other officers installed were: past-president — Thelma Freestone; vice-president — Ina Bellfield; secretary — Maureen Colter; treasurer — Margaret Doidge; directors — Kay Burton, Pat Kent, Lois Rose and Ella Trepanier.

The club was privileged to have Mayor Jack Ellis as guest speaker. The mayor spoke on the various centennial events which will take place in Belleville during the coming year. He was introduced by Gwen Brain and thanked by Miriam Pringle, who presented him with an aerial picture of Belleville.

A birthday cake was served in honor of Ethel Lee, who had just celebrated her 80th birthday.

Medical Practice in Russia Virtually a Female Monoply

OTTAWA (CP) — Medical practice in the Soviet Union is virtually a female monopoly, says Dr. Helen Mussallem, executive director of the Canadian Nurses' Association.

It's not just because Soviet nurses are almost all women—a male nurse is a rarity, it's because 75 per cent of the doctors are women, too.

Dr. Mussellem had a good look at medical services last October when she joined nursing chiefs from 22 countries on a month-long tour sponsored by the World Health Organization.

As chief consultant and rapporteur for the tour, Dr. Mussallem later spent a month at W.H.O. headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, writing a report about the trip.

Talking to a reporter, she came up with more evidence of how completely a female-dominated field medicine is in the U.S.S.R.

Feldshers, whose training is between that of a nurse and doctor, are almost all women, too.

The basic difference between the Soviet and Canadian health services, Dr. Mussallem said, is that in the U.S.S.R. no one pays for training or treatment.

"They have the largest land area in the world and there is some health service available in every part—from complex hospitals in Moscow to a small first-aid post on a remote collective farm."

These feldsher-midwife units are similar to nursing posts in Canada's Far North.

NO PRIVATE PRACTICE

Nurses and doctors are assigned to a specific hospital after graduation. Doctors have worked there three years they may move elsewhere "if they have a valid reason."

Ode reason might be that a nurse's husband has been transferred to another area. Or she might want to work closer to home.

There is virtually no private practice. Medical service is free to everyone, so there is no need for private practitioners."

Doctors are trained at "upper medical schools" while nurses, feldshers and midwives are trained at "middle medical schools." There are about 742,000 nurses, in the Soviet Union compared with about 108,000 registered nurses in Canada.

That's about seven times as many nurses to serve more than 11 times the population.

Dr. Mussallem said what struck her immediately on entering the first hospital the group visited in Moscow was that all were competent—doctors, nurses and orderlies—wear the same uniform.

Nurses make smock and white surgeon's hat. The smock is worn over street clothes, and ordinary street dress in all styles and colors are worn on duty.

DOCTOR IS BOSS

Nurses and doctors work as a team but the doctor is definitely boss. Student nurses are taught only by doctors, not by teaching nurses as in Canada. And, unlike Canada, the chief nurse of a hospital is under direction of the chief surgeon, and nursing personnel are responsible to the ward doctor, not to a senior nurse.

Soviet nurses are encouraged to become specialists—especially the top five per cent in each graduating class and others who show promise after their first three years of service. Medicine is a six-year course.

The nursing school curriculum is approved by the health ministry and therefore is the same in all 15 republics of the U.S.S.R.

We have more variation in Canada, with about 60 diploma and independent schools."

Soviet nurses may take special courses after graduation to become specialists in dietetics, physiotherapy or electrocardiograph technique. There are no special training schools for this type of hospital personnel as there are in Canada.

Dr. Mussallem said she was generally impressed with the "warmth of the relationship between the patients and the staff—especially in the Ukrainian republic."

Reader Feels That a Permissive Attitude Has Infiltrated Advice

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — You do give good advice, but it seems to me that the prevailing "permissive" attitude has infiltrated the advice. Right and wrong are no longer the way of life."

However, as the years lead me toward 'the long rest', my attitude doesn't matter to anyone else — B.C.R.

DEAR B.C.R. — Your opinion matters - terribly. I'd hate to think we had sold out to the what's-the-use contingent.

There is a place for discipline, for police courts, for punishment. But when we are striving for mature, self-realizing personalities we put the accent on love and encouragement; never forgetting that mental health calls for the kind of controls and limits which are dictated by loving understanding.

There is an enlightened science of human behavior now. Should we operate as if we were still in the gaslight days?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — My son is 15. He has a bad case of acne, and while he won't admit it I am sure it makes him backward about associating with the girls or trying to learn to dance.

If there is a cure for acne, let's have it! — Worried Mother.

DEAR MOTHER — Acne, the medical name for a disease which features unsightly pimples and blackheads, doesn't just get better when you take a pill. Certain lotions help, and some foods make it worse.

A teen-ager with acne learns to avoid some of the culprits: chocolate, cola drinks, coffee, tea, hot spices. He also learns — with help, and sometimes with sedatives — to avoid anxiety and tension. These make it worse.

Certain cleansing routines, medications which unplug the pores, are part of the skin specialist's prescription. Acne should be taken seriously. Scars on the skin can scar a personality.

I'm sending you my ten-cent leaflet on the subject.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Do enjoy that column so much.

Perhaps if the opportunity arises you might mention the importance of kindness to animals; that they have proper shelter during cold weather, etc. — Diana.

DEAR DIANA — By now you will have noticed another reader's mention of this. I'm finding that even a smart-aleck can be moved to pity and gentleness once he thinks of birds and animals as living, feeling beings.

The Kindness Club branches across Canada have been of tremendous help to our S.P.C.A.'s, which have been working away faithfully for a long, long time.

(Do you wonder why people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. And remember that stamped envelope!)

Rich, Moist Chocolate Layer Cake

By MARY MOORE

Whether to recommend this chocolate cake for its flavor, or its texture, or its keeping qualities is my perplexing current problem.

You decide.

This cake is somewhat of a nuisance to make, but not expensive. It is worth all of your trouble and all cooks within reading range of this column should clip and save and make this moist rich chocolate cake — the kind Canadians clamor for.

RICH MOIST CHOCOLATE LAYER CAKE:

2 eggs — yolks and whites separated
2-3 cup light brown sugar, packed
3 squares cooking chocolate (or 3 envelopes semi-liquid chocolate or redi-bake chocolate)
½ cup milk
½ cup butter or margarine
2/3 cup granulated sugar
¾ cup milk
1 tsp. vanilla
1¼ cups sifted cake flour (not all-purpose)
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt

In a small saucepan stir together the 2 egg yolks (reserving the whites) and the brown sugar, chocolate and ¾ cup milk. Cook stirring constantly over low heat until smooth and thickened. Remove from heat and cool to room temperature.

In your large beater bowl cream together butter or margarine and granulated sugar, until very light and creamy. To the ¾ cup milk add the vanilla. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. By hand add the flour mixture alternately with the milk mixture, 1/3 of each at a time, to the creamed butter-sugar mixture. You may beat by hand but not with the beaters. Stir in cooled custard mixture. Beat whites until stiff but not dry. Fold in until thoroughly blended. Have ready two 8"x" diameter layer cake pans, lined on bottom with buttered wax paper and buttered on sides. Turn batter into pans and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 35 to 35 mins. Allow cakes to remain in pans for 3 to 4 mins. then turn out on cake racks, peel off wax paper and allow to cool. Put together with this Filling between: mix together in a medium saucepan ¼ cup granulated sugar, 1½ tbsps. cornstarch, ½ tsp. salt and when mixed stir in 1 cup scalded milk and 1 large egg. Stir over medium heat until thick. Cool before spreading on bottom layer. Put on top layer and cover sides first and then top with this Frosting: Beat together until creamy 3 tbsps. butter, 3 cups sifted icing sugar, shake of salt and 5 tbsps. 18% cream. Sprinkle top with chocolate mint.

Now it is up to you to produce this masterpiece.

Ann Landers

Wants to Help Neighbor Suffering With Epilepsy

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If you tell me to mind my own business I will, but what goes on next door is heartbreaking and I'd give anything if I could help.

I will call the neighbor girl Betsy. She is almost 16, a sweet, pretty little thing, but her mother (a widow) is wrecking her life. Betsy has epilepsy but she doesn't know it. My brother was an epileptic and I have witnessed hundreds of seizures so I am not guessing. Betsy's mother has told her (and everyone else) that the girl has "fainting spells," which she will outgrow.

ANN LANDERS

One afternoon Betsy had a seizure when I was present. I suggested to the mother that she take her daughter to a doctor because she might be an epileptic. The mother became furious. She said I had no right to diagnose illnesses and that epilepsy was out of question because there had never been any insanity in their family.

I know how well my brother did when he followed the doctor's orders and took his medication. It breaks my heart to see this young girl being kept in the dark because her mother has the ridiculous idea that epilepsy is a disgrace.

Please print my letter and a strong reply to enlighten the reading public. Many thanks. — SILENT NEIGHBOR.

DEAR SILENT NEIGHBOR: The ignorance and fear and superstition that once surrounded epilepsy is slowly fading away, but unfortunately too many people still harbor the medieval notion that this illness is something to be ashamed of.

Epilepsy is a fairly common disease. Approximately one in 200 people in the United States is an epileptic. No one knows the exact cause of epilepsy. It can result from brain damage, pre-natal or birth injuries or an infectious disease.

Authorities agree it has nothing to do with insanity and point to the evidence that the vast majority of epileptics are normal in every other way. This illness is not considered hereditary although a predisposition may be found in certain types of epilepsy.

In recent years drugs have proven extremely effective in controlling (and in some cases eliminating) seizures. Thousands of epileptics who take medication (under doctor's orders, of course) attend school regularly, hold responsible positions, marry and have fine families. Betsy can be among them — if her mother will let her.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I felt sorry for the after-dinner speaker who was furious because a "friend" stole his jokes after he had given him at a previous function. When the poor fellow's time came, he was literally speechless. Maybe this anecdote will help others who might be similarly victimized:

Mark Twain and Charles M. DePew were both scheduled to appear on a program. Mr. Twain spoke for 20 minutes and made a big hit. When Mr. DePew was called on to speak he said, "Ladies and Gentlemen: Before this dinner Mark Twain and I agreed to trade speeches. Mr. Twain has just delivered my speech and I am pleased that it was so well received. I regret that I have lost the notes to his speech and I can't remember what he wanted to say."

Mr. DePew then sat down amid much laughter and was as big a hit as Mr. Twain. — D.C.H.

DEAR D.: Many thanks for the beautiful story. I might even resort to this lifesaver myself one of these days.

Clear Oil Used for Old Zippers

SUSANNA'S FAMILY FARE

Dear Su: The zippers of my husband's black galoshes finally ground to a halt and were just impossible to budge.

The old remedies, such as rubbing with soap or the lead of a pencil didn't help the situation one iota, but something else did.

He applied a few squirts of clear, light-weight, household machinery oil along the teeth of the zipper right down to the pull. He was then able to work the zippers back and forth until they ran quite freely. — Melinda

Dear Susanna: Corn starch is a favorite dusting powder in our family for baby's little derrier. — E. M.

Slit Skirts As Sexy as Short Skirts

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Slit skirts and cinched waistlines are as sexy as short skirts.

That was the lesson Norman Norell had for his fashion cult at his spring collection opening this week.

The dean of American couturiers, one of the few feared by the French, chose to introduce his style ideas more than two months after most U.S. designers, and in the midst of the European style presentations.

At first the audience was startled over the possibility that Norell had sacked his perennial ladylike look and had joined the mini job.

However, his show openers, those higher-than-thigh belted middy dresses on white-legged lasses, were just a spoof by the most-copied and the most expensive of the U.S. style makers. Hemlines are a mere inch or two above his model's knees.

Instead Norell presented the womanly body with wide contour belts that cinched the natural waistline, and shifts that did not quite bag but skimmed closer to figure than Norell clothes have in nearly a decade.

DRESSES OPEN TO HIP

Far more provocative than a sliced-off skirt was a slither of a sheath slashed vertically, exposing startling amounts of stemwork. Oriental - inspired crepe mandarin dresses in jewel colors were open to the hip on either side, or almost as high in front.

There were also belted trench coats, double-breasted and in bold horizontal stripes worn over pure white or soft pastel dresses.

There were hip-length jackets in racing checks, as well as grey flannels and deep navies worn with round-collared jersey blouses tucked into tight-fitting waistbands.

For glittering formal occasions there were fisherman's trousers, skirts or fabric that looped at the ankles and gathered at the cinched waistline of the bodice back and front—all showered with blinking mirrorlike sequins.

Legion News

BRANCH 99 LADIES' AUXILIARY

Despite the cold weather the first meeting of the new year of Branch 99 Royal Canadian Legion Ladies' Auxiliary was well attended.

President Rashotte opened the meeting and the committees gave their reports on various activities during the past year. It was noted that euchres have been well attended.

It has been arranged for the Zone Rally to be held in the Legion Hall, Belleville this year on Thursday, May 25th. Zone Commander Hope Begley is chairman for this event, with the executive body as her committee. President Rashotte will be the representative to the Men's Branch for the Legion Centennial. This is a separate project from the Canadian Centennial, details of this event are not yet completed.

A donation was made to the British Sailors Society.

The Auxiliary Bowling and Euchre Teams will be travelling to Bowmanville on January 28th to compete in the Zone competitions. They are wished every success.

Mrs. B. Moore was the lucky winner of the evening's draw.

President Rashotte introduced the President of the Men's Legion Branch 99, Ken Edgecombe and his installing team. 1st Vice-president, Lloyd Doran, Comrade Fred Hodge, Sergeant-at-Arms, and Comrade Ross Jamieson.

After the officers and executive had been duly sworn in and installed in their various offices, the color party escorted President Dorothy Rashotte to the front lon she as formally installed.

President Edgecombe thanked the Auxiliary for its unfailing support in the past and promised continued co - operation.

President Rashotte replied and presented the installing team with small gifts of appreciation.

The date of this year's Valentine's dance is set for February 10 and a popular orchestra has been engaged for this popular evening. More details of this dance will appear at a later date.

Mrs. T. L. (Fran) Simpson With Posters

Former Newspaper Artist Offers Cartooning Talents

When a former newspaper artist offered her cartooning talents to the curling organization at Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, little did she realize the effect she would have on the large membership's esprit de corps and general improvement.

Mrs. T. L. (Fran) Simpson a fashion artist with the Halifax Mail Star before her marriage came up with an appropriate poster to illustrate an idea rink keeper Bill Lewis was finding difficult to put across in words of warning. The rink manager and ice maker had trouble impressing on women curlers of the 600 strong club the hot ashes from cigarettes defaced the ice surface and could be detrimental to exacting shot makers.

At other times when there is reason for marking a club accomplishment Mrs. Simpson turns out a sketch as a memento of the occasion and it is presented to the deserving winner along with the customary awards. While her creations receive more notice and prompt much favorable comment from fellow curlers the originator says she wishes to be better known as a curler and booster for the sport. Her biggest thrill comes in competition as skip for an aspiring team including Joan Davis (vice), Jean Manns (second) and Kay Bennett (lead).

Indian Band Secretary Wants to Enter Politics

DUNCAN, B.C. (CP)—Louise Underwood is thinking of going into politics because she'd like to do more for her people on the nearby Cowichan Indian Reserve.

"I'd like to be in a position where I can better help the Indians," she says. "Right now I'm making a contribution in a small way at the local level."

Miss Underwood, secretary and treasurer of the band, says provincial politics affects the Indian more and more and she would like to have a say in decision-making at the government level.

"I'm quite interested in politics and at present the Indians have little voice at the provincial level."

She says Indian representation in the British Columbia legislature could have avoided a recent instance where the city of Duncan "extended its boundaries into Cowichan reserve without the Indians' knowledge or consent.

INDIANS PAID LESS

Miss Underwood says there is still discrimination against the Indian in employment and is "saddened" because the Indian affairs department pays its Indian help on the reserve less than whites.

"The general trend is still to regard the Indians as cheap labor. I think we better opportunities now but there is still a long way to go. Indian and non-Indian must together but we don't meet socially."

Miss Underwood regulates the meetings of 16 Cowichan band committees. Her jobs include preparing budgets, pay lists, farmers' lists, negotiating on behalf of the band with government officials and helping develop band resources.

Although her work focuses on the Cowichan band she lives away from the reserve.

"The decision whether or not to live on the reserve is an individual one and drastic changes should be done to forge a decision one way or another.

"This business of integration is going to be hard many of the younger ones are taking the opportunity to improve the selves."

White Mink Has Become Popular in Millinery

NEW YORK (CP)—Whether you're looking for the modern Batman effect or the ancient Sir Galahad look, you can find it in white mink hats this winter.

White mink has become a fashion symbol in millinery and it is surprisingly adaptable. Fur is so pliable nowadays that it can be moulded into any hat shape.

The Millinery Institute of America showed many fur silhouettes for street wear, evening glamor and even sports.

The Sir Galahad look turned up in a snug-fitting fur helmet with a lower section that can be worn around the neck or cuddling the nose. It resembles the headgear associated with the days when knights were bold.

The same idea is also seen in a visor-like band that can be worn up or slipped down to the chin.

As for Batman, his influence appeared in a hat with a goggle brim giving the mask effect of the TV hero.

Somewhat similar is Lilly Daché's hood of white and dark mink which can be separated so that the white mink becomes a collar. She also included a wide-brimmed mink cloche and a smaller version with the shallow crown in back and the face-framing front in white mink.

GARBO MODERNIZED

Youthful and chic is a tiered helmet in mink nutria. It was especially effective on a dark-haired model with long bangs and shorter side cut who appeared at the millinery show.

Adolfo introduced "The Group Beret," which he describes as "a giant soft beret of luxurious fur which can be worn at any slant and proportioned to any face but must be kept large."

Sally Victor calls her version pillow berets and likes them in grey chinchilla. She had one side-swept beret in tiger fur and another, the most expensive, in sable.

Handsome also were Adolfo's jaguar hats in an updated version of the Garbo slouch and a small beret with narrow leather banding.

For sports, lynx is extremely popular. It can be a close-fitting baby cap or a tea-cosy style with a separate bright red undercap tied under the chin. It may also look like an old-fashioned stocking cap with a tail down the back.

Other furs included in the winter millinery collections were spotted cheetah, Russian sable, Persian lamb and, for sports, American badger and opossum.

Harmony Studio Club Sponsors Workshop

The January meeting of the Harmony Studio Club was held recently at the home of Mrs. R. Veley, RMT.

NZ Women Concede Defeat Over Control of Striptease

AUCKLAND (CP)—New Zealand women have conceded defeat over striptease. A two-year battle for control over some forms of entertainment and advertising has failed on all fronts. Striptease survives unchanged.

Prosecutions several years ago established that striptease within limits was not illegal in New Zealand.

But women were not prepared to surrender the case. A campaign was launched by the headmistresses of a major girls' school in Auckland at least to banish striptease to obscurity.

She complained that many of her pupils were obliged to avoid windows of clubs displaying almost nude advertising of acts. Her condemnation of the effect on morals of permitting such displays brought an immediate response from women's organizations.

The YWCA and other societies rallied to the attack. They took up the matter with the Auckland city council, demanding restrictions on the location and the advertising of such clubs.

The council refused to take responsibility, holding that responsibility lay with the police.

But the police were no more willing to act. They held that legislation did not ban such entertainment as strip.

The Auckland branch of the National Council of Women endorsed the free - lance approach to Justice Minister J. R. Hanan. It asked him to give local authorities power to make bylaws ensuring stricter control of forms of entertainment such as striptease clubs.

The minister was not encouraging. He pointed to the difficulties in defining and specifying the type of entertainment and advertising permissible in shows.

As of now, all the main women's organizations involved have abandoned their campaign.

"We were enthusiastic to begin with but we are not trying any longer," said one of the protagonists in the campaign. "At last we realized that we were wasting our energies. Of-ficialdom drew the blind completely."

Striptease remains an art form for only a small proportion of New Zealanders. Except in an exceedingly discreet form, it is hardly ever presented in normal stage shows or night clubs.

Stirling Horticultural Society Meets

STIRLING — Mrs. Floyd Armstrong, president of Stirling Horticultural Society, was hostess for the January meeting of the Society on Monday.

It was suggested that special stickers be used to advertise the society during centennial year. The new letter contained a report of a flower Sunday church service held last year at Grafton. A resolution sent in by another society was endorsed. This concerned spraying of healthy elm trees against Dutch Elm disease and destroying of dead trees. J. B. Belshaw was authorized to build benches and $25 was allotted for this purpose. A committee was appointed to compile a prize list for the centennial flower show.

The program consisted of a reading by Mrs. Percy MacMullen and the listing of new annual varieties by the president.

Doughnut Dollies Stationed Near Line in South Vietnam

PLEIKU, South Vietnam (AP) — It has been two wars since American Red Cross girls like Glenna Shannon served those soggy doughnuts and awful coffee to the troops, but they still can't escape the designation "Doughnut Dolly."

In Vietnam, the dollies are stationed right up with the line outfits. As "recreation specialists," they carry on a rigorous schedule of entertaining the fighting men in their base camps and, when security permits, during combat breaks in the field.

Glenna, a blue-eyed, brown-haired charmer from New York City, came to Vietnam five months ago and already has won the hearts of two of the biggest line outfits: The 1st Infantry Division at Di An and the 1st Air Cavalry Division at An Khe.

Now stationed in the central highlands at Pleiku, the 22-year-old economics student has moved out of a tent for the first time. She now lives with four other Doughnut Dollies in a run-down villa that at least boasts electricity for a few hours a day and an occasional hot shower.

Glenna's day begins at 7 a.m., with the artillery firing in the distance and the helicopters hurrying men off to war. After a quick breakfast and a jeep ride to a line company, she is already hard at work, conducting 35-minute recreation programs of quiz shows, word games and talk-fests.

Her job is to get the soldiers to forget about the war for a few precious moments, to talk about themselves and their families, to remember what it was like back home when pretty girls were everywhere. There are 90 such recreation specialists working with the troops.

On any day, seven days a week, Glenna and her sister Dollies each conduct seven such audience - participation shows and still find time to visit the hospital wards, chat with the guys in the mess lines, do the frug and the mashed potato in the beer tents and NCO clubs, help the boys write letters, make tape recordings and pose for endless pictures with them.

And before the lights go out at curfew, Glenna must still squeeze in time to do her hair, spruce up her blue uniform and perform all the other daily miracles that make men enjoy girls who enjoy being girls.

Despite the hectic daily schedule and moving about the country, Glenna has managed, in between giving her heart to whole infantry divisions, to give her secret heart to one special soldier boy.

She recently accepted an engagement ring from Lieut. Bruce Terrell, a fellow New Yorker who is a pilot. In March in New York City, at a fashionable wedding that will be light years away from the grime of Vietnam, the delightful Doughnut Dolly will become Mrs. Bruce Terrell.

"Ever had a Newspaper Route?"

When a young man applies for a job he really wants — a job with "a future" — he is very apt to be asked, "Have you ever had a newspaper route?" His answer to that question may well decide whether or not he'll get the job.

Why? Because more and more employers are realizing that former newspaperboys already have a solid business background.

They've bought newspapers at wholesale — sold them at retail — and operated a business of their own. They've already learned that the only way to conduct a successful business is to give service . . . to keep present customers satisfied . . . and to get new customers.

Many of today's executives were yesterday's newspaperboys. They know that a newspaper route is the one part-time job open to a Young Canadian that teaches initiative, the value of money and the importance of getting along with people.

Yes sir . . . there's no doubt about it. For jobs with "a future", employers prefer former newspaperboys.

If you have a son that you think might be interested in a newspaper route, why not write us.

Man Who Says He Is Killer Is Given Life

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Albert DeSalvo, 35 - year - old mental patient who says he is the Boston Strangler, was convicted Wednesday night by an all-male jury of assaulting four women in their suburban Boston homes in 1964.

DeSalvo's lawyer, Lee Bailey, said he plans to challenge the Massachusetts law on criminal insanity in an appeal of the sentence of 10 years to life handed down following conviction.

"Massachusetts just burned another witch," Bailey told reporters as he left Middlesex County Superior Court.

None of the charges was connected with the series of killings attributed to the strangler.

"It is the fault of no one but the law," Bailey said.

The lawyer, who successfully defended Dr. Samuel Sheppard of Cleveland, Ohio, in his second murder trial, and Dr. Carl Coppolino in his New Jersey murder trial, said he did not regard the verdict in the DeSalvo case as a defeat.

"I haven't lost it yet," he said, citing his plans for an appeal to the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

Bailey had asked for verdicts of not guilty by reason of insanity and had not contested the charges against DeSalvo.

Bailey challenged the definition of insanity in the Massachusetts penal code several times during the seven - day trial.

He had questioned psychiatric witnesses repeatedly on the subject, including their views on the language of a proposed model definition of criminal insanity as proposed by the American Law Institute.

The jury deliberated three hours and 42 minutes before returning its verdicts on 10 indictments, which included charges of robbery, assault and battery, breaking and entering and sex offenses.

DeSalvo was sentenced to life imprisonment for armed robbery, with the sentence to begin after a 10-year sentence and other shorter concurrent terms for the other offences.

Judge Cornelius Moynihan stayed the sentences pending the appeal and ordered DeSalvo returned to the Massachusetts State Hospital at Bridgewater.

8 Wounded as Prison Guards Fire to Prevent Racial Clash

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) Guards firing rifles, shotguns and tear - gas canisters prevented a racial clash between 2,800 white and Negro convicts in the San Quentin prison yard Wednesday night as the two groups came to within 30 feet of each other.

Eight convicts suffered gunshot wounds during the tense hours following the near clash. Five others suffered head wounds from beatings by other convicts. Seven men suffered heart attacks.

The confrontation included one group of more than 1,000 whites and Mexican - Americans and another group of about 1,800 Negroes.

Officials said the turmoil grew out of the fatal beating and stabbing of a white prisoner last Monday.

Trouble started after lunch Wednesday, said Associate Warden James W. L. Park, when prisoners entered the yard. Whites and Mexican-Americans gathered on one side, Negroes on the other. They drew closer, hurling curses.

With the angry convicts separated by only 30 feet, Warden Lawrence E. Wilson mounted the gunwall surrounding the yard and ordered: "Knock it off and go back to your cells."

There was silence, and no one moved.

Park said many of the men had armed themselves with pipes from plumbers' ripped from prison facilities, and clubs from benches torn apart in the yard. A temporary classroom building made of wood was set ablaze.

Guards were ready to throw up a "wall of fire" with bullets if the factions got any closer, Park said, but it was not necessary.

The two groups surged. Guards fired warning shots into the air. By this time 500 prison guards and personnel took up posts, aided by a contingent of 60 men from the Marin County sheriff's office and the California highway patrol.

For nearly three hours the two groups refused to obey orders.

Finally, tear - gas canisters were thrown and the Negroes, prodded by warning shots whizzing through the air, let themselves be herded back to their cells.

Union Merger Reported Likely in Canada Too

SUDBURY (CP) — Terry Mandel, Sudbury supervisor for the United Steelworkers of America, said Wednesday he hopes a merger in the United States between the Steelworkers and the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers will lead to similar action in Canada.

But his counterpart, Nels Thibault, Sudbury director of the Mine - Mill workers, said he favors a policy of co-operation rather than a merger.

The merger, announced Tuesday in Tucson, Ariz., brings 30,000 Mine-Mill members in the U.S. back into the main stream of organized labor. The union was ousted by the old Congress of Industrial Organizat ons in 1949 over alleged Communist domination.

The two unions have been bitter rivals for years in Sudbury, Mine-Mill held bargaining rights for the giant International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. for nearly 20 years until the Steelworkers won certification in 1962 and retained it in another vote last year.

Mine Mill, meanwhile, has retained bargaining rights at Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. thwarting three separate attempts by the Steelworkers to win certification.

Inco, the world's largest nickel producer, employs about 15,000 Sudbury - area Steelworkers. Falconbridge, second biggest producer, has about 2,500 Mine-Mill members on its rolls.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Matthew Charles Lamb, charged with the shotgun slaying of a 21-year-old Windsor girl last summer, was described to an Ontario Supreme Court jury Wednesday as a young man "preoccupied with the power of a gun."

Lamb, 19, is charged with the June 25 death of Edith Chatkoski who died shortly after a men stepped from behind a tree on a quiet residential street in Windsor and shot at her and a group of friends.

Andrew Wolosh, 21, also of Windsor, died 17 days later from wounds he received in the same incident.

In opening the defence case Wednesday, Dr. George Scott, chief psychiatrist at Kingston federal penitentiary, said that when he first saw Lamb in February, 1965, he was suffering "a tremendous feeling of isolation expressed by hostility."

Dr. Scott said he observed Lamb over a 14-month period and noted he had developed "obvious symptoms of mental illness" and had all the constituents of a serious mental breakdown.

Rand Critical of Failure to Prosecute if Strike Violent

TORONTO (CP) — Employers who decline to press for prosecution of strikers violating the law were criticized Wednesday by the chairman of a royal commission investigating labor disputes in Ontario.

Ivan C. Rand, former justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, said such action is a repudiation of a law and is creating undesirable conditions.

His comments followed presentation of a brief on behalf of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce by chamber counsel George Ferguson.

Mr. Ferguson had said many employers do not want to prosecute because they do not want the employees branded as criminals. He also said strikers subject to prosecution are held up as martyrs.

"We think offences (against the law) are a serious matter," Mr. Rand said.

Mr. Rand also suggested the incidence of strikes might be minimized or their duration reduced by restricting the right of employers to hire strikebreakers and by barring strikers from taking other jobs to replace lost income.

If strikes became an endurance test without any outside factors entering into the picture it might bring a settlement, he said.

The commissioner suggested that a striker who took a temporary job might lose his right to recall when the strike was settled.

Mr. Ferguson said he did not support the position that an employer should permanently displace his striking employees. Their employment should be protected.

He said that if an employer was prohibited from hiring replacements it would guarantee the success of the strike.

The chamber brief said strike votes should be a condition for a legal strike, and expressed unalterable opposition to a campaign by organized labor to eliminate injunctions in labor disputes.

The brief proposed the Ontario labor relations board conduct strike votes.

The chamber said much of the doubt concerning OLRB's objectivity came from the fact that it administers a large body of law which in many ways restricts the right of management to use its power and which in a few ways restricts the union or strengthens the position of management.

As an "acceptable alternative" to interim injunctions in picketing cases, the chamber proposes the establishment of a central registry for all trade unions operating in the province.

Notice of motion for an injunction would be presented to this central registry to allow for short-term notice of motion in the event of unlawful picketing.

The brief also repeated the chamber's long-held views that labor legislation should be revised to permit a union to sue or be sued in its own name.

"Daddy believes Mom would look better with her face lifted. What do you think?"

Jeremy Thorpe Named British Liberal Chief

LONDON (CP) — The man who told the Commons last September that Britain should try to topple Rhodesia's white-minority regime by bombing supply lines into the rebel country is the new leader of the minority Liberal party.

He is Jeremy Thorpe, 37-year-old staunch Liberal of left-wing persuasion, who also is an unremitting opponent of South Africa's apartheid laws.

The lean - faced intellectual, descended from a long line of Conservative MPs, is the radical of his party.

He became a darling of the Liberals in 1959 when he quit his law practice to smash a Conservative majority of 5,000 votes in winning the district of North Devon.

While still a law student, he became a member of the Liberal's national executive and an eager disciple of electoral reform and spent his spare time learning Welsh in anticipation of running for a Welsh seat in the Commons.

HEADED DEBATING CLUB

A brilliant student at Eton and Oxford, he was chairman of the famed Oxford Debating Union.

While practising law, Thorpe was barred from Spain in 1959 when he tried to present a petition calling for an amnesty for political prisoners.

At one time, his law and parliamentary careers looked as if they would take second place to television appearances on news and debating programs.

"I've always been able to say my piece," Thorpe once said.

"I suppose it's the Irish and the Welsh and the English in me."

Thorpe, a bachelor who dresses as a dandy, on both political and social occasions, has been known to delight with his wit and mimicry. He enjoys impersonating other political personalities.

His grandfather, he says, was the last man to be decorated by the Czar of Russia. Another ancestor was Speaker of the House in the 14th century and was beheaded.

Martin Defends Vietnam War Policy of U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin parried student sniping at United States Vietnam policy Wednesday by putting aside a prepared speech and defending American action.

Questioned about what some Simon Fraser University students called U.S. brutality and blundering in the Vietnam war, Mr. Martin asked the students to think again.

"The U.S. is a country whose friendship I greatly value," he said.

"There is far too much unjustified attacking of a great and free nation.

"I don't agree with everything the U.S. has done in Vietnam. But I do ask that those of you who use the situation . . . as a bridge on which to attack the U.S. think again about what you are doing."

Mr. Martin said the U.S. is providing an example of sacrifice and freedom in action and "I challenge you to give me one instance of a nation at war in which there has been so much freedom of speech and opinion of members of government, on campuses, and in forums of every kind."

Mr. Martin was first sidetracked from his prepared speech when he was handed copies of an open letter signed "some fellow Liberals" that accused the federal government of lacking principle by violating Vietnam war neutrality in "underhanded support . . . for American war policy."

Mr. Martin said there is no truth to such accusations. Canada has lived up to her role in the International Control Commission in Vietnam and has given aid only to Vietnamese civilians.

He said Canada is a non-combatant in the war and has for the last 11 months been trying to bring about peace talks.

New Body to Spur Medical Research

OTTAWA (CP)—A new organization came into being today dedicated to ensuring a bigger transfusion of federal funds into medical research.

Supported by virtually every Canadian scientific body in the health field, the Canadian Association for the Advancement of Health Sciences held its founding meeting with participation by doctors attending the annual meetings of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons and the Canadian Association for Clinical Investigation.

Dr. Jacques R. Ducharme, Montreal, president of the CSCI which played a major part in formation of the new body, told a press conference Wednesday that the federal government must provide more than sympathy to their aim of boosting the money available for medical research.

The federal government had stepped up grants this year after the medical profession warned of the need but the amount remained at less than half what was actually required from governments.

Finance Minister Sharp and Industry Minister Drury had expressed sympathy for the aim of annual 50-per-cent increases in funds but gave no sign yet of concrete action.

"We don't want only sympathy but a firm expression of policy," said Dr. Ducharme. "I think it is very important that the government state its intentions and that this money be made available; there's no indication that this will be done."

Unless there was a guarantee of substantial annual increases Canada faced the danger of being unable to produce enough new doctors yearly to keep the doctor - patient ratio at the present level of one to 870.

Scientist - teachers would neither remain in Canada after graduation nor be attracted to staff the new and expanding medical schools.

And migration to Canada of doctors, especially from Europe, was threatening to stop. This had until now provided one-third of the new doctors each year for some years. If the flow dried up, a further burden would be thrown on Canadian medical schools.

Dr. J. B. Armstrong, executive director of the Canadian Heart Foundation and secretary of the new association, said Mr. Sharp had referred delegations to Mr. Drury as the man responsible for drawing up research financing programs.

However, the industry minister was "a very difficult person to get close to" and had not seemed fully convinced of the requirement figures placed before him.

The government's planned 30-per-cent increase in funds to be distributed by the Medical Research Council was being maintained. But the deans of the universities had told Prime Minister Pearson last summer that it was essential the increase be 50 per cent or greater.

Marchand Liberals' New Quebec Chief

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower Minister Jean Marchand, the obvious choice, Wednesday received Guy Favreau's mantle as the federal Liberal party's Quebec leader.

Mr. Favreau, ill for months, stepped down last week, paving the way for the appointment of the 48-year-old former labor leader.

Prime Minister Pearson confirmed Mr. Marchand in the important post shortly after Quebec MPs had voted him into it. Mr. Marchand had been doing the job anyway because of Mr. Favreau's absence.

Mr. Favreau, who has still not returned to his office, raising doubts that he will ever be back, He still holds two cabinet portfolios, registrar-general and privy council president.

After his appointment, Mr. Marchand indicated he is of two minds about the value of the post.

On the one hand, he said, it is illogical because other provinces do not have federal leaders. But he added that Quebec does have special problems that require a voice in cabinet to represent French-Canadian views.

He promised to improve communications between the federal government and Quebec. He would address more public meetings.

Dealing with Quebec demands for more autonomy, the quiet-spoken minister said the Quebec he represents does not require a constitutional difference from other provinces.

He added that Quebec won't be kept happy by being told it will be worse off if it separates from the rest of Canada. It was preferable to tell Quebec what it will gain by staying.

Formerly president of the Quebec-based Confederation of National Trade Unions, Mr. Marchand won a Commons seat in his first try in 1965.

He went almost immediately into the cabinet as citizenship and immigration minister and got additional responsibilities in a departmental re-organization. His full portfolio now is "manpower and immigration."

His predecessor, Mr. Favreau, is expected to leave federal politics altogether soon with a prestige appointment from Mr. Pearson.

Boy Put With Adults

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, New Democrat member of the legislature for Scarborough West, said a 12-year-old boy has been admitted to the adult wards of the Ontario Hospital in Hamilton.

Mr. Lewis said Wednesday in a letter to Health Minister Matthew Dymond that the admission was made last Friday on a committal certificate signed by Dr. John Rich, consulting psychiatrist for St. John's training school, Hamilton.

The boy had been in a reform school on and off for 2½ years.

Mr. Lewis said the referring personnel made strenuous but futile efforts to find an alternative to the committal.

"I am sure you will agree that the situation is intolerable," his letter said. "The Ontario Hospital system was never envisaged as a holding depot or treatment centre for disturbed youth. . . ."

SHOULD BE MOVED

Mr. Lewis said that "at the very least, a very different placement must be arranged at once" for the boy.

A health department spokesman said Dr. Dymond had received the letter and was studying it before commenting.

Later Dr. Rich said the Ontario Hospital in Hamilton is a terrible place for a 12-year-old boy.

Asked about St. John's training school, Dr. Rich said nearly 25 per cent of the youngsters there are mentally disturbed and should be in an institution where they can get proper psychiatric treatment.

St. John's is operated by the Roman Catholic Christian Brothers. The Ontario department of reform institutions pays the full operating costs.

Dr. Rich said the school has facilities for about 160 youngsters although it has accommodated as many as 260 at one time.

He said he wrote to Dr. Dymond and Reforms Minister Allen Grossman more than a year ago listing the case histories of more than 40 youngsters at St. John's who were mentally disturbed. He said he has received no replies.

L. R. Hackl, deputy minister of the reforms department, said he will investigate Dr. Rich's complaints.

If you are a hunter or huntress don't wander into the hoary dells and shady glades of the forest lands Belleville, garbed in the habiliments of one of the Sheriff of Nottingham's minions.

Particularly if the merry Robin Hoods and Maid Marians of the Belleville Archery Club are on a woodland prowl.

There may not be any Friar Tucks, Little John de Will Scarletts in their ranks, but these modern editions of the Sherwood Forest's "stand and deliver" fraternity can twang an arrow that will remove the ash from your cigarette without shaking the filter.

I saw examples of their almost uncanny accuracy with modern bows and arrows at the Fish and Game Club's annual Ladies Night dinner this week.

Jeff Calvert, a former English master bowman who was born within the shadows of the Sherwood Forest near Nottingham, has drilled and trained his proteges to a point of efficiency that rates some of them as potential for Canada's archery team in the upcoming world tournament to be staged in Holland.

The other night Calvert brought the club's demonstration team consisting of Bob Nokes, Floyd Armstrong, Reg Aseltine and Mrs. Leola Dextator to the club with a display of archery prowess that had the fish-and-gamers sitting almost mesmerized.

Before the "twang" of each fired arrow, you could hear a pin drop in the Club Auditorium.

During the demonstration Calvert kept up a running commentary, freckled with spots of humor, but mostly in a serious vein.

During the latter, he passed on a friendly word of warning to parents while on toy-hunting safaris for junior. "Don't buy them bows and arrows," he warned. "These are not toys. They are dangerous weapons in the hands of youngsters. They'll shoot an arrow in the air then ask where did it go. Someday while looking up they'll find out where it went. One mistake may change a child's own life. I would like to see a safety program set up along these lines."

"We in archery cannot stress safety too much. The true archer never draws a bow while a person is in front of him unless he is off to one side. We never take chances," he said.

Floyd Armstrong, one of the few if not the only one to bag a deer with bow and arrow last season, told me that the city club has high hopes of being represented in the world championships.

At least two of the boys and two girls have the potential to qualify, Mrs. Dextator ,two-times mallmatch champion of Ontario and Mrs. Carol Armstrong are very highly rated, Armstrong said.

However, the bugbear of the club at the moment is the financing of its members to the world championships. It is readying buttons which while not being offered for sale are being given for donations. Unless I'm mistaken archery does not come under the aegis of the Fitness Council as far as team expenses are concerned. Donations to this end will be greatly appreciated by the club.

Watching the brilliant exhibition of accuracy, skills and concentration the other night it was easy to understand why some of these people are regarded as national potential.

After all it takes more than a novice or a lay ihe me to snuff out a lighted candle with an arrow at 25 feet range. Or puncture an apple amidships with a single shaft at the distance.

Or hit a small tin plate as it is falling to the ground. Or plunk flya arrows inside a drinking cup and nail the 50 of clubs with a shaft in each spot. Or shatter a soda cracker suspended in midair.

Brother, if I ever go wild-flower gathering in the woods and spot one of these bow-armed scrlet-shirted gentry or "Maid Marians" as Don McKinnon dubs them, some raccoon in a tree-top is going to get the "Hey-buddy-push-ever" treatment.

Golden Boy Of '30's
Cancer KO's Barney Ross

CHICAGO (AP) — Barney Ross, the golden boy of the ring during the depression 1930s who never was knocked out in an 8Oabout professional career, lost his fight with throat cancer Wednesday.

Ross, a graduate of the slums of New York and Chicago who climbed to championships in the lightweight, junior welterweight and welterweight divisions, died at home after a long battle with cancer. He was 57.

Ross, a hero of the ring, became a greater hero after his boxing career when he served a marine in the Second World War.

He was awarded the Silver Star after he held off Japanese snipers at Guadalcanal one night while guarding three wounded comrades.

It was at Guadalcanal that he contracted malaria.

BIG FIGHT AGAINST DOPE

But he always said that his greatest fight was fought two months when he beat the narcotics habit which had "slipped up" on him during the painful aftermath of a wartime bout with malaria.

In his battle against the narcotics habit, Ross voluntarily entered the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital in Lexington, Ky., in 1946 and remained until January, 1947.

With his health restored, the former champion campaigned in ewrie shirts and made public appearances in which he warned about the effects of the narcotics habit.

Ross, a clever boxer with power in either hand, won the Golden Gloves title in Chicago and the Inter-City crown in 1929. He turned professional under the management of Art Winch and Sam Pian.

Scoreless Tie In Central Pro

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Louis and Tulsa played to a scoreless tie Wednesday night, the second in the four-year history of the Central Hockey League and the result gave St. Louis undisputed possession of fourth place. The Braves had been tied with Memphis Wings for fourth.

Tulsa Oilers goalie Al Millar and St. Louis netminder Dave Dryden each made 22 saves in chalking up their first shutouts of the season.

In the only other league action, first-place Oklahoma City Blazers downed Omaha Knights 3-1 on goals by Terry Crisp, Wayne Cashman and Ted Hodgson. George Konik got the Knights tally.

Oklahoma City leads the league with 32 points, followed by Houston with 45, Omaha 29, St. Louis 33, Memphis 32 and Tulsa 29.

Hodge Hero ★★★★★ ★★★★★ Ferguson Gets Two

Dream Team Egg All-Star Record

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

It took 20 years to register a shutout in an all-star game and it took goaltenders from a fourth - place National Hockey League club to do it.

Never before in the history of all-star competition had a shutout been recorded—until Wednesday night.

And the distinction of being the first netminders to hold the best in the league scoreless goes to Charlie Hodge and Gary Bauman of Montreal Canadiens, who hold fourth place in the NHL standings.

Hodge and Bauman combined to turn back 35 shots as the Canadiens blanked the all-stars 3-0 in the 20th annual all-star battle.

John Ferguson, who hasn't had much luck around the all-star net so far this season, was the offensive hero for the Canadiens as he scored two goals, his first goals in all - star competition. Henri Richard scored the other Montreal goal, his fourth in all-star play.

The Canadiens played with injuries, haven't had many bright spots in their lineup this season. However, Hodge has been one of their most brilliant performers.

Hodge played the first and third periods of Wednesday night's all-star game and Bauman saw action in the second period.

Hodge, 33, made fine saves on Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks, Red Gilbert of New York Rangers and Chicago's Pat Stapleton from various angles.

Bauman kept with the pace in the second period when he stopped Hull on two occasions at the corner of the net.

Richard gave Montreal a 1-0 lead at 14:03 of the first period and Ferguson shot the Canadiens ahead 2-0 within two minutes. The teams battled through a scoreless second period and Ferguson wrapped it up when he counted his second goal with eight seconds remaining in the game.

Glenn Hall of Chicago and Ed Giacomin of New York Rangers split the netminding duties for the all-stars. Hall was the victim on Montreal's first two goals and Giacomin gave up Ferguson's second.

The Canadiens fired 30 shots at the all-star net.

The victory marked Montreal's third in eight starts against the all-stars. Their record is three wins, four losses and a tie and under the direction of current coach Toe Blake, they have a 3-3-1 mark.

Blake said the win should give the Canadiens the confidence they need to regain the form that won the club the league championship and the Stanley Cup and also the right to play against the all-stars.

"I thought our team skated well, and I was particularly glad that we didn't give up any part of the lead through defensive lapses in the late stages," Blake said following the game.

The regular schedule resumes tonight as Toronto Maple Leafs meet the Red Wings in Detroit and the Black Hawks play the Bruins in Boston.

Mike Walton, high - scoring young centre from Kirkland Lake, Ont., has been called up to Toronto from Rochester Americans of the AHL and will join the Leafs in Detroit tonight.

Walton, 21, has 19 goals and 37 assists with Rochester so far this season.

The Wings will be without defencemen Doug Harvey, assigned to Pittsburgh Hornets of the AHL.

The Wings have called up left winger Real Lemieux from Memphis of the CPHL. The 20-year-old forward has scored 19 goals and assisted on 18 for 37 points in 27 games this season at Memphis

Clippers Protest Win Goal

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Clippers filed an official protest with president Jack Butterfield of the American Hockey League Wednesday over Tuesday night's 3-2 loss to Cleveland Barons.

In a telegram to Butterfield, Terry Reardon, coach and general manager of the Clippers, said the winning goal was scored on an offside pass and should be disallowed.

The disputed goal was scored with 66 seconds remaining after Tom McCarthy took a pass from deep within the Clipper zone and skated in alone to beat goalie Gilles Villemure of the Clippers.

The shot broke a 2-2 tie and was the only goal scored during the third period.

In the telegram, Reardon charged that the linesman who should have made the offside call, Lou Miller, had slipped getting out of the way of the pass and was flat on his back.

Halifax Whips Scot Hoopsters

TRURO, N.S. (CP) — Scotland's national basketball team came to North America to learn, but until Wednesday night behaved more like teachers than pupils.

A week of success against Eastern Canadian basketball teams ended when the Scots were clobbered 81-61 by Halifax Schooners, a power - packed team of ex-university stars.

"They're good," said coach Ken Johnson of the Scots. "In fact all the competition we have met so far in Canada has been very good."

Johnson, who played in Scotland's Young Basketball League for 11 years before turning to coaching, said in an interview his team is making first-day North American tour to learn more about the game.

OUTPLAYED IN GAME

Fresh from two victories over St. Francis University X-Men, always a power in Maritime intercollegiate basketball, the Nationals were badly outplayed by the Schooners.

Johnson described the Schooners as the best team his club had ever faced and a good, real assessment of the tour so far, said "the poorest team we have met is as good as the best in Scotland."

36 Points Up
Nancy Has Big Lead In Cup Race

SCHRUNS, Austria (AP)—Nancy Greene, 23-year-old Canadian skiing sensation, was only fourth in the downhill here Wednesday, but she is still the top-ranked woman skier in the world this year.

She holds a commanding lead in the competition for Skiing's World Cup over outstanding rivals from France and Austria. The cup goes to the girl with the highest point-total at the end of the international season in March.

Twenty - five points are awarded for a first place in an international meet, 20 for a second, 15 for a third, 11 for a fourth, eight for a fifth, six for a sixth, four for a seventh, three for an eighth, two for a ninth and one for a 10th.

Nancy, from Rossland, B.C., has 111 points after the first six major races of the season. Runner-up Annie Famose of France is second with 75 and compatriot Marielle Goitschel third with 65.

The fourth place in the downhill here was worth 11 points for Nancy, who is a student at Notre Dame University, Nelson, B.C.

"I made mistakes at two places of the trail," Nancy explained dejectedly. The biggest mistake was at a series of turns in the steep part of the track. She did not take them correctly and, as a result, got into the subsequent faster part at reduced speed.

But Nancy has a good record of learning from mistakes. She made several at the 1966 world championships at Portillo, Chile, too much with I kept working," she said.

TRAINED AS USUAL

Nancy said she did not train more for this season than she did before the 1965-66 season and the 1966 world championships, held in August during the Chilean winter.

Her coach, Verne Anderson, explained the change:

"More than anything, it is her mental outlook towards the racing scene this year. Last year, she was uncertain whether she was just as good as the Europeans. Now she is out to prove that she can beat anybody in the world."

"Maybe the Europeans were a little too satisfied after Portillo, maybe they relaxed a bit

Globetrotters Jester
Famous 'Goose' Is Dead

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Reece (Goose) Tatum, 45, who became world famous as a court jester for the Harlem Globetrotters Negro basketball team, died at an El Paso hospital Wednesday after an apparent heart seizure at his home.

Bob Byrne, administrator of Providence Memorial Hospital, said Tatum had just taken a bath at his El Paso home when he complained of pains and fell on the bed.

Mrs. Jeri Naomi called the fire department which administered external cardiac massage before Tatum was taken to the hospital.

Tatum had been in the hospital since 11 for treatment of what was described as a liver ailment.

Tatum came to basketball from baseball late in his sports career. He was a skinny, loose-jointed player who played for sandlot baseball teams and semi-pros.

By 1942 he had become the No. 1 jester of Cincinnati Clowns, a Negro baseball team. His long arms looked like an outcated whip when it circled behind his back to take balls on the opposite side.

Abe Saperstein, who founded the Harlem Globetrotters, first saw Tatum in 1941. He recognized the loose-jointed athletic as a sure-fire star for his basketball team.

The next winter Tatum put on a Globetrotter uniform and his basketball education began.

His hands were so enormous that when cupped they were said to hold the equivalent of a 10-gallon hat.

They dangled loosely in the neighborhood of his knees when he walked with the peculiar, goose-like shuffle for which he was named.

His rhythm and body control were far beyond a good basketball player's requirements.

Wants 1969 World Hockey For Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Tom Campbell said Wednesday he will ask city council to approve a Vancouver bid for the 1969 world hockey championships.

A 15,200-seat arena is now under construction.

Fred Page of North Vancouver, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said he expects bids from Toronto, Montreal and Winnipeg, if more than one bid is made then the site will be chosen on "strictly a business basis."

NHL Announces 20-Player Formula

MONTREAL (CP)—The days of walt and see are over for the six new franchise holders in the National Hockey League.

They were advised Wednesday on the formula which will be used to provide the players necessary to stock their new clubs in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Los Angeles, San Francisco - Oakland and Minnesopolis - St. Paul for the start of next season.

The complicated plan to give the new clubs the 20 players they were promised for their individual $2,000,000 franchise fee was announced by Clarence Campbell, NHL president, after two days of meetings with the current league governors and general managers.

The formula calls for the existing teams to protect one goaltender and 11 other players before an expansion team can select one.

After the 12th player on a club's roster is chosen by a new entry, the 13th man is protected by the old club, the 14th may be drafted and the 15th player remains.

The 15th, 17th and 18th players are then subject to draft by an expansion club.

Selection of outsiders is on a separate basis, with the existing club's No. 1 goalie protected, the No. 2 man eligible for the draft, the third-stringer being brought up by the parent club and the fourth man going to one of the new clubs.

The new teams will draw lots for first pick at the goalies, with the order of choice being reversed so that the team selecting first in the goalie part of the draft will be ninth when it comes to choosing other players.

Reaction to the plan was mixed.

Bill Putnam, president of the Philadelphia entry, termed it "a good plan and a fair plan."

"I would of course have liked more, but I realize the position the other clubs were in."

Putnam and Jack Kent Cooke of Los Angeles represented the new division owners at the meetings.

Cooke said he was also pleased with the formula. He praised the league for its "statesmanlike way the plan was adopted and for its continuing program to ensure the proper development of the new teams."

General managers Emile Francis of New York Rangers and Tommy Ivan of Chicago Black Hawks both said they regretted giving up players, but both conceded this had to be done.

Current NHL clubs also will be able to hold on to most of their outstanding first-year professionals with minor league teams.

Youngsters now playing as pros, but still eligible for junior competition this season, are ineligible for any draft claims as long as they remain eligible for junior competition.

These regulations will also apply for the 1967-68 and 1968-69 seasons.

Under these rules, players not eligible for the expansion draft in June are Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins and Rene Lonsberry in the same organization.

Bart Crashley, Doug Barrie and Pete Mahovlich of Detroit Red Wings' chain, Lucien Grenier, Serge Savard and Carol Vadnais of Montreal's farm system and Jim McKenney and Wayne Carleton who belong to Toronto, will not be lost in the draft.

Rangers will be able to retain Al Hamilton by the same token.

In the years 1968 and 1969, the order of selection for the amateur draft will be based on the previous year's standing in both divisions. In this year's choosing, the order among the Western Division clubs will be determined by lot.

Crothers Changes Mind

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Crothers, Canada's crack middle-distance runner, has agreed to run in the Telegram - Maple Leaf Centennial Games at Maple Leaf Gardens Feb. 24.

Last Nov. 16 Crothers, in a letter to the Central Ontario Track and Field Association, threatened to boycott the games.

"All I'm saying now is that I'm 100 per cent behind the meet," Crothers said in an interview. "That means if my coach, Fred Foot, enters me in an individual event I'll be glad to compete. If he enters me in a relay, I'll run. And if he puts me in both events, that's fine with me."

Crothers said in his letter last November that he was considering not competing in the games unless the COTFA met certain conditions.

The conditions included giving Crothers an equal vote with other members of the track and field association and giving him a copy of all financial statements of the games and agreements involving the association.

The COTFA directors, including meet director Ken Twigg of Toronto, rejected Crothers's proposals unanimously.

Crothers would not disclose what caused him to change his mind and enter the meet.

"If Crothers had gone through and boycotted the meet it would have meant the end of indoor track and field in Toronto," Twigg said.

COLLEGE EXPANDS

Oslo University, in the Norwegian capital, expanded its teaching staff nine per cent and its students 14 per cent this year.

Minor Hockey

A pair of ties and a one-goal decision testified to the tightness of the competition in the BMHA's novice division last night.

Toronto edged the Bruins 6-3.

Gary Thompson scored both Hornet's goals with Rich Belanger drawing a marker for each play. William Whalen was the Amerks' marksman.

Leigh Hunt and Ricky Barbeau potted Canadiens' goals. Mike Lynch and Wes Moult replied for the Bruins, assisted by Andy Hayward and Mark Walmsley.

Bob McKay triggered a pair, helped by Dean MacCormack on one, for the Wings. M. Watson and Mark Boyd looked after the Leaf scoring. Tim Fort and Tony Meagher collected assists.

Ralph Hunt and Ricky Barbeau potted Canadiens' goals. Hunt had assists. Fred Thompson was the lone Canadiens' scorer.

Genereaux had a goal and two assists for the Habs with other goals going to Royes, McGilvery, Farrell, Hodgson and Parker. Blatchford fired two goals and added an assist for the Bruins. Pope scored the other goal and helped on one.

Wonder Why?

Govt. Cuts Swim Team Grant

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Swimming Association, which will send a team of 69 competitors to Pittsburgh Jan. 28-29 for the annual dual swim meet between Canada and the United States, is wondering why a $4,000 government grant has been cut off.

Nick Thierry of Toronto, president of the Ontario Settlement Athletic Association swim team and a CASA spokesman, said Wednesday that last year the swimmers got $4,000 from the federal government's fitness council and for the first time were able to put together a complete national team for the Pittsburgh meet.

Although the Canadians lost by a wide margin, Thierry felt they had the experience to good advantage at the British Empire Games in Kingston, Jamaica, seven months later. Canada made its strongest showing ever in international swimming at the Games.

"We are not overly bitter, just disappointed," Thierry said. "We're getting Disney World council grants to keep the Panamerican Games swimming team training in Winnipeg for

Victoria Beaten 5-2

VICTORIA (CP)—Seattle Totems scored three unanswered third-period goals to defeat Victoria Maple Leafs 5-2 in a Western Hockey League game Wednesday night.

Howie Hughes led the visitors with two goals. Chuck Holmes, Bill Dineen and Jim Powers got the others.

Andy Hebenton scored both Victoria goals in the second period.

Hockey Writers Organize

MONTREAL (CP) — Hockey writers from Canada and the United States, here for Wednesday's 30th annual All-Star game, formally organized a National Hockey League Writers' Association.

Tom Fitzgerald of the Boston Globe was elected president and Jean-Pierre Auschamp of Montreal-Matin vice-president. Secretary-treasurer will be Jack Dulmage of the Windsor Star.

Directors are: George Gross, Toronto Telegram; Red Fisher, Montreal Star; Ted Darnall, Chicago American, and Barney Clemenko, New York World Journal-Tribune.

Wants Clay - Chuvalo Bout

EDMONTON (CP) — Former mayor Bill Hawrelak is looking past a scheduled heavyweight bout here Friday to a possible fight for the world heavyweight championship in mid-July.

Hawrelak said in an interview Wednesday he and about five associates will put up $200,000 to attract Cassius Clay to Edmonton to defend his title against Canadian champion George Chuvalo of Toronto.

"It would be good for Canada . . . in its Centennial Year," Hawrelak said. "We have been assured Clay will fight here—he'll fight anywhere for enough money."

Hawrelak, who lost to Vince Dantzer in a mayoralty contest last year, said the project needs further investigation, "but to me

Dillard Rejects Riders

OTTAWA (CP) — Fullback Jim Dillard of Ottawa Rough Riders insisted Wednesday he is further than ever from plans to try for a berth in the National or American Football league after rejecting an Ottawa offer to pay him the $2,600 that was deducted from his salary during the season.

The offer also included a guarantee there would be no further deductions in 1967 as the club was prepared to write off the $2,600 advance made by Oakland Raiders of the AFL to Dillard two years ago.

Dillard gave him the money to play out his option year with Calgary Stampeders of the WFL Conference and join them. But Calgary sent Dillard to Ottawa in a player deal.

The fullback said the club breached the contract by not paying him the full fee at the end of the last playoff game. "While I want to stay here, I feel the ball is in the coaching end in the plans for next season."

Ottawa president Sam Berger said the club made the offer "because we felt Dillard could help us."

WILHELM SIGNED

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago White Sox of the American League announced Wednesday that veteran knuckle - ball pitcher Hoyt Wilhelm, 43, has signed his baseball contract for this year. Wilhelm, despite a 15-year career, never broke a finger in spring practice, compiled a 3-2 record and was credited with four saves. He also had the lowest RBI rating of his 15-year career, 1.67.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

Changing lines on the fly during a game is not as complicated as it might appear. It certainly isn't something that a team can practise, but it is something that is discussed repeatedly by every club.

This is the way we work it. Sid Abel, our manager-coach, designates each of his lines by the name of his centreman. Take my line. Ted Hampson was centering the line for awhile, working between Alex Delvecchio and myself.

Sid calls this his Hampson line. Norm Ullman, of course, centres another of our lines.

For the sake of example, say the Ullman line has just taken the ice. Then Sid walks behind us on the bench and says "The Hampson line get ready". This means we are on the ice next and we watch our man. I watch the right winger, Teddy watches the centre and Alex the left winger.

You can pretty well tell when your man is ready to come off and you have to be ready to jump over the boards in a hurry. You also have to be careful you don't make it too fast and get your club trapped for a penalty with too many men on the ice. This has embarrassed a number of players a number of times.

Should Abel want to change the makeup of a line for say a shift or two he would probably tell us this way: "The Hampson line get ready with (Andy) Bathgate on the left side".

There are a couple of unwritten rules also that change. Don't stay out too long. By that, I mean get off when your linemates do. If you don't, the two new players on the ice will be playing with a tired one and when the tired player gets off, his replacement will be fresh and his linemates will be tired.

Another unwritten rule is don't change when the play is coming into your end of the rink. Wait until it's going the other way.

We discuss all this at our team meeting, which are held at noon prior to the night of a game. Possible line changes that night are also discussed.

To give an example of this, say we are scheduled to play the Hawks and Sid intends to have Bryan Watson shadow Bobby Hull. He'll tell Watson "Bryan, Hull is your check tonight and get out there as fast as you can".

The right winger who is on when Hull comes out, of course, knows he must head for the bench as soon as he sees the Chicago left winger on the ice and let Bryan take over.

So it isn't as complicated as it looks, is it?

Their scores were two over par on the Coral Ridge Country Club course. More than 100 golfers vied for the championship berths.

Archers to Have Own Ground

Archery enthusiasts in the Bay of Quinte district are going to have their own deer hunting grounds in the Quinte area this year.

Yesterday members of Hastings county council approved a Lands and Forests department proposal that the county area south of 401 highway have a one week deer hunting season for bows and arrows only.

The proposal for the hunting club members was made by Lands and Forests officer Everett Ferguson of Napanee, who also suggested dates for the regular hunting season in other parts of the county.

Mr. Ferguson said that the proposed 1967 hunting season north of Highway 7 runs Nov. 6 to Nov. 18. South of No. 7 to the hydro line 11-23-C and east of 62 highway would have the same season.

There would be a one week season south of the hydro line to 401 highway for hunters with rifles and slugs.

Mr. Ferguson said the reason for proposing to expand the hunting season further south was because there were more deer in the southern limits of the county.

During 1966, 17 deer had been killed on 401 highway within county, he said.

He didn't expect that local archery club members would actually kill many deer.

Council approved the deer hunting dates proposed by the department, after Stirling Reeve Don Rodgers noted that Lands and Forests officers did not make such recommendations without full investigation.

Niagara Falls outshot the Generals 38-34.

Wellington's OMHA Squirts tripped Stirling 6-1 while the village peewee team dropped an exhibition game to Belleville by the same score last night.

In the OMHA game, H. McDonald scored three times, Darrell Hall twice and Sims once each for Wellington. Dodson had the Stirling goal.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. announced Wednesday that it has withdrawn an advertisement which it thought might be objectionable to Englishmen in Ohio. The ad, planned by the Marschalk Co., was for a light touch in statewide advertising. It showed a formal photograph of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip and had a tag line of "This Sunday talk to the folks back home."

Behind the "Glass"

By CDT

If the class of curling exhibited in the Centennial mixed spiel for members of the Quinte Curling Club held Tuesday and Wednesday of this week is any criterion, the gallery behind the glass is in for some fine exhibitions when the invitation spiel with 24 rinks starts firing on Friday morning. Under the direction of Phil and Hettie Dyble with Mrs. Claire Hopwood-Jones and Ev Gowsell assisting the event was run off in good order and the committee was sincerely thanked by the general chairman for their efforts in behalf of Centennial week.

There were many games won by a single shot and the curling on near perfect ice was of a high quality. Some excellent shots were made, particularly by members of the distaff side of the house and their sweeping in some instances was a joy to behold. After the games the curlers repaired to the clubhouse where Doris Ramsay and her willing helpers served coffee and donuts.

A rink of Marlene and Bill Henderson with Kathy and Dave Brown as skip won the miniature trophies and accompanying prizes. Dave's rink curled well and in the final game won every end from the opposition, a feat rarely recorded in curling. In second place was a rink of Adele and Jim Stewart with Mary and "Goldie" Livingston. This rink against "Corky" McCorquodale in the second draw was as good a game of curling one could wish to see and Goldie had to make a terrific shot to prevent "Corky" from tieing the match, who was two down coming home.

The two-game high prize was won by a rink of Dr. Frank McCue and Mrs. Jennie McCue with Madge and Dan Cowley, while in second spot was a rink of Anne and Pete Acton with Martha and Ross Booth. The one-game high was won by a rink of Dr. "Corky" and Helen McCorquodale with Wilf and Betty Wessick. The high no-game winner was a rink of Grace Lougheed, "Zab" Wonnacott, with Mirabelle and Bill Clare.

A rink of Ev Spinelli, Jean Lennox, Louise Johnson with Connie Wilkinson as skip was tops in a spiel held at Brighton on Monday, in the ninth to the top rung the rink defeated the rink in the Provincial playdowns.

There has been a transfer of rinks in the Brier competition as has been announced by Bill Gault, convener for the district. The games were scheduled for Napanee but due to other ice commitments the games were transferred to the Canadian Forces Base at Trenton. There are six clubs entered, the Quinte Curling Club with a rink of John Woodcroft, Bill Henderson, Will Weymarks with Neville Burroughs as skip, Canadian Forces Base, Napanee, Trenton Curling Club, Colborne and Cobourg. The contest will be a round robin and play will start on Friday at 9.30. There will be no matches on Saturday but play will be resumed on Sunday to a conclusion.

The Canadian Forces Base at Trenton won the district playoffs at Kingston on Wednesday in both the Junkard and Governor-General's matches. In the tankard rinks from Trenton of Dale Lavoie, Gay Lewis, Bob Innes with Bill Lewis as skip and George Peters, Vince Gallegan, Wayne Oaks with Mel Sjostrom as skip defeated rinks skipped by Al. Cromarty with Bill Burgess of the Gananoque Country Club by seven shots.

In the Governor-General's match Art King had to make a draw to the four-foot to win by one shot over rinks from Gananoque. The RCAF rinks were Jim Provost, Bill Vine, Ron Merrian, with Art King as skip and Ron Watson, Frank Ruthven, Jim Hope with Hec Melntosh as skip. King played "Red" McKinnon while Melntosh tangled with Neil McCarney.

Aussies Insist 'Fair Go' Be Given Ky on Visit

CANBERRA (AP) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky of South Vietnam encountered anti-war demonstrators again today but he also heard friendly shouts from the crowds on the second day of his five-day visit to Australia.

Although labor unions continued to organize opposition to the visit, the premier and his wife were greeted almost everywhere in the capital with the traditional Australian call of demonstrators to give Ky "a fair go, mate."

As Ky placed a wreath on a monument to Australia's war dead, one of the demonstrators present shouted: "What do we call it now? The butcher's block!"

Several hundred persons, including a few pro-Ky demonstrators, booed in disapproval, then applauded when Ky bowed his head in prayer.

Ky conferred with Prime Minister Harold Holt and the cabinet at Parliament House.

Several hundred anti - war pickets were on hand when Ky arrived at a hotel to appear before the Australian National Press Club. There was prolonged and enthusiastic applause from more than 250 luncheon guests after his speech.

Ky questioned why there has been such criticism of the "accidental and regrettable deaths" from US bombing of North Vietnam and comparatively little public notice of Viet Cong terrorism.

"Doctors, priests, monks, welfare workers and nurses are slaughtered in cold blood," Ky said. "Busloads of small children going to school and housewives going to market are blown up.

"Village elders are mutilated. Farmers knifed to death. . . .

"What of the 7,277 civilians that have been murdered and the 32,218 persons that have been kidnapped by the Communist Viet Cong during the past five years?"

Jury Says Oshawa Baby Ill-fed and Maltreated

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — A coroner's jury ruled Wednesday night that a 11-month-old Oshawa baby died of malnutrition and maltreatment by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Kimble.

The jury recommended the attorney - general's department examine all evidence to see whether a criminal prosecution could be made in the case of Sheri Lynn.

Toronto neurosurgeon Dr. John Peerless testified the baby didn't get her fatal injuries in the fall her parents said she took from a kitchen shelf.

Dr. Peerless said Sheri Lynn, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kimble, died from massive swelling of the brain.

"Her body was covered with a multiplicity of bruises," he said.

"The bruises weren't consistent with the parents' story that she tumbled from a counter next to the kitchen sink".

He said x-rays indicated that the child's skull might have had previous fractures. He also said a barbiturate content in the child's blood which could not be explained.

REPORTED CONDITION

Mary McKiever, Peterborough public health nurse, testified she reported Sheri Lynn as a probable battered baby four months before the child's death, when the family lived in her city.

Mrs. McKiever said her report went to the Peterborough Children's Aid Society and was forwarded to the Oshawa CAS when the Kimble family moved.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Miller, who lived above the Kimbles in their Oshawa apartment house, testified they told the Oshawa CAS the child was being mistreated.

"They said they'd send some one around . . . maybe the next day," Mrs. Miller told Oshawa supervising coroner, Dr. M. B. Cohen.

"They never came to see me."

"They told me I'd have to come in and make a formal complaint," said Mr. Miller.

DESCRIBES INJURIES

Dr. Hans Sepp, a pathologist, testified Sheri Lynn died of a brain injury. This could have been caused by either a blow or a fall. He said he found four bruises on the right elbow, one over the left elbow, one on the left buttock and another over the left eye.

Dr. Paul Leonard Pitt of Scarborough General Hospital said his instant impression when the parents brought the child into the emergency ward was that "this is a battered child." He said the parents appeared mildly agitated.

Dr. Cohen asked if they appeared emotionally upset.

"Not that I can recall," said Dr. Pitt.

Mrs. Larry Davies of Peterborough, a neighbor of the Kimbles last winter, testified that every night during three months she lived in the apartment below the Kimbles she heard Mrs. Kimble screaming at the child to shut up.

"Then you would hear what sounded like a slap," said Mrs. Davies. "The baby would scream all the louder."

She said she saw a bruise the size of a half-dollar on Sheri Lynn's forehead in February last year. Mrs. Kimble told her the child had fallen from its hanging seat.

FBI Arrests Three Charged With Blasting

CHICAGO (AP)—The FBI announced Wednesday night the arrest of three men indicted on charges of dynamiting a Canadian freighter at a Chicago dock in 1963.

The three, along with two other men, were charged Tuesday by a U.S. federal grand jury in Chicago with causing numerous acts of violence at various Great Lakes ports during a labor dispute.

Seized by F.B.I. agents Wednesday were Joseph Tanner, 48, in Dearborn Heights, Mich.; Lawrence Rice in Posen, Mich., and Walter Chipman in Houston, Tex.

Tuesday, Alvin Cupp, 34, of La Follette, Tenn., surrendered in Chicago, and Jack Pearl, 38, was seized at his home in Cherry Hill, N.J.

The seven - count indictment arose in part from the bombing of the 450-foot Canadian grain vessel Howard D. Shaw at its mooring in Chicago's Calumet harbor Sept. 7, 1963.

The vessel was tied up at a dock for 151 days because dock workers refused to cross picket lines of the Seafarers International Union to unload its cargo.

At the time, the SIU was involved in a dispute with the ship's owners, Upper Lakes Shipping Ltd., Toronto, over manning the ship.

The company had manned its ships with members of the Canadian Maritime Union beginning in 1962 and the switchover was followed by violence in a number of Great Lakes ports.

Sidney Twp. Council

The inaugural meeting of Sidney Township council was held at the new Centennial Municipal building in the council chambers on Monday, January 9th, 1967.

The council is composed of Reeve Ernest Kells, Deputy Reeve Jack M. Bush, Councillors Horace Wright, Garnet Reid and Arthur Carleton.

The Clerk administered the declaration of office to members of council and Mr. D. E. Hodgins, Minister of the Sidney Pastoral Charge of the United Church conducted the invocation part of the inaugural meeting.

Reeve Kells welcomed members of council as well as visitors and stated that council would have a very busy year, the Centennial year for our country.

The Tax Collector reported that 84.47% of the 1966 tax roll has been collected as of January 1st, 1967.

The total value of Building permits issued during the year 1966 by the Building Inspector amounted to $1,445,200, for the Township of Sidney.

The general inspection of the new municipal building was held on January 12th, by the council, contractor and architect.

There were several delegations present at the council meeting for various reasons concerning municipal administrations.

The next regular meeting of council will be held at the council chambers at 1.30 p.m. February 6th, 1967.

E. J. Kells, Reeve. J. B. Harder, Clerk.

Information Given for 1967 Activities

DESERONTO — All organizations of the town sent representatives to a special meeting of the Centennial Activities Committee Tuesday evening, although the chairman, Arthur Hill and Ross Nett, representing the Legion had been recently hospitalized.

The speaker was Kenneth McQuiggan, of the Ontario Centennial Planning Board branch of the Department of Tourism and Information, who showed a film of pre-centennial activities of 1966, such things as the building and outfitting of the Centennial train and the Centennial caravans. Stages in the preparation of Expo 67 were also depicted.

Following the showing of the film, Mr. McQuiggan presided over a lengthy question-and-answer period, giving information on such things as schemes for fund raising as brought up by other communities, and Centennial projects of individual organizations. He pointed out that any organization planning such a project should consult the Centennial Activities Committee in the case of duplication or overlapping, and of conflict of dates.

Several organizations have already decided on their projects and some have already begun them.

KEEP IT SHORT

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — Centennial chairman Jack Venner has suggested that all male residents sport crew-cuts to observe Canada's 100th birthday. He said some men just aren't able to manage a beard.

Humorous and Breathtaking

Helicopter Canada So Realistic Viewers Suffer Motion Sickness

OTTAWA (CP) — Eugene (Jeep) Boyko spent 540 hours in the air, nearly lost an eye, had his fingers frozen and was scared out of his wits several times.

But the result is appeared worth it as Helicopter Canada, a 50-minute, wide-screen color film, was shown here in the French and English versions Wednesday night.

It is a humorous and breath-taking look at the country as seen from a helicopter through a panavision lens.

The ability of the chopper to roll with the Bluenose II and hover yards above the lip of Niagara Falls left the audience here reeling.

At least two first nighters retired midway through the film with what appeared to ushers to be bad cases of seasickness.

Otherwise, the politicians, diplomats and bureaucrats invited to the Ottawa opening seemed to enjoy the film.

Boyko, now doing a portrait on poverty in the country, spent 18 months on the $300,000 centennial production.

He was strapped behind a specially - mounted camera in the open door of an Alouette II, a French turbine helicopter rented at $190 an hour.

The chopper nearly crashed twice in downdrafts, once when Boyko and the French pilot forgot themselves chasing a deer up an Alberta mountain, another time off Quebec City's Cape Diamond.

In the process, however, a unique picture of Canada in its 100th year of Confederation was developed.

The film was made for the National Film Board and the federal centennial commission and will be marketed internationally as well as in Canada.

The showing here marked the premiere of the French - language version, which lacks some of the wry touches in the English sound track.

Both versions show a prospector drilling alone in the bush but in the English one he is singing O Canada. In French, he's just drilling.

The amusing patter of children trying to figure out what the immense mud flats of the Bay of Fundy are is also deleted from the French version.

But the film is the same in both.

One sequence over a bright expanse of snow shows a fur trapper moving along in a motorized snow sled, only to have his progress stymied by an oil pipeline.

There's a snow-bound swimming pool in Montreal and a close-up of the uncled five-ton Golden Boy atop the Manitoba legislature.

A shift of jaunty Cape Breton coal miners with pit lamps winking in the dusk descends into an undersea mine.

There is a look at Quebec's giant Manicouagan power dam, whose reservoir will take seven years of rain to fill, the film says.

The versatile helicopter wheels over the Alberta Badlands with an eagle and races up a mountain side behind a deer.

It watches three French sailors pick up girls on the boardwalk at Quebec City. Even history has humor as it follows a gun drill at Old Fort Henry, erected on the St. Lawrence to repel expected American invaders more than a century ago.

"They practised away back and the Americans never came," it says, watching the redcoats fire musket and cannon for tourists. "So now they pretend to practise and the Americans pay to watch."

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

"And it's your duty to inspire him to get ahead . . . so don't start living on what he's earning."

Folk Singers Delight Concert Crowd

By EUGENE LANG

If one were subjected to over two hours of continual folk singing the chances are that at the end of that time the listener might find that he was getting restless and edgy as too much of a good thing can lead to dislike that is born of sheer boredom. Such, however, was not the case last evening in the Collegiate Auditorium before a large crowd who had braved winter's chilly blasts to be present for the debut performance here of the famed Robert Robert DeCormier Folk Singers. Seldom has a local audience been as receptive after listening to over two dozen examples of folk song as the attending throng was, and the proof of the measure of acceptability was emphatically shown in the round after round of tremendous applause given the singers.

Founder and Director Robert DeCormier, a graduate of Juilliard in New York has made himself a name in the fields of composing, arranging and conducting on Broadway, television and radio and has appeared widely both on these shores and in England. His choir comprises fourteen members, all of solo quality and an accompanying instrumental trio made up mostly of bass and guitar string bass that are augmented at times with singers taking their turn with various instruments. Mr. DeCormier also accompanied at times on a harmonica sounding instrument that was new to these eyes, as regards typifying.

The program was divided into three categories, two being of a large scope. Thirteen North American folk songs made up the first half of the program, ranging from the lovely "Blowing in the Wind" through the tearful "Song of the Deportees" and culminating in the lively "Jump Down, Turn Around" and snappy vigor of "Cotton Fields". Even our own hackneyed "Alouette" was given a new lease on life with an updated version that took it out of its former monotonous meandering and gave it some flavor which it sorely needed.

There is nothing to be gained in describing each number as this was a type of program that had to be witnessed both visually and aurally to be fully appreciated. No amount of words can convey what the actual presentation of any given song was like as each item was backed up by lighting, choreography and placement that enhanced that given number to make an individual production of it by itself. With the addition of proper clothing of risers and shell and no change of costume during the show the major difficulty of vivid effects were obtained through the use of extremely well planned lighting that heightened each offering considerably.

Nine folk songs of various tunes took up half of the second portion of the show with a half dozen American Negro songs completing the program. The various ways in which the singers were used to give the blended effects that were produced was again noticeable in most of these songs with results that were invigorating indeed and always surprising. Example, that one remembers long after the singers had left the version of "Cock Robin," the old English ballad, here practically set into a small cantata that was most moving throughout. The plaintive cradle like atmosphere of "Sakura," a Japanese lullaby was an excellent example of the softness of tones from the singers that wafted so lightly aloft. The Brahms Hungarian Dance like "Igra Kolo" was catchy in its quick step gait, as opposed rhythmically to the drowsy humming of "Sandmenne."

As in the former groups so the Negro songs were various members of the choir given opportunities to display their individual voices against the balance of the chorus, and in three superb renditions of age old spirituals a new message seemed to have been infected through the carefully devised arrangements of Mr. De Cormier. The tender "Stars Shinin' By n' By" with its echos tossed between soprano and alto was as impressive in some as was the gay and bouncy measures of "Shake a Ruckusa" to others. He's Got the Whole World in His Hands" was another forceful opus that gave the full choir chance to show their vocal ability to its fullest. We could almost consider this group a choir of soloists, which no doubt they really are, because they were all possessors of very fine voices in each ones own right.

Accompaniments when required melted in deftly with the singers. A most enjoyable evening that was a reward to all, first to the audience who left warm houses to attend and second to the De Cormier Singers, who were feted with much applause at the home stretch.

Following the program a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, Bridge Street East.

Tape of Reilly Answer Clarifies Radio Comment

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—A Jewish Congress is running tape recording confirms that Canada when he took part in an Peter Reilly, co-host of the open-line radio program Mon-CBC Sunday program, did not day flatly that the Canadian say flatly that the Canadian

Mr. Reilly answered questions from listeners on Ron Wilson's open line show on radio station CFBC. Many dealt with the decision by the CBC not to bring Adolf von Thadden, deputy leader of the German National Democratic Party, to Canada for an interview.

A tape of the program shows that at one point in the questioning, Mr. Reilly said:

"If the Jewish congress is going to be allowed to run Canada and the CBC . . ."

His remarks were interrupted by a listener's interjection.

Mr. Reilly then said "if they (the Jewish congress) can put enough heat on the president of the national broadcasting system to make him change programming plans, then I suggest to you that we are in a bad way."

Rabbi Abraham Feffer of Saint John asked that Mr. Reilly apologize for the remarks. Mr. Reilly said in an interview in Toronto Tuesday that he will not apologize.

He denied saying directly that the Jewish congress is running Canada and the CBC as reported Tuesday.

SEND LIONS SOUTH

MARSEILLE, France (AP)—Europe now is exporting lions to Africa. The Marseille zoo has loaded 10 lions, 10 pythons, a panther and other animals onto a ship bound for Africa, for delivery to a Canadian circus on tour. Fewer animals now are being caught wild in Africa. Zoos are the main source of supply.

Hind-Smith To Pilot TV Plan

TORONTO (CP) — Michael Hind-Smith, former vice-president of programming at CTV, said Wednesday night he has been hired by PowerCorp. of Canada Ltd., to look after plans for a national satellite television network.

"The job doesn't have a title to it," he said. "But obviously it relates to the application to form a third, satellite - based TV network. And obviously the whole thing depends on the Board of Broadcast Governors hearing March 7."

The satellite proposal was put forward by PowerCorp. and the late Kenneth Soble, president of Niagara Television Ltd., both operates CHCH in Hamilton.

Tough Assignment to Follow Bob Hope's Christmas Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope's annual Christmas visit to U.S. fighting men abroad is the only television program in which the audience is more important than the entertainers.

The 90-minute special on NBC Wednesday night, a pleasant if belated Christmas present, consisted as usual of filmed pieces from shows Hope and his troupe gave for Americans in Vietnam, Thailand and other outposts.

Hope was in the centre of things, smashing a golf club, wearing an assortment of funny hats and making local jokes about the mud, the brass and the enemy. Joey Heatherton drew whistles with her dancing. Vic Damone sang, Phyllis Diller made jokes. This year, Bob's wife, Dolores, sang one song and his daughter, Nora, danced a few steps.

The program attracts one of the biggest television audiences each year.

One of the toughest assignments in television is to follow Hope's Christmas show. Dom de Luise, a comedian last seen regularly on The Entertainers drew that difficult chore Wednesday night. He starred in a half hour variety special, The Barrum Bum Show.

Word was leaked that the program was a pilot for a de Luise series. Just a year ago, Roger Miller filled the same post—hope half hour, and reception was so good that he was rewarded with his own series last September.

It is doubtful that de Louise will have the same kind of luck. He's a round-faced young man who works awfully hard at being funny. He obviously has talent, but somebody has to harness and control it.

Opposition Votes Down Review of Freight Rates for Grain

OTTAWA (CP)—The minority Liberal government was defeated in the Commons for the first time in more than two years Wednesday as the opposition carried by one vote an amendment to the bill to establish a national transportation policy.

The loss during Commons committee study of a contentious section of the 94-clause bill did not qualify as a non-confidence vote but was an embarrassment to the government.

Approved was an amendment by Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) that removes from the bill a proposed review after three years of the freight rates on grain.

The Liberals drew no support from minor parties on the Conservative motion, which carried 89 to 88.

The government last was defeated in the fall of 1964 during committee consideration of legislation setting up the Canada Labor Code, Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) had proposed an additional statutory holiday under the act and it was approved.

Transport Minister Pickersgill was disturbed by Wednesday's defeat and said he would have to consult departmental lawyers on whether another section can be drafted.

He said approval of Mr. Churchill's amendment had removed the definition of grain from the bill. He wanted time to determine whether the vote may have "destroyed the Crowsnest rates."

Outside the Commons, Mr. Pickersgill said he was humiliated by loss of the vote.

An aide said the minister had worked more than three years on the bill "and with the goal line in sight, suddenly was cut down."

He said it was "sloppy management" that there weren't sufficient Liberals in the Commons to carry the vote. Several Liberal MPs returned to the Commons chamber minutes after the voting.

The aide said several Liberal MPs would get a dressing down for not being at the committee session.

Western members in opposition thus vigorously debated the section that would have required a review of the Crowsnest Pass rates which were set down by statute in 1897.

The section would give the 17-man commission set up by the bill the job of inquiring into revenue and costs to the railways that are attributable to the carriage of grain and grain products."

The findings of a review would be presented to the government. If there were losses to the railways recommendations would be made for compensation.

Mr. Pickersgill said submissions of the railways to the commission reviewing grain freight rates would be scrutinized.

"No government, with so many other ways of spending the taxpayers' money, will want to pay a nickel in subsidies to the railways unless those are thoroughly justified," he said.

Edward Nasserden (PC—Rosthern) asked whether there had been a deal with the railways.

"I do not know how many times I need to say that I made no deal with the railways or anybody else," Mr. Pickersgill said.

"I made a statement to Parliament that we intended to introduce legislation to enable the railways to compete, to allow them to charge freight rates within a certain maximum and minimum.

"They would set those rates as other businessmen do. That was not a deal. That was a statement of public policy."

The railways have said the Crownest rates are inadequate and a royal commission on transportation agreed with them.

But the commission made its report in 1958. Mr. Pickersgill said the government wants the review to assess present conditions, particularly in view of large wheat sales in recent years.

David Lewis (NDP — York South) said the commission already would be empowered under another section of the act to conduct studies on transportation. The minister said the section wasn't sufficiently broad.

The committee also approved a government amendment that would require 30 days notice rather than 10 before putting rate changes into effect.

Mr. Pickersgill said rates in the Atlantic provinces under the Maritime Freight Rates Act would be frozen for another two years.

Mine Blast Kills 19

GRAYMOUTH, N.Z. (Reuters) — A massive dust explosion in a coalmine near here killed 19 men today in New Zealand's worst mine disaster for more than 50 years.

Rescue teams which raced to the mine nine miles north of here found part of the roof caved in, blocking access to the section where the 19 victims had been working.

Ironically, they were scheduled to work there only for the one day.

Gale Hits West

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A storm moved across the Prairies late Thursday night, leaving in its wake disrupted communications systems and severe cold.

Quebec joined the West in the deep freeze Thursday as an arctic cold front moved south, dropping temperatures to 26 below zero in Quebec City—lowest for the day since 1943.

Blizzard conditions prevailed in northern Alberta. Edmonton expected a high of five degrees today and Calgary faced zero temperatures.

In Saskatchewan, most of the city of Regina was left without power for periods up to 3½ hours. Ninety - five per cent of the city was left in darkness about 11:30 p.m. and service was not fully restored until 3 a.m.

Canada's Press and Broadcast News's circuits to newspapers and radio stations in the province were knocked out, but full service was restored by 2:45 a.m.

The storm, with winds up to 56 miles an hour in gusts, knocked out Canadian Pacific Telecommunications lines. It stranded 32 people, including three RCMP officers, in a government radio station north of Regina. Twenty cars were reported stranded on the western outskirts of the city.

The temperature in Saskatoon was steady at 10 degrees below zero.

Blizzard warnings were continued in the Winnipeg and Brandon areas of Manitoba. Winds across the Prairies gusts to 45 miles an hour in most areas.

The weather picture for Ontario was clear and cold today with snowflurries expected later from a storm moving eastward toward Lake Superior.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: There are signs that the current cold snap is fast coming to an end. Gale force winds which have been battering the west coast are driving mild Pacific air rapidly eastward. This will bring a warming trend to the entire province and snow to Northern and central Ontario tonight and Saturday.

Hydro's Newest Nuclear Station

Work on the outer walls of the second reactor building at Ontario Hydro's Pickering nuclear power station has stopped for the winter but construction continues on its reactor vault inside a heated plastic-covered housing (left). The twin buildings will be about 115 feet high when completed. The $266,000,000 station will have a capacity of over 1,000,000 kilowatts — enough electricity to supply about 700,000 homes. First power is expected in 1970. (CP Photo)

Douglas Asks if Air Canada Refuses Shipments by Quakers

OTTAWA (CP) — Reports of American government pressure against Canadian Quakers who ship medical supplies to North Vietnam led to a flurry of questions in the Commons Thursday.

New Democratic Leader Douglas asked whether Air Canada has refused to carry the supplies on its regular flights from Montreal to Moscow. Had the U.S. government requested the ban?

Transport Minister Pickers said he would ask Air Canada about it.

David Lewis (NDP — York South) asked whether it is true that American drug manufacturers have asked their Canadian subsidiaries to refrain from selling drugs to Quakers for shipment to North Vietnam.

Trade Minister Winters said he would check.

Mr. Douglas quoted press reports saying that the U.S. treasury department has threatened the Royal Bank of Canada to get it to stop handling cheques from American Quakers to finance medical shipments to North Vietnam.

He asked whether the Canadian government would allow Washington to interfere with normal Canadian banking operations and the humanitarian activities of a reputable religious group.

Finance Minister Sharp said his department has received no representations from the U.S. government. The Royal Bank sent cheques from U.S. Quakers to banks in the U.S., which had the responsibility of deciding whether to cash the cheques.

Later, Eldon Woolliams (PC —Bow River) said a Vancouver newspaper has reported that thousands of dollars collected by a British Columbia group for medical shipments to North Vietnam are being used instead for purchase of war equipment by the Communists.

He asked whether Prime Minister Pearson will investigate the report. Mr. Pearson said he will be glad to look into the matter.

Bank Gives U.S. Chilly Reply

MONTREAL (CP) — F. R. Case, general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, said Thursday there is nothing in the Canadian banking regulations that states the bank must refuse cheques in favor of the Canadian Friends Service Committee.

He was commenting on a report from Washington Wednesday which said U.S. state and treasury department officials have asked U.S. banks not to cash cheques in favor of the committee which might be used to send medical supplies and gifts to North Vietnam.

U.S. treasury officials were reported as having taken the action last fall because of "lack of co-operation" by the Royal Bank of Canada in preventing delay of remittances, illegal in the U.S., to a Communist-dominated government.

The treasury department asked 1200 U.S. banks not to cash cheques in favor of the committee, an organization of Canadian Quakers.

The Canadian committee has an account in Toronto with the Royal Bank.

"The request did not follow proper channels," Mr. Case said.

"It should have been made by Washington to the Canadian government. Our government could have ruled on it and then if it agreed, could have made the request to us."

Date Is Vital

Spring Vote Dief's Hope

OTTAWA (CP)—The next big scene in the Progressive Conservatives' leadership drama will unfold in Montreal Feb. 3 and 4 when the party's executive committee meets to make plans for a leadership convention

Party sources predict a clash between the John Diefenbaker and Dalton Camp factions over the date, the place and the composition of the convention. Both sides feel these three factors will strongly influence the outcome of the leadership race.

Former defence minister Gordon Churchill, one of Mr. Diefenbaker's closest lieutenants, said Thursday he favors an April convention in his home city of Winnipeg. Other Diefenbaker loyalists echoed this view.

Party President Dalton Camp said in a CBC television interview Thursday night he hopes the convention will be held in Montreal after Expo 67 winds up Oct. 24.

A spring convention in Winnipeg would involve many advantages for Mr. Diefenbaker's supporters. The Prairie region is the Chief's political base and thousands of his admirers could be expected to descend on Winnipeg.

This would be in marked contrast to the Conservative convention in Ottawa last November, when Mr. Diefenbaker was booed and hissed by twenty-men, mostly from Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa.

Mr. Diefenbaker's allies, privately say they consider Premier John Roberts of Ontario as their most dangerous rival, despite his frequent statements that he is not a leadership candidate.

They add with undisguised glee that a spring convention would really "fix" Mr. Robarts. They expect him to call a spring election in Ontario, win easily and await a "draft" from federal Conservatives at a fall leadership convention, with a dramatic endorsation from Diefenbaker.

SPRING VOTE

Fall Earliest Possible Date

WINNIPEG (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's call for a Conservative leadership convention at the earliest possible date probably won't change plans for a national convention this year, Campbell McLean said Thursday.

Mr. McLean, Progressive Conservative Association of Manitoba president, said in an interview, a resolution passed at the party's national convention last fall called for a leadership convention by the end of 1967.

"The earliest possible date would be next fall," he said.

Mr. McLean said it would not be practical to call a convention during the Montreal world's fair and the Pan - American Games in Winnipeg.

Poor Start!

Ky's Trip Turns Into Triumph

BRISBANE (Reuters)—South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky arrived here by air today amid growing signs his much-criticized, five-day Australian tour was turning into a personal triumph.

A crowd of between 200 and 400 lined up at the barrier of Brisbane airport waving placards saying: "Give Marshal Ky the keys to the city" and "Welcome Marshal Ky."

The 35 - year - old Vietnamese air vice-marshal and his wife departed from the official program to mingle and shake hands with the crowd.

Instead of going into the air terminal, they walked across to the spectators and went down the line shaking hands — the first direct contact they have had with the Australian people during their tour, now in its third day.

After arriving in Brisbane, Ky went to see Australia's jungle-training school at Canungra. He drove for 50 miles from Brisbane to the school and was briefed by senior officers before watching a demonstration.

The 7th Battalion of the Royal Australian Regiment currently is training at the centre before going to Vietnam.

Meanwhile a writer in the Sydney Morning Herald says the Vietnamese premier "shattered his Australian image as swashbuckling, hell-for-leather pilot who knows a lot about fighting and little else."

The writer, James Cunningham, says Ky during his Canberra visit Thursday "emerged as a serious young man who appears to know a great deal about a large number of things."

The national daily The Australian says:

"The elegant little air force officer is undoubtedly winning more friends than he is losing.

"Demonstrations against the Vietnamese mission have proved to be few and Australian organizers believe this augurs well for the rest of the tour."

"We'll call it operation Bay of Piglets."

Paper Says Mao's Foes Suicide

TOKYO (AP)—A wall newspaper put up in Peking by a unit of China's army reported today that Lo Jui-ching, purged general staff chief, and Vice-Premier Po I-po committed suicide.

Japanese correspondents in the Chinese capital said the "extra" issued by the 25th Army Detachment also reported Teng Hsiao-ping, Communist party general secretary and one of the chief targets of Mao Tse - tung's purge, and Yang Hsiu - feng, president of the Supreme People's Court, attempted suicide.

Earlier today one of Mao's mouthpieces, the theoretical journal Red Flag, disclosed that some unnamed followers of the party chairman have become alarmed by the turmoil sweeping the Chinese mainland, saying, "You are going too far" and "You are making a mess of it."

But the official Peking People's Daily quoted a Shanghai Red Guard as saying, "We will give the enemy no quarter and will not quit until complete victory."

The army wall paper did not give its source for the suicide reports. There have been several such in Hong Kong recently. Rumors swept Peking in mid-December that Lo had killed himself, and a Red Guard who defected said in Taipei Dec. 27 that Lo jumped off a building but only broke a leg.

The wall paper said the 60 - year - old Lo — once China's dreaded secret police chief and a member of the ruling party politburo—died after his second suicide attempt "because he was afraid of his crimes."

Po I-po, being a vice - premier, was chairman of the state economic commission and an alternate member of the politburo.

There was no way of confirming the wall newspaper's reports which also were relayed to Belgrade by the Peking correspondent of Tanjug, the Yugoslav news agency. Neither Peking radio nor the New China news agency carried it, but it has not been their practice to carry wall newspaper reports.

Dwile Flonker Gets His Kicks When He Misses With His Flicks

BUNGAY, England (AP) — The landlord of The Three Tuns Tavern asked a Bungay magistrate Thursday for permission to keep his pub open later than usual for the sake of the Waveney Valley Dwile Flonking Association.

"Dwile flonking?" said Magistrate Douglas Hewitt. "What is dwile flonking?"

"I don't know," said the publican, Charles Ross, 45. "It's a fine old English game that has been going on for the last 600 years," Robert Devereaux, a member of the WVDFA committee, told the judge. "You have two teams and at the end of the game nobody's sober."

An executive of Adnams Brewery chimed in: "Dwile flonking is an old harvest ritual in these parts of Surrey. We always supply the ale."

Hewitt listened with sympathy and granted Ross permission to stay open after 11 p.m. for the annual dinner of dwile flonkers.

"It's really simple, this game," Devereaux told reporters.

"One team goes round in a circle while the people in the other team take turns to be in the middle.

"The chap in the middle, the flonker, whirls round in the opposite direction. He's got a dwile — what you might call a dishcloth — soaked in beer hanging on the end of a pole called a driveller.

"He has to flick it off the end and hit somebody. Marks are awarded according to which part of the body he hits. If he misses, he has to drink a quart of beer as a penalty.

"A good flonker has to be able to drink his beer."

Engineers Seek Big Pay Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — A demand for a 35-per-cent wage increase has been served on the CPR by the independent Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. It is expected to set the pattern for negotiations opening next month on new contracts for locomotive engineers and firemen on all major Canadian lines.

The present three - year contracts between the railways and their locomotive crews expire in the spring.

The BLE's wage demand is like Firemen and Enginemen expected to be followed closely by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen which represents most of the country's firemen.

The last contract negotiations in 1964 involved a wage increase of 6½ per cent spread over the three-year period.

Dependence on Water Chief Concern Of Prince Edward Conservation Authority

HILLIER — The Prince Edward region conservation authority, less than a year old, has become an active force in the county with one project well on its way and two more under advertisement. Authority chairman William Tatham, a partner in an engineering and contracting business at Rossmore, told the Women's Institute annual family night banquet last night the authority's prime interest was in the need for water and was giving support to other government agencies concerned with finding new sources and preserving the known ones.

Receiving particular attention, he said, was a plan to determine the number of underground reservoirs (aquafers) which can be tapped for great quantities of pure supplies 10 degrees colder than Lake Ontario.

One of them has been furnishing the demands of the Baxter canning industry at Bloomfield for years. He said another similar pool had been located at Wellington recently. At another place in the county, conditions are present which lead water experts to believe more reserves exist, he said. Experts had learned from records of earlier discoveries aquafers contained anywhere from one to 500 million gallons.

Mr. Tatham said it would be impossible to place a value on underground reserves until the full extent was determined and assessed. As it stands now the county is surrounded by the cleanest water in Ontario but in many cases it is not where it can be used, he explained.

He referred to the high cost of transporting water to points where it is needed, indicating this phase of providing for future expansion posed problems for all agencies responsible for fulfilling and maintaining requirements.

"Of the 36 authorities engaged in conservation endeavors Prince Edward is unique because it is the only one not based on a watershed. With boundaries the same as the county the undertaking offers a real challenge with limitless rewards for those involved."

Mr. Tatham said a dam at the west end of Consecon Lake was being restored and the necessary renovating of the mill dam in the village of Consecon was under study. There is also a study continuing with regards to the possibility of controlling the water levels of Pleasant Bay. All the lakes in the inlet, he added, "Cost and the instability of sand shifted continuously by wave action are the problems the authority has to consider here," he said.

Mr. Tatham said he regretted the authority had not been established five years earlier. "We might have been able to retain the historic grist mill at the village of Ameliasburg for posterity," he explained.

"A few years ago opportunists purchased the old stone mill and converted it. It was rebuilt and became an outstanding tourist attraction in another community. There is not much we can do about losing it now and it is unlikely another as authentic looking can be found," he said.

The guest speaker was thanked by Mrs. Sherman Weaver. Institute president Mrs. Donald Alyea acted as chairman.

Spring Vote

legists say. An early convention would also hurt David Fulton (Kamloops) and George Hees (Northumberland) in their view, because of the limited time to woo grass-root delegates.

Mr. Camp said last fall the leadership convention should not be held until October or November, 1967. He said this would give all candidates a better opportunity to make themselves known across Canada.

Camp supporters here argued Thursday that several provincial elections are expected this spring and that it would be difficult to hold a federal convention while provincial Conservatives are busy campaigning.

They also argued that delegates to the leadership convention should be chosen on the basis of the new electoral map that became law last year. That map creates many more urban ridings, where Mr. Diefenbaker's support is lowest, and reduces the number of rural ridings.

The Camp people say several more months will be needed to set up party associations in all of the 264 new constituencies.

As the site they favor Montreal, which happens to be a hotbed of anti-Diefenbaker sentiment.

The Diefenbaker loyalists counter that delegates to the convention should be elected by the existing riding associations, most of which sent pro-Diefenbaker delegates to last November's convention.

All these issues are expected to be debated hotly at next month's executive meeting. The Camp faction is generally regarded as having a heavy majority on the 23-member executive committee, but the committee does not have the final say.

Decisions of the committee must be approved by the full national executive, which has about 140 members. The full executive is more evenly divided between the Diefenbaker and Camp factions.

Hees at Trenton For Riding Meeting

The Hon. George Hees, a possible candidate for the leadership of the Progressive Conservative Party, will be guest speaker at the organizational meeting of the new Federal riding of Prince Edward Hastings at the Trenton High School Monday night.

Mr. Hees will headline the meeting, called to elect executive officers for the riding.

Officers to be elected are president, secretary, treasurer, a women's and men's vice-president from Prince Edward County, Northumberland County and Hastings County, and a vice-president from both the Town of Trenton and the convention at large.

The balance of the executive will be composed of presidents of the various county and town organizations in the riding.

Solicitor Lloyd Jackson of Brighton, a former MP from Northumberland, will act as chairman of the open meeting in the school auditorium. Time is 8.15 p.m.

EMO Schedules Cloyne Meeting

The Northern Emergency Organization will hold a meeting Monday at 8 p.m. for the general public in the Municipal Hall, Cloyne.

Business at the meeting will be a report to the community of the association's activities, lecture on traffic control by Prov. Const. J. Ramsbottom and a movie.

Everyone 16 years and over is invited to attend. There will be an equipment display and a social get-together.

Frankford Bridge to Remain County Councillors Are Told

Frankford residents are happy with assurances that their village will not be "cut in two" by the removal of the present high-way bridge spanning the Trent river and canal.

Village Reeve Ray Moran told members of Hastings county council Thursday that the Ontario Highways Department and the Federal Department of Transport had agreed to leave the present bridge in place after construction of the proposed new bridge south of Frankford.

Some months ago villagers were up in arms over rumors that the highways department would remove the present bridge after the new structure was built. They felt this would isolate one side of the village from the other.

Reeve Moran said that along with members of the county road committee and Hastings West MP Lee Grills he had visited Ottawa in December and later, following arrangements by Hastings West MPP had met with highway department officials in Toronto.

WILL BE REPAID

The result was that the highways department had agreed to leave the present bridge in place and put it in good repair before turning it over to the village. Future maintenance would be subsidized to the extent of 80 per cent, he said.

The comment with respect to the Highway 33 bridge at Frankford was made following presentation of his body, the two and bridges committee read by Sidney Reeve Ernest Kells.

The report noted the county had been advised by the Highway Department that a regular expenditure by law for amount up to $400,000 will be approved.

Estimated suburban road expenditures of $92,000 for this year are included in the above amount. Of the total by-law an amount of $291,400 is allotted for county road maintenance.

A supplementary by-law will be presented in the spring to cover the portion of roads and bridges construction projects. Reeve Kells said the county wanted the roads maintenance was up $15,100 over last year mainly because of increased wages and higher rental rates for hired equipment.

WILL REBUILD ROAD

Harry Morrow, county representative on the suburban roads commission said 18 miles of county road came under the jurisdiction of his body, the two main roads being the 6th concession of Thurlow to the Shannonville gravel and the road to Wallbridge. Last December the commission took over what is known as the Jones' Creek road west of the city.

This year a final one mile section of the road to Wallbridge will be rebuilt and a three quarter mile section rebuilt last year will be patched.

Tweed Reeve Mrs. A. G. Allan referred to the county bridge at Tweed village, which had a five ton load limit. Despite this she observed road graders towed either by the county or Hungerford township using the structure.

"I am sure the grader weighs much more than five tons," she said.

County Engineer Peter Anderson said the Tweed bridge was in very old condition and only in the county which is in need of replacement. The other was the Glen Miller bridge. Cost of replacing them would be expensive.

WILL STOP PRACTICE

Mr. Anderson said if county graders were using the bridge he was sure that the practice was stopped.

Madoc Reeve Thomas Burnside referred to the village of Bates granted each year to villages through which county roads pass. He suggested that these be increased.

He said very few villages now had much county road within their boundaries but were still called upon to pay county road levy.

He admitted that the village of Bates had been "treated fairly" to 10 per cent last year, but noted legislation allows rebates of up to 50 per cent of the county road levy. He asked that the matter be given consideration.

Stirling Reeve Don Rodgers said he knew that some villages in other counties were receiving 50 per cent rebates.

Hastings East MPP Clarke T. Rollins told councillors that the Madoc bypass on Highway 7 would be ready for opening by July 15 or possibly sooner. He said there was no definite date for opening of the Quinte Skyway at Deseronto.

Brush cutting was going ahead on No. 62 Highway between the Coe Hill turn and D'Amabe with prospects of a tender call for rebuilding of this section of highway.

Development roads leading to northern lakes would do much to develop those areas for tourist purposes.

Plans were also going ahead for rebuilding of the Foxboro-Marmora stretch of No. 14 Highway although there was no assurance of a contract being awarded this year.

No Report on Shoe Fire

TRENTON — George Holliday, an inspector with the Ontario Fire Marshal's office in Toronto is completing his report on the cause of Sunday's fire in the Bata Shoe Company's warehouse.

Information as to the known performance of the same type of heating used in the warehouse is being sought from the latest exact where a hopper type of sawdust furnace is used widely in the lumbering belt of British Columbia.

TRENTON — During December, 382 persons were admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital, according to a report released today by hospital administrator Miss Hazel Naudett. Of these, 283 came from Hastings and 27 from Prince Edward County.

There were 40 births and six deaths.

Major operations numbered 53, minor, 39. Outpatients treated numbered 1,664; emergencies, 571.

In the various departments, 559 x-rays were taken; 1,153 physiotherapy treatments carried out; 13,391 tests were done in the hospital lab and 510 sent out to other labs; 672 electrocardiographs taken and 20 basal metabolism tests conducted.

Central Jail Tenders Likely to Be Called April 1st Council Told

Tenders for the construction of the proposed central detention centre to be built in the Quinte area, are expected to be called around April 1st.

Warden Reeve Fred Beckett, chairman of the county committee for the central jail, said Thursday that the delays of last year had now been ironed out and it was expected everything would be in readiness to call tenders about April 1st.

Plans for the central jail have not been completely finalized, but it expected the cost will be considerably less than the estimate according to the original set of plans. The architects' estimate had been approximately two and a quarter million dollars.

The four county committee asked the architect to redraw the plans cutting out many of the "frills."

Plans call for construction of the central jail just north of Napanee and west of highway 41. An option has been taken on farm land in this area but so far has not been taken up.

The central jail to serve the four counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac, is being strongly urged by the Ontario Department of Reform Institutions. It is felt that operation costs of the central jail would be less than that of the four separate county jails now being operated.

Youth Gets Chance To Attempt New Roles

The curtains are beginning to rustle on another year of stagework in city high schools — and behind them there's a more than tingle of excitement in the air.

For one thing, more challenging patterns appear to be evolving in the environment of student drama.

The efforts of two groups emphasize this — the drama students of Nicholson College and Moira Secondary School.

At Nicholson, the spotlight again is on composer-lyric theatre.

This time they are involved with a recent resounding success of the New York stage — The Miracle Worker. The play will be publicly presented at St. Michael's Academy auditorium Feb. 3-4.

Bellevillians already may be familiar with the drama since its movie version has shown here some time ago.

William Gibson's play has as its theme a real-life saga of individual triumph — the story of Helen Kellar, who overcame the twin afflictions of deafness and blindness to become a living source of inspiration to her world.

The drama is based on the childhood years of Miss Kellar — who incidentally is still living — and the struggles of a young Irish governess to make the child respond, and come with a normal social environment.

The play focusses on the conflict between the two personalities as the young teacher seeks to work an apparent miracle with her charge.

"It's a very difficult play for them to do," admits the students' director, Sister Mary Fleurette. "But this is good for them — that they should get their minds working on something involved."

That opinion, however, has been the positive theme of the director's work, since she took over the drama group some years ago.

Sister Mary Fleurette has insisted on banishing the traditional stock plays from the lists of school productions — replacing them with contemporary theatre works.

The result has been a string of productions, not only refreshing for school audiences, but intellectually exhilarating for the students taking part.

The Miracle Worker presents a formidable challenge to the students playing its two key roles — Diane Belanger, 18, as Anne Sullivan, the governess, and 15-year-old Louise Fleming as Helen Kellar.

Along with other members of the young cast they now are rehearsing at the auditorium each day after school hours.

Sister Mary Fleurette also has devised a technique to aid Louise in her characterization.

To give the student an inkling of the environment through which the sightless move, she rehearses from time to time with a blindfold.

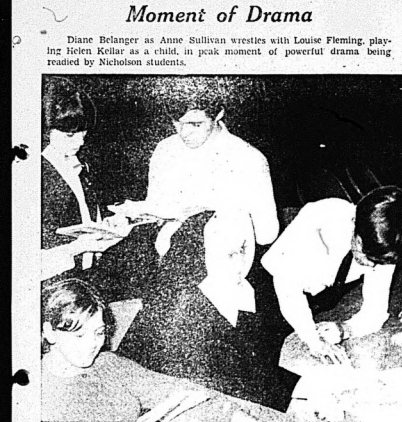
At Moira, tonight sees the public production of two one-act plays which have been in preparation by students in recent weeks.

The presentations — Balcony Scene and Susie and the Sax — are also contemporary and are a new departure in the physical form they take before the audience.

The traditional stage has been abandoned by the young players, and replaced by a series of platforms in the audience.

This theatre - in - the - round style creates the maximum involvement for the audience and, indirectly, involves the themes of the plays — communication between individuals.

Seemingly not as ambitious an attempt as that at Nicholson, it is however equally as challenging. It is only the second year in which legitimate drama has involved Moira students — and the style of presentation, directed by Jay Marshall — provides an exciting departure, both for participants and audiences.



Moment of Drama

Diane Belanger as Anne Sullivan wrestles with Louise Fleming, playing Helen Kellar as a child, in peak moment of powerful drama being readied by Nicholson students.

The Play's the Thing

Sister Mary Fleurette gathers cast of Miracle Worker around her for discussion of problems in upcoming production. The play is one of the most challenging yet presented by city nun who emphasizes contemporary ideas in student dramas.

Jack Hartwick to Head Hallowell Ratepayers

PICTON (Staff) — The newly-organized Hallowell ratepayers' association held its first meeting to elect its new officers.

The meeting held in the Baxter Canning Co. cafeteria this week saw Mr. Jack Hartwick elected as its new president, and Don Campbell as vice-president. The directors elected are as follows: Area 1, Mrs. Ruth Cooper and Mr. Jack Hartwick; Area 2, Allan Baxter and David Pinkerton; Area 3, Don Campbell and Gordon Morris; Area 4, Dawson Hennessey and Earl Wellbanks; Area 5, Rfd. Windatt and Bill West. Area 6 for the village of Bloomfield to representatives are yet to be chosen.

The president took over from Bill West, who was the provisional chairman and told the audience that "ignorance is our biggest problem". "It is only proper and right for the taxpayers to know where their tax money is going." He went on to say the aim of the organization was to construct — not to destroy, and to achieve this end the association would cooperate fully with the councils and the school board. On the other hand they would also expect co-operation and if they didn't get it the necessary action would be taken.

In the open discussion period of the meeting, the question of annexation was raised and the specific question of when it would be completed was asked. The Rreve, Bruce Hyatt, replied that the procedure was not half over yet and the council had no notice as to when the proceedings would even be reopened. He pointed out that Hallowell cannot afford to lose the assessment on the property that Picton wants to annex.

Planning Board Rejects Proposal

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board last night turned thumbs down on a move by the Township of Etobicoke to have official plans stripped of their legality.

Belleville and adjacent parts of Sidney and Thurlow are in the throes of preparing the first official plan of the area. Planning director P. J. Beavis said in a preliminary document might be ready for discussion by this public in September, 1967. The Etobicoke resolution to remove the legal basis of official plans attempted, he said, from reservations on the part of lawyers in metropolitan areas as to the documents' ability "to stand up in court."

F. Stokmans, planning assistant, reported on a Toronto conference he attended where the Etobicoke resolution was discussed.

"Lawyers contend the plan is not binding on developers; it only restricts councils and their committees," he said. "Part of the trouble arises because lawyers want an inflexible legal document and planners want a flexible planning tool. Toronto lawyers claim policy statements are outdated by the time they come into effect — a problem probably only encountered in metropolitan areas of skyrocketing development."

GIVES REASONS

Mr. Stokmans defined an official plan as "a long - range statement of policy setting out the way the community should look in 20 years time, the goals to be achieved and the sequence in which the goals should be pursued."

"If the plan is not prepared in haste, if the text is written without ambiguities and if an implementing zoning by-law is presented at the same time, I can see no reason to do away with the legality of the plan," he said.

Mr. Beavis told the Board that Etobicoke's plan, approved in 1956, had reached the limit of its 20-year span of usefulness. The 200 amendments to the plan made necessary by changing circumstances during that period were no more than any planner would expect. Etobicoke's problem was its failure to understand the living, growing nature of an official plan, which should be amended frequently as the needs of the community change.

Sharp disagreement with the planners' attitudes was expressed by Ald. D. G. Joss.

"With an official plan, you're putting land-use changes and zoning by-law amendments in the hands of the Ontario Municipal Board," he said. "If every proposed change requires a public hearing, you are introducing government by referendum and saying, in effect, that local public officials are unreliable."

NO ACTION TAKEN

Speaking in defence of an official plan with a legal basis, Board member Dr. J. S. Barlow said:

"The public has more say, and Council less, on use of land under an official plan. When the provincial government forces public hearings to be held before land use or zoning by-laws can be altered, changes cannot be made at a whim of Council or because of political expediency."

The Board passed a resolution of "non-concurrence" with the Etobicoke resolution, with Ald. Joss asking to go on record as opposed.

Members approved a change in the Board's financial policies. In future, Belleville will be assessed 84.75 per cent, Thurlow 9.75 percent and Sidney 5.5 per cent of the Board's operating expenses. The levies are based on the ratios of population and assessment of the three municipalities. Previous levies, set in 1961, were about one per cent more for Belleville and one per cent less for Sidney. Non-operating expenses, such as surveys and mapping, will be negotiated at the time they arise.

PLENTY OF ROOM

Belleville has enough vacant building lots to fill its housing construction needs for a number of years to come, Mr. Beavis said in his annual report to the Board. Only 54 new lots were created in 1966, compared to 120 new lots in 1963, and only 71 permits for single family dwellings were issued. In those parts of Sidney and Thurlow lying within the planning area, there was no large degree of housing construction during the year.

Almost all the undeveloped areas of the city and the Thurlow planning area are under subdivision control. However, except for lot 38 in concessions 2 to 5, no land in the Sidney planning area is under subdivision control.

"This is leading to a condition of haphazard land development which, if permitted to continue, will be costly to the people in the area from economic, social and environmental aspects" the planner reported.

During the year the Planning Board, Belleville Council and Sidney and Thurlow Council held joint meetings to discuss development of regional water supply to the city of Quinte area, servicing problem in the township areas bordering the city and major road patterns for the area.

OFFICERS NAMED

In his report, retiring Board chairman Ralph M. Plumpton said, "We feel that the advantages of intelligent planning are beginning to be seen in the all-over picture of the area covered by the Board."

G. G. Bussey was elected chairman for 1967; H. Knight, vice-chairman; Mr. Plumpton, chairman of the procedure and organization committee and Dr. Barlow and Mrs. Margaret Orr members of the committee.

New members of the Board are Carl Thompson and Farley Vermilyea, representing Thurlow and Mrs. Margaret Orr representing Belleville.

Economic Forecast

A prediction of lower interest rates, if present economic trends continue, is encouraging, indeed, in these days of high costs.

It comes from Walter Harris, president of Victoria and Grey Trust Company and a former finance minister — in the St. Laurent cabinet.

Mr. Harris suggested there had been an easing in the inflationary situation which in recent months gave cause for concern, and some economists were saying that in the coming sessions of Parliament and of the U.S. Congress action should be taken to stimulate the economy.

This, he said, was "quite a change of opinion from March to January." However, he warned Canadians they should not expect "any amount" of economic expansion during 1967. Rather, the country would be engaged in consolidating the progress of the last few years, "and adjusting to the substantially higher wage levels which have been established this year."

In one revealing section of his report, Mr. Harris said: "I've always contended that this country would not be able to afford all the trappings of a large nation until we had about 30 million people. That day is approaching at a fast rate. At that time we should be able to increase substantially the standard of living. Meantime, we have to be competitive with the rest of the world — and that means we cannot expect as much take home pay as the highest-paid nation in the world."

In other words, Canadians are being asked (not for the first time) to exercise some restraint in their spending. The business cycle has been a healthy one, by and large, but if inflationary tendencies have not been as serious as at first thought Canadians can still play their part in keeping the economy on a manageable bounds. The keynote to this is industrial stability and a correspondingly responsible attitude on the part of the work force.

Ottawa Road Plan

Suggestions regarding the conversion of Ottawa into a federal district similar to Washington are interesting in the light of the capital administration's current discussions with provincial cabinet ministers.

Ottawa has a costly road plan for implementation between now and 1968. How to pay for it is the big problem — and that is how Mayor Reid and four members of the Board of Control came to be in Toronto last week for discussions with provincial cabinet members.

Thus while Ottawa is the seat of the federal government, and while it may one day become a federal district or separate political entity in its own right — in the manner of Washington — it is also a city in Ontario, and as such is subject to the provincial administration in Toronto.

In the present situation over the road plan, the province is understood to want assurances that the Federal government will contribute toward implementation of the Ottawa-Hull area transportation study before it agrees to increase its financial aid. Mayor Reid has indicated an appetite for such aid will be made to the federal government.

The Ottawa-Hull study envisages freeways and other roads being built at an estimated cost of $300,600,000 over the next 20 years. The city says it cannot afford such a program under the existing road grant system.

Ottawa and provincial government officials are reported satisfied with the discussions in Toronto. As one provincial member put it: "Now we understand Ottawa's problems and they know ours."

Question of Principle

Individualism is not dead. Nor is the power of the solitary warrior on the wane by any means.

As Irish author St. John Ervine once said: "The mob is a weak and brainless thing. All changes for the better take place in the mind of the individual."

Even in seemingly small things which still involve questions of principle.

Consider the war of nerves Montreal lawyer Marc Briere waged against the Canadian Pacific Railway. Mr. Briere had been battling the railroad since June 24, 1965 — St. Jean Baptiste Day — on the issue of ticket collections in English only. A week ago Mr. Briere was bounced off a suburban train when he refused to hand over his ticket following a request in English.

But surprise was to follow. The other day the same ticket collector addressed Mr. Briere thus: Votre billet, s'il vous plait — and honor and principle were upheld.

Quite apart from the principle involved there is an old axiom which organizations dealing with the public often tend to forget. And that is, "the customer is always right!"

Strictly Personal

Argument Can Go Too Far

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

In most private arguments, we tend to weaken our own case by pushing it too far, by claiming more than should be rightfully claimed. When we do the same in public argument, it just breaks down any true communication between contending parties.

Last month, the vice-president of a large tobacco company told an audience that the government's campaign emphasizing the dangers of smoking "is part of a growing trend to government by big brother."

And he went on: "I need not tell you that the foundation stone of our democracy is freedom of choice. If, under the guise of protecting consumers, or any other guise, this freedom is lost, we are all lost."

This is almost a classic example of weakening an argument by pushing it too far. If we agree that the public must have "freedom of choice," then we must also have freedom of access to all information, for if essential information is lacking, our choice is not free, but blind. And the government, indeed, has a legal far behind the medical profession in "emphasizing the dangers of smoking."

If we are worried about "big brotherism," the worst way to oppose it is to call for "freedom of choice" when the government is actually offering it to us by letting us know that we smoke at our own risk. It does not end us from smoking; it simply warns us of the health hazard.

Business and conservative elements in America have continually injured their own cause by shouting "Wolf!" too long and too often, so that the general public no longer believes it when the wolf really begins lurking on the landscape. These constant cries have made it easier, not harder, for government to encroach on private activities.

The way to win the public is by an intelligent discrimination between those government policies which are needed to protect the consumer from his own ignorance, and those which do unjustly interfere with freedom of choice and purchase. By indiscriminately labelling everything the government does as "big brotherism," private enterprise has conditioned the public to accept, rather than reject, statism.

If social security is called "socialism," as it was last year, then the public will say, "If this is socialism, then we're for it" — and if through-going socialism is ever proposed by the government, it will find a ready audience. An audience created not by government, but by the opposition of unreasonable opposition of dumb conservatism.

Subsidy Payments Questioned

Dairy Farmers Rebuff Greene's "No"—Demand Increase

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Dairy Farmers of Canada took a stand Thursday for higher milk subsidies, despite previous word from Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene that there is little hope for more money this year.

Delegates at the dairy farmers' convention heard from Mr. Greene as they opened three days of sessions and issued a policy statement Thursday as the meetings closed.

The minister said there is little hope that dairy support payments will be greater in the year starting April 1 than they were this year.

The policy statement included a resolution to "express in the strongest possible terms its (dairy farmers) opposition to the suggestion of the minister that milk subsidies should be held at present levels" of $90,000,000 a year.

The resolution said this was unwarranted and unacceptable in light of the needs of the industry.

The policy statement pledged to strive for increased returns to producers of industrial milk.

It asked for a national support level of $5.10 for each 100 pounds of industrial milk for the 1967-68 dairy year. The 10 cents could be applied to the payment of export assistance, leaving a minimum return of $5.

"The tens of thousands of dairy producers in all parts of Canada cannot efficiently and with equity to them, adjust to constantly - changing technology without the assistance of positive policies aimed at achieving such structural adjustments," the statement said.

A plan to give small dairymen the choice of leaving or staying in the industry was discussed, approved in principle, then sent back to the board of directors for future distribution to dairy groups across Canada.

These groups will study the policies proposed, and the decision of whether the proposals would be adopted will be left to next year's annual meeting.

Basically the plan suggested by the Canadian dairy commission, during its first two years in operation, would offer a direct payment of $75 a cow, on up to 10 cows, to those who wish to leave the industry.

For those who want to stay, a system of capital grants was suggested to enable them to improve and enlarge their facilities, thus increasing their income potential.

Harry J. Enns, Manitoba's agriculture minister, warned delegates of the increasing threat of imitations and substitutes facing the dairy industry and cautioned the dairymen against becoming complacent.

"In my opinion, the dairy industry has the most aggressive in appealing to our young population, in whetting their appetite for dairy products, and in developing the new products and merchandising techniques."

T. B. Cooper, president of the National Dairy Council, said sales trends clearly indicate consumers are resisting price increases for dairy foods and are purchasing greater quantities of cheaper substitutes and alternatives.

George R. McLaughlin of Beaverton, Ont., was re-elected president for a second term.

TORONTO STOCKS TODAY

TORONTO (CP)—Gold stocks staggered in light morning trading today on the Toronto Stock Exchange as news that France has abandoned its demand for a re-examination of the price of gold.

The move caught speculators as well as investors by surprise and the gold index tumbled 3.80 to 160.67.

The index had made a spectacular advance in the closing minutes of Thursday's session when it jumped 7.18 after South Africa's finance minister said that if the price of the metal wasn't raised the country may stop mining it. South Africa mines more than half of the world's gold supply.

Dome dropped 3 to 43 and Giant Yellowknife 45 cents to $50. Kerr - Addison added ¼ at 12¼.

Industrials were mixed with CPR up ½ to 58¼. Crush International ¼ to 12¾ while Canada Cement dropped ¾ to 38 and Inco ¼ to 93½.

On index, industrials were up .62 to 158.22 and base metals .29 to 90.73. Western oils dipped .18 to 145.82. Volume by 11 a.m. totalled 710,000 shares compared with 623,000 at the same time Thursday.

The gold index, which reflects the price movements of gold stocks, jumped 7.18 to 163.97.

South Africa produces more than half of the world's gold supply. Russia and Canada are the next largest producers.

Won't Retreat on Bank Curbs: PM

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Thursday his government won't "retreat" on its planned legislation to curb growth of American - owned banks in Canada.

"No, we don't intend to retreat on this matter," he told Opposition Leader Diefenbaker in the Commons as Liberal back - benchers thumped their desks.

Mr. Diefenbaker had referred to a Toronto Star report saying laws affecting Canadian banks operating in the U.S. may be introduced in Congress this year.

He asked whether the government would pull back from its planned Bank Act revision to prevent growth of American - owned banks. It particularly affects the American - owned Mercantile Bank of Canada.

Mr. Pearson also said that Canada's reply to two protest notes received from the U.S. state department last year is being drafted and will be ready to go to Washington "very shortly."

The notes were reported to contain stiff protests on Mercantile case.

Finance Minister Sharp said his department made inquiries in Washington about The Star report Monday. Congress may be asked to impose federal controls on foreign banks operating in the U.S. Such banks now are under state jurisdiction.

He said there are no specific indications of such legislation now, but legislative action might arise in due course from federal studies of banking now under way in Washington.

Arabian Splendor and Styles Have Invaded Western World

NEW YORK (CP)—Arabian splendor and styles have infiltrated the Western world ever since the Crusaders brought jewelry and costumes back from their campaigns. This winter the Eastern look is strong, especially in at-home costumes.

Flattering to any hostess of whatever age or figure are the adaptations of the djellabah. In Morocco men and women still wear this loose robe-like gown, even in such modern and cosmopolitan cities as Casablanca and Tangier.

A few years ago a handsome white wool djellabah could be purchased in the souk (market) in Fez for about $5. They are probably more expensive now, what with increased tourist trade and the fashion interest in the garments. But they will be several hundreds of dollars lower than the designer adaptations seen in the fashion collections in New York.

One handsome version by Donald Brooks is in leopard silk jersey with the original wide square sleeves modified to a batwing. For Townley, Chuck Howard designed a white four-ply crepe. It flows over the arms in wide underslung sleeves. Both these gowns could be worn to a formal gala as well as for at-home parties.

HE INTRODUCED TURBAN

And California's Galanos combined the Moroccan look like harmonse and full-Eastern trousers in a gauzy chiffon lame with beaded yoke, definitely only for at-home wear.

Today we're also hearing new Eastern names as designers seek out unusual native costumes for adaptations, such as the gandurah, the Arabic word for their sleeveless shirt-like, ankle-length dress. It is fast becoming popular for resort wear.

You'll also be hearing about the gibba, the waistlength version of the djellabah. It is popular for southern resorts and for after-ski costumes.

The last really important Eastern period was some 60 years ago. The great French designer Paul Poiret invited 20 guests to the first of what were to become his famous balls. The theme was the Arabian Nights and all guests were commanded to appear in authentic Oriental costumes.

He admired Oriental headgear so much that, about 1910, he introduced turbans. They were immediately popular. He also introduced the harem skirt style into fashion obviously all this interest in Eastern costumes influenced other costumiers and the Eastern fashion was eagerly picked up by the wealthy clients.

CAFTAN PROVES HIT

In the fall of 1951, the late Christian Dior introduced the caftan coat, adapted from the long flowing garment worn in South Africa. Caftans and djellabahs are fundamentally the same but the caftan became popular first. It wasn't until about five years ago that tourism brought the Moroccan djellabah into fashion.

Dior's caftan was the hit of the Paris collections. By the next spring America was selling it in volume.

This winter Bill Blass of New York couture designs are also produced by Lew Shoffack in Montreal highlighted a group of at-home caftan crepes with glittering metallic accents. In Italy Princess Pignatelli's interpretation of the caftan was in both white flannel and beige-and-brown tweed.

India provided the next Eastern influence. In 1955 came the straight, knee-less jacket worn by Hattie Carnegie and popularized by the late prime minister Nehru. This is also called the rajah look. This winter several elegant rajah-tunic dresses in silk-and-white brocade have appeared in designer collections.

Ten years ago harem hemlines were all the rage. Also important were the high Chinese mandarin necklines, Japanese kimonos sleeves and silk-sashed waistlines.

In 1963 the movie Lawrence of Arabia started a rash of desert inspirations, in puffy turbans, trailing veils and sand colors. In 1964 the Eastern influence was felt again. This was seen in Byzantine embroidery and in adapted Crusaders' tunics for evening dress, done in reschéed metallic thread with the effect of chain mail.

Also for the last few years interest has turned to India's saris and many of the designers, especially Adele Simpson, have used these beautiful silks for dresses or for bandings.

This fall and winter the Eastern influence has really become important. Besides various versions of the flowing caftan or djellabah, the mandarin look is back. It is reminiscent of the dressmaker suit dress worn by Chinese women, buttoned to the high neckline but with side slits in the skirt. This has been especially popular in floor-length evening gowns.

Latest interest is in African prints — bold, colorful and brassy. These prints are appearing in daytime dresses and in resort clothes for both the beach and evening.

WOMEN WON'T WORK

About 2,250,000 women in India are high school or university graduates but only 20 to 30 per cent hold jobs.

Eyebrows Are Beauty Barometer of Face

By Reba & Bonnie Churchill

1. The eyebrows are the beauty barometer of the face. They not only go up and down with each mood and expression, but react to climatic changes, too. They chap and snap when it's chilly and wilt and perspire when it's hot. Somehow, we forget that these hairs, like the approximately 120,000 strands that cover the scalp, need protection. As actress and ski enthusiast Corinna Tsopei points these sensitive hairs need daily nourishing with brow pomade for suppleness, frequent brushings for manageability, and occasional plucking for shapeliness.

2. Incorrect tweezing not only ruins arch, but changes the facial expression and often stunts growth. Before plucking, preview browline, using thumb and index finger to press hairs into desired shape. Never go to extremes; follow the natural line, formed by the bony ridge above the eye, as your guide. Apply cream-fo soften brows, then tweeze hairs in the direction they grow, so new strands will come in smooth and flat. Try to restrict your plucking to "between," "under" and at the "tip" of the brows. To prevent swelling, apply skin with antiseptic lotion.

3. Once you have determined the most flattering shape, concentrate on the shade. Corinna, the former "Miss Universe," who debuts in the 20th film "Caprice," discovered brush-on powder could be used for various effects. Apply a pale color to dark hairs, and see how it highlights and minimizes heaviness. Reversely, brush on dusky tale, and note how it defines and dramatizes blonde brows. Also, use it under ridge to minimize protruding bone structure, or stroke it over sparse areas to fill in and elongate line.

Camera Club Events Planned

On Wednesday evening a large number braved a cold January night to enjoy an evening of photography entertainment at the Kiwanis Centre where the Camera Club holds its bi-weekly meetings.

Club president, John Fietl opened the meeting with several announcements, mentioning that the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto is the location of an exhibition of "Photography in the Fine Arts".

From January 17 to February 13, directors and curators of leading art museums will choose this exhibition from thousands of photographs. The photographs difer in approach, style and content. But all share one artistic merit — creativity.

The Niagara Falls International Snapshot contest is now open, with many prizes being offered and anybody can enter it.

Thursday, February 2 has been designated by the "Ice Follies" at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto as "Camera Night" offering a tremendous opportunity for available light and telephoto shooting, as an added bonus, stars from the show will remain on the ice for thirty minutes, after the finale to give all some great rink-side closeups.

Club member Ray Godfray presented an enjoyable slide show of a Canadian autumn canoe trip through Algonquin Park. All his slides presented evidence of the rich colors of this area.

AREA PICTURES

Good Buys gave a showing of his favorite home movies which give him lasting records of many events of the local area.

A major portion of the evening was consumed when the monthly competition received the largest amount of entries ever recorded. Judging was done by utilizing the audience and their photo-knowledge to choose the winners. This competition consisted of a photo-sequence series of three to six pictures, in black and white prints, and color slides.

In the black and white print event, Ray Godfray won first; prize with pictures of a young boy shovelling snow. Molly Bramley placed second with a sequence of a small girl amusing herself. Mike Last took third prize with his pictures of a bee-keeper at work.

The colored slides had a large entry list with Molly Bramley winning first prize for her sequence of a circus performance, and John Fietl with a series of pictures of a car race at Mosport won second prize. Jack Bond, with assistance of an airplane, showed some excellent aerial colored slides to win third prize.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

SUSANNA'S FAMILY FARE

Wire Twisters Are Useful

Dear Susanna: Here are two little items I find most useful to save and use another day.

Wire twisters, such as come on bags of brown sugar, and tiny plastic bags that are used for packaging so many items.

The twisters are just right for sealing other plastic containers of saveable leftover food, and the small bags I slip over my fingers for buttering pans. —Mrs. L. Thompson

Hi Su: All you young mothers whose babies have stuffy colds might like to try this.

Successful Living
Girl of 22 Wants Aunt To Be More Generous

Dear Doris: I have an aunt who is a tightwad. Am I on her only niece. I feel that she could be a little more generous, especially at Christmas. I received only one paltry gift which must have surely been purchased at a fire sale.

I know this is a harsh thing to say, but that is how I feel. It isn't as if she was poor. She can more than afford to give me second articles. She has no other family whatsoever.

Another thing that annoys me is that she is always telling me how to wear my clothes or style my hair. Doris, I am a sensible girl of 22 and have always tried to make the right decisions. I am growing tired of her criticism.

She is also very quick-tempered and this doesn't help matters any. I would like to abandon our relationship. — Desperate

Dear Desperate: And would you like to abandon those fireside gifts — or do I gather you'd take the articles but do without the aunt?

You can't have it both ways. At 22 I fail to see why you have to live in her pocket. Either move out of her life or pave the way for a better relationship by letting her know how you feel about the criticism. And make your gifts to her thoughtful ones.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am writing to agree with you about "Mother of Three". I have eight children and I trust every one of them. If they say they'll be in by 10 or 11 p.m. they are.

I once was told as a girl: "If your parents don't have trust in themselves they will not have trust in their children." And also: "The world changes every day and so do most of the people, but if there are some too bullheaded to change with new surroundings, they will be out of place in the future." — Mother of Eight.

Dear Mother: Nicely put. A mother can't regularly snoop into her son's mail or wallet and then expect perfect trust and honesty from him.

There is such a thing as respect for a growing personality, be it a toddler or a teen. And respect involves trust, encouragement, and a mighty tolerant interest in the unique way in which that personality is developing in this Space Age year of 1967.

* * *

Dear Doris: I noticed a girl was asking what a teenybopper is. A teenybopper is a girl who is too young for the boy she is going around with, or too young for his friends to accept her as their crowd. They consider her immature.

Cab Driver Takes Brunt of Family Feuds

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a Chicago cab driver and, believe me, hacking in Chicago is a tough way to make a buck. But the worst part of the job isn't the driving, it's the people who get into the cab and right away they want to tell you their troubles.

Yesterday I had a lady who was going to the airport. She started to tell me a long story about her husband running around with a girl who works in his office. She got so worked up that she hit me on the back with her purse and hollered, "How do you like that for an old goat with grandchildren?"

ANN LANDERS

Frankly I said, "Look, Mrs., why don't you write to Ann Landers and let me drive this cab."

She yelled, "I did write to Ann Landers and she told me I need to talk to somebody about my problem so I am talking to you."

Now I know you don't mean for people to tell their troubles to cab drivers. What you mean is they should talk to ministers or marriage counsellors and like that. So please, Ann Landers, make it clear to the folks who write you. Much obliged. — BIG RED.

* * *

DEAR RED: People who tell their troubles to cab drivers don't want advice. They just want somebody to listen.

A cab driver can be the ideal person to unload on because he's a stranger, he couldn't care less about who is to blame, and the passenger will probably never see him again. So, be a good egg and listen.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I will be celebrating our 20th wedding anniversary next month. The problem is that he wants to buy me a mink coat for my anniversary and I don't want one. I am going through the change and what I need most of the time is a fan, not a fur coat.

My husband says I am being selfish. He claims that I am depriving him of one of the greatest pleasures a man can have — presenting his wife with something special. If you say he is right, I will consider it. May I hear from you please — SHAKER HEIGHTS.

* * *

DEAR SHAKER HEIGHTS: I urge you to reconsider. Forget about yourself. Make the sacrifice. Put your husband's wishes first. Think mink. You'll be glad you let him talk you into it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What do you think about a grown man who has a faithful wife (not beautiful, just average looking) and two adorable children, yet the only picture he carries in his billfold is one of his mother and father?

Some days her pictures of the wife and children on their desks, but we don't even rate a billfold. This may sound like a petty complaint but it hurt me deeply when I opened my husband's shirt drawer the other day and discovered the new pictures I had made up for the wallet. This morning I checked and found that he is still carrying the old pictures of his parents.

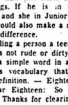
* * *

DEAR LEFT OUT: I'll bet your husband has been carrying that old picture of his parents for many years — and I hope you'll remain silent and let him do it as long as he wants to. The fact that he doesn't carry your picture doesn't mean he cares less for you and the children. It simply means he feels guilty about making the change and he just can't bring himself to do it.



DORIS CLARK

This often happens to young girls whose boy friends are at: too great an age difference to them, and this hurts their feelings. If he is in Senior High and she in Junior High, this could also make a significant difference.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Recipe Given for Super Waffles

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Years and years ago you gave a recipe for Super Waffles which called for a large amount of melted butter or margarine. Would you mind repeating this recipe? They were indeed super. Minnie McF.

ANSWER:

SUPER WAFFLES
(repeated from Feb. 13, 1961)

2 cups sifted all - purpose flour
3 tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt
2 cups sour milk or buttermilk
4 eggs, well-beaten
¾ cup melted margarine or salad oil

Sift together dry ingredients. Combine sour milk and eggs and add to dry ingredients. Beat until smooth with a hand beater or electric beater at high speed. Stir in melted margarine or oil. Bake in a preheated waffle iron until crisp and golden. Serve with maple syrup.

Question: would you have a recipe for Potato Chips? — Mrs. O. B. H.

ANSWER: Yes.

POTATO CHIPS
(French Fried Potatoes)

Pare and wash potatoes. Cut into strips ¼" wide and ¼" thick. Soak in cold, salted water 30 min. to 1 hr. Heat oil to 380 deg. Fahr. (1" cube of day-old bread will brown in about 20 seconds). Drain potatoes and dry them well. Using a deep frying basket, lower potatoes, about 1 cupful at a time, into hot oil at 380 deg. Fahr. Fry until golden brown, 5 to 7 min. Drain on paper towel. Sprinkle with salt and serve very hot.

NOTE: The soaking brings out the starch in potatoes and produces puffier chips.

Use a deep saucepan with straight sides. An electric deep fat fryer is ideal. For a 3-qt. saucepan use 4 to 5 cups oil. The oil should be deep enough to cover food generously — but 3" must be left between the oil and the top of the pan to prevent boiling over.

Doctors' Calls Go Up Dollar

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Medical Association announced Thursday increases in some categories of doctors' fees will go into effect this spring.

Dr. R. A. Dolan, chairman of the OMA tariff committee, said the increases will not affect all categories, but have been designed to bring fees in some areas into line with others.

Included in the increases are visits to a general practitioner's office which will go to $5 from $4, and house calls up to $7 from $6. A complete medical checkup by a general practitioner is to cost $15 instead of the previous $10.

The fee for total care by an obstetrician throughout pregnancy is to go up to $140 from $125. However, there will be no increase in the $100 fee for prenatal care, under the mother is under a specialist's care.

Psychiatric fees are also to be increased. An hour with a psychiatrist will cost $25 instead of the present $20.

Sunday School Lesson

Faith Response to Goodness

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

A plant cannot make itself grow. Its growth is a response to something, it cannot grow if there is no water, light, and nourishment in the soil.

Faith is not an achievement. It is a response to something. Faith in God is a response to the evidences of His righteousness and love. If there were no evidences of God's power and love, faith in Him would be impossible. Faith is our response to the evidences of God's goodness and love.

The ministry of Jesus depended for its effectiveness on the responses people gave to Him. Even a casual reading of Jesus' ministry reveals that the extent to which he was able to help people was determined by the degree of their faith.

There were some who seemed to have implicit faith in Jesus, and in His power to heal. A centurion said to Him, "But say the word, and let my servant be healed." (Luke 7:7 RSV) A woman suffering from hemorrhages said, "If I touch even His garments, I shall be made well." (Mark 5:28 RSV) The faith of both these persons was rewarded.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for January 22: "Our Response To Christ," Luke 7 and 8

There were those who wanted to believe, but struggled with doubts. One of these was John the Baptist. Shut off in prison, perhaps wondering why Jesus, if He were the Christ, did not come to rescue him, John sent two of his friends to Jesus to ask, "Are you He who is to come, or shall we look for another?" (Luke 7:19 RSV) Jesus pointed to His works as evidence of His fulfilment of the Messianic role.

Those who responded most gratefully to Jesus were those who sensed the depth of their need. Many religious people were so self righteous, they did not respond to Jesus at all except in a critical way. A woman who was known for her sins responded with such faith and love, she wept as she held His dusty feet, and wiped the tears away with her hair. (Luke 7:37 -38)

REMARKABLE STORY

Jesus interpreted these events with a remarkable story (Luke 8:4-8) A sower went out to scatter seed. Some fell on a well-beaten path where either people trampled it, or birds ate it. Some fell on a rock. When rain fell it sprouted, but soon died for there was no earth in which roots could grow. Some fell among fast-growing thorns, and the thorn-bushes soon choked the new sprouts. Some fell where the farmer intended it to fall, on good soil, and took root and grew.

In every case, it was the same quality seed. The amount of growth did not depend on the seed, but where the seed landed. If it landed on loose soil, it grew. If it landed on rock or hard-baked soil, it died it could not grow where there was nothing to grow in.

Simon was typical of much of the world today. He was unwrapped up in his own pride, he did not even ask his servants to wash Jesus' feet, and had only criticism for His gracious treatment of an outcast woman. He could read of boys dying in Viet Nam, and never bat an eye. He would have only contempt for people on relief. He looked down on everyone who was not in his social or economic class.

A Latvian woman who had come to America was asked what she liked best about America. With a break in her voice, she answered, "Your wonderful freedom." The freedom most Americans take for granted, to her was the most wonderful thing in the world. Her past bitter experience under tyranny gave her a basis for really appreciating the freedom Americans take for granted.

If men's faith in God is small, the trouble is not with God, but with them. He is the same God who led the Israelites through the Red Sea. He is the same God who inspired Isaiah and Jeremiah. He is the same God who healed men and opened their eyes through the ministry of Jesus. He is the same God who has blessed our land with material wealth. He is the same God who has given us the ten commandments and the Sermon on the Mount to live by. He is the God who can give peace to men's hearts, and hope for their despair. If they offer Him only stony hearts, He cannot help them. His love is offered equally to saint and sinner. Whether one grows in saintliness or remains a sinner depends entirely on his personal response.

SPORTS SLICE

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Boxing has produced some crowing cockerels who blat from the housetops about their greatness and whatnot but the greatest little gamecock of them all, Barney Ross, was counted out by cancer the other day.

Reams have been written about the silver-haired Ross and his famous fights with Canada's Jimmy McLarnin. Ross was never knocked out in 83 fights except in the Great Finale.

He had the guts and courage of a lion. Nature had treated him unfairly because he had small hands, tender bones and slim arms. He got out of his fights only that which supreme effort could put in them.

In his final bout with Ceferino Garcia, Ross hurt his hand in training .O doctor used a pain-killing injection for the bout and for seven rounds the drug worked. The next eight he feinted pawed, swung and slapped but kept his left hand in front of him.

The loser Garcia gasped when he learned how he had been deceived.

He fought Henry Armstrong in a title fight on May 31, 1938. Armstrong gave Barney a little room and as early as the fourth, Ross was in trouble. Later he was battered almost beyond recognition but gamely stayed throughout to the finish. He never boxed again.

He was 32 when World War II saw the United States enter the conflict. He joined the Marines as a boxing instructor but he ran into race prejudice and retaliated with his fists. He was sent to a rifle company where the average age was 10 years his junior.

He was shipped to the South Pacific, to Guadalcanal. Almost immediately after going into action Barney's detachment was cut off. In a night of desperate fighting he saved three wounded comrades and killed 27 Japanese. He was given the Silver Bar, but it also turned his hair silver.

He picked up a tropical infection, got malaria and was shipped home. He worked for the government, which ran plants, and war bond rallies. But he found himself becoming weak and tired. He thought it was malaria returning so, as he said, he took the easy way out.

In the Pacific medical men had given him morphine and when he suffered again he sought the same remedy. He fell into the drug habit later declaring himself an addict. He went to a sanatorium and several months later was discharged, cured.

During his ring years Barney's gross purses easily topped $300,000. He kept a quiet river boat and was generous to his family, and liked lively living. He was a patron of night clubs and a bettor on baseball and racing. The result was predictable. He had no nest egg on retiring.

The trilogy of Ross — McLarnin fights began when McLarnin twice defeated Young Corbett and Barney had beaten welterweight Billy Petrolle. Ross was still a few pounds over the 135-pound limit and this was up the alley of McLarnin's famous manager "Pop" Foster.

Then there was that juicy jinx of McLarnin's over the Jewish boys which, Ross, born Barnet Rabofsky, would be battling.

It was a smashing fight. Ross was a spitfire, McLarnin a siege gunner. They matched each other step for step. Barney won the split decision.

They were rematched for September 6th of the same year in the Bowl. They ran into a record series of postponements, four in eleven days, but when they met it was another bristling battle. McLarnin took the split verdict this time.

A year later they met again in the Polo Grounds. The fight offered all the fire of its predecessors but with three former officials closely hemming, referee, and judge Abe Goldberg and George Lacron saw it alike. Ross won it but at that there was considerable booing by the fans.

That was McLarnin's last fight and he was said to be worth $250,000. Foster never took on another fighter, just worried about McLarnin.

In the spring of 1956 Foster died, over 80. His will disclosed he had left everything to McLarnin. This, the product of hard-bitten thrift, amounted to approximately $200,000.

McLarnin's original stake had dwindled to a pale shadow because of the vagaries of investment lurk. His manager never forgot him, even in death.

Hawks Win 4-2 ★★★★★ ★★★★★ Wings Wallop Leafs

Mohns' Hat Trick Beats Ex-Mates

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If Boston Bruins never regretted it before, they must be sorry now that they ever let Doug Mohns get away.

Mohns, a 34 - year - old left winger who played for Boston from 1953 to 1964, scored a goal in each period Thursday night to lead Chicago Black Hawks to a 4-2 win over the Bruins.

Chicago regained sole possession of first place in the National Hockey League standings, breaking a tie with the idle New York Rangers.

In the other game of the night, fifth - place Detroit Red Wings routed third - place Toronto Maple Leafs 6-2. It was Detroit's 14th win of the season. All have been on home ice.

The Bruins got off to a fast start when Gil Marotte scored two minutes after the opening faceoff.

Then Mohns went to work against his former team-mates. He scored at 10:41, knocking in a pass from Ken Wharram to tie the game 1-1.

Chicago moved in front in the second period when Wharram scored his 20th goal of the season with a shot that bounced off Boston defenceman Ted Green at 1:51.

A few minutes later, Mohns collected his second goal by tipping in a pass from Lou Angotti.

Boston narrowed the margin to 3-2 on a goal by Murray Oliver early in the third period.

The Hawks' Pierre Pilote was sent off at 11:00 on a major penalty for board-checking John McKenzie, but Chicago withstood the Boston power play and clinched their win at 17:11 with Mohns' third goal of the night and the 166th of his career.

His scoring spree brought his season's goal output to 13 and lifted him to eighth place in NHL scoring with 27 points.

Denis Dejordy kicked out 25 Boston shots while Bernie Parent had 27 saves.

In Detroit, forward Bruce MacGregor had a hat trick in the Wings, scoring his 11th and 12th goals of the season.

His first was shot through a pileup at the Toronto net at 1:16 in the period. Ray Cullen, up from the minors, scored the second Detroit goal less than two minutes later.

Tim Horton scored first for Toronto with a blistering slap shot that beat Roger Crozier. Ron Ellis evened the score at 9:44, skating past the Detroit defence with the Leafs a man short.

But after that it was Detroit all the way.

Paul Henderson, with an assist from Norm Ullman, scored at 1:04 of the second period and with less than a minute to go before the period closed MacGregor added his second of the night.

In the third, Alex Delvecchio and Pete Goegan scored one each on Bower-Gamble.

Detroit outshot Toronto 45 to 25.

The first period had six penalties, including a 19 - minute misconduct to Kent Douglas of Toronto for an argument with an official.

Chicago's victory gives the club 49 points, two more than New York Rangers, who have played one more game than the Hawks. Toronto has 42 points, six more than fourth - place Montreal Canadiens. Detroit is fifth with 31 points while Boston is at the bottom with 25.

Saturday, the Hawks play at Montreal, the Red Wings at Toronto and there is an afternoon game at Boston between the Rangers and the Bruins.

Sunday, Canadiens are at Chicago, Leafs are at Boston and Rangers are at Detroit.

BCI Bantams Favored to Win Tourney

By DON MATTHEWS

The BCI bantams have been rated favorite to capture the Rawson Trophy in BCI's seventh annual bantam basketball tournament being held this Saturday. January 21 at Belleville Collegiate. Coach, O'Riordan, says he hopes to win the title for the second consecutive year.

In the last six league games the bantams have won each game by at least 20 points with Dave Wright and Brent Gallop each netting about 30 points. If the team can maintain this pace the championship is a sure thing.

The other teams competing for the title are as follows. Monra, Quinte, Nicholson, Madoc Norwood, Campbellford, Alberts College, OSD, Napanee, H. J. Clarke, Cobourg, West and Cloyne. Action gets underway in the girls gym at 8:00 a.m. with the BCI B team playing H. J. Clarke and in the boys gym with the BCI A team battling Nicholson.

The second round commences at 12:00 in both gyms and the semi-finals at 4:00. The consolation game will be played at 7:00 in the girls' gym. The championship game will get underway at the same time in the boys' gym.

"Well-Rehearsed"

Calls Fight Build-Up "Phony"!

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Chronicle says the build-up for the Feb. 6 Cassius Clay-Ernie Terrell heavyweight championship bout is phony and has reached the point where it will hurt the gate, rather than help it.

The two fighters have staged brief scuffles of the bear hug variety and Terrell, the World Boxing Association champion, has complained he has not received equal billing on promotion signs for the fight which is scheduled for the Astrodome.

"If the fight is as phony as the build-up then not even the 6,900 tons of air conditioning will be sufficient to remove the stink from the domed stadium in time for opening of the baseball season," Dick Peebles, Chronicle executive sports editor, wrote in his Thursday column.

"For the third time in recent weeks, the champion and challenger pretended to go after each other 'the other evening.

"It's probably the most-rehearsed act since Fred Astaire and his sister Adele hung up their dancing pumps.

"If this isn't the phoniest build-up since the invention of padded underwear then let the peace mongers clear out, throw away the cameras and permit Clay and Terrell to go at it the best way they go into their name calling routine.

"Have you ever wondered how come photographers happen to be present when these 'incidents' take place? If there are no cameramen, no great turnout of writers, the fighters go their peaceful ways.

Peebles said the Clay-Terrell bout is good enough to stand on its own merits.

A spokesman for the Astrodome Championship Enterprises, the promoting group, said it has not encouraged the "shoves and bearhugs" between the two fighters.

Rangers Wallop Petes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener Rangers have a chance to grab a share of first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series tonight, after moving to within two points of series-leading Toronto Marlboros Thursday night.

The Rangers scored five first-period goals in less than eight minutes to defeat Peterborough Petes 7-2 and jump into second place ahead of Hamilton Red Wings.

The Rangers can catch the Marlboros by beating St. Catharines in Kitchener tonight. Toronto has 38 points, two more than Kitchener and four more than Hamilton.

In the other series game, Hamilton defeated St. Catharines 3-2 to move past fourth-place London Nationals in the standings.

Rookie forwards Tim Ecclestone and Danny Seguin paced Kitchener with two goals each. Single goals went to Walt Tkaczuk, Wayne Gowing and Ken Gratton.

Mickey Redmond scored his 30th goal of the season for Peterborough with Gary Monahan adding the other.

Right winger Danny Lawson's goal at 15:48 of the third period gave Hamilton its win. Hamilton defenceman Randy Manery's goal tied the score 15 minutes earlier. Ronald Leclerc got the other Red Wings' goal.

John Fisher and Billy Young scored for St. Catharines.

'Offers Shore All-Girl Hockey Team

WALLACEBURG, Ont. (CP) — If Eddie Shore's Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League go on strike tonight as threatened, Harold Ribson has a solution to the problem.

Ribson, manager of the Wallaceburg Arena, sent a telegram to Shore Thursday night offering the services of Wallaceburg Hornettes— an all-girl hockey team.

Centennials Attracting Interest

The Belleville Centennial Hockey Club is coming along very nicely with much city interest being shown, a spokesman said today.

"Thus far some twenty sponsors have come forward with assistance and there is evidence of more," he said.

The club will get the official sweaters this week.

There is a possibility that a Junior "A" will come here for an exhibition game with the club.

It plays an exhibition game in Stirling on March 10.

Meanwhile practices are being held every Sunday in the curling arena from 10.30 to 12 noon.

GALT — There's a new leader in the goaltending race for the Turofsky Trophy this week — Tom Mercer of Kingston Aces.

Mercer replaced Ray Reason of Woodstock Athletics, who had led the averages for two months, at the head of the OHA senior "A" hockey netminding race. He gave up seven goals in his last two starts for a 3.14 average in 22 games.

Reason remained in solid contention, however. He gave up eight goals in two games as his average climbed from 3.09 to 3.11 after 24 starts.

The actual leader among the goaltenders is Steve Rexe of Belleville Mo-Hawks. He's compiled a 3.13 average in eight games since replacing Ludger Doucet in mid-season. Rexe, however, isn't eligible for the Turofsky Trophy because he won't participate in the required 60 per cent of his club's games.

In contrast to the competition for the goal-tending crown is Dave McComb's ever-widening lead in the scoring derby. The Collingwood Georgians' centre man pocketed six points in two goal games to extend his lead from nine to 12 points.

McComb has 51 points, including a pace-setting 31 assists and 26 goals. The latter total is second high in the league behind team mate Hec Brainard's 29.

CAHA To Study New Pro Pact

WINNIPEG (CP) — Secretary - manager Gordon Juckes describes sessions this week and probably the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's most important semi - annual meeting.

Discussions here Saturday and Sunday will cover a new agreement with the National Hockey League, the future of Canada's national team and a central office for the CAHA.

Executive members will examine a new, five-year pact which will replace the present 10 - year agreement with the NHL.

It includes such revolutionary clauses as elimination of all professional membership involving amateur teams; a universal draft of all over-age juniors and an increased assistance subsidy to be paid the CAHA by professional clubs for development of minor hockey.

Unprecedented growth has forced the CAHA to think big. With $1,000,000 passing through CAHA channels each year and more than 200,000 registered players to look after, Juckes needs help.

Plans are to move him from Melville, Sask., to Ottawa, Toronto or Winnipeg and provide him with full-time staff. Juckes, who now handles the chores of CAHA secretary, registrar and treasurer, has already sold all but a token interest in the weekly newspaper he published in Melville.

With the primary objective of the 1968 Winter Olympics within sight, the CAHA brass can decide what comes after for Canada's national hockey team.

The chances are that some of the players who have been within the national team since it was formed in 1963 will depart.

"We can't expect them to devote their whole life to the team," said Juckes.

Preliminary thinking leans to a national B team to be financed by the Canada Hockey Foundation, a group which looks business financing support for a system of hockey scholarships.

Then there's the question of what to do about the Canadian Major Junior Hockey League. It's operating in seven Alberta and Saskatchewan communities without CAHA sanction.

The allspended CMJHL clubs —Edmonton Oil Kings, Calgary Buffaloes, Regina Pats, Moose Jaw Canucks, Weyburn Red Wings, Estevan Bruins and Saskatoon Blades—are banned from CAHA playoffs.

The weekend meeting will decide playoff dates for the senior Allan Cup and junior Memorial Cup.

Semi - annual meeting decisions, with the exception of playoff dates, will be ratified at the CAHA annual meeting in Saskatoon in May.

Press Poll

Dodger "Egg" Upset Of Year!

NEW YORK (AP)—Baltimore Orioles' four-game sweep over Los Angeles Dodgers in the World Series easily rated the sports upset of the year in an Associated Press poll released Thursday.

The Orioles drew 267 first-place votes and a total of 971 points—from sports writers and sportscasters in the United States on the basis of three points for first place, two for second and three for third.

Texas Westerns' victory over Kentucky in the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball final last March was second, far behind with 363 points, including 39 top votes.

Brazil's upset of the United States in Davis Cup zone play attracted 25 first-place votes and 218 points.

The Orioles, despite a runaway with the American League pennant, were rated the underdog against Dodger pitching in the series. However, Baltimore unveiled some sparkling mound work of its own as reliever Moe Drabowsky blanked the Dodgers for the last 6 1-3 innings in the opener and Jim Palmer, Wally Bunker and Dave McNally followed with shutouts that set a World Series mark of 33 2-3 straight innings without a run.

Flight Mare Of Year

CHICAGO (CP) — Arnbro Flight, Canada's harness horse of the year, Thursday was named four year-old trotting mare of the year by racing secretaries of the 38 member tracks of Harness Tracks of America, Ind.

Brothers Edwin and Elgin Armstrong and Elgin's son, Charles, of Brampton, Ont., owners of the Flight, will receive the international championship trophy during HTA's annual meeting Jan. 31.

Arnbro Flight missed the last half of the season with injuries, but still scored nine victories in 13 starts and earned $152,950 in 1966. She has won 20 events in her three-season career and has finished out of the money only twice in 64 starts.

Over Shore's Head

Indians Appeal To League President

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The players on Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League, who went on strike last month to protest against the suspension of four players by owner Eddie Shore, asked league president Jack Butterfield Thursday to lift the suspensions of two other Springfield men.

Two lawyers representing the players, Alan Eagleson and Ray Smela, both of Toronto, Ont., conferred for about an hour at a coffee shop at Harrisburg's York State Airport.

The meeting had been scheduled for Hershey, but in an apparent attempt to duck reporters and keep it as private as possible, the site was changed at the last minute.

Afterwards, player representative Brian Kilrea said the lawyers had asked Butterfield to lift the suspensions and the refund fines or pay cuts levied against them.

He said this was just one of several "conditions" the players want, and they are asking the league to comply with them quickly.

Asked to describe the other conditions and the date they must be met, Kilrea said: "I can't say anymore. The rest will have to come from Mr. Eagleson."

Arriving in Toronto late Thursday night, Eagleson said the matters discussed between himself and Butterfield would remain confidential for the time being.

"But I'm satisfied that the conditions discussed will be met," he said.

Earlier in the week, Eagleson had asked Butterfield to disqualify himself from the dispute because he is a nephew of Shore and also chairman of the board of governors and manager of the Springfield club.

The two players currently under suspension are goalie Jacques Caron and forward Roger Cote. Caron was suspended on charges of indifferent play and Cote for insubordination when he complained about a series of exercises Shore ordered.

The Crosby Clambake!

Spyglass Hill Not So Tough!

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Spyglass Hill's budding reputation as a super monster among golf courses took a beating just a bit Thursday in the preliminary professionals began attacking it in Bing Crosby's $104,500 tournament.

Joe Carr, a 28-year-old from Worcester, Mass. who won only $50 in official money last year, grabbed the lead with a 68 at Cypress Point and big Jack Nicklaus carded a 69 at Pebble Beach. Al Geiberger, the professional of a Memphis tournament champ, had a 70 there.

Just at 70, two under par, were four who shot at Spyglass: New Zealand's southpaw Bob Charles, Jack Burke Jr., Jerry Pittman, and little known Jim Colbert of Kansas City, Kan.

"It's one of the really good courses already," commented Charles, but others weren't so generous. And there's reason for new 6,972-yard layout where holes have such nicknames as Billy Bones and Long John Silver.

Defending champion Don Massengale walked the plank at Spyglass with an 80 while Miller Barber ambled himself out of what might have been a treasure. After shooting a 72, he needed only a par 4 on the 18th hole total of 34 in the box where he should have put his four for the 18th.

He had to accept a 34 for the single hole, 64 for the nine and 138 for the 18 on the really good courses already," commented Charles, but others weren't so generous. And there's reason for new 6,972-yard layout where holes have such nicknames as Billy Bones and Long John Silver.

Aces Whip Cobourg Hoopsters

"Most of us are a long way from being in shape for this sport but we are getting better with games and practices and should be ready when the playoffs start."

So said Bill Green, manager of the Belleville Aces basketball squad Thursday as the 15-56 exhibition win over Cobourg here last night.

The club, minus a league in which to play, is arranging exhibitions in preparation for the OBA intermediate playoffs' playdowns in March.

The Aces, now starting last night Arlie a slim 28-20 half time lead before pulling away from Cobourg in the second half.

Clare Leahy paced the Aces, with game scoring man in the lineup shared in the points. Leahy hooped 17 while Bill Rutherford struck for 13. Arlen Burleigh and Brian Langabeer also reached double figures for the victors.

Ravensdale topped Cobourg. The big, ex-high school star had 18 points while Cook collected 13 and Clarke 10.

Green said he hopes to play a game against the Belleville "Y" team next week and that the club is lining up games with Peterborough and Oshawa Legion Plans call for the Aces to take part in a Smiths Falls "B" tournament in late February.

Green has been seeing triple duty with the Aces as player-manager-coach but says he hopes to see Don Souther join the team in a coaching capacity.

"Don was at the game last night and helped us out plenty. We are very interested in having him coach and I think he's willing to take on the job," Green said, adding, "and I will be very happy to be able to just concentrate on playing."

The Teams:

Cobourg (56): Harvey 8, Taylor, Cook 13, Clarke 10, Anderson 7, Harden, Ravendale 16, Hiely 2.

Belleville Aces, (74): Mihalchuk 4, Latchford 11, Leahy 17, Burleigh 10, Donovan 4, Langabeer 10, Hargreaves 8, Guthrie 2, McNicol 2, Green 6.

Oshawa Here Tonight

Macs Need This One!

Belleville's entry in the OHA Eastern Junior "B" Hockey League, winners of only one game in the last four starts, is in danger of blowing a playoff berth for the second year in a row.

In their last six games, the Quinte McFarlands have dropped from first to fourth spot. But it's not entirely a matter of slumping.

Five teams are battling on an even basis and there are only four playoff spots available. All teams are giving it their best shot at the title.

And while the Macs are fourth, one point back of Cobourg Cougars and just three ahead of Kingston's surging Frontenacs, they can help their own cause greatly tonight.

All they have to do is knock off the first-place Oshawa Crushmen in tonight's 9.00 p.m. battle here at Memorial Arena.

Nothing is task by any means but one that Cobourg turned right in Oshawa the night before. The Crushmen blew a three goal lead and dropped an 8-6 decision to the Cougars, losers of four in succession before that.

Other games tonight have Trenton meeting Peterborough and Cobourg at Kingston, the latter a key tilt as far as the Macs are concerned. Quinte visits Kingston for another "must" game Monday. The Fronts are making a strong bid for one of the playoff positions and it looks like either Cobourg or the Macs that will bite the dust.

The tight team race overshadows the heck-and-neck fight between Quinte's Ron Riley and Jim Sayer of Port Solomon for the league scoring crown. They are tied, at 54 points each going into tonight's game here.

"We looked terrible at home last Friday but we have to make up for it tonight," says Mac manager Jim "Sugar" Gibbons, "and I hope the fans will give us another chance."

The Macs' chances are running short unless they regain their winning form soon!

Gas Housers Complete Schedule

Mustangs whitewashed Marysville B.A. 3-0 and Comets tied Mulroney's Sunoco 5-5 as the Gas House Hockey League wound up its regular schedule last night.

Sunoco scored two goals in the final five minutes to snatch the tie with the Comets. Court Brailey was the hero with the two late tallies while teammate Doug Bolic collected a goal and three assists. Doug Reid and Whalen were the other Sunoco scorers. Gary Brennan, Stu Craig and Ted Soule drew assists.

Terry Hurst paced the Comets with two goals and one helper while Hylie Bryant had one and two. George Flynn and Lee McBrien each had a goal and assist. Bill Williams and Glen Beagle an assist each.

Tim Cook chalked up the Mustang's shutout while Dave Sheriden led the club attack with a goal and two assists. Jim Horwood had a goal and helped on another. Murray Johns also scored and Pat Aveslatine had an assist.

Aveslatine received the Blatchford - Parker Sporting Goods Station award as the season's most sportsmanlike player.

Dave Sheriden and Court Brailey won the MVP awards for last night's games.

Five-Way Fight Looms In C.H.H.L.

A five-way fight for the final two playoff spots in the Central Hastings Hockey League is threatening to run until the final day of the schedule.

Tomorrow, Thrasher Belcher climbed out of the basement and past Plainfield with a 6-2 triumph over Foxboro Lumber Kings last night.

Only five points separate third-place Frankford from Plainfield. Wallbridge, Foxboro and now Thomasburg are between.

Meanwhile, first-place Glen Ross can take a healthy lead tonight in beating runner-up Ivanhoe in a 9.00 p.m. game at Stirling. The Knights are three points off the pace.

Thunderbird scoring ace Don Henderson had a big five-point night against Foxboro. He scored two goals and assisted on three others. Jack Nadeau and Burt Emery also popped in goals each.

Derrick Ray and Wayne Tuttle won Lumber King marksmen.

Earlier Opening of Trout Fishing Season Requested

Members of Hastings county council would like to see a January 1st opening date for Lake and Speckled Trout in a move to boost the winter tourist industry.

Councillors yesterday approved a resolution from Madoc Reeve Thomas Burnside requesting that the Department of Lands and Forests give consideration to a January 1st opening date with the daily limit for lake trout reduced from five to three fish.

If the resolution is approved the fishing season would be open for about nine months of the year.

Stirling Reeve Don Rodgers agreed that a January 1st opening date for ice fishing would be a benefit to county tourist operators although he did not agree that a reduced limit would be necessary for Speckled Trout.

WIND UP SESSION

County council wound up its January session with consideration of a long list of grant requests and passing of bylaws making appointments to various committees.

Council approved a grant of $1,050 to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind and increased the Salvation Army grant from last year's $800 to $1,000.

The Wollaston Recreation Centre was given a grant of $200 to assist in the construction of an outdoor skating rink at Coe Hill and the county winter works program was given $250 for advertising purposes.

A request for a grant of $200 from the Madawaska Valley Tourist Association was referred to the finance committee for consideration due to the fact that there is an application in to have all of Hastings county included in the area.

Currently three tourist organizations are active in the county; the Madawaska in the north, and Land O' Lakes and the Highlands of Hastings in the Centre and South.

MEMBERSHIP VOTED DOWN

Over-lapping of services by the various tourist organizations was one of the reasons for asking that all of the county be included in the one region.

Members also felt that the services of the Lake Ontario Regional Development Council (formerly LODA) were also overlapping insofar as the tourist industry was concerned and voted down membership in that body.

Thurlow Reeve Carl Thompson said he could not see the benefits of membership and Stirling Reeve Don Rogers claimed it was hard to put a finger on benefits received.

He said that the LORDC represented county tourist associations as Americas sportsmans shows. The associations could not afford to attend those shows individually.

Many of the county municipalities contribute individually to the LORDC and accordingly, councillors voted to drop membership at the county level.

Judge to Decide Claims In Alyea Expropriation

TRENTON — Members of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission, meeting yesterday, voted to permit a county judge to decide about such matters as expropriation costs, and legal claims in the final settlement of the commission's dealings with Murray Township farmer Jack Alyea, rather than let the issues go to arbitration by the Ontario Municipal Board.

The commission was informed that the Mel Willis firm would take longer than anticipated to clear land in Murray Township for the sides of storage pond. Willis now gives March 1 as a possible deadline for the clearing of land . . . which includes the land owned by Alyea up until the commission expropriated it.

Meanwhile, Coo-Bridge says it is having trouble sinking wells for the sides of the storage beyond 20 feet, where a "dense" layer of some sort is encountered.

Problems aside . . . the commissioners are looking forward to being able to meet water needs in Trenton for a number of years once the 90 million gallon storage pond is completed.

The commission finds itself at odds over a bill sent to the Cobourg Construction Company for testing leakage in the watermain in the land assembly area on north Reid Street.

A utilities crew submitted a report that leakage was occurring. Charge for the test was $246.55 and a bill submitted to the Cobourg company which installed the watermain. The Cobourg firm says the manager's report was "erroneous" and claims a water valve had been left open.

The commission has turned the matter over to its solicitor.

Clifford Gunter, on leave from his duties as waterworks superintendent owning to health will be asked to compile a history for the Trenton commission for Ontario Hydro's centennial Hall of Memory, at Niagara.

The commission will continue with a system whereby owners of new homes which have been wired for heating purposes, get a 35 per cent discount for the first 5,000 hours, including construction when plastic or drying. This is in preference to a suggestion from HEPC that the commission give a 25 per cent discount for the first year or until the owner sells the house.

Red Cross Needs More Workers In Workroom

Red Cross workers in Belleville filled the quota for articles of clothing set for it by the Ontario division last year, and several times sent to headquarters for new supplies.

Mrs. G. K. Graham, reporting on the work accomplished by the Women's Work committee, said 400 finished articles for children in tropical countries were shipped in June, and 18 quilts, 50 pairs of men's socks and 20 knitted shawls were completed.

Many of the workers are young married women with small children. Because they cannot get out to the workroom, materials are delivered and picked up at their homes. Mrs. Graham said. More workers able to go to the workroom to sew are needed. The regular group works on Tuesday afternoons and a small group of French speaking women meet at the workroom on Wednesday afternoon.

Many Tourists Expected Cafe Owners Told

Four Belleville men were among 1,600 restaurant and accommodation industry representatives at "Red Carpet Canada 67" in Toronto this week.

Jack Yanower, W. M Pape, Lloyd Blue and Milton Kearns heard a challenge made to every food and accommodation service establishment in the country to emphasize the need to "spread a red carpet" for Canadian visitors in 1967.

The project is co-ordinated by the Canadian Restaurant Association and the Hotel Association of Canada. A series of 21 seminars is being held across the country for management and executive personnel in the food service and accommodation industries.

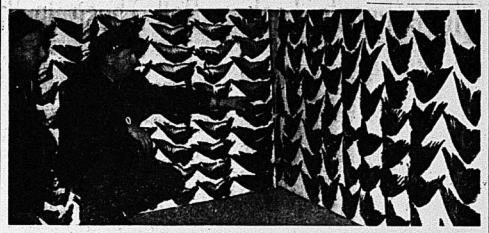
A spokesman at the Toronto seminar said: "There will be more tourists travelling in Canada in 1967 than in any previous year. It is expected there will be some 35,000,000 visitors from overseas. Their impressions of Canada will depend to a large extent on the reception they receive in our hotels, motels and restaurants."

Tourists are Canada's third largest source of export dollars and it his been estimated that business from a flow of 24 tourists a day is like having a factory with a $200,000 payroll in the area.

Separate School Trustees Named

On Jan. 18, at a conference in Smiths Falls, the Eastern Ontario English Separate School inspectors branch was formed as part of an Ontario association. The branch's area of concern will be all counties east of the City of Oshawa to the Quebec border. The president-elect is V. Réid, Peterborough and the secretary-treasurer is J. Hamel, Ottawa.

The purpose of this organization is to promote the growth and the identity of separate schools in Ontario. As well this branch and others will be actively engaged in developing utilitarian values of modern education in a spiritual atmosphere of Christianity reflecting the principles governing this age of human relationships.



South Africa May Quit Gold Mining

LONDON (AP) — South Africa's finance minister said Thursday that if the price of gold is not raised, his country may have to stop mining it.

"Russia would then be the only supplier to the Western world." Dr. Nicholas Diedrichs told a news conference. He spoke in advance of a conference of world monetary officials here this weekend.

Diedrichs said that the international gold price of $35 an ounce has not changed in one-third of a century, while all other prices had risen. He said the gold price should be at least doubled.

South Africa will not be represented at the weekend conference.

Lands and Forests Officers "Winging It"

Ranger Ed Jordan and Game Management Officer W. W. "Bill" Bittle of the Tweed District Lands and Forests office are seen with one of their pet projects — an impressive collection of duck wings. After being catalogued to determine age-sex ratios for waterfowl management purposes, the wings will be sent to the Ontario College of Agriculture at Guelph.

Ride into the New Year with that sure feeling

To have second thoughts after a major purchase is a very human trait. The joy of owning a Chevrolet is the good, secure, sure feeling that you made the right decision. The feeling starts the day you pick up your Chevrolet at your dealer's. It gleams and sparkles. That's because it has the durable Magic-Mirror finish. You'll be pleased at the way it rides. An improved suspension system isolates you from bumps and noise and it has a nice, firm, secure feel on curves. You'll like the way it handles. Improved steering lets you turn with up to 10 per cent less effort. And there are the extras . . . extra rustproofing, extra sou dproofing, extra fenders (four inner ones), extra attention to details like a ball bearing ash tray that glides instead of scrapes. Is it any wonder Chevrolets have a reputation for being worth more when you trade them in? It's all part of what happy Chevrolet owners call that Sure Feeling.

Liberals Swamp New PC Bid to Alter Transportation Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—The government made clear in the Commons Thursday it doesn't intend to lose any more votes on its bill to establish a national transportation policy.

An emergency party caucus heard harsh criticism for Liberal MPs who failed to show up in the Commons Wednesday, when the Conservatives succeeded by a single vote in defeating a section of the bill calling for a review within three years of the Crowsnest Pass grain rates.

Government members also were whisked away from one Commons committee to take their seats in the Commons. And a second committee was cancelled at government request for the same reason.

An immediate result was a resounding defeat for the Conservatives when they moved an amendment Thursday aimed at assuring the Atlantic provinces of special consideration in setting new rail rates.

The amendment was defeated 68 to 41.

Today the Commons ends almost two full weeks of close study of the bill which places land, sea and air transportation methods under an all-powerful Canadian transportation commission.

There are indications the study could take up the Commons' time for at least one other week.

J. Patrick Nowlan (PC—Digby-Annapolis-Kings) led the Conservative attempt to write some protection for Maritimes shippers into the legislation.

He said the bill lacked any protection for the Atlantic area after a two-year freeze on rates is lifted and the commission is empowered to make changes.

"It is rather an anomaly that the new transportation policy, which we all agree is proper and should be proceeded with, is being considered without regard to the interests of four of the 10 provinces," said Mr. Nowlan.

Tom Bell (PC—Saint John-Albert) said Maritime MPs had to make a stand after witnessing the victory by the West Wednesday. The amendment provided shippers could reach Canadian markets without being handicapped by distance.

Transport Minister Pickersgill said the Conservative amendment wasn't needed. The Maritime Freight Rates Act wasn't changed by the transport bill. A study of the transport problems in the East now was about completed. Before the two-year freeze was lifted, a government would have to come to Parliament with its solution of these problems.

The Liberals showed their voting strength later in the sitting by defeating by 50 to 33 a Social Credit amendment to eliminate a section of the bill dealing with captive shippers.

Under the bill, commission shippers can move goods only by rail may apply to the transportation commission for a change in rates if they feel dissatisfied with the one set by the railways.

H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) moved the amendment asking the section be wiped out because he said it was entirely inadequate. Despite support from Conservative and NDP members, the amendment was lost.

Conservatives then attacked the section on the grounds it didn't properly define captive shippers. They also said the bill forces shippers to prove they are captive whereas previous legislation put this onus on the railways.

L. R. (Bud) Sherman (PC—Winnipeg South) proposed to broaden the bill's discription of captive shippers. Mr. Pickersgill said the amendment was meaningless.

Debate on this issue is expected to go on all day today as Conservative MPs contend this is the heart of the bill and that it affects many shippers in both Eastern and Western Canada.

Lin Piao's Civil War Push May Wreck Mao's Machinery

HONG KONG (CP)—Peking watchers here today renewed speculation on the standing of China's Defence Minister Lin Piao, who is reported to have talked of civil war.

Lin, heir - apparent to Chairman Mao Tse-tung, was quoted by a Japanese correspondent based in Peking as saying "the entire country is now in a state of civil war."

The correspondent of the Tokyo Yomiuri said Lin's statement appeared without official confirmation in one of the thousands of wall bulletins that have turned Peking into a paper-and-ink city.

Reuters news agency reported the Peking wall newspaper as saying:

"Now is total civil war. We have to fight resolutely on the one hand, but on the other we should not use violence without good reason."

The defence minister, 59, has been in the forefront of the battle to oust President Liu Shao-chi and restore Mao to the position of state power he once held.

Dr. Lin Yutang, noted Chinese author and scholar, predicted in Manila that the current upheaval in China will leave Mao's regime a "wreck.

Arriving from Taipei, Formosa, for a visit, Lin Yutang told a press conference: "The worst is yet to come. By the time the purging of Communist leaders is completed, Mao's machinery will be a wreck and shaken to the bottom."

Whether there is a civil war in the classic sense, there could be no doubt that the vast Chinese mainland and its 720,000,000 people were in the grip of civil confusion.

Reuters correspondent Vergil Berger reported from Peking Friday that there was speculation about Lin's future following Red Guard attacks on one of the closest associates.

Today, arrivals from the south China city of Canton told the pro-nationalist Chinese-language Hong Kong Times that some wall newspapers there were demanding the overthrow of the defence minister.

They called him a bourgeois element and unworthy to succeed Mao.

Lin who suffers from ill health, has been out of the public eye since the last week of November, after appearing with Mao at a series of massed Red Guard rallies.

He was described as Mao's "closest comrade in arms" but last week's disclosure that there was still a group of anti-Mao dissidents among army commanders raised speculation in Peking about his position.

The speculation was heightened by the posting of scores of Red Guard posters Friday demanding the dismissal of his close associate Hsiao Hua, director of the army's general political department.

Mao's influential wife, Chiang Ching, was quoted in the posters as denouncing Hsiao, according to the Japanese Kyodo news agency.

Lin's reported statement on "total civil war" followed a widely - publicized editorial in the Shanghai newspaper Wen Hui Pao which said that "without an acute decisive battle, the bourgeois reactionary line will not easily be banished."

No Peace In Space —Lemay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired Gen. Curtis LeMay says he does not think the United States is "in space for a peaceful purpose."

"The Russians are not in space for peaceful purposes" either, he adds. "They have a program that is militarily-orientated. If we are going to keep peace in space we will have to have a police force out there."

LeMay said the United States is not ready to develop a weapons system in space "but we ought to learn as much as we can about it and, if weapons systems are needed there, be in a position to build the first and build the best ones first."

The former air force chief also called in a wide-ranging interview for a stepped up air and naval offensive in Vietnam. The U.S. has no choice but to win the war there "and win it quickly," he said.

He discounted chances of a negotiated settlement. " . . . Even if we did negotiate I don't think it would stop the war unless we completely give in . . ." he said.

In calling for military victory, LeMay added: ". . . To pull out of Vietnam now would mean that dozens of Vietnams would break out all over the world, immediately."

He said the U.S. should give North Vietnam a list of major targets it intends to destroy, and then proceed to destroy them one by one unless and until Hanoi ends its aid to guerrillas in South Vietnam.

"Let them determine how much damage they want to take," he said. "We could stop it at any time that they stopped their aggression in the South."

No End to Protest

Police Ring "Killer Ky"

Demonstrators Burn Effigy

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — About 3,000 chanting demonstrators today burned an effigy of South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky after he and his wife flew here from Brisbane.

The South Vietnamese leader, on a 10-day goodwill tour of Australia and New Zealand, was accorded a friendly and sometimes warm welcome when he drove from the airport to the city.

But at the government's official residence police armed with firehoses ringed roadblocks as demonstrators converged on the building which will accommodate the Kys during their stay here.

The demonstrators — some carrying North Vietnamese flags — exploded fireworks, shouted slogans and sang peace songs as they marched toward the barricades and mingled with 400 police.

A lifesize dummy of the 35-year-old Marshal Ky carrying the slogan "killer Ky" was set up on the sidewalk about 250 yards from the official residence and burned while the crowd sang "We shall have peace."

Earlier, about 250 persons gave the Premier and his wife an enthusiastic welcome when they flew into Sydney's Kingsford Smith Airport on the third leg of their Australian tour.

The demonstrators—many of them women — waited at the Sydney Harbor Bridge.

Police frustrated the demonstrators by halting the motorcade and transferring the South Vietnamese party to a launch which ferried them to the steps of the waterside official residence.

Drug Cargo Is Ready

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Quakers will ship a $30,000 drug cargo to North Vietnam next week, with or without financial help from U.S. Quakers, a spokesman said Friday.

David Newlands, general secretary of the Toronto-based Canadian Friends Service Committee, a Quaker organization, said a shipment of more than 40,000 capsules of antibiotics and antimalarial drugs will leave Montreal regardless of whether $3,000 pledged by the New York Yearly Meeting of Friends arrives.

He said in an interview the shipment will leave on the first Soviet ship arriving in Montreal and be transported to Hanoi.

A Bunch of Beagles Were Whooping It Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Believe it or not, a bunch of beagles were whooping it up in Philharmonic Hall Friday night — and the audience howled.

The 22 flop-eared pooches were there legitimately. They had short dramatic bits in the staging of The Hunting Symphony by Leopold Mozart, Wolfgang's father. It was one of the works in a program by the Festival Orchestra of New York.

To the accompaniment of horns, and led by humans in colorful hunting garb, the dogs' stint consisted of four trips across stage.

Their first trip was made with a concerted flourish — except for one beagle who dawdled behind the pack. He got a few laughs.

The subsequent trips became bedlam. The dogs ran in all directions. Some of them took a shine to the orchestra members, others leaped offstage into the audience. The orchestra continued to play, but the sound of music was lost in the uproar.

Things became peaceful during the symphony's dogless second and third movements.

Boat Tips, Fear Man Drowned

TRENTON — At least one man was feared drowned late this morning just moments before a last-minute rescue attempt after a boat believed containing three Toronto fishermen aboard capsized in fast-flowing open water of the Trent River.

The man — his identity immediately unknown — was reported to have let go the upturned craft in full view of police and firemen launching a last-minute rescue attempt.

A hastily-summoned helicopter from the air-search rescue unit at Canadian Forces Base Trenton arrived over the scene as the unknown fisherman went under.

A second man was rushed to Trenton Memorial Hospital after a passerby found him lying on the shore.

It was not definitely known how many men were aboard the boat, but in recent weeks a party of three Toronto men had been fishing on weekends.

Scene of the tragedy was near the water - control Number 1 dam at the north end of

More Bombs: Goldwater

PHOENIX, Ariz. AP — Former U.S. Senator Barry Goldwater said Friday the United States eventually may have to go into Laos and Cambodia to get at North Vietnamese troops taking refuge there.

Just back from a four-day trip to Vietnam, Goldwater said the U.S. should abolish any restrictions on military leaders in charge of the war. He advocated more pinpoint bombing, but expressed reservations toward saturation bombing.

About the air war and its effects, he said: "Let's face it. There's going to be some civilians hurt."

Students Seek Sukarno Life

JAKARTA (AP)—Nearly 2,000 students massed outside Indonesian Army headquarters today, accusing President Sukarno of being a Communist and shouting "death to Sukarno" and "hand over Sukarno."

The students chanted charges that Sukarno was involved in the Communist coup attempt of Oct. 1, 1965, and had a hand in the murder of six generals in the abortive revolt.

Diefenbaker Calls Camp Liar

MONTREAL (CP-Special)— The Progressive Conservative Party appears headed for another showdown between national leader John Diefenbaker and president Dalton Camp.

Yesterday, Diefenbaker said Camp is establishing an unequalled reputation for dishonesty.

Speaking to reporters after spending the day touring the Expo 67 site, Mr. Diefenbaker denied the president's recent allegations that there was a juggling of delegate voters to assure his election at the party's 1956 leadership convention.

Dalton Camp said in a television interview Thursday he knew of some convention delegates who lost their appointments after it became clear they were not Diefenbaker supporters.

Mr. Diefenbaker told reporters yesterday: "The man who said that has established for himself today a reputation for dishonesty unequalled since the champion falsehood teller of all time."

Before he could be asked the name of the champion falsehood teller of all time though, deputy fair commissioner Robert Shaw repeated again that there would be no political questions.

It appears the two men are in for yet another battle over the date of the Conservative leadership convention. Mr. Diefenbaker said yesterday: "I said I wanted it at the earliest possible moment. And I would like to have the air cleared within a couple of months."

Meanwhile, Mr. Camp said earlier this week he would prefer that the convention be held in the fall. He told the Westmount Conservative Association in Montreal it would probably take at least three months to arrange a national leadership convention.

What, A Swinging Montreal . . . In Daylight?

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal, accustomed to a nightlife which fairly swings, now has an action set who live it up during the daylight hours.

Most of the 217,000 students out of school for the last week because 9,000 Roman Catholic teachers are on strike seem to have abandoned their books and plunged into play.

The ski and toboggan slopes of Mount Royal are crowded with smiling faces and the city's 245 skating rinks fill up quickly when they open in the afternoon.

Cold weather early in the week cut down the crowds, but when temperatures moderated the lines on the free rope tow on the ski slope on Mount Royal lengthened again.

After the long bus ride to the top of the mountain, the members of the action set shake the afternoon away on Beaver Lake, which in summertime welcomes the aspiring members of the miniature yachting fraternity.

Twenty parks department indoor swimming pools admit students free from 1:30 to 5:00 p.m. but officials say students aren't swimming much.

Movie theatres have laid on extra matinees and report a brisk business with teen-age clientale.

Local television stations say they have not changed their afternoon programs and do not intend to alter their schedules to include educational material.

One branch of the YMCA has set up morning study sessions where students can find a quiet place to work eat lunch and take part in organized sports in the afternoon. But few students have bothered to attend.

Other students are working at home on lessons assigned by their teachers before the strike started Jan. 3.

Still others sleep in late and enjoy their freedom from classes. Police say there has not been any increase in vandalism or rowdyism.

One Montreal newspaper found the vacationers more frustrated than happy, with students from Grade 7 up worried about losing their year.

A youth agency official said students thought one week of holidays was fine, but when the possibility of extra hours of study on returning to school was mentioned, their enthusiasm dwindled.

Quebec Teachers' Strike Spreading

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec today was confronted with spreading teacher strikes in a conflict that one official warned could be protracted.

Talks went on in an effort to settle the biggest walkout, affecting 9,000 Roman Catholic teachers and 217,000 students in 500 Montreal schools.

But Raymond Laliberte, president of the 50,000-member Quebec Corporation of Catholic Teachers, said of disputes elsewhere that he was not optimistic.

He accused the Quebec government of exerting pressure on local school commissions which forced them to cut their salary offers.

Jean Lesage, leader of Quebec's opposition Liberal party, brought the school situation into the realm of political controversy Friday night, saying at Drummondville that the strikes resulted from failure by the Union Nationale government of the province to act in time.

Will Speak On Canadian Cultural Role

The senior performing arts officer with the Centennial Commission, Nicholas Goldschmidt, will be the speaker at the Canadian Club meeting this Monday evening at 8.15 p.m. in Sir Winston Churchill School.

Mr. "Niki" (as he is known) Goldschmidt is a well - known Canadian conductor and director of music and will speak on the topic "The Cultural Explosion In Canada" which should be most interesting to everyone especially in this, the Centennial year.

The speaker was born in Belgium 55 years ago and received his training in Europe. Since coming to Canada he has had a notable career in the performing arts in Canada and the United States. He was artistic and managing director of the Vancouver International Festival, and has conducted many world famous orchestras. From 1950 to 1957 he was the first music director of the Canadian Opera Company and was also Director of Music, Summer School of the Arts, University of British Columbia.

His role in the Centennial Commission is assisting that group in developing its cultural program, especially in the field of the performing arts.

Budding Young Mechanics Learn About Cars

Polishing up rebuilt car which was "written off" by insurance company are Bruce Williams and Alan Wilson. Car had extensive front end damage and was repaired by students at Moira Secondary School.

If there is a shortage of auto mechanics in the Quinte district it is through no fault of the Moira Secondary School at Belleville.

Here in the auto shop department, budding young auto mechanics learn all about car repairs and just what makes them tick.

They also learn about how to take the kinks out of bumped fenders and how to fix transmissions and differentials and restore smashed front ends.

An example of their handicraft is set up in the Moira Secondary School foyer this week for all to see and admire.

Some weeks ago the school auto shop instructor, Mr. Norman Storms acquired a Volkswagen which had been involved in a collision and was "written off" by the insurance company.

The car had "extensive" front end damage, the fenders and headlights were smashed and crumpled, the fame was bent and the steering mechanism was twisted.

That was before Mr. Storms' young mechanics went to work.

This week the car has been completely restored and is on show in the school main entrance hall for all to see.

Currently in the school auto shop are several other popular makes of cars and at least one sports model.

town and its immediate focus was on the attempt to rescue the man clinging to the boat.

"You could hear him hollering for help a quarter-mile away," said one bystander watching the hopeless efforts to rescue him.

A worker at the nearby town filtration plant said the man was "just hanging on for dear life."

The mishap was first spotted by a Trenton man Denis Dingre who saw the overturned boat and rushed to call police and firemen to the scene.

Dingre returned and later found a man on the riverbank.

He was rushed to hospital by police.

Officials at Trenton Memorial Hospital identified the man as Leslie Kira, of Toronto, and were keeping him under observation in the emergency ward.

Banquet, Social Evening Mark 100th Birthday of Curling Club

By C.D.T.

There have been many happy occasions since the Quinte Curling Club was formed out of the nucleus of the Belleville Curling Club, which has existed for 100 years along with the Confederation of Canada but the anniversary party and spiel that opened on Friday capped them all. Visiting curlers from all the Quinte district from many parts of the province and the United States were on hand to launch this club into its second century. The gathering was graced by the presence of the OCA members of his executive, curlers of bygone years and all the presidents since the club was formed in 1957.

The climax of the celebration was the banquet at the Sirene Club last evening. The cocktail hour was sponsored by the Corby Distillery through the kindness of the manager, "Mickey" McDonald and the sales representative for the district, Bill Ashes. The Quinte club of the club Mr. and Mrs. Len Martin provided a buffet supper sandwiched and Mr. Don Jones, representing his worship, Mayor Jack Ellis brought greetings from the municipality. Vice-chairman of the general committee, Bob Lanning, was a perfect master of ceremonies, while the president of the club, Fred Maund welcomed all Padre A. S. McCuaig said the invocation.

A birthday cake with one candle was presented to the president and a centennial pin, struck for the occasion and designed by Bill Riley was presented to the OCA president, who expressed his pleasure in being included in the party feats, using many in the audi- Bill Gault, a member of the execu- to help with the tricks. He was heartily applauded for the entertainment provided. The meeting then broke up in little groups to far into the night.

EARLY HISTORY RECOUNTED

Claude D. Tice, general chairman of the committee, told of the last half century of curlers in the city, recalling old names that brought fame to this community in this splendid pastime. He also told of the struggle to get the club started again and of the many fine persons who under trifle helped in this endeavor. Mr. Tice thanked all members of the Vand curling committee for efforts to make rinks from Picton, Brighton, Trenton, Forest Glen, Trenton, Oshawa, Sarnia, Brantford, Napanee, Deseronto and the local club. No excellent curling was witnessed and after scanning the board through three drums, only one rink scored a 13 end game. It would not be fair to single out any particular rink for praise or criticism.

The curlers were at it bright and early today and by night-fall the winners will be declared. Good luck said and another chapter in 100 years of curling in Belleville will have been written.

Rotary Club May Build Swimming Pool

NAPANEE — If and when Napanee gets a full time recreational director, he may find that a swimming pool will be available to work into his program. Rotary Club is seriously considering building one as its Centennial project. They learned more about what to do at the luncheon meeting Tuesday, when they were addressed by a general contractor who specialized in building swimming pools, Bruce Benson of Ottawa.

A basic, unheated pool would cost them between $15,000 and $20,000, they learned, with the cost mounting if the pool were heated or roofed. Mr. Benson explained plans followed by other communities which had built swimming pools and something about the way such pools are maintained.

Warden Sworn In at County Council Meet

-NAPANEE — Lennox and Addington's warden for Centennial year is the retiring reeve to hold that office in 91 years. He is the deputy-reeve of Ernestown, Harold William T. Brisco.

In his inaugural address the new warden broached the subject of more frequent meetings of the county council, possibly monthly, and asked the members to consider this. He referred to the present difficult situation in which the Napanee and District Collegiate Institute Board finds itself, and expressed the belief that this would not have happened had the council met more frequently.

A special meeting, called on the demand of the municipalities, was held November 1, and issued the debentures necessary to finance the building program. The contractor claimed breach of contract, since payment due him November 1 was not forthcoming until the following day, the building program stopped as far as he was concerned, but the Board has had certain pleas of law duly carried on under two separate contracts. It was forced to go to the County Council for an increase in its debenture issue.

In swearing in the new warden, Judge G. F. Smith used the attered Bible belonging to the court house, and pointed out that it was, in all probity, the one used in swearing in the first warden of the County 102 years ago. Also, he said, it was no doubt the same one used by Sir John A. Macdonald when he was entrusted issues in court here.—He practised law in Napanee and in Kingston.

Students Set Up Shop for Red Cross

Nothing succeeds like enterprise — if it's granted a little bit of luck.

And nothing exemplifies that more than the case of two Belleville public school students, anxious to do a good deed — in a business like fashion.

Stanley March and Wayne Warner have more in common than being 11 year olds in grade six at Sir Winston Churchill School.

Their school has a Red Cross donation fund as a continuous project and recently both youngsters decided to do something for it.

As the teachers explain it, they put their heads together and came up with an idea to put the fund really on its feet.

Their idea? To set up a stall and sell refreshments one day after their ex - students were skating on the school's outdoor ice rink.

With their own money they purchased hot chocolate powder and hot dog buns. That exhausted their $1.50 capital.

Then they went to see a local butcher, who entered in the scheme of things by donating them hot dogs.

Yesterday, after Wayne's mother braized up the chocolate and hot dogs at the market, Warner home, the boys crossed the street to the campus and set up shop.

The result around the rink was a landslide of business.

About 25 minutes and several hot chocolate - refilling jobs later their stocks were exhausted — despite the fact more for more from fellow students.

The duo sold at 15 cents and the chocolate proved a ten cent item.

"We made $9 clear profit!" said Wayne in his first business report.

"And we're thinking about doing it again in February."

Ottawa at A Glance

FRIDAY, Jan. 20, 1967

The Commons put on a burst of speed and passed some 40 clauses of the 94 clause transport bill on the 11th day of committee study.

One opposition amendment was accepted on the bill, which sets up a powerful transportation commission, and several others were defeated.

Trade Minister Winters denied U.S. authorities had directed Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. drug firms not to sell drugs for North Vietnam.

He said Canada doesn't let U.S. authorities forget that U.S. - owned companies here should abide by Canadian, not American, law.

Mr. Winters also announced the names of 32 executives who will serve on his new Export Advisory Council.

The government reaffirmed its support for the plan of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. to build an East-West line partly through the U.S.

Farmers Ready to Make Use of ARDA Grants

The year 1967 is going to be a busy one down on the farm and also for members of the newly appointed Hastings County Council ARDA committee.

Hastings agricultural representative Douglas Tipper told county council Thursday that 1966 was a year of growing development, both in interest and actions with the county setting up an ARDA standing committee as well as a county advisory committee.

Recent meetings with farm groups indicated these people will be interested in possible programs and county appointed groups could expect a fair number of requests to be presented to them this year.

Under the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act government subsidies and grants are available to help offset capital costs for many rural area projects which could help boost the economy).

Mr. Tipper said that possibly the most effective policy which Hastings had in hand last year was the establishment of a program of field enlargement through fence removal.

Other areas of interest and proposals that have been made include farm enlargement, and land renovation.

To this could be added proposals for farm drainage under which grants of up to two thirds of the cost are available.

Mr. Tipper said that ARDA is also responsible for a share in the "Program 5" agricultural course being given at Quinte Secondary School in Belleville which 69 county farmers are attending.

Mr. Tipper gave a full report on last year's Junior Farmer and 4-H club activities in the county and outlined the programs planned for Centennial Year.

"At the end of the year, like all good business, we have to take stock to make plans for the year ahead," he said.

"At the beginning of Centennial Year it is most important that we do these things in an efficient manner because it is not just another year, but is the beginning of the second century of Canadian life." The

Tyendinaga Township May Extend Office Hours

TYENDINAGA — At the inaugural 1967 meeting of Tyendinaga Township Council, Reeve Delbert Harvey, Deputy-Reeve Carman Gibson, and councillors Leonard Walsh, William Cooney, and Bernard O'Sullivan took the oath of office before clerk William Walsh.

Proposals outlined by Reeve Harvey for the coming year included road improvements, re-examination of the township building bylaw, appointment of a part time assistant to the clerk-treasurer, and extension of office hours for the township office.

Department of lands and forests spokesmen attended the meeting to discuss the township's request for authority to license hunters in an attempt to control indiscriminate hunting and private property damage.

After giving the matter further consideration, it was decided that action in such instances should be initiated by property owners themselves.

A bylaw was passed authorizing the borrowing of up to $140,000.

Council took no immediate action on a petition requesting that the road from Black's schoolhouse to the Consecon Sideroad be snowplowed.

The calling of tenders was authorized for a new truck with plow attachments as was a submission to the department of highways requesting subsidy on 1966 road expenditures of $77,437.13.

The following were named township officers for 1967: Community Hall board — Bernard O'Sullivan, Carman Gibson, Charles Long, Gerald Walsh, Mrs. Kenneth Anson, Mrs. Ben McLaren and Mrs. Arthur English.

Recreation committee — Delbert Harvey, Leonard Walsh, Mrs. Bernard O'Sullivan, Mr. Grant Kingsbury, Mrs. Kenneth McMechan, Mrs. Delmer Broad gate, Mrs. Adrian Callaghan and Mrs. Orley Glass.

Emergency measures committee — William Cooney, Carman Gibson, and Leonard Walsh.

Plumbing inspector — Harold Sherman Beardsley. Labour — Franklin Larkin; school attendance officer — Mrs. Arthur English; weed inspector — Vincent Kennelly; dogcatcher — Cliff Bonaze.

Appointments to the Moira River Conservation Authority — Leslie McLaren; to the Napanee Region Conservation Authority — Roy Stafford; and to the Hastings County Historical Society — Mrs. John English.

Council also appointed fence viewers and poundkeepers for each concession.

Mr. Tipper introduced two of his staff members, fieldman Larry Bertrand of Marmora, and Wayne Martin, new assistant agricultural representative for the county.

Also introduced was Mr. W. J. Herman, rural development officer for ARDA who works in the counties of Hastings, Renfrew, Lennox and Addington and Renfrew.

Mr. Herman outlined the various rural projects which might expect assistance under the ARDA program.

He said that a four-month boil course aimed at upgrading the academic education of farmers' wives has been held at Palmer's Rapids. The average education level in the district was grade IV and the attempt would be to increase this Grade VIII level.

Also discussed was a session from Wollaston Reeve William O'Brien regarding the ARDA program with respect to farm enlargement. Mr. Herman said this was a program under which farmers were given financial assistance to enlarge their farms and thus acquire a more economic unit.

Mr. Tipper said that the extra step in acquiring additional land for an economic unit could be a real problem for a young man starting out farming. Purchase of the necessary mechanical equipment and the land itself without going heavily into debt was almost impossible without ARDA assistance, he said.

Other possible ARDA programs currently under discussion in the county are the possible formation of a cooperative in the north end of the county, and a maple syrup co-operative in the south, including the Bay of Quinte district.

Bates Heads Committee

TYENDINAGA — Charlie Bates has appointed chairman of the Tyendinaga Centennial Committee at that body's organizational meeting.

In his remarks as committee chairman Mr. Bates welcomed the contribution of efforts and suggestions from everyone in the township.

Also on the agenda were the appointment of a committee to study ways and means of raising funds for Centennial activities and of a group to organize a winter program.

City Woman Thrown From Car and Run Over

A Belleville woman was killed instantly Friday afternoon when she was run over by the car from which she had been thrown moments earlier.

Mrs. Agnes C. Bruyea, 56, of 57 Church St. was a passenger in a car driven by Mrs. Jane Gustar of Downview when it went out of control on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway, about three miles east of Newcastle.

Provincial police from Bowmanville said the car spun around and Mrs. Bruyea's door flew open.

Mrs. Bruyea was born in Point Anne, and had lived in the Belleville area all her life.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hebert, she was a member of St. Michael's Church and belonged to the Catholic Women's League.

She is immediately survived by her husband, Arthur Robert Bruyea, two sons and four daughters — Dennis and Gordon Bruyea, both of Belleville; Nancy and Vennie and Mrs. Larry (Betty) Brant, of Belleville and Mrs. Ted (Beverley) Kornblum, of Willowdale.

Also surviving are a brother, Lyle Hebert, Algonquin, Ont., and three sisters — Mrs. Alfred (Irene) Terry, Toronto; Mrs. Jack (Mary) Nigh, Richmond Hill, and Mrs. Cecilia Horn, Toronto.

Mrs. Bruyea is resting at the O'Brien - Rutledge Funeral Residence and the funeral will take place Monday in Belleville.

Realtors Discuss Projects

Possible Centennial Year projects were the topic of discussion at the January meeting of the Belleville and District Real Estate Board this week.

The meeting re-elected Ed. McKinney as president for another year. James Fox is the past president. Vice-chairman is Bev Foster and secretary Ted Saunders. Executive members are Gerald Joyce, Douglas Grant and Frank S. Follwell.

Among the possible Centennial Year projects discussed were the erection of a Welcome to Belleville archway over No. 401 during the year the 401 overpass, provision of a Centennial Year flame for Centennial Park, and provision of a scholarship for some worthy local student. No final decision was made.

Another topic of discussion at the meeting was the advantages of multiple listing services which is gaining rapidly in popularity across Canada.

Pensioners Plan Safety Program

The prevention of accidents will be the Centennial project of the Belleville chapter of the CN Pensioners' Association.

A chapter spokesman said this week that the novel approach to Canada's birthday had been approved by the national manager of the CN Pension and Welfare Plans, Dept.

The local executive's objective in the coming year will be "to be active in any way possible, at any place, in an attempt to draw attention to conditions which might conceivably cause accidents."

There are now some 500 CN Pensioners in the Quinte area.

ANNUAL MEETING

Belleville Agricultural Society

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 25th

8 P.M.

CITY HALL

CITY OF BELLEVILLE

PROCLAMATION

"Y.M.C.A. WEEK"

JANUARY 22 TO 29, 1967

This is National Y.M.C.A. Week. This week, millions of Canadians and Americans affiliated with more than 1,900 Y.M.C.A.'s throughout North America are celebrating a worthy cause.

Since its founding in 1841, the Y.M.C.A. has been a pioneer in the cause of brotherhood and development of our Youth — the spirit and mind and Youth as well as physical well being. The "Y" has become a unique and vital part of virtually every North American community, including our own.

In Belleville, the "Y" has served our Youth since 1893. For seventy-seven years, it has done its job well. There is hardly a person in this City who has not at some time or another used its facilities and benefited by it.

During this observance of National Y.M.C.A. Week, I am sure that all of us will join in paying tribute to the Belleville "Y" for its many contributions to our community, and wish it continued success in its urgently needed endeavours.

By virtue of the authority invested in me, as Mayor of the City of Belleville, I, John R. Ellis, call upon all citizens to assist in the observation of Y.M.C.A. Week in Belleville.

J. R. ELLIS,
MAYOR.

Dated at the Mayor's Office this 20th day of January, 1967.

County Projects

With the award of the contract for the 110-bed county home for the aged at Bancroft, the first step has been taken in what promises to be a busy period of development in the spheres of social welfare and education in the Quinte area.

The establishment of a Quinte district campus of a technical-arts college serving this area seems all but assured, with the approval of the principle of a split campus (the other campus will serve the Peterborough area). In addition, Hastings County Council has been discussing the possibility of a county-wide system of welfare administration and regional planning generally. All this is indicative of progress in several directions.

County Council is proceeding cautiously on the possibility of altering existing policies of administration. This is a wise course. These are matters to be discussed thoroughly, and while the tendency does be in the direction of centralization of administration any decision must await a thorough appraisal of the situation in this area.

The same goes for integrated school areas which is another subject engaging the attention of the public these days.

An interesting aspect of the design of the county home at Bancroft is that it will have accommodation for the county health and Children's Aid Society offices. This is a good example of the advantages of having the administration of related fields in county affairs under the same roof, and should serve as a guide to future planning on a county or regional basis.

Stress and All That

Stress, said noted heart specialist Dr. Paul Dudley White in Toronto the other day is "not important."

Well, it is important enough that it kills some people by imposing too much pressure on heart and nerves. Yet fundamentally the U.S. expert is correct.

He qualified his remark thus: "I've come to this conclusion — that stress is life and you had better enjoy it. Man cannot live without it. Mixed with hard work, it never hurt a healthy person."

Dr. White is a great believer in physical exercise for maintaining physical and mental tone. At the age of 80 or so he still rides a bicycle in preference to riding around by car.

Veteran Canadian jurist Ivan Rand is another in the same tradition. He keeps out of doors as much as possible, does not smoke and drinks only an occasional sherry.

Currently conducting a one-man Royal Commission into the causes of labor disputes, Justice Rand (he is 82) also tries to follow his own advice about not worrying. However, he finds this more difficult — and for this reason: "I find I cannot get rid of close relationships. But you cease to be human if those sentiments are rooted out of your system."

How true! Fear, anxiety, worry, tension, are all necessary to the proper functioning of human intellect. And that other elusive thing called happiness is merely incidental, many things to many people, and something to be enjoyed in whatever form it comes.

As for stress, well it is as Dr. White says, — you had better "enjoy it." And that too could make you happy.

The Things They Say

As Art Linkletter said, "Kids say the Darndest Things."

During the recent ceremonies in Kingston five public school children in different parts of the city were asked the question: "Who was Sir John A. Macdonald?"

They answered as follows: "An old guy who died years ago, but still has a birthday."

"Canada's first prime minister and a man my Daddy said he'd never vote for."

"I don't know him — a knight maybe. Like the guy who killed a dragon?"

"The nation's Mr. President."

"A carpenter who pounded together my country."

The youngsters who came out with these gems were aged six to nine years. And out in Vancouver there are some Grade two kiddies of about the same age who could have had similar quotable misinformation about Sir John were it not for the fact that their teacher, Diane Goodbrand, marked the anniversary of his birthday with a special study of Canada's leaders over the past 100 years.

Miss Goodbrand had amassed a collection of full-size portraits of this country's leaders from Sir John Macdonald's time to the present, including Prime Minister Pearson.

In this way her young charges left class with as clear a picture as any of the basic facts of Canada's history. Still, it would be a sorry day if children ever lost their faculty of imagination, and the ability to waft an answer from thin air, accurate or not, like those youngsters in Kingston.

Noisy Cabinet "Swingers" Shade Fuddy-Duddy "Doers"

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Maybe it is just another sign of these switched-on times, but have you noticed how the Cabinet's "Swingers," as they like to be known, are monopolizing the Front Page and TV-radio's Prime Time — while the real Movers and Shakers of this amazing Ministry go quietly about their business, getting done the things that count?

We've got "Judy Baby," as the "With-It Set" knows her.

And with her, the greatest political comeback artist of this jazzed-up era of the "New Politics," the astonishingly indestructible —"Wally," as she publicly calls him.

Judy Baby, of course, is the Honorable Julia Verlyn Lea Marsh, formally known as the Secretary of State, but more realistically regarded as Queen of Culture and Commissar of the new, aggressive young "Grit Guard."

And Wally, as everybody knows, is the swinging Moses of Liberalism, the Honorable Walter Lockhart Gordon, in from the wilderness of the Backbench as a free - ranging Minister Without Portfolio.

LaJudy at 42 and Wally at 60, the self-proclaimed leaders of the rocking Liberal Left, are dedicated to the proposition that the referenda of the Cabinet may be cured only by a massive shot of what the Swingers describe as "young dynamism," which is just a fancy "in-crowd" label for Sophisticated Socialism.

All others outside this magic circle of political free - thinkers, the Swinging Set has been heard to describe as Nonentities of Fuddy Duddyism.

The catch in this kind of "Swing-Thing" is that perhaps they haven't heard of some of the really important things the Fuddy-Duddies have done.

Such Fuddy-Duddies, for instance, as Transport Minister Pickersgill who, in 30 years on Parliament Hill, the last 14 of them an MP and eight of these a Cabinet Minister, has probably forgotten more than Judy Baby and Wally together have learned in their three ministerial years.

For Pick has been credited with the greatest gimmick of them all — the supposedly painless tax system known by National Revenue as "Deducting at the Source."

The process of taking the tax out of your pay before you ever see it soothes the anguish which National Revenue officials cheerfully concede, would be so absolutely unbearable if, at those vicious times, you had to cough it all up in one agonizing payment, you probably wouldn't stand still for the future.

John Whitney Pickersgill was given the credit for thinking it up by no less an authority than Fraser Elliott, then Deputy Minister of National Revenue for Taxation, not long after it was tried out for size in 1942 and found to fit.

With understandable modesty, Pick has declined credit, but Fraser Elliott never hesitated to accord him public thanks for having made administrative life in the Taxation Division of National Revenue as much easier than it surely would have been without those it — Won't - Hurt-A-Bit deductions at the source.

Pick in '62, when National Revenue began clipping pay cheques before they ever reached the taxpayers, was a key man on Prime Minister Mackenzie King's staff.

Mr. Justice James L. Ilsley was Finance Minister and Colin Gibson was Revenue Minister, but Fraser Elliott, even then, insisted that the tax suggestion had been Pick's. The latter — as came from Prime Minister King's office where John W. Pickersgill was Treasury Board's own particular brand of Efficiency Expert.

Four or five years later, still a power to the Prime Minister's office—he served both Mr. King and Louis St. Laurent from '37 to '52 — he was given credit, too, for thinking up Family Allowances, or the Baby Bonus, as it was initially known.

And this Pickersgill, very understandably, he hasn't been in such a hurry to decline.

For it was the "Baby Bonus" the Liberals thanked for bringing them back from their 1945 election ebb of 125 seats to their '49 resurgence of 190 MPs.

And conversely, the Conservatives blamed the "Bonus" for their slump from a modest 67 seats in the 1945 election to 41 seats — and two more than they held in the worst days of the Depression.

What is the way things generally stood until Conservative Leader Diefenbaker came a long eight years later his own brief wonders to perform.

Maybe if the Swingers of the new young "Grit Guard" slowed down long enough to read their Party record, they would realize that what they really could do with is less "Switching On" by Judy Baby and Wally, and more of the Fuddy-Duddyism of Pick's Wunderpolitick.

Bar Brawls Too Common

Hamilton Spectator

So many people are being killed or wounded in tavern and street brawls by switch-blade and other types of easy-to-conceal knives that it must have occurred to the police to make routine searches of citizens as a possible precaution.

Police can stop cars, many of which are owned and operated by automobile and sporting citizens, in order to see if they are roadworthy.

There will be those who will cry out that to search a person without a warrant or a very good reason is to invade the person's sacred privacy. But a flashing knife more seriously invades another person's privacy, and that obvious fact alone should convince most of us defenders of freedom that in certain situations, the police should have the power to search, without question, anyone.

Tax Boost And Prices

Regina Leader-Post

Finance Minister Sharp expressed confidence the new year will see a levelling off of rising prices, as an indication inflationary influences are being contained. Recent price rises, unfortunately, are due to the increase by one per cent in the federal sales tax certainly are no helping this levelling-off process. They do provide concrete evidence that higher taxation is a strong factor in rising prices, and the increase in inflationary tendencies.

As long as all governments spend as freely as they have been, and continue to increase taxes, there can be little hope of the achievement of real price stability.

To Your Good Health

Advice for 13-Year-Old On Drying of Dishes

Dear Dr. Molner: Putting away some old newspapers I saw in your column about dish drying. Mrs. Marsh argued the way a friend did dishes in a dirty sink with soapy rinse water.

You said grease and food particles can decay and provide a breeding place for germs, and also said it was best to use the running water to rinse dishes and let them drain dry.

I showed the article to my mother. She said if sinks were clean and dish towels clean and dry, it would be all right. I disagreed. She said write to you and find out.

I am 13 and usually do the dishes and I have to dry them and put them away. I hate teasing my mother. Please, dear, write to me. — D. B.

A sink, if it is truly clean, is as good as any other form of "do-spot", but sinks aren't always clean. If they have a film of grease, they aren't clean. No argument there.

Now about drying: This has been tested repeatedly in scientific experiments, and dishes that drain dry after rinsing in very hot water have fewer bacteria than dishes dried with a towel.

Into each life some rain — and dish-washing — must fall. Get used to the idea.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 18 and shave under my arms. Then I noticed little lumps on the inside of the skin. I can "lift" them with my finger. They seem to come whether I shave or not. I also changed deodorant but that doesn't help. Could it be my lymph glands are infected or cancerous or what? — E. C. H.

The normal lymph glands resemble either infected lymph glands or cancer, but the description does suggest infection of small hair follicles, which act much like a pimple and can be sore.

Shaving and deodorants can be factors, but my suggestion would be to try using an antiseptic soap. The skin in that area as well as others harbors germs which in some people are more readily take root around the hair follicles.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a girl 15, who studies late at night. I usually get so sleepy I have to go to bed before I finish my homework. Would it be all right to take stay-awake pills? Would five times a week be too much? — L. S.

What you suggest is an invitation to chronic "nerves" jitters, insomnia and sometimes a nervous cracko. These pep-up awake pills don't give you added energy. They just turn loose some of your reserve. When the reserve is gone, you reap trouble. Your solution is to do your homework earlier in the evening.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a boy of 16 who finds signs of blood on toilet-paper. Occasionally I have stomach cramps. Does that have anything to do with the bleeding? Is the bleeding serious? — N. J.

I doubt that the bleeding is serious; it could be a fissure, or a crack in the membrane or anus. I would by all means tell my doctor about it, because it probably can be corrected rather easily now. If it enlarges, or becomes infected, you might have a stubborn problem.

The stomach cramps probably have nothing to do with it. Bleeding in the stomach or anus where high in the intestinal tract would not result in red blood. The blood would turn black by the time it appeared.

Archaic System

Victoria Daily Times

The present archaic system of industrial agreement through arbitration is just not good enough in a world that is making astonishing strides forward in almost every other field of human endeavor. In the closely knit economy of our increasingly crowded 20th century world, it is society as a whole that suffers most from the strikes. Eventually society as a whole will have to devise and establish a workable alternative.

Conquest of Inner Space

Here are some thoughts for Centennial Year as viewed in verse by Canon R. B. DeBlois Wright of Christ Church, Anglican.

In a preface to the poem, entitled "The Conquest of Inner Space," Canon Wright notes: "In an age when we are reaching for the stars and coming very close to touching them we are still faced with many problems on earth.

"Every good wish for 1967, and may you continue to make the contribution to the improvement of your corner of the world that you have in 1966."

* * *

By Canon R. H. Wright

Man has fought with spear and sword
In service to an earthly lord;
Has crossed the sea and spanned the globe
But still is wrapped in an earthly robe.

The men today of the human race
In a mad rush have entered space;
To orbit earth and reach the stars
To plot the course of the planet Mars.

But the hardest task is left us still
The gaps in man that we must fill.
To probe the depths of the human mind
And find the areas where he is blind.

So men of science and men of law
Within ourselves there is a flaw;
We may not be just all we seem
And only God can us redeem.

The hands that raised the dead to life
That calmed the troubled seas of strife,
Are close at hand in the love of space
And always ready to bless our race.

He promises us a home above
If all our acts are done in love;
The crowds of fame and power and lust
Will be by Him then turned to dust.

So let's explore that inner space
That darkest corner behind our face;
And chart therein a course that's true
And give to God the honor due.

Immigrants Still Come

Montreal Gazette

The final figure for the number of immigrants entering Canada in 1966 will be close to 195,000, according to reports from Ottawa this week. The fact that the figure is the eighth highest annual total of immigrants in the country's history is something to reflect on.

Six of the highest annual immigration years came before the First World War. The surge of the late 1800's and early 1900's — 1913 was the highest year, with 401,000 immigrants — could be attributed to enthusiasm for the land.

The two other good years were 1951 when 194,391 persons entered and 1957 when the number rose to 282,164. In 1951 Europe was still in a state of economic and political instability after the Second World War and the 1957 total can be attributed to a combination of the Hungarian rebellion and the Suez crisis.

But what is the explanation for 1966? Europe is both economically and politically stable, relative to other years of big immigration.

It seems the lure of this country is as strong as ever, despite the doubts Canadians continually express about themselves and their country.

The country is attractive, in spite of ourselves.

Lines on Life

Machine Must Be Ruled

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Kill the villain.

A great deal of writing on the subject of modern man is irrelevant because it insists on seeking, finding and killing the villain of the piece. What's wrong with modern life? ask these writers. We'll tell you, they glibly answer: It's modern! Things, they always seem to say, always used to be much better.

Some time ago, a learned professor of archaeology was discussing with a friend a new article he was then writing. The conversation took place in his air - conditioned study. Behind him was a high-fidelity phonograph and record-library that could bring him the choicest music of the last three hundred years, within moments, merely by the flick of a switch. On his desk was a microfilm of an ancient Egyptian papyrus that he had easily obtained by a routine request through the large library-service of his university. He was describing with great excitement a quick trip he had just taken to London, Paris and Cairo in order to confer with several of his colleagues on recent archaeological discoveries. And then, he went on to tell his visiting friend the theme of the article he was now working on. It was: "The Undiluted Evils of Modern Technology and Large-Scale Organizations."

Of course, the modern world has produced many grounds for complaint. But it has also produced the man doing the complaining. And what kind of man is he, after all? He's a modern man — who enjoys more freedom than his ancestors could possibly have dreamed of. Yet, since he's a modern man he also expects more than any of his ancestors could possibly have expected.

To be sure, modern technology does tend to make life more and more impersonal, and the large-sized organizations of modern society often do reduce our individuality. But, in many ways, these "villains" also continue to enlarge our possibilities as individuals. Perhaps, like that professor, while being served in rather spectacular ways by our "villains," we are still intent on complaining that we suffer only because of them.

Many college students will complain that the modern university is nothing more than a huge factory — a confusingly-large multiversity, run on integrating, co - ordinating university. They are forgetting, however, that the great urban universities do place within the reach of millions what once was available to the chosen few. They do offer academic possibilities to children of low-income workers; things that in preceding ages were open only to the aristocratic, upper classes.

The villain of modern life is not modernity, nor the institutions modern technology and big-city life have spawned. This is too facile. We cannot return to a simpler world. We must live where we are—here and now.

The Big Machine can rule man. But it also can serve him. The trick is not to make believe that we can live without the Big Machine — we can not. We must learn to live with it — but learn, somehow, to rule over it.

A Lift for Living

'Digging Deeper' Is Key To Mining Life's Riches

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Some people are forever on the trail of something better but never seem to catch up with it. They are dissatisfied with what they are and where they are, but the better life they seek somehow eludes them. Why is this so?

The reason is that something finer does not always lie farther on, in a horizontal direction, but deeper, in a vertical direction. Roy Cullen, the late Texas oil magnate, made many of his multiple millions in the Rabb's Ridge oil fields near Houston. Cullen's wells proceeded so extravagantly that he was able to set up a number of foundations for the support of charitable and educational enterprises.

What was the secret of Roy Cullen's success and wealth? He disclosed that he took oil wells others had given up as dry and drilled them deeper.

One of the primary principles of effective living is that of digging deeper for life's riches. This is especially true of marriage. Too many people look with wild imagination at someone else's spouse, forcefully supposing it would be much easier to find happiness if married to that attractive person, instead of digging more deeply into the marriage they already have. If your own marriage seems to have gone dry, use your imagination, exploring it at depth.

For one thing, a marriage offers excellent opportunities for spiritual growth, especially if there are problems of personality adjustment in the relationship. A good marriage not only demands sound character to begin with, but growth of character. One of the glories of marriage is that it demands improvement in the partners. Many a married person has testified that a difficult marriage has developed, ripened and ennobled his nature. Such a relationship places two people in the position where each must learn to exercise self-control if the union is to be tolerable, let alone happy. If they are lacking in self-discipline on the day of their wedding, they must grow into it. Particularly, each must discipline natural desires to equit the marriage, if each is to mature, for suddenly quitting "the game" is an infantile reaction.

Someone has said that "a wedding ring is like a tourniquet; it stops your circulation." You no longer are looking for the right partner, searching for ways to please the person you have married. Moreover, the happiest husband or wife is not the one who marries the best mate, but rather the one who makes the best of the mate he or she has married.

The late Dr. Alfred Kinsey of the famed "Kinsey Report" said that an examination of 6000 marital histories and nearly 3,000 divorces succeeded in that there may be nothing more significant in a marriage than the simple determination that the marriage will last.

One of the chief blessings of marriage is that it is meant to last long. Temporary human relationships demand an ever deepening of our natures. If we refuse to let the relationship between ourselves and our greater milkman, plumber, electrician, lawyer or janitor, we can readily break it, without very disastrous consequences. But if we do not like a married partner, our distaste-faction demands changes in us and in our mate.

A marriage demands holding the tongue, refusing to say the thing that humiliates and brutalizes, that breaks a willingness to settle for less than perfection in the partner, seeking the partner's needs and pleasures when it would be easier to satisfy our own.

In marriage, if is likely that every day there will be duties that must be performed, agreements made and promises chosen whether we like them or not. We will be called upon to do the best, which will bring into view virtues we never knew we had.

Thank God for the necessities marriage imposes to be better than we otherwise could be.

Thank God that no matter how deeply we dig into the mystery-filled experience of marital oneness, there are always more riches awaiting us at a still more profound level.

Thank God that most of life's good things are not as easily available as pebbles on a beach, but are like the precious ores and oils that lie at great depths and demand the adventure of digging.

FORT CHURCHILL

"In June there's daylight all night; 'tis never really dark. In December, we breakfast with the stars." — Kay Manderville.

* * *

"I recall the two years we lived in Fort Churchill with pleasure," says Mrs. E. A. (Kay) Manderville, speaking of this experience when her husband served part of his military training in Fort Churchill as a doctor.

"We were not away once during the whole time. While it is completely isolated (except for a five mile road to Churchill), yet this roadless, trackless area always had something unusual, something exciting happening; — such as gorgeous, big white polar bears prowling about the back yard, as seen from one's kitchen in the fall or spring.

"This the polar bear would do if he found the Base's garbage dump a mile away, too barren.

"Because this Arctic animal cannot be trusted, the military police gave inhabitants every protection since only Indians and Eskimos are permitted to kill them. From the latter, white Polar-bear-skin rugs might be obtained for around $90 as compared to $300 or $400 in cities like Edmonton or Winnipeg.

"However, except for the bear, wolf and elk, wild animals and snakes are practically non-existent beyond the tree - line (where we were), and one could picnic with complete safety on the rock strewn shore of Hudson Bay which was a popular outing in summer, when the tundra was green with mosses, algae and lichens and profusely carpeted with a variety of colorful small flowers. "Here and there a sparse spruce might be seen, so wind-blown its branches grew only on one side. Yet such birds as the Canada goose, partridge and ptarmigan are most plentiful and offer splendid game hunting for the men. There is fine fishing too and the Arctic char is considered a choice delicacy.

"But gardens and grass are unheard of, so this is the view over the granite base, though I knew of one woman who successfully grew pansies! "Then there is the breathless, matchless beauty on winter evenings of the northern lights which surrounded the base with a setting of indescribable loveliness and color. In fact, there is a Northern Defense Research Laboratory where research on the Aurora Borealis is carried on.

"Of course, summer is the highlight of the year, when the snow and ice melts and temperatures rise to 60 degrees above zero. "Nor do the girls forego their summer tan, for it suits them as mid-May with snowbanks everywhere, in some sunny sheltered spot in the backyard, they sun themselves in swimming suits. The results are beautiful shades of tan.

"But oh, how short in duration the summer is! From June 15 to August 15 really and by September (often most colorful), winds are high and after pouring rain it begins to snow and freeze.

"When coming to Fort Churchill on the train, I remember looking out of the window of our sleeping compartment. It was two o'clock in the morning and light. The train had stopped there on the platform at a tiny station with no other sign of human habitation in sight for miles and miles of wilderness, an Indian woman stood with her baby and greeted her husband who had alighted.

"Then they stood together and waved as the train pulled away and until it was out of sight. I have never forgotten that simple scene or the impact of an overwhelming sense of loneliness it conveyed.

"Another time, in September, the view of sparkling waters of the Hudson Bay from our kitchen window was blurred by swift falling snow. The next morning the Bay was completely frozen over for as far as the eye could see from east solitude. It was like being suspended in a kind of white realm of isolation. Mr. Bridge Street West, of the death Of Silver anxiety along; a reality, which was forever far from civilization a dream."

Editorial

Critical of Tax Laws

OTTAWA (CP) — Working wives don't get fair treatment under Canada's income tax laws, says an editorial in Canadian Nurse magazine.

Editor Virginia Lindbaury says in the article that present taxation policies are "discriminatory" towards married women with jobs. The tax structure "is geared to a Victorian society" where men worked and their wives stayed home.

Women make up about 30 per cent of the Canadian labor force and half the married work are married, says the editorial, quoting Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures.

These married women now can earn only $250 before deductions are made from the taxable income of their husbands. The article suggests $950 as a more realistic amount. This figure has been put forward by several national women's groups.

The working mother should be allowed to deduct housekeeper's wages as a business expense, the editorial says. Although the Income Tax Act does not recognize a woman who has a housekeeper as an employer, the Canada Pension Act does, and requires her to contribute to the housekeeper's retirement plan.

Women's Institute

IVANHOE W.I.

IVANHOE — A paper given by Mrs. Will French, dealing with the history of the W.I., highlighted the Ivanhoe Women's Institute meeting held recently at the home of Mrs. Reg. Haggerty.

The president Mrs. Russell Sills opened the meeting when 13 members were present. During the business portion a discussion was led concerning a bus trip to Expo '67 in Montreal. It was also decided to purchase new song sheets and that a news letter be sent to every woman in the community.

During the program, Mrs. Barton Haggerty dealt with the Institute motto, and Mrs. French followed by giving the history of the Institute which was first organized in 1910. A paper was read by Mrs. Jean Saries dealing with some of the highlights in the life of Sir John A. Macdonald; also one in reference to Expo. Current events were given by Miss Edna Tanner after which lunch was served by the hostess.

CAN BUY FOR NOTHING

OLIVER, Alta. (CP) — Volunteers of the Canadian Mental Health Association organized their eighth shopping fair for mental hospital patients without funds at this community near Edmonton. Each may select Christmas gifts totalling up to $10 for friends and relatives.

Education at Time of Confederation Not Intended to Cheer Anyone Up

BY JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

Whatever else it was meant to accomplish, education around the time of Confederation was not apparently intended to cheer anyone up.

A second reader in the Canadian Series of School Books, published in 1867, has a story about two days—Snap and Tray. Tray was a good dog but Snap was mean and because of his nasty behavior toward a pack of other dogs both he and Tray were driven to bits by them.

Moral: "We should not go with bad boys or girls less we share their fate."

The reader also has a poem that goes:

"O say what is this thing called light

"Which I must never enjoy?
"What are the blessings of the sight?
"O tell your poor blind boy."

Another verse concerns an English orphan boy whose father was killed in action and his mother dropped dead of shock. The boy explains his plight to a lady hoardist who, on hearing his woe to work hard and be a credit to the memory of his brave soldier-father, agrees to help him.

The book is in a collection in the reference library at the Ontario College of Education in Toronto.

In 1867, education was in the midst of being trans-formed from its haphazard pioneer beginnings to tax - supported, organized provincial systems, but not without opposition. Parents had paid fees at so much a head to support local schools, and some resented the tax system, calling it an excise to get them to pay for the education of other people's children.

It was still only the gentry who had more than about five years of schooling. Teacher training had begun, though standards and training were at a shaky minimum. School enrolment was doubling and trebling, but attendance often depended on what else there was to do.

Schools themselves were imposing. Frame and brick were replacing log buildings, though the ink still froze in inkwells in winter.

Benches that ran the length of the room or that seated pupils two by two were replacing backless benches and desks were replacing slanted writing boards that students used up to 30.

The equipment for one-room rural schools included a box stove, a box of sand for blotting ink, a bucket and dipper for drinking water, and a birch rod about four feet long and thick as a man's thumb.

LEARNED BY ROTE

The curriculum was literally the three Rs — at the tops of geography and British history. Education was mostly by memorization. The birch rod probably an effective memory aid.

Emphasis was still on the glories of other lands. A Third Book of Lessons, an Ontario book published in Toronto in 1865, said: "It is from the nations of Europe that all efforts to improve the world which still dwell in darkness, and in the region of the shadow of death, must proceed."

An 1827 General Geography for the Schools had a preface that sounds familiar. It explained that the book had been written to fill a need, as most previous books had been British or American.

It describes British Columbia as bounded on the north by Russian America, Prince Edward Island as noted for its comparatively salubrious climate, and New Brunswick for its communist shops.

An 1825 History of Canada does a colorful job on the "action of the Pirates of Algiers, including stirring accounts of the deeds of the "Algerine spirit" Wolfe and the "gallant Montcalm."

SEEMED SECURE

It describes the fortress city of Quebec, "which like the eagle's nest in proud security upon the lofty eminence . . . and the massive walls of the Castle of St. Louis seemed from the very edge of the precipice."

When it comes to Confederation it takes a moderately calmer tone.

"On the 5th of February the Bill for Confederation was brought before the British Parliament, under the title of the British North American Act, 1867 by the Colonial Secretary, the Earl of Carnarvon. It rapidly passed all the stages of parliamentary investigation and sanction and received the royal assent on the 29th of the month.

"The 1st of July was appointed by Royal Proclamation as the inauguration day of the new era in Canadian history."

It goes on immediately to describe Nova Scotia's threat to break up the union because of dissatisfaction with the province's share of public revenue.

Playing Cards Descended From Early Spanish Game

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

The origin of the playing card is a mystery. Many theories have been lost in history. The actors, presidents, celebrities, blank idles of cards was either Asian or a European game that descended from an earlier Spanish one. Whoever invented the playing card and its many games did so about the 14th century.

The earliest cards were used for Tarot. The pack had 78 or 97 cards of four suits. Each suit had four picture cards, the king, queen, knight and valet. The suits known in Europe varied with each country. In Italy and Spain the suits were called cups, swords, money and batons. Germany had hearts, acorns, bells and leaves while France used a deck similar to those used today. The hearts, pikes, (spades), parling tiles (diamonds) and clover leaf (clubs) were gradually accepted by all of the countries.

Picture cards made in America were simplified. The knight was dropped and the valet was called a jack. The king, queen and jack are the only picture cards in the modern deck.

Q. When was the first player piano made?

A. Several men had similar ideas at the same time. The player piano was the result of their ideas. The first player piano was patented in France by Fortin-Phillipe Thibouville's self-playing player piano was built in New York by R. W. Pain in 1880.

Q. "E. Ingraham and Co., Bristol, Conn." is printed inside a clock we own. The clock has a pendulum.

A. The mark on your clock was used from about 1880 to 1884. After 1884 the "and" was dropped from the name. The firm is still in business.

• • •

Q. My salt and pepper shakers were made from molded glass and silver. The lettering "Pat. 1" is on it. Could this be the first item patented by the United States?

A. The United States government began issuing patents in 1790 for inventions and in 1842 for designs. The first inventions was for "pot and pearl ashes." The salt shaker was not made in 1842. Your shaker maker cannot be the holder of the first design patent. The early design patents were not numbered.

Ann Landers

Fears She Insulted Someone at Recent Party

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several days ago my husband and I attended a party in the home of some long-time friends. The guests were congenial and we had a wonderful time — as far as I can remember. I'm ashamed to tell you that I had too much to drink and the last part of the evening is a complete blank.

ANN LANDERS

I have a nagging fear that I insulted one of the women but I honestly cannot recall whether it actually happened or I dreamed it. We will be seeing this same group in a few weeks and I want to know if I should telephone the woman before the party and ask if I was out of line. Or should I wait until I see her and then apologize? Or would it be best to forget the whole thing? — MRS. DON'T REMEMBER.

DEAR MRS. DON'T: Few situations are as awkward as a woman trying to reconstruct what happened when she was drunk. There always the chance that the other party was stiff, too, so I say let bad enough alone. Now that you know how it feels, your brain on a flapjaw and your mouth on active duty, lay off the sauce and you won't be plagued with this problem in the future.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am not writing for advice. I think anyone who can't solve his own problems has a screw loose. But I do read your column every day just to see what the nuts are going to write in about next.

A few days ago I read a letter from a woman who is out of her mind. She said her husband had had an affair, that he came to her practically on his knees, said the affair was over and begged her to take him back. She said yes for the children's sake but she wrote: "Of course I can never truly forgive him." Her letter was signed "World Torn Apart."

If she thinks her world is torn apart she should try living in my world. My husband has been keeping a tramp for three years and I'd give anything if he would tell me it's over and ask me to forgive him. Some women don't know when they are well off. — LIFE IS A DUNG HEAP.

DEAR FRIEND: I agree that the woman who wrote would be wise to rid herself of resentment and welcome the contrite husband with open arms — but sometimes it's easier said than done.

And now about signature, lady. You'd better elevate your opinion of life if you want it to get better.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you please tell me what my grocer meant when he said "You have to pay your bill with cash from now on because I had cheque and gave me bounced and I had to put it through a second time before I got my money." My credit has always been good and I don't know what he was talking about. I asked for an explanation and he said he wasn't very good at explaining things and to please pay in cash or take my business elsewhere.

I am distressed over this and would like you to tell me what does the term "bounced cheque" mean? — GREENHORN.

DEAR GREEN: When a cheque bounces it means there is not enough money in the account to cover it.

If you still do not understand go to your bank and ask someone to explain it to you. A person who writes cheques when he doesn't have sufficient funds can go to jail.

Pageant of Historic Costumes To Be Seen in Belleville

Ontario's famous historical pageant, Portraits from the Past will be presented in Belleville Collegiate Auditorium the evening of March 6. It will be under the sponsorship of the Belleville Centennial Committee and the proceeds will go toward financing centennial celebrations in the City of Belleville.

This presentation consists of 20 women's costumes dating from the visits of early explorers to Canada up to the early 1900s. Replicas of the dresses worn by such famous women as Madame Champlain, Mrs. John Graves Simcoe and Laura Secord, not to mention Kateri Tekakwitha and Asin-Aki are included in the show. Local women will model the costumes.

The show is touring the province under the auspices of the Ontario Centennial Planning Branch, a division of the Ontario Department of Tourism and Information. It has already visited many major communities in the province and has helped raise thousands of dollars for local centennial celebrations. In addition to the contribution it has made to centennial fundraising it has helped stimulate interest in preparing for the 100th birthday of Confederation.

Costumes in Portraits from the Past were designed after extensive research in old books, magazines and historical documents, but are made of modern fabrics using modern dressmaking techniques. This has enabled the costumes to stand up to repeated use and display even though some of the originals from which they were taken, such as Queen Victoria's wedding dress, were intended to be worn only once. Some of the garments were designed for wear on formal occasions while others are modelled after the daily garb worn by pioneer women and Indian maidens.

The show includes an example of the Paris styles worn by Helene de Champlain, the child-bride of the famous French explorer; a Victorian riding garment, costumes illustrating the dress of the wives of the provincial premiers at Confederation time, and many others.

In the commentary, some interesting and little-known historical facts about Canada's early women are contained. These facts help bring authenticity to the glamor and color of the costumes and make Portraits from the Past an interesting historical document as well as an entertaining presentation of the fashions worn by their early Canadians, and other prominent figures who made an impact on our history.

Says Parents Eat Like Pigs

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My problem is my parents. When they eat, anything they sound like a couple of pigs that haven't eaten for years. I try to eat my meals before they do, but this isn't always possible, when we eat a large meal we eat out. I'm starting to get indigestion from eating too fast so I can get out of the kitchen.

What can I do about this? It's driving me crazy. I would not like to say anything to them, because I haven't got the nerve. — Burpie.

Dear Burpie: Don't say it; act it. Your own manners leave a good deal to be desired if you are bolting down your food. And what about the disagreeable and unappetizing effect of leaving the table ahead of the family? Had you thought of that?

Better far would be to learn all you can about good eating etiquette; then practise it for all to see. I'll send you the name of a book which has some good pointers in a chapter called "Let's Eat." It might even bring about a change of heart on the subject.

Dear Doris: There is a children's story I'd like to find, about a pansy.

It seems the petals are ladies dressed for a ball: the daughters, stepdaughters and wife of a man who, alas, is too sick to attend. When you open the pansy there he is bundled up in a red scarf and with his feet in a pail of water! — Sara.

Dear Sara: Anybody know this one?

Confidential to Music Teacher: Will look into your suggestion. If anyone writes in asking about a "chord organ" which can be played by letters and numbers, I will pass on what you say.

Dear Doris: Although we have been married 25 years, there are many in my family who have not met members of my husband's, due to living a long distance apart. Now we are celebrating our 25th anniversary.

I felt it would be nice to have a name and address card fastened on each person for better identification as they do at club gatherings. My niece could hand these out at the time the guests sign my guest book. — Bride of 25 Years.

Dear Bride: A fine idea. But I can't see that you need addresses; and the name should be printed big enough that no one needs to bend over and peer at it to make it out.

Perhaps as she fastens them on, your niece could explain that with so many meeting family members for the first time, this will help them remember names.

Just be sure that Uncle Jim on about the Aunt Mary who has heard so much — also gets personally introduced. The card does not take the place of introductions.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Thumbprint Cookies

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Always two Christmases ago you printed a recipe for thumbprint cookies and I was watching for it again this year. It is something like a shortbread but tenderer and has egg yolk in it. Would you mind repeating this? — Alma M.

ANSWER: Not at all. In fact I am pleased.

THUMBPRINT (or Thimble or Swedish) COOKIES

(70 — repeated from Dec. '64)

1 cup butter (room temperature)
½ cup granulated sugar
2 eggs, yolks and whites separated
2 tsp. almond extract
2 cups sifted all - purpose flour
Finely chopped nuts (walnuts, almonds, filberts or Brazils)
Or crushed corn flakes or other similar packaged cereal
Colorful jam or jelly (such as raspberry, mint, apricot)

In heavy bowl cream together the butter and sugar until pale and airy. Separate egg yolks from whites of eggs, putting whites into shallow pan for future step. Add egg yolks to butter-sugar mixture and beat well, then add almond extract, beat, then add flour and beat until dough is smooth. Have finely chopped nuts or crushed corn flakes on shallow plate or surface. By hand shape dough into uniform 1" balls. Drop about 6 in the egg whites. With fork turn balls in whites and roll over nuts for coating balls with nuts or crumbs.) Working with about 6 at a time, transfer coated balls to buttered cookie sheet, placing them 2" apart. Make depression in centre of each with your thumb (or floured thimble or your middle finger). When cookie sheet is full bake at 350 deg. Fah. for 10 to 22 min. But after 5 min. baking, carefully dent them at centre again. You may want to over - so carefully dent the cookies once more after they are taken from oven. Cool on cake racks.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Kabobs on Spaghetti (see Wed.); Sesame Sticks or Rolls; Relish Tray: Celery and Cucumber Sticks; Lemon Meringue Pie; Coffee.

Store in tightly covered containers, each layer being between sheets of wax paper.

When you serve these cookies fill centre of each with ¼ or ½ tsp. of red or green jelly or jam. Apricot jam is a great favorite too.

CALLING ALL HOME MAKERS

SHOULD FURNITURE BE MIXED OR MATCHED?

Many years ago, furniture stores featured six pieces, and even eight piece living room sets all in the same wood finishes.

TOMSETT

This finish usually was a quite mahogany, walnut or maple. Very often the fabric and color on the upholstered pieces were all identical.

Although many people still prefer to use the same wood finish throughout the living room, the trend through the years has been to get away from sets or suites of living room furniture by using many different finishes in the same room very effectively.

As a matter of fact, many leading decorators prefer using different wood finishes and even different styles to dress the same room.

One of the loveliest living room I have seen had a mahogany coffee table, with two Early American maple chairs, a white marble top cocktail table with a brass base, and a fruitwood French Provincial breakfront. However, all the colors and textures of the wood coverings, fabrics, lamps, draperies and walls were beautifully blended.

So whether you like to mix or match, our decorators are at your service without cost or obligation. We invite you to come in. And be sure to watch for our future columns on furniture and interior decoration, as they'll be bringing them to you regularly.

LETTER FROM 'DAD'

"Some time ago prior to Hockey Week in Canada here, you wrote a column to the hockey dads of the city. I was impressed and clipped it — but cannot seem to find it. I would appreciate a copy if possible.

"A HOCKEY Fan."

(Ed. note: — Sorry sir, we cannot give you another copy but we're reprinting the column for you and other "dads." Here 'tis).

• • • • •

MINOR HOCKEY WEEK

If he is a hockey-playing knight of your family round table, Mom, tomorrow is his day and next week is his week to receive the accolades.

And I hope you will pass the word along to Old Mervyn the Magician, his dad, that tomorrow is one Saturday he should go scurrying and take his way to the arena to watch the joustings of the blade-shod young knichts and squires.

C'mon, Pop, its no tougher climbing out of the hay tomorrow morning at a decent hour than it is in late February when you shed the pajamas at the crack of yawn, and take off, slit-eyed, for some cabin back north on your annual sashay for brook trout.

Besides you owe it to the kid. The young gaffer has been going to the arena with over a thousand counterparts all winter where he has been using that heritage you handed down to him to good advantage.

Oh, you've done all right by the boy. You have bought him skates, sticks and other hockey paraphernalia but you've missed one of the greatest paternal thrills of your life. You haven't been in some off the ice eyes shining with the thrill of victory.

Or have you been there to give him an encouraging pat on the back when he troops slowly to the dressing room after the team has been a close sniffler.

You haven't heard the shrill boyish patter in the dressing room prior to a game, or the shouting, laughing post-victory prattle that replays every match. Or the said-could-have-been of the gallant little guys who found out that somebody must lose.

Sure, you've looked at Junior at dinner-time with a glow of pride. That report card was good; he is healthy, bubbling over with boyish exuberance; good to his brothers and sisters; eats like a horse and from what a guy at the office tells you, quite a hockey, softball and baseball player.

But you wouldn't know that, first hand, would you, Pop?

But you will admit when Mom tells you Junior is at the arena playing hockey, or at some diamond shagging flies or fungo-hitting balls that you feel that there's nothing wrong with the kid.

You read the news-paper or listen to air-waved media and learn that some juveniles have been arrested for petty — or in some cases, serious — misdemeanor.

And you experience a sense of inward pride that Junior is above this sort of thing; that he's a cleanliving kid who loves sport, tolerates school and loves his family. Just a normal life-living young-one.

That inward sense of pride is something telling you that you are mightly glad Junior, through the media of minor sports — family and other environments — is dodging body checks not policemen and stealing bases, not purses.

Don't just be a dad to him — be a pal. Don't take that office guys word for it that he is a potential Bobby Hull, Mickey Mantle or Jimmy Brown. Go see for yourself. You won't be sorry.

And if he knows you are in the arena watching him, there will be a little extra effort go into every one he makes. For — and don't forget this — you are DAD, his dad, his number one.

Go to the arena tomorrow or some day and watch him play. Better yet take him there yourself. You don't know what that will mean to him. Later on when you take there water-cooler or coffee-break at the office and the talk drifts into hockey, you won't have to retire to the fringe and listen. You will be an authority, especially if Junior happened to score the winning goal — or any goal for that matter.

How about it, Pop?

Zooming Flyers Gun Down Mo-Hawks

By GARRY ALEXANDER
"Staff Sportswriter"

BARRIE — Second-period success evaded the Belleville Mo-Hawks for the second game in a row here last night and on this occasion cost them a 5-3 setback at the hands of the suddenly-flying Barrie Flyers.

Tied 1-1 going into the middle frame, the Mo-Hawks carried the play most of the period but came out of it on the short end of a 3-1 count.

Twice in the third they pulled within a goal only to see the Flyers regain the two-goal margin.

Barrie, cellar - dwellers in the OHA Senior "A" grouping most of the season, have suddenly sprung to life in a serious bid for a playoff berth. The Flyers have won four and tied one of their last six starts.

WAYNE BROWN

Meanwhile the Mo-Hawks slid three games below .500 hockey with a 12-15-2 mark and are beginning to look over their shoulder from sixth spot.

They travel to North York for a key game against the Varsity Grads Sunday. "It's a game we have to win", says coach Floyd Crawford.

Crawford shook up all three of his forward lines here and the club had enough scoring chances in the second period alone to win two games. But they couldn't hit the net.

Barrie could and did, firing 25 shots at Steve Brkic while Errol McKibbon at the other end was tested 23 times. Both made some fine clutch saves.

Mike Debeau triggered two Flyer goals with one each for Guy Levesque, Dave Nicholson and Bob Dessart. Bob Garner was the playmaker on three occasions.

Mo-Hawk goals were scored by "Weiner" Brown, who also had an assist, Minnie Menard and Garry Darling.

Eddie Marineau, Bob Taylor and Floyd Crawford drew assists.

While Menard's goal snapped a personal slump, the veteran left-wing, back in his old position, should have had three others.

Greasbahl's pass put him in alone to open the second but he lost the puck while trying to pull it around McKibbon. Later he steered a shot wide of a gaping net with McKibbon off to the other side,then blasted wide on another break-in.

"Shaker" Baker and Darling buzzed the Barrie net for seconds on end with a 2-1 score in the second and they too failed to find an open spot with the goalie down and out on the play. McKibbon also robbed Bob McAlpine and Bob Taylor in the wide-open period.

The clubs traded first-period powerplay goals with Reise Eddie to see Levesque's waist-high shot until too late at 3.46 and Brown cutting in front after a faceoff to tie it at 14.05.

Nicholishen skated in to sink a low liner and Debeau blasted home a quick passout by Garner at 7.46 and 12.15 of the second while Reise stole other goals to keep Belleville in contention. Defecourt was his prime victim.

After the batch of second-period scoring, Menard fooled McKibbon with a rising shot on the short side for a 3-2 game after 3.12 of the third.

Delcourt got that back at 13.15 when he caught Crawford from behind, stole the puck and beat Reise with a sizzling corner drive.

Darling cut it to 4-3 two minutes later when his shot into the goalmouth deflected in off a Barrie player. The Mo-Hawks put the puck into the net again seconds later during a goal-line jamup but it was disallowed.

Dubeau wedged a close-in arebound inchis inside the port to wrap it up at 18.05. Crawford used six attackers in the dying second in an all-out effort for a pair of quickies. They didn't come.

Each team drew six minors in a game that saw several near-fights cut short.

MINNIE MENARD

The Mo-Hawk line changes saw Plane centering Menard and Gresdahl, Darling between Baker and McConnell and Brown pivoting McConnell and Marineau. Taylor was also moved up front in the late stages. Menard's goal was his first since December 13 and Darling's was his 15th of the campaign.

Beliveau Back In Lineup

MONTREAL (CP) — Most real Canadiens of the National Hockey League announced Friday that centre Andre Boudrias has been returned to Houston Apollos of the Central Professional League.

Boudrias was brought to Montreal for three games, but the return of Jean Beliveau as the Canadiens' lineup, left no room for the youngster.

In another move, the Montrealers dispatched Germain Gagnon, a 24-year-old left wing prospect, from Providence Reds of the American Hockey League, to Houston.

Moira Shades Quinte

By Robert Sneffjella

Moira's senior basketball squad kept alive its chances of a second place finish in the Bay of Quinte COSSA league with a hard fought 57-48 victory over Quinte, in one of three high school contests played at Quinte last night.

In junior, Moira manhandled a shorter and less equipped Quinte team by a score of 54-36. Quinte's bantams kept the home crowd from weeping when they trounced their Moira counterparts 60-40.

The chief reason for Moira senior victory was the all-round good play of centreman Banting. Playing with an injured leg, he controlled both the offensive and defensive boards and banged in 20 points.

Quinte's score was as bad as their teamwork. They failed to pass the ball throughout the contest, and were content to take long shots that usually missed.

Moira led from the first quarter to the last, although the score was close most of the way. It was only in the final moments that the winners stretched their lead to more than 10 points.

Besides Banting, John Hayman was a key player for the winners. He was playmaker for the Trojans and also contributed 11 points, Findley with 9, McPherson and Dobue with eight, were the other scorers.

Quinte's top scorer was Mike Reddick, with 20 points. Mike Buddle and Dave Middleton played well and added eight points and 4 points respectively.

In junior, Larue led a team effort with 11 points. The visitors' win was never in doubt as their height advantage and fine shooting were too much for Quinte.

Probert, Chalmers, Curzon, Bishop and Cretzery were the other Moira scorers.

Brownlee was tops for Quinte with 10 points, while Mywaart and Easton hooped in each.

Peter Middleton led the Quinte bantam's charge with his best output of the year, 20 points. He did not need much support from his teammates, but they gave him plenty. Tom Churchill and Steve Ogden had 10 points each, and Henre Van Allen was not far behind with eight.

Thompson led the losers' effort with 14 points, Lovelace, Drummond and Hayes also scored.

Crosby Clambake

Nick Bogeys Three; Tops Field

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Winner of the U.S. Open, the Masters and the PGA Professional Golfers Association Tournament, big Jack Nicklaus surprised everyone, including himself, by taking a two-over-par on three straight holes in the Bing Crosby golf tournament Friday.

Even more amazing, Jack, who celebrates his 27th birthday today, leads the $164,500 tournament by two strokes.

"I can't recall ever getting three double bogeys in a row since I was 10 years old," the Ohio slugger commented after blowing six of his eight-stroke lead Friday in the gale winds at Cypress Point.

Big Jack finished with a one-over-par 73 and 36-hole total of 142 on a day when only three of the 168 professionals broke par. He's the only one under regulation figures at the half-way point.

Cypress Point, Pebble Beach and Spyglass Hill each plays to par 72s, and by tonight all the professionals and their amateur partners will have toured all three.

A par at the 18th preserved Nicklaus's advantage over a lesser known quartet at 144-Dave Pittman, Jim Colbert, Steve Oppermann and Bob McCallister.

Meanwhile, Arnold Palmer wound up with a 75 and 149, saying the wind on the Pebble Beach ocean holes nearly blew him off his footing. U.S. Open champion Billy Casper had 74 at Spyglass Hill and 146. And Joe Carr, the unknown who led the first day with 68, disappeared again with an 83.

George Knudson of Toronto shot a 75 for a two-round total of 149. Bill Ezinicki, former National Hockey League player, garry matched that score.

Mosel had a one-stroke advantage over Canadian veteran Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg, who registered the day's best round of 33-36—69 for a total of 140.

Stan Homenuik, Wilf's kid brother, also from Winnipeg, added a 73 to his first-round 71 for 144.

Georgians Win

Regals Crush Orillia

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a hard night for most goaltenders in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series Friday, but Boat Hurley didn't mind.

Hurley, rated high in ability among the league's 10 regular goaltenders, had one of his best nights of the season as Guelph Regals crushed Orillia 8-0.

Hurley kicked out 35 shots for his third shutout of the season.

While Hurley was chuckling everything fired his way, two other goals were busy keeping their teams from being overwhelmed.

Oakville Oaks lost 4-1 to Wood stock Athletics, but if it hadn't been for the brilliant goaltending of Oakville's Alf Trstia, who stopped 43 shots, it would have been a runaway.

STILL LOST

Gerry McNamara had a hard night in stopping 31 shots from the sticks of the powerful Collingwood Georgians, but his North York Grads still lost 5-1. Chuck Lovell was outstanding in the Collingwood goal blocking 43 shots.

In the other series game Friday night, Lacrie Flyers defeated Belleville Mo-Hawks 5-3. Ralph Kosawn led Guelph with two goals. Other goals were to Tom Smola, Frank Hincks, John McMillan, Rick McClocklin, Ray Ross and Walt Brindley.

Woodstock got goals from Ted Power, Dan Mahoney, Goose Lund and Pat Bowler. Jack Price scored for Oakville.

Collingwood got two goals from Dave Fitter and the others from Dave McComb, Ronnie Keith and Bill Abbott. Carl Hymers scored for North York.

Curling Cues By Hec Gervais

The Situation: Remember a raise is one of the toughest shots in the game. If you succeed in getting the front end plugged up, it is wasted effort to play a raise and not make it.

The Strategy: When playing a raise, take just a little less ice than you would for a straight draw because you are coming in contact with the rock you are attempting to raise from six to ten feet before it comes to a stop.

Today's Tip: Always sweep as close as possible to the stone and directly in front of it, not to the side.

Minor Association

Hockey Week Here Feb.5

According to a letter received from president Fred Jones, the Belleville Minor Hockey Association will observe "Hockey Week in Canada" during the week starting February 5th.

The CAHA announced the regular annual "Hockey Week" starts today across the nation.

"On this the opening day" President Jones says, "negotiations are under way to bring in a group from Toronto. The rest of the week's program is in the suggestion stage. Unfortunately I am afraid this will be limited due to the number of adults we have at our disposal to supervise these 1,400 boys."

He pointed out that a general meeting was called a week or so ago at which time the usual corporal's guard attended and we procured one volunteer. At this meeting it was decided to send home by each boy a letter requesting help in this area. This brought one volunteer and one inquiry.

The president stated that he tries to keep the news media up to date with the activities of his association, but "unfortunately I have my limitations."

He said that all groups have their critics, this is appreciated. "We have, this season, embarked on a totally new program for the BMHA. I am glad to say we have received more favorable than adverse comments."

"Getting back to Minor Hockey Week as you will appreciate anything we try to do will be governed by the limited ice facilities at our disposal. We cannot depart too much from our regular program as we will be keeping our boys from playing and so defeating our purpose."

"For those who haven't taken in any of the Minor program" he said, "we are providing what I feel is the best brand of minor hockey in Southern Hockey. Five good games of organized hockey for a silver coin".

Hawks, Habs Hassle Home-And-Home

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There's no place like home for Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League. It's those road games that have the team floundering in fifth-place.

In 21 games at home, Detroit has 14 victories, five losses and two ties. In 19 games on the road, the Red Wings have lost 18 and tied one.

A few more losies on the road and Detroit will join Chicago Black Hawks in holding the NHL record for the longest winless streak on the road in a single season. The Hawks of 1950-51 went without a win in 22 road games.

The Red Wings try to change things tonight when they meet Toronto Maple Leafs in Toronto in one of six scheduled NHL games this weekend.

In other games, the first-place Hawks have a home-and-home series with Montreal Canadiens starting tonight in Montreal, second place New York Rangers meet Boston Bruins this afternoon in Boston and go to Detroit Sunday night while the Leafs travel to Boston for a Sunday game against the last - place Bruins.

Coach Sid Abel of Detroit whose Red Wings trounced Leafs 6-2 in Detroit Thursday, sums up his club's road record this way:

"The difference between our performance on the road and at home is unbelievable. At home we can do everything, on the road nothing."

Montreal coach Toe Blake expects a lot more life out of his fourth - place club during the weekend when his lineup will include club captain Jean Beliveau, out since Dec. 17 with an eye injury.

The Canadiens, Stanley Cup champions last season, are fresh from a 3-0 victory over the NHL All-Stars. Blake hopes the shutout restored the confidence of goaltender Charlie Hodge, whose play recently has been spotty.

EYE STILL BOTHERSOME

Beliveau will only be used sparingly, Blake says, since heavy going still bothers the injured eye. Still, he looks on the return of the veteran centre as a big boost to team spirit.

Chicago, fighting out with New York for first place, holds a two - point edge on the Rangers, who hope to pick up four points in their two games against the circuit's two lowest clubs.

Rangers will have Bernie Geoffrion back in the lineup but will play without defenceman Reg Fleming. Geoffrion has missed three games with a pulled groin muscle and Fleming is out with a pulled groin muscle.

Other players with injuries this weekend are Boston's Bobby Orr, Montreal's Jim Roberts and Lucien Boucher and Toronto's Dave Keon.

ORR HAS BIG CUT

Orr has to play despite a 12-stitch mouth cut suffered Thursday when Boston was bounced 4-2 by Chicago. Roberts will be in action with a broken toe but Rochefort, out for the last month with a Charley Horse, is doubtful starter.

Keon was cut for 15 stitches above the left eye Thursday in Detroit by Bobby Hadfield's stick. If the cut closes his eye, he'll likely miss the weekend games.

Including the loss in their final road game of last season, Red Wings have lost 20 games on the road without a win.

Chicago went 22 games without a win on the road to end the 1950-51 season and lost its first road game of the 1951-52 season, to bring its winless streak to 23 games.

Quebec Bonspiel Monday

QUEBEC (CP) — The annual Quebec International Bonspiel gets under way here Monday, with 129 rinks from Canada and the United States shooting for the 15 trophies at stake in the week-long event.

Last year 128 rinks took part in the annual affair, with Gerry Johin's rink from the Jacques Cartier Club of Quebec City winning the top prize and the Lieutenant - Governor's trophy.

This year there will be 35 rinks from Ontario, 41 from Quebec, 12 from New Brunswick, 10 from Nova Scotia, two from Prince Edward Island and one from Newfoundland.

The eight U.S. entries came from such widely dispersed areas as Boston, Caribou, Me., Darien, Conn., Milwaukee, Wis., and other mid-west centres.

Blazers Thump Memphis

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma City Blazers, trailing in the first period, tied the score in the second and then poured in four goals in the final period to thump Memphis Wings 6-4 in the only Central Hockey League game Friday night.

Brian Bradley got the Blazers' go-ahead goal in the third period after Ted Irvine and Wayne Cashman had scored. Ross Lonsberry of Oklahoma City got an unassisted score, his second of the contest, to finish the scoring at 19:15 of the final period.

Wings scorers were Nick Libbett, Andre Pronovost, Ron Anderson and Doug Roberts. Terry Crisp got the other goal for the league - leading Oklahoma City club.

Slipping Macs Lose To Oshawa 5-1

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The Quinte McFarlands "britches" are slipping and they'd better start hitching them up if they plan to get into the playoffs.

With about five players carrying the load last night they dropped a 5-1 decision to the league - leading Oshawa Crushmen.

Meanwhile Cobourg pulled away from the Macs in third place with a 3-2 squeaker over Kingston.

Oshawa now has 30 points, Peterborough 28, Cobourg 23, Quinte 20, Kingston 17 and Trenton 0.

The defeat was the Junior Macs fifth in their last six starts. With the exception of a few, the players are not showing the form that featured their play before the turn of the year.

The fast - skating hard - checking Oshawa crew was full value for the win although not a little credit should go to Dave Gavel in the nets.

They spotted the Macs a goal midway through the first period, took over with a pair in the same frame and never looked backwards. They fired another in the second and wrapped up the victory with a pair in the third.

There was little consistency in the Macs' attack. The first string line carried the brunt of the offensive efforts. The other lines were only nothing to write home about. Some of the latter looked like they were out for skating practice.

The Crushmen's Welch led the attack with two goals and an assist. Solomon, Sawyer, and Bradley also scored with Knowles getting two assists. Bowen and Whiting one each.

Hopkins was the Quinte marksman with Riley and Sharpe getting the helpers. This line was for the best the Macs could produce.

Solomon and Riley kept apace in the league scoring race each now having 38 points.

The game was comparatively clean during the first two periods, when the teams were assessed two penalties each.

But the feelings broke out in the third frame. Both goalies were penalizer. Neill was the Macs' hadman drawing a major for fighting with the Crushman's Walmsley and both five seconds to go drawing a double minor for tangling with the Oshawa goalie. This would post the Macs' management a $20 fine.

Outdoor Tips And Tricks

BY BOB BLAIND

The ice fishing for pickerel and pike has been good the past week or so with some fairly nice fish being caught at West Lake.

Howard Coroline and George Ward of Belleville have caught some good ones here. But then Howard, a good fisherman at any time, knows how, when and where to catch them.

The bay of Quinte above Redneresville has been yielding a few good pickerel. Don Seames picked up an 11-pounder along with several smaller ones. The same day this week he caught 18 nice perch to help make a good fish fry.

Speaking of perch, keep your eye on this paper for information regarding a perch fishing derby coming up some time in February. This could be lots of fun for young and old alike.

Also coming soon is a skidoo race, Your local Belleville Fish and Game Association have plans in the making at this writing.

Lake and speckled trout fishing opens in Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac counties on Saturday, February 25th. Let's get ready.

Some whitefish are being caught in Loughboro Lake north of Kingston, also good catches of pike up to 12 lbs. have been reported. All fish but the whitefish have been caught on live shiner minnows.

While on the subject of minnows, here is something you may not know.

Belleville and district minnows are now being sold and shipped so far away places.

The Golden Shiner, a most sought after minnow in Canada and United States, especially in the winter months, is a local minnow coming from the Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario and also from a small lake called Fish Lake in Prince Edward County.

This fall the harvest of these minnows was fair in this district, but, one dealer only caught most of these minnows, mainly because he knows how and where to catch them and will work in all weather and all hours to do so. Some of these shiners have been kept in minnow tanks; some sold and, some used in stock ponds.

In past years the supply of winter bait could be supplemented from other sources, but this year, due to lack of ice until this week, catches have been very poor.

Now, with the demand for Golden Shiners from Madoc, Marmora, Stirling, Kingston, Verona, Ottawa, Toronto and Niagara Falls, there is a shortage of large size bait minnows and there will be until the supply can be obtained from lakes and ponds in the district.

I know one dealer from Toronto who had to take a back order for the time being for 25,000 3½ to 5-inch Golden Shiners. He will have to wait until a good supply is on hand because our local dealer will not short his regular customers to look after an out-of-town shop.

I think in a way this local minnow dealer is wrong, because a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush, but he says the local people come first.

Therefore Bellevillians will be looked after for quite some time as far as a good supply of minnows for ice fishing is concerned.

Scores Seven Goals!

Andy Faulkner of the Glen Ross Rebels of the Central Hastings Hockey League set an all-time scoring record last night.

Before a capacity crowd in the Stirling arena, Faulkner scored seven goals, four of them unassisted in his team's 9-4 victory over the Ivanhoe Knights. He also drew an assist.

Faulkner's line-mates Ken McConnell and Jack Wright accounted for the other goals. Each drew an assist. Doug Faires had two.

The seven goals brought Faulkner's total to date to 34. He is the league's leading scorer. His total equals that of Paul Salmes last year, but the latter's 34 were scored over 24 games. Faulkner thus far has played only 15.

Jack Francis scored two of the Knights' counters with Elwood Moore and Dave Rowe getting the others.

Dale Benson and Richard Chapman drew assists.

The win gave the Rebels 28 points, tops in the league standing. The Knights are second with 24 points; Frankford has 13; Foxboro 11; Wallbridge 11; Thomasburg 10 and Plainfield 8.

Minor Hockey

In the peewee division the Bills edged the Aces 3-2 while the ANAF Dukes shut out the Amerks 3-0.

Rickey Bell earned the shutout for the Dukes. Rod Mallory, Homan and Cowan scored with Cowan and M. Graham getting assists.

Greg Hunter, Joe Muldoon and John Truaisch scored for the Bills with Truaisch, Phil McSherry and Greg Hunter drawing assists.

Greg Cronkrite scored both goals for the Aces with Tommy Barriage and Scott Wilkins getting assists.

With The Trotters

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Curly Lambert, a 14-year-old gelding, won the feature Invitational trot at Windsor raceway Friday.

Co-owned by Lapinere Farms and Mike Sherman of St Mathias, Que., the horse paid $8 for the win.

In the fifth, No Troubles heat Cycledon Kate combined for a $41.20 quinella. Little Belwin held off S T in the seventh, also combining for a $73.20 quiella.

Terry Boy and Glendale Joe set up a $193.90 exactor in the tenth.

Annual Pro Bowl

Unitas Named Quarterback

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 17th annual Pro Bowl football game—and it may be the last in its present form—takes over the grid scene Sunday with the best of the National Football League on display in Memorial Coliseum.

It's East versus West as stars of the eastern and western conferences of the NFL go into action before a hoped-for crowd of 50,000.

This is a prestige game for the players who are selected to play by the NFL coaches, an honor that has significance when talking next season's contracts with the club bosses.

Coach George Allen of the Los Angeles Rams, the West's coach, named Baltimore's famed Johnny Unitas to lead off at quarterback but Green Bay's equally celebrated Bart Starr won't be long coming on the scene.

Coach Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys, the East's guardian, selected his own quarterback, Don Meredith, to start, but as with the other team, Frank Ryan of the Cleveland Browns will share the honors.

HELPS COACH B.C. LIONS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ron Morris, 31-year-old former British Columbia Lions halfback, has been named an assistant coach of the Western Football Conference club, head coach Dave Skrien announced Friday. Morris, a native of Fayetteville, Ark., will be responsible for coaching offensive and defensive halfbacks and will also assist in Lions' minor football activities. The Lions other assistant coaches are Bill Hildebrand and Tony Knap. Morris also played with Toronto Argonauts and Calgary Stampeders at one time.

Racing Driver Killed

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP)—Racing driver Billy Foster of Victoria, whose skill never quite made up for his bad luck, was killed Friday in a crash while braving the danger he considered part of his job.

Foster, 29, died from massive head injuries when his car slammed into a retaining wall during a practice run for the Motor Trend Riverside 500 stock car race here Sunday.

His skill and love of the sport had earned him the United States Auto Club's rookie of the year honors in 1965, but his ill luck had kept him from becoming one of the world's leading drivers.

He was never unaware of the danger but took the view that it "is part of the job."

"It's my job, and I can't do anything else."

In 1965, he became the first Canadian to qualify for the 500-mile Indianapolis Memorial Day race. He dropped out on the 90th lap when a water line in his rear engine Offenhauser burst.

Quints' Classic Bowling League

Beaten By Clippers

Tribe Walkout Tonight?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Springfield's angry Indians are on the warpath and Buffalo's hungry Bisons are still on the skids.

The Indians, whose feud with owner Eddie Shore may erupt into the American Hockey League's first player strike today, blew a third - period lead and bowed to Baltimore Clippers 3-1 Friday night. Before the game, it was reported the Indians planned a walkout prior to tonight's home game against Rochester Americans unless Shore reinstates suspended players Jacques Caron and Roger Cote.

Buffalo, meanwhile, took a 6-0 drubbing from Pittsburgh Hornets that extended the Bisons' victory famine to 21 games—two short of the all-time AHL record. The Bisons are winless since Dec. 13 and have managed just one tie during the skid.

In Friday night's other action, Providence Reds upended Rochester 6 - 1 and Hershey Bears rallied for three goals in the last period to tie Cleveland Barons 3-3.

Firemen Ranks Dwindle

MONTREAL (CP) — H. E. Gilbert, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engiiemen, said Friday the international union is oversed the trend of declining membership in the U.S. last year, but union ank is dwindling in Canada.

Mr. Gilbert was in Montreal on the 10th anniversary of the first coast-to-coast strike ever called against a Canadian railway. His union staged a nine-day walkout against the CPR which was ended by federal emergency legislation.

He said U.S. membership increased by 2,000 last year to 55,915, reversing the declining trend for the first time since 1963.

Canada's memberships, however, declined to 3,572 and no new members had been signed since an attrition formula was signed after the strike.

HOPES TO REVERSE

Mr. Gilbert said he hopes Canadian membership will pick up in the future.

Mr. Gilbert said his Cleveland headquarters still had to approve any negotiating or action from the Canadian end of the union "because of certain situations." Canadians learned of the 1957 strike from Cleveland report.

John Graham, Canadian director of the union, said the attribution formula signed with the CPR and a "milestone" in dealing with the human consequences of technological change."

He said the firemen will continue to see after the membership of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Quick Aid for Head Injuries Big Need Says Neurosurgeon

OTTAWA (CP)—Regional organization of accident services would improve the chances of the injured getting adequate medical treatment, a Winnipeg neurosurgeon said Friday.

Dr. Rankin A. Hay, associate neurosurgeon at the Winnipeg General Hospital and head of the neurosurgery department at Deer Lodge Hospital, also affiliated with the University of Manitoba, said that general practitioners be given a broader training annually. Head injuries have in emergency care of accident become the commonest cause victims such head injuries. of death in children in adoles-

Dr. Hay submitted his proposals to the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada, which concludes a three-day annual meeting here today.

Head injuries are the commonest cause of death in children in adolescence, he said in a submission to the college.

He said accidental injury on the highways is a grave social and public problem in Manitoba. The fatality rate is among the highest in Canada.

But statistics in Manitoba showed that only a small proportion of these cases were admitted to hospitals.

Dr. Hay said the most important part of the treatment of head injuries must be given at the accident scene. The purpose for which it is intended.

He said it was time other medical facts were given a chance to read the paper.

Trenton Plant

Ontario UE Workers Vote for Strike Action

TORONTO (CP)—More than 8,000 members of the United Electrical Workers Union voted Friday night for strike action if Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. does not meet contract demands at 16 Ontario plants.

George Harris of Toronto, the union's national secretary-treasurer, said negotiations have been held since October but a settlement is still not in sight.

The 8,000 men work in the 16 General Electric plants at Toronto, Peterborough, Guelph, Barrie, Trenton and Brampton.

"There may be quite a bit of negotiating before a contract is signed," Mr. Harris said. "There's a very wide gap between what they'll give and what we'll take."

A union spokesman said 92 per cent of the membership cast ballots Friday night and 96 per cent favored possible strike action.

Union and company officials are to meet in Toronto Sunday with William Dickie, the Ontario government's chief conciliation officer.

A 350-man negotiating committee, which represents workers from all 16 plants, has the power to call a strike.

The union is seeking a wage increase of 35 per cent over a two-year period, with a 25-per-cent increase in the first year. Improvements in the vacation plan, medical insurance and pensions are also involved, a union spokesman said.

The union rejected a company offer that would have provided a wage increase of from 34 to 46 cents an hour over a three - year contract, with a five-per-cent increase in the first year and four cents and four per cent in each of the next two years.

The laborers rate under the present agreement is $2.81½ an hour. Top rate for toolmakers is $3.09½ an hour.

The union also wants elimination of geographical wage differentials within the company and job and wage protection against technological change.

Other issues include requests for paid lunch periods and double time for overtime work.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Examination of the mail leads the author to the conclusion that people are confusing the relationship of assessments to prices of property. Most are under the impression that the amount of assessment directly affects price. This direct relationship actually is not true in the market, but the indirect effect, which is more important, is explained below.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have a real estate tax problem, but it is the reverse of the normal problem. It occurs because my taxes are too low. My house is worth about $21,000. Since my community assesses at full value, it should be assessed for $21,000 — but it is only assessed for $10,000. I have been told that agents and buyers use the assessed value as a guide when setting the price of a house. You can see how I'll be penalized when I come to sell. Shall I tell the tax assessor to raise my assessment? — Mr. F. P.

ANSWER: Assessments do not directly affect the selling price of a house, but rather have an indirect effect which is most important. It is true that in theory properties in a community should be uniformly assessed and the assessment should be related to market value. However, in practice, the departure from the ideal is common.

Based upon experience, it has been my observation that brokers and buyers almost never use the assessments as the basis on which they price a house. The indirect effect of assessments on prices arises as follows.

If the assessment is low, it has a favorable effect on market price because the low taxes make for small carrying charges (taxes, mortgage, insurance, etc.). An owner can therefore get a larger price because the purchaser can now sustain a larger mortgage for the same normal outlay.

If the assessment is too large, the selling price will be lower because an undue amount of the monthly carrying charges must now go towards taxes. Since the taxes are a first obligation against the property, the amount which is left over governs what he can spend for the house itself.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: For five years I had a very pleasant relationship with my mortgage bank. Last month I received notice that another bank had bought my mortgage and that all future payments would be made to them.

Since then I've had nothing but trouble. First I was told that I now owed a 4 per cent late charge because the payment had not been made by the 10th of the month. Then one of their inspectors told me that he did not like the way I was maintaining my house.

I don't care to do business with the second bank. What right did my mortgage lender have to sell my mortgage to someone else without my permission? Is there anything I can do about it? — W. K.

ANSWER: In the typical mortgage contract, the mortgagee (lender) has the right to assign the mortgage with out permission of the mortgag or (borrower). Therefore, you cannot challenge the sale of your mortgage to another lending institution. If you are unhappy with the second bank, you can refinance the mortgage at an institution of your choice. If you do this, however, I must warn you that you will probably be liable for a prepayment penalty and for other costs incident to obtaining the new loan.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: They say I'm a college drop out, but really I quit because my professors wasted my time teaching what I already know. My problem is a lease on my apartment which runs till June. Two of my friends have agreed to take it over and pay the rent.

Just because their hair is a little too long, the landlord won't accept them and insists that I continue paying the rent.

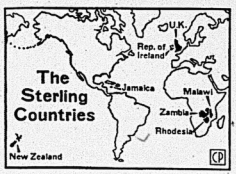
Dear Mr. Meltzer: I don't know if I have a problem, but you'll have to tell me, receive my deed to be read the other day, and in reading it, I find it says the consideration for my property is $1. Actually I paid $14,000 for the property. Is someone trying to pull a fast one on me? — Mr. B. P.

ANSWER: If it will set your mind at ease, I can assure you nobody has been put off with your $13,999. A dollar consideration in deeds is also referred to as a "nominal consideration" and it is quite common. Apparently, for reason which could be perfectly legitimate, the seller's attorney or agent did not want to reveal the full consideration in the deed (which becomes a matter of public record) and chose to insert "nominal consideration" or $1. That is no way affects the validity of the deed which you have received for the property.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm about to build a concrete patio. The cost is about 25 per cent more than the price for concrete you quoted several months ago. My contractor tells me that this is because he's using "certified" concrete. What is "certified," does it cost more, and do I need it? — Mr. S.

ANSWER: Your contractor will have to find another reason for jacking up the price. "Certified" concrete usually does not cost more. It is simply concrete that is warranted to meet stated structural specifications. Central mix plants will usually furnish a certificate of quality either at no cost or very small cost.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.



WHILE MOST of the countries of the world count their money in decimals, there are still a few that don't. All of them use the British sterling system — 12 pence in a shilling and 20 shillings in a pound. But at least two of the seven countries still using sterling are changing to decimal systems, including Britain herself in 1971, New Zealand is scheduled to change this year. That leaves the Republic of Ireland, Jamaica, Rhodesia, Zambia and Malawi, all former British colonies. (CP Newsmap)

CBC to Use Taped Interview

German Nationalist Von Thadden Refutes Nazi Background

ADOLF VON THADDEN

BONN (Reuters)—Adolf von Thadden, the organizing genius behind the appearance of West-Germany's extreme nationalist National Democratic party, is looking forward to more successes in a forthcoming state election in Lower Saxony.

Party officials have predicted the party will win 18 seats in the 149-seat state legislature in the June 4 Lower Saxony election, to follow up November's successes in state elections in Hesse and Bavaria.

The gains in Hesse and Bavaria, although modest in themselves, were enough to bring von Thadden into the international limelight and to make him a controversial figure in Canada.

The CBC originally invited him to come to Canada to appear on the network program Sunday to be shown Jan. 29. However, the invitation was withdrawn following protests by the Canadian Jewish Congress.

Later it was announced an interview with the controversial von Thadden would be taped in New York, to be shown Jan. 27.

However, the CBC announcement today that it had already taped an interview with the West German politician for inclusion on this week's Sunday program.

In the meantime, von Thadden, 45-year-old deputy chairman of the right-wing West German party, has been invited to the University of British Columbia by a student group. Brian Plummer, chairman of the special events committee of the UBC Alma Mater Society, said the German politician has tentatively agreed to speak at the Vancouver campus Jan. 27 or Jan. 31.

In a recent telephone interview from Munich with radio station CFBC in Saint John, N.B., von Thadden denied allegations that he once belonged to the Nazi party or has Nazi sympathies.

"I was never a Nazi," he told the station's news director, Dave White. "I am part of a family whose record was anti-Nazi."

He said he was an army officer in an armored division during the Second World War. His sister was executed by the Nazis, he said.

"If I hadn't been a Nazi then, there's no reason why I should be a Nazi now," said von Thadden, who speaks English well.

Von Thadden was one of 473 members of right-wing' groups who founded the National Democratic party in November, 1964.

A bare 10 months later his party's nationalist talent has created party branches ready for action in all but one of West Germany's 248 federal constituencies in the September, 1965, federal election.

The National Democratic party obtained only two per cent of the vote in the national elections, and failed to get any members elected to the federal parliament.

But, little more than one year later, the party had eight members in the Hessian state legislature and 15 in the Bavarian, after gaining 7.9 and 7.4 per cent respectively of the votes in state elections.

The gray - haired, thick - set man under way but rather a process of normalization after many years in which there have been no politicians in Parliament capable of taking responsibility."

URGES NATIONAL POLICY

His speeches have often urged the necessity of a national German policy and the removal of American influence from Germany.

Von Thadden, never a Nazi party member, was serving as a lieutenant on the Russian front in 1944 when his sister Elisabeth was executed by the Nazis for smuggling a letter to Switzerland.

His maternal grandfather was Scottish and a granddaughter of the 18th - century Scottish philosopher, David Hume.

He speaks French as fluently as he does English and German. His mother was brought up in England.

He is married to a doctor and has two children.

After the war, Von Thadden was prominent in several extreme right-wing parties whose following gradually disappeared over the years.

But with the rise of the National Democratic party, his prestige has also risen and he now is a factor on the West German political scene.

TV Idol Tours Orient, Gets Splendid Reception

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What happens when a television idol tours the Orient? The same thing as when he tours the United States—only more so.

That's the testimony of David McCallum, just back from a seven-day journey that took him to Anchorage, Alaska, Tokyo, Hong Kong, Singapore, Perth and Sydney, Australia, and return via Honolulu.

Since The Man From U.N.C.L.E appears in all those places, the reception for the show's Illya raged from warm to tumultuous.

"I realized the extent of Uncle's reach when I was walking down a jungle path behind the Raffles Hotel in Singapore," said the Scottish actor. "Along came a native who looked as if he lived in the jungle. But he smiled broadly and shouted: "Illya!""

JAPANESE TURN OUT

McCallum found the biggest crowds were in Japan, where he faced the most massive press conference he has ever seen. There he was asked the same questions that recurred throughout the tour.

What about his feud with co-star Robert Vaughn? McCallum smiled and said that they get along amazingly well while working and go their separate ways afterward—"He has his politics and I have my life."

How did he feel about the war in Vietnam? Unlike anti-Viet Vaughn, McCallum said he had no categorical opinions about the war.

How long would he stay with Uncle? He figures the series will run its course in another two years, completing his contract for five seasons.

McCallum met up with partner Vaughn at the Peninsula Hotel in Hong Kong. Vaughn was on a slightly longer trip, and they attended the premiere of an Uncle feature in Hong Kong.

Ford Schedules Four-Day Week

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Ford of Canada Ltd. said Friday it is going on a short work week next month to cut back passenger car production and try to bring North American inventories in line with demand.

The company said it will close on the four Fridays of February, reducing production by about 3,300 cars.

Nicaraguan Conservatives Battle Army

MANAGUA (AP) — Rooftop snipers firing automatic weapons battled the Nicaraguan national guard Sunday night after a pre - election demonstration against the political machine of Gen. Anastasio Tachito Somoza, leading presidential candidate of the ruling Nationalist Liberal party.

Casualty reports said 10 to 20 persons were killed and about 20 others wounded.

Street fighting broke out after a political rally in which Fernando Aguero, the opposition Conservative party's presidential candidate, called for a general strike to "demand electoral guarantees" for the Feb. 5 elections.

The government rushed reinforcements into the city, and national guard vehicles cruised the streets urging the snipers to surrender. Unofficial reports said government forces suffered some casualties.

With the approach of the presidential elections, the political atmosphere has become tense. Opposition parties have been unsuccessful in their attempt to get the elections postponed for a year.

The leading presidential candidate is Gen. Anastasio (Tachito) Somoza, candidate of the ruling Nationalist Liberal party.

Tachito also is boss of the national guard, which serves as the country's police force and army.

Aguero, an eye specialist, withdrew from the 1963 presidential contest to leave the field clear for Rene Schick Gutierrez, the candidate of the Somoza - controlled Liberal party. Schick died last August.

Presidents and members of their immediate family are barred from the presidency for the succeeding term, so when Luis Somoza completed his term in 1963, the Somozas chose Schick to fill in for the next four years.

Aguero, who has a following among the peasants, has expressed concern that the election will be fraudulent, but he insists he will not pull out again.

A third candidate is Alejandro Abaunza, a lawyer, who was chosen by another Conservative party which Aguero's group says is a "legal fiction" created by the government party to divide the Conservatives.

Chou Calls on Army To Crush Mao's Foes

TOKYO (AP)—Premier Chou En-lai is reported to have committed China's 2,500,000 - man army to crush Mao Tse-ung's opponents as news of revolt and resistance came out of the embattled mainland today from frozen Manchuria to Kwangtung in the south.

Japanese correspondents, quoting Peking wall posters, said Chou's announcement at a rally in Peking Sunday was the first statement by a top government official that troops would be used against Mao's foes.

The posters said Chou declared:

"The People's Liberation Army is the most important tool of the dictatorship of the proletariat. It will resolutely suppress the handful of counter-revolutionary elements who are trying to destroy the proletarian great cultural revolution."

Japanese correspondents in Peking also reported purged chairman Chen Po-ta and Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, had ordered the people of the capital to establish a revolutionary city government composed of workers, peasants, soldiers, revolutionary students and teachers.

Quoting wall posters, the correspondents said 40 Maoists were injured, 10 captured and many were missing after a clash with students and workers supporting President Liu Shao-chi in the Manchurian industrial city of Changchun Jan. 21. The posters said the "reactionaries" were assembling a force of 60,000 persons from the Manchurian provinces of Kirin, Liaoning, and Heilunkiang to give battle to "revolutionary rebels" converging on Changchun.

Meanwhile, opponents of Mao were reported to be collecting weapons and forming an anti-Mao army in Kwangtung.

Chinese arriving in Hong Kong from Kwangtung said Mao's opponents there had been encouraged by reports that an anti - Mao army of peasants, workers and former soldiers had seized control of much of neighboring Kiangsi province.

Western sources in Hong Kong said there were strong indications of sharply increased opposition to Mao in some areas of Kwangtung but cautioned that the reported "army" probably was no more than a group of Mao's opponents armed with clubs and hand weapons fashioned from farm and factory tools.

The arrivals from Canton also reported continued fighting between anti-Mao and pro-Mao forces in Kiangsi province and the arrest or capture of some anti-Mao leaders in Nanchang, provincial capital of Kiangsi.

They said the Kiangsi news had been received in Canton via radio broadcasts from Nanchang Sunday night.

Iron Triangle Offensive Yields Rice and Corpses

SAIGON (AP) — Operation Cedar Falls, major anti-Communist push through the Iron Triangle, entered its third week today and American forces reported 1,219 of the enemy killed or captured.

The massive drive through jungle and scrub territory 20 to 30 miles north of Saigon also has yielded a record haul of 2,560 tons of rice.

There were indications that Operation Cedar Falls is nearing an end, Lt.-Gen. Jonathan O. Seaman, field commander of the operation, gave correspondents in Saigon a summation of the campaign and declared:

"We have certainly denied for a period of time a vast logistics complex that the Viet Cong have enjoyed for 20 years."

The Triangle area had for years been used as a base to mount guerrilla, mortar and terror attacks against Saigon and its environs.

Seaman said the rice seized was enough to feed 10,000 soldiers for a year.

Since the operation started Jan. 8, U.S. forces have reported killing 671 Viet Cong and capturing 179. An additional 369 surrendered voluntarily, U.S. headquarters said, and nearly 500 more suspects were picked up for questioning.

In the last two weeks, close to 6,000 Vietnamese villagers and peasants were evacuated from their homes and resettled elsewhere. More than half of these were children.

Ho Invites LBJ to Hanoi

--- But Not With Gun on His Hip

LONDON (Reuters) — President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam has invited President Johnson of the United States to visit Hanoi for peace talks, Rabbi Feinberg of Toronto told a press conference on his return here from Hanoi today.

Rabbi Feinberg, pastor emeritus of Holy Blossom Temple, said Ho told him and Anglican Bishop Ambrose Reeves: "Mr. Johnson has stated that he would talk to anyone, any time, any where about peace.

"I invite Mr. Johnson to be our guest sitting just where you are here in the palace of the former French governor-general of Vietnam."

"Let Mr. Johnson come with his wife, his daughters, his secretary, his doctor, his cook—but let him not come with a gun on his hip, let him not bring his admirals and generals."

He gave a pledge that President Johnson "will have complete security."

Beatles Breaking Up

LONDON (Reuters) — Paul McCartney, 24, is quoted as saying in an interview Sunday that the popsinging Beatles are breaking up.

"Now we Beatles are ready to go our own ways," he is reported as saying.

"We'll work together only if we miss each other. If we don't it'll be hobby work. It's good for us to go it alone."

The group recently denied rumors of a permanent split-up.

Spring Election May Curtail New Session of Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — The fifth session of Ontario's 27th parliament opens Wednesday and speculation it will be shortened to allow for a spring election.

Premier John Robarts has declined to say when the election will be called, but there have been rumors government departments have been instructed to keep their reports short on their legislation to a minimum.

It appears unlikely, however, that Liberal and New Democratic Party members will cut short their criticism of the Progressive Conservative government's handling of the Prudential Finance Corp. affair.

And opposition parties are expected to press the government to proclaim the Securities Act passed by the last session. The act gives added protection to investors.

Leslie Rowntree, minister of financial and commercial affairs, said Friday that he hopes the long-awaited Securities Act will be proclaimed law within the next few days.

In a speech to the Marine Club of Toronto, he warned that the government intends to crack down on shady business dealers. Ontario's securities legislation is as good as any in North America, he said, and many recent failures of financial companies resulted partly from dishonesty. His department will review current legislation and determine what additional controls are needed.

Mr. Rowntree, who took over the new department Nov. 24, has hired the accounting firm of Clarkson Gordon and Co. to help the Ontario Securities Commission investigate the collapse of Prudential Finance and a number of its subsidiaries.

Mr. Rowntree expects an legislative report on the $29,000,000 collapse early in March.

U.S. Defends Its Ottawa Envoy

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. state department reacted sharply Saturday to reported Canadian criticism of Ambassador W. Walton Butterworth and braced for fresh developments early this week in the Mercantile Bank dispute.

An old bogey — Canadian sensitivity about U.S. restrictions on American - owned firms in Canada—was also alive again. This time, it involved efforts by some U.S. organizations to send medicinal supplies to North Vietnam via Canada without the special permission the U.S. says is required.

The Mercantile affair received its first major public airing here Saturday with a Washington Post dispatch from Ottawa.

It said "angered" top Canadian leaders feel Butterworth has been "throwing his weight around" and has been "unhandled" in his role.

Two state department statements strongly defended Butterworth as strictly following instructions rather than making policy.

Twice last year, the department strongly protested Canadian plans for curb operations of the Mercantile Bank of Montreal. It was purchased in 1963 by the First City Bank of New York and is the only American-owned bank in Canada.

The notes said curbs would be retroactive discrimination despite Canadian contentions that then - finance minister Walter Gordon had warned before the sale that such steps might be taken.

Prime Minister Pearson has sounded a "no retreat" decision on the matter.

U.S. officials deny Canada has been threatened with retaliation.

LBJ Pictured as Man of Violence

Symbolic Deer-hunting Story Deleted From Book on Kennedy

NEW YORK (AP)—The first chapter of the book, The Death of a President, was tossed out at the insistence of advisers to the Kennedy family because it pictured President Johnson as "a man of violence," a source close to the family said today.

The source made the statement as controversy over the book about the assassination of President John F. Kennedy flared anew after author William Manchester charged that Senator Robert F. Kennedy wanted to "shred and emasculate" the book for political reasons.

Manchester was not immediately available for comment on the counter-charge made by the source close to the Kennedy family. The author was reported on an extended vacation at an undisclosed location.

The Kennedy source said:

The whole first chapter was a deer hunting scene in Texas. It showed Johnson as a man of violence who lived to kill deer and would force others to do the same.

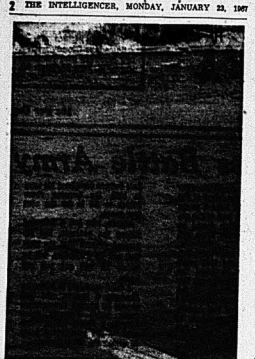
"It seemed to set symbolic overtones which were unjust and inaccurate. It seemed an attempt to make this (the chapter) the symbolic framework for the whole book, which was unjust and disastrous.

"It had nothing to do with the assassination since it occurred three years before the assassination, right after the election of President Kennedy. It pictured President Kennedy as a man reluctant to do this (kill deer), a much more gentle figure."

President Kennedy and Johnson went hunting on the LBJ Ranch Nov. 17, 1960, the period after the election and prior to the inauguration. It was Kennedy's first deer hunt and he shot two bucks.

It was learned that the Kennedy family and other persons close to the family felt so strongly about other passages that Manchester refused to discard that they insisted their names be deleted from the author's list of acknowledgments of persons from whom he received vital information.

Manchester's views on the controversy came in a series of interviews with the New York Times at his home in Middletown, Conn., and with Newsweek magazine, prior to his leaving on vacation. The Times' interviews were published in today's editions. The Newsweek interview will appear in the Jan. 30 issue.



Fishermen Parked Car and Trailer at Dam Before Taking to Open Water

Searchers Still Dragging Trent River

TRENTON, — Searchers today were still hopefully dragging an open pool in the Trent River here today for the bodies of two Toronto fishermen who drowned Saturday.

However, officials here feared the bodies of Victor Varab and Andrew Buros already may have been washed below the river's ice surface, east of No. 1 water-control dam where their boat capsized in a fast-flowing undertow.

A third man, Leslie Kira, 38, was allowed to return home Saturday after treatment for shock and exposure after he battled freezing water and swift currents to swim ashore.

Meantime, the focus of the tragedy was turning on the frustration of police and firemen attempting to rescue one of the victims who clung screaming to the upturned craft for about a half-hour.

The man let go the boat in full view of horrified officers on the dam 80 feet away — just as firemen were launching a boat in the river and a rescue helicopter arrived overhead from Canadian Forces Base, Trenton.

This morning Fire Chief Cecil Ellis revealed the men had to be summoned from the home of a friend, Jack Malmloff, who lives about a half-mile from the scene on Elizabeth Street.

The fire department is not equipped with a boat, although, said the chief, "he had put in a request in his past two annual departmental budgets for a craft and motor."

The request was referred to the 1967 hope into the water several times in an effort to reach the men desperately clinging to the craft, shouting for rescue.

"But," said an onlooker, "although the rope was within his reach, he seemed unable to grasp it firmly so rescuers could haul him to safety."

Cause of the mishap was not immediately known, although one theory given by an onlooker was that the anchor line of the boat may have become snarled in the motor.

A day operator at the nearby town filtration plant said the three men had regularly fished the spot in recent weekends and that he had warned them it was dangerous.

Temperature of the water was estimated at 32 degrees.

The lone survivor, Kira, told police he was pulled under-water several times by the current. Finally he reached calm water and made his way ashore where he was found by a passerby.

Attack Leader On Pearl Harbor Now Missionary

Captain Mitsuo Fuchido at 64 is still leading missions, only the nature of those missions has changed considerably.

Twenty-five years ago, the Japanese officer led the bombing attack on Pearl Harbor. Today, as a Christian Evangelist, he's fighting a different kind of battle.

Captain Fuchido will be in Belleville Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Christian and Mission Army Alliance Church.

He says, "My life is a miracle, it was saved so many times."

After the war ended, the captain went back to farming. One day while standing on the platform of a railway station, a missionary handed him a pamphlet which so inspired him that he turned to the Church as his life work.

He was recently in Hawaii for the shooting of a film on the attack of Pearl Harbor and his own later conversion to Christianity. Evangelist Billy Graham said that such a film could be "one of the greatest stories that could be portrayed on film and could affect many lives."

Planes Will Carry Force To Alaska

TRENTON — Transport planes from Air Transport Command at the Trenton Air Base will be busy for the next few days ferrying troops from Canada's Mobile Command at Quebec City to Alaska where they will engage in exercises with USA forces of the Alaska command.

Eight giant Hercules transports and one Yukon aircraft are taking part in the troop movement to Nielson in Southern Alaska.

The operation, dubbed "Frontier Assault", is to test joint operating procedures and equipment under Arctic conditions.

The men will be returned to Quebec City during the period February 10th to the 20th.

Information Officer Squadron Leader D. Myles McMillan of Trenton, will make the flight to Alaska today.

Gangrene Contributing Factor: Pathologist

The pathologist who examined the body of an Ottawa woman, alleged to have died as a result of a criminal abortion procured by Belleville chiropractor Robert Allen Wyatt, testified today that gangrene of the womb was a factor contributing to her death.

Dr. George Hamilton Anderson, assistant pathologist at Ottawa Civic Hospital since 1961, who performed a post-mortem on 31-year-old Mrs. Gertrude Tracey, was the first witness called by Crown Attorney John Pringle at Mr. Wyatt's preliminary hearing in Belleville today.

Dr. Anderson said erosions at the mouth of the womb would have been consistent with interference by an instrument passed through the uterine wall.

He testified before Magistrate T. V. Wills there was no evidence of any pre-existing disease that might lead to death.

The post-mortem was performed approximately three hours after the arrival of Mrs. Tracey was in her 12th week of pregnacy.

Mr. Wyatt, 66, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter at his Applewood Drive residence Nov. 18. He was released on $50,000 property bail.

Mrs. Tracey, a Jamaican who had resided in Canada about six or seven years, was a nurse at Ottawa Civic Hospital.

Toronto lawyer Malcolm Robb, formerly of Belleville, who is acting as Mr. Wyatt's defence counsel, told Magistrate Wills at the outset of today's proceedings that an Ottawa doctor whose name was vital to the defence case had not been available for service with a summons to appear in the hearing.

He said that the man, a Dr. Beattie, had apparently moved out of his office - residence and left no forwarding address.

Flag Project Announced

Canadian Centennial year will be a "banner" year for members of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville, who will be promoting the flag theme of '67 with a unique club project.

Club members are taking orders from industries, stores, merchants, groups, or private citizens who would like to purchase Centennial flags and banners of diverse colors and sizes. Proceeds from those sales will be used by Kiwanians to finance a suitable Centennial memorial in the Fry property park on Cannifton Road, at present being developed by the Kiwanis, in co-operation of the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs.

J. H. A. "Jim" Law, chairman of the project, said this week that flags suitable for any location are available at reasonable prices from stub members, or may be ordered by phone from the Kiwanis Centre on Dundas St. East.

The flags, ranging in size from 6" x 10" up to 55" x 96", can be attractively displayed in store windows, desks, on boats or car antennae, on building tops, or even on that old standby, the flagpole.

Confidence Men Operating

Belleville police today issued a warning, specifically aimed at elderly residents, that confidence men could be operating in the area.

The warning follows two abortive attempts late last week to swindle persons of their bank savings in Napanee and Kingston.

Both attempts failed when the would-be victims refused to credit the stories proffered by the swindlers.

In neither case, however, police were not called in time to apprehend the tricksters, say officers.

Detective Inspector Harold Reid said the con men are operating on the traditional pattern:

Elderly people are approached by the men, posing as bank inspectors enlisting their aid to snare a supposedly suspect bank clerk. The victims are asked to withdraw their savings and hand them over to the "inspectors" for marking. Neither the men or the money are ussually seen again.

Inspector Reid has asked that any Quinte district dwellers approached with stories in a similar pattern, to immediately call police.

Officers Feted on Retirement

TRENTON — It's back to "civvy street" this week for 10 officers of the Air Transport Command at Trenton who are retiring with a total of 213 years service to their credit.

Saturday evening Commander G. G. Diamond of the Armed Forces Base at Trenton hosted a retirement dinner at the officers' mess in honor of the 10 officers. The men were presented with mementoes in recognition of their long service with the RCAF and Air Transport Command.

Eight of the 10 retiring officers attended the dinner. They were Group Captain Norm a Anderson, Wing Commander Tom Benson and Bill Wiltshire, Squadron Leaders Charles Allen and Fred Lodlam and Flight Lieutenants D. Inglis, Keith Taylor and Lorne Williams.

Unable to attend were Sq. Ldr. Bronk and Flt. Lt. Waldwin.

Interesting item: Benefits of the Pension Act now apply to the Regular Forces who are serving or who have served outside Canada in two more special services areas in addition to those covered by legislation effective in July, 1965. When death or disability is incurred during service in Korea after Nov. 1, 1950 or in the area 20 miles on each side of the international border between Idaho and West Pakistan after Sept. 28, 1965, the insurance principle of the Pension Act applies to members of the peace time forces and their dependents. Termination dates of such service shall be fixed by the Governor in Council.

Eligibility has been modified for Kashmir and includes Kashmir and Jammu and the adjacent area enclosed by a circle of one hundred miles from the centre which is Rawalpindi. The commencement date for such service remains January 18, 1960.

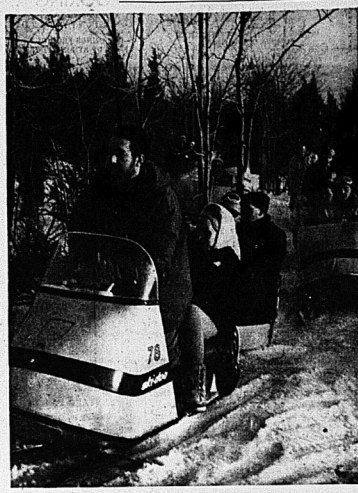
Sleigh Ride --New Style

One way to have fun and take the family along is shown by snowmobiler Freeman Holgate. While eldest boy Brian rides up front, Debora and Terrance trail behind in sled.



On the Trail!..

Breaking the trail at first meeting of newest district sports club, Gary MacDonald and wife Marion lead fellow members through Massassaga bush.

Mush Shout Riders

MASSASAGA — The Snowmobile – the husky little runabout which has outrun the traditional dog - team for winter trail travel – has mushed into its organized own in the Quinte district.

To prove the point more than 50 men and women joined here Sunday for the first outdoors meet of the Quinte Snowmobile Club.

While the focus was mainly on fun, time also was devoted to demonstrating the versatility of the snowmobile as trail - breaker, with club members crunching across the drift - buried surrounding countryside.

After a tour of Massassaga Point, the club returned to its starting campsite to break the day with a hot steak-and-potatoes lunch.

The meal over, members clambered back aboard their snowmobiles and challenged each other in a series of races down the Bay of Quinte.

How to Get A Hotfoot!

Lunch break brings welcome warmth for Mrs. Daisy Matthews and Mrs. Bernice McCendie, here thawing out cold feet.

Mild Weather to Continue

Warm weather mushed into the Quinte district over the weekend, dogging the tracks of the winter's coldest freeze-over.

The aftermath was a study in contrasts as the thaw turned snow and ice into slush across the area.

The Department of Lands and Forests today issued a warning against travelling on lakes in the regions.

"Until we have another three or four days of zero weather, they're going to stay unsafe," warned one official.

The mildness melted snows down to 13 inches deep at Palmer Rapids in the northern townships to a minimum inch at Outlet Park in Prince Edward County.

The weather office at Canadian Forces Base Trenton, reported the overnight low was only 34 degrees above in the Belleville-Trenton area while Sunday's high was 41 degrees.

One of the warmer spots in the region was also the coldest last week.

At Bancroft, where temperatures dropped to 35 below early Wednesday, last night's low was 42 above, recorded by the Department of Lands and Forests.

Weather predictions from Trenton call for "continuing mild" weather for the next few days.

Behind the "Glass"

A Quinte rink of Jim Stewart, Ken Monson, Wil Weymark with Neville Burroughs as skip won the Colts playoffs at the Quinte Curling Club rink on Sunday. There were four clubs entered, Canadian Forces Base, Napanee, Stirling and Quinte. The convener was Fred Maund, president of the Quinte Club.

In the first game Paul O'Dwyer skip of the CFB rink won over a rink from Napanee skipped by R. Wartman 9-4, while the Quinte rink defeated a Stirling entry skipped by Claude Trumble 20-5. In the final game, the playoffs being a knockout draw the Quinte rink defeated the CFB rink by a score of 11-4, the game being called at the end of the 10th end.

This series is for curlers with seven years or less. The playoffs for this district will be held at Napanee on February 14th, and will be a two-out-of-three series.

The playoffs in the Rose Bowl opened at the Trenton Curling Club this morning under the direction of Neal Ramsay. There are six teams entered, Napanee, Quinte Curling Club, CFB, Trenton, Brighton, and Marmora. This is a mixed rink competition and the Quinte rink will have Fred and Wyn Maund with Ernie and Connie Wilkinson. There will be four teams competing this morning and Quinte and Marmora drew byes to even the draw. Due to the large number of rinks entered the event will be a knockout draw. The Quinte rink won the club final last week and should give the rest of the rink a real struggle in the playoffs.

PlanContest At Albert

Most of the time, students are supposed to be listening rather than speaking, but not tomorrow night at Albert College.

The occasion?

Area finals of the Ontario Public Speaking Contest, with contestants expected from Napanee, Albert, Quinte, Moira, Centennial and BCI.

Contestants are judged both on a prepared speech and an impromptu speech. Judges are Rev. A. Lavis, J. D. Templeman and L. F. Radonicich.

The contest is sponsored jointly by the Ontario School Trustees' and Municipal Councillors' Association, the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario and the Belleville Public Utilities Commission.

The contest opens at 7:45 p.m.

Mrs. Ruth Anne Mintz of Moira compares six-ounce egg monstrosity laid by her mother's pullet with ordinary "medium" egg weighing two ounces.

Double or Nothing

Ordinary double yoked eggs are not exactly uncommon, but a Moira district poultry raiser has a flock of hens which seem to want to go one better.

Mrs. Ruth Mintz has a White Rock pullet which lays two complete eggs at a time—one inside the other.

The six-months old pullet first laid her first monstrosity about a week ago and then late last week come up with another.

Both eggs weighed an even six ounces and when broken were found to have a second hard shelled egg inside them.

The Mintz family have the ordinary double yoked eggs almost every morning for breakfast.

Quinte Curling Club Rink Wins Invitation Bonspiel

The brooms have been cracked, the visitors have departed and the Centennial Week celebration in connection with the 100th anniversary of Confederation at the Quinte Curling Club has passed into history and president Fred Maund, his directors, and the general committee can take a bow for a job well done. Congratulations poured in from all sides from the visitors about the excellent hospitality, the fine arrangements and the good curling that was thoroughly enjoyed.

The honor of winning the Invitation Spiel went to a Quinte Curling Club rink of Al McCallam, Dr. McCorquodale, Bill Riley with Ron Benn as skip. This rink defeated 23 other rinks from every part of the Province and the United States. A rink of George Peters, Vince Gallipeau, Wayne Oaks and Mel Sjostrom as skip of the RCAF was in second place and another Quinte rink of I. Hilborn, Doug Bennett, Jim Burgess with Stan Reston was in third place.

The two-game high was won by a rink of C. Hepburn, A. Hamblin, F. Waites with Don Stanton as skip from Picton and in second place in that category Bruce Alexander, John Buchan, J. Putch with Bob Alexander of Quinte as skip, while Joe Gurowka of Dixie with D. Mackey, K. Ingo, and T. Mowat was in third place.

In the one-game high category a Quinte rink of Everett Adamson, Bruce Parsons, Fred Maund and Ernie Wilkinson as skip had top score and followed by another Quinte rink of D. Mahoney, Jim Stewart, "Godie" Livingston with Bill Holmes as skip. In third place was another Belleville rink of Dr. Bill Beattie, Dr. Jim Nelles, Bob Lanning with Dr. Jim Loynes as skip. The curling showed that members of the local rink can hold up their end against the best curlers in the Province. Bob Lanning was master of ceremonies at the distribution of the prizes and incidentally they were well worth winning.

The visitors were loath to leave and a fine social hour was held at the conclusion of the games on Saturday night. The Women's section is to be congratulated on the fine refreshments served during the spiel.

BRIGHTON, England (AP)— The heels of a teen-age boy were found Sunday in a shallow grave near this south coast resort, setting off a murder hunt. Police immediately sought links with the killing of another teenager whose dismembered body was discovered in two suitcases near the east coast port of Ipswich last week.

Tory Manoeuvres

Politics being what they are, the current manoeuvering of rival factions in the Conservative Party comes as no surprise.

Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker's call for an early leadership convention has caught his rivals, including Party President Dalton Camp (whose idea it was in the first place) off guard.

Mr. Camp is quoted as saying he hopes the convention will be held in Montreal after Expo concludes on October 24. This would not only give the anti-Diefenbaker faction time to prepare, it would also be to the advantage of leadership candidates such as Davie Fulton, George Hees, and "dark horse" John Robarts. The latter in particular, still likely have a provincial election out of the way by the fall, and the others doubtless would prefer to have the coming months free to sound out their supporters before facing such a convention.

Diefenbaker supporters on the other hand are looking for a quick kill, either on his own behalf or that of a possible successor if he should decide to step down.

Former defence minister Gordon Churchill, one of Mr. Diefenbaker's closest friends, says he favors an April convention in his home city of Winnipeg. This would be a favorable choice for the Diefenbaker side because of its proximity to the Prairies which is the Conservative leader's home region and political bastion.

This is a battle between the "old guard" of the Conservative Party and the younger members concentrated mainly in the east. The elements that will count in the convention are timing and location — in other words regional atmosphere and the degree of support to be found there.

New World Theories

Madoc Ad Owalin Gwynedd was his full name. He was a Welshman, and the village to the north of us is one which takes its name from this little-known but none the less illustrious explorer of an earlier day.

Madoc is currently the subject of speculation by British historian Richard Deacon that he (and not Christopher Columbus, let alone Leif Ericson) was the first to discover America.

Deacon, in a book to be published next month, believes Madoc arrived in the New World on the shores of Mobile Bay in what is now Alabama, about the year 1170.

The book offers astonishing proof of the author's contention in the fact that Indians of this southern region today speak a language akin to Welsh.

According to Mr. Deacon the Welshman sailed from Rhos-on-Sea in North Wales and landed near Mobile, Alabama. He returned to his homeland and then pushed off again, the second time from Lundy, an island in the Bristol Channel. Making landfall once again in the American south, Madoc went up the Alabama River and other streams and disappeared in the wilds of present-day Tennessee.

Descendants of these Celtic mariners are what the writer describes as Welsh Indians, speaking a language sprinkled with Welsh words and sentences of Welsh construction.

Of the recent Vinland map relating to a possible landing by Vikings on the coast of Newfoundland, Deacon says: "It does not prove that Leif Ericson discovered America — despite Yale University's claims that the map was made some 50 years before Columbus' voyage in 1492."

Mr. Deacon considers other possibilities, including a theory that it is all simply legend, a story put out by Prince Madoc "through jealousy of Columbus." But he thinks not. And today the Daughters of the American Revolution have even erected a marker commemorating Madoc's landing on Alabama's Gulf of Mexico.

Like St. Patrick in a still earlier time, Madoc got around. Yet, when people think of Wales they think of it not as a country that had much to do with global explorations back in the mists of time. If we think that is fair Wales seems to project itself as a land of warring and fiercely independent tribes — and in more recent times associated with coal mining, choral societies, the Eisteddfod — and Richard Burton!

But Wales is much more than that. Indeed, as explorers the Welsh belie any notion of their race being an insular one. There is, for example, that other settlement of Welsh ranchers, established in more recent times in Patagonia, in the southernmost reaches of Argentina. Just as the Irish and the Scots, as well as the English, have helped to people Latin America, the Welsh more than any can claim this remote region as their own.

There is another aspect of this theme which intrigues us. Why is it that the people of India, not to mention some West Indians, speak English with a Welsh accent? Is there some link there too?

Strictly Personal

Their Talents Misplaced

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When my wife's car was stolen not long ago, a brace of detectives came to the house, bearing a large album of photographs of known car thieves. Our first surprise was at the number of them; our second was at their youth. Most of them looked well under 20.

"Now here's a fellow," one of the detectives said, "who's just about the best auto thief in the city." There was more than a trace of admiration in his voice as he added: "This lad can strip a car clean in less than 30 minutes."

"Are there many that good?" I asked.

"Quite a few," he nodded. "You know, a lot of these boys are first-rate mechanics, and don't even know it. They can remove a motor transmission from a car, on a cold night, with gloves on, faster than a trained mechanic can do it on a rack with all the proper tools."

I imagine they could earn a fine salary as mechanics, I said.

"They sure could," he said. "In fact, they could make about five times as much working around cars as they do stealing them — because the people they fence the parts to don't give them much over 10 percent.

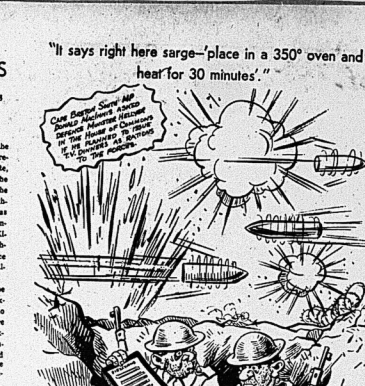
Without meaning to, this detective had confirmed what I had long held in print about most so-called "criminals." To believe that they steal for gain is a shallow and mechanistic attitude; nor do they steal because they don't believe in "hard work" — what they do is incredibly hard work, only they happen to love it.

Except for the feeble-minded and the sociopaths (and there are mainly the ones who get caught) professional thieves do not steal for gain, or because they are lazy, on for any other obvious reason. They steal for revenge, whether they know it or not. They steal because they want to get back at society for real or fancied injuries — in most cases, injuries sustained in early family life.

This is why punishment, of the conventional prison kind, is futile. The thief doesn't mind being punished, because his sentence only adds to the deep resentment he already has against society; he gets back at her to ramify and justify his stealing when he gets out. Prison only proves to him that he was right all along in his attitude.

These "good thieves" are quite courageous, imaginative and energetic. The one quality they lack is the proper motivation to turn their talents in a socially desirable direction. Until we learn to instill the proper motivation; it makes little difference how long and in what manner we set them up or put them go, for neither leniency nor harshness will change them.

"It says right here sarge—'place in a 350° oven and heat for 30 minutes'."



To Your Good Health

Salt a Necessary Factor In Diet of Healthy Person

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: When dieting, is it necessary to eliminate salt from your foods? — P. T.

Not unless you mean a low-salt diet.

If you mean a diet to lose weight, then eliminating salt may mean that less water will accumulate in your body, so you lose a little apparent weight. Yet a healthy body needs salt, so after a time you get back to normal salt intake, and promptly you return to a normal water level — and the "lost" pounds come right back.

Many "crash" diets tell you not to eat salt, but that is because the people who make up these diets want to show that you can "lose" a number of pounds in a few days. It makes for fads as though the diet were more effective than it really is.

A low-salt diet is quite another matter. It is used when an illness of some sort causes the body to retain too much water. Such ailments as heart disease, kidney or liver disorders are typical of conditions calling for limiting your salt.

For a healthy person, whether trying to lose weight or not, salt restriction is neither necessary nor good for you.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would high blood pressure cause temper tantrums in a man of 78, or do they indicate some other high blood pressure? Should such a man be allowed to drive a car?

He is also very hard of hearing. — I. R.

The emotional upsets — the tantrums — undoubtedly raise his blood pressure. Whether continued high blood pressure has caused some brain damage which might contribute to the tantrums is hard to say.

I can't answer the bit about driving, but his doctor should be able to help.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am almost deaf. Two years ago I was sent to an ear specialist. He said an operation would restore most of my hearing.

I was going ahead but my relatives scared me out of it. I have decided to have it done against their wishes, but if it didn't turn out successfully I would never hear the end of it.

What do you think? — B.

Surgery helps some, can't help others — but specialists can tell with accuracy which is which. So what are you waiting for?

Dear Dr. Molner: Will a teaspoon of olive oil taken with meals digest as food or might it remain as oil and enter the bloodstream? I have taken it to help heal an ulcer but was warned against it. — J. M. L.

The oil will be digested.

Note to Mrs. E. R.: What you do not mention, if you do not seem to know, is that by surgery (vasectomy) on the male pregnancy can be prevented and that a great deal of work is being done already on medication for men, a "male birth control pill." It is not yet ready for use, but considerable progress has been reported.

Nigeria Seeks Stability

Ottawa Journal

The Nigerian High Commission in Ottawa sent out "for immediate release" on Jan. 15 a booklet with a bright cover called "Nigeria 1966." It might well have been laid aside for future reading as a pleasant, tourist-literature type of publication, but there was attached a mimeographed statement explaining that it was issued by the Federal Military Government and adding:

"For the first time, too, mention is made of the death of Major-General Johnson Aguiyi-Ironsi and Lt.-Col. Fajuyi, former Military Governor of Western Nigeria, following their abduction in July 1966."

Thus the first official news that Aguiyi-Ironsi was dead. It had been hoped he had survived after being deposed in July. In the same way it was hoped, after the first Nigerian mutiny in January, 1966 that the urbane and learned Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa had survived; but he, too, died in violence.

The new head of military government, Lt. - Col. Yakubu Gowon, sounds modest enough. The booklet refers to him as "cautious, fearless, God-fearing, dedicated and not without a sense of humor as essential for good judgment. He has no history of violence, has been staying in power and understands the gravity of the onerous and despairing task that has been thrust upon his young shoulders."

Reading that, the distant observer is left with deepening regret for changes and disorders which prevent Nigeria being a model of stability to free Africa. However able the young officers in a military government may be, that has at least been postponed.

CWL Stand On Divorce

Victoria Times

The Catholic Women's League of Canada merits commendation for the clear enunciation it has made of its views on divorce.

"While we do not believe in divorce ourselves," says a submission made by the League to the parliamentary committee considering the subject, "we cannot expect the laws of this country to be used in such a manner as to prevent those who, unlike ourselves, do not believe that marriage is monogamous and indissoluble, from acting in accordance with their own religious convictions."

The Catholic Women's League of Canada is not the first group within that denomination to express this opinion. But it has a stature which should carry weight with Members of Parliament.

Don't Lose That Credit Card

Regina Leader-Post

More than $20 million will be lost in Canada and the United States in 1967 to a new kind of thief, the credit card crook, says the U. S. National Better Business Bureau.

At present about 20 million Canadian and Americans carry one or more credit or charge account cards, and 1.5 million of their credit cards are reported lost or stolen monthly. In the latter category, the number stolen is estimated to range up to 300,000.

"Few credit card holders are really aware of how valuable their cards can be," says Kenneth B. Wilson, president of the bureau. "The man who is careful with $10 bills will scarcely give a thought to his credit card until it turns up missing and somebody else has decided to run up charges in his name."

In one case, three Long Island housewives "bought" $16,000 worth of merchandise with stolen cards on a month-long spree. A gambler from Pittsburgh "set up a nationwide tab of $125,000 on other people's cards. He raised cash on the side by peddling discounted airline tickets charged to credit cards mislaid by their rightful owners.

A thief need not even risk using a stolen charge card. Reportedly, a "hot" card can be sold for as much as $250 in some of the large cities. Merchants have accepted like cash and few people bother to scrutinize signatures.

In the U.S. states have ruled the holder of a card must pay for purchases made in his name up until the time he reports its loss to the card-issuing firm. Some insurance companies now write policies to cover card holders against such liability.

The Better Business Bureau advises credit card holders to take these steps:

Notify the issuer of loss immediately. Telephone or wire and then follow up with a letter.

Never lend a credit card.

Destroy all out-of-date cards and unsolicited cards received in the mail which you don't intend to use.

Make sure your card is returned after each purchase.

Take as much care of your credit card as you would a signed blank check on your bank account.

Brain Drain From Britain

Hamilton Spectator

London is the scene of another operation to drain Britain of its best young brains. Some 700 scientists, engineers and computer programmers are being interviewed during the next 10 days by 30 officials of one Canadian and six American firms.

Of those interviewed, about 70 will be hired, according to the organizer of Careers, Inc.

This is sad news for Britain, already hard hit economically. It is particularly disheartening news because, as a spokesman for Careers, Inc. said, "We don't want Britain's really famous scientists — we want their sons."

In the face of bitter criticism of the raid by British newspapers, the spokesman continued: "Perhaps it will wake up Britain. We are draining this country of some of its most promising talent."

It reminds you of all the big British companies that placed Canadian papers by American firms.

Cong Let U.S. "Songbirds" Go

Vancouver Sun

Following the disastrous defeat of the Athenian naval expedition against Syracuse, some 2,300 years ago, many captive Athenians were able to escape being sold into slavery because of their ability to recite Euripides to enthusiastic Syracusan audiences. The story appears in one of the literary taste of victors and vanquished. Alas, it did not set a precedent. Many Americans are the Syracusans, living so far from Athens, were somewhat starved for high culture.

What can be said for the musical taste of the Viet Cong and their two American civilian prisoners, told recently by Associated Press from South Vietnam? The prisoners, plumbers both, were asked to sing by their captors. They gave them Jingle Bells and My Wild Irish Rose.

Not very high on the hit-parade, but certainly not Top Forty Hit-Circuit. And the plumbers admitted they are lousy singers. Yet the enemy let them go.

Perhaps it could be said that in this the Viet Cong showed a discriminating taste more in the Syracusan devotees of Euripides. They did not, at least demand "protest" songs. We are not sure. They got, no doubt, a fair sample of what America can bathtub singing is like.

Possibly they decided that these two musicians could do more good for the North Vietnamese war effort back in Saigon than in Hanoi. It would seem as this inhibits us from making a really useful suffocation that the Americans could soothe a lot of savage breasts by parachuting a squad or two of rock 'n roll singers upon the enemy.

The English—Bloody But Unbowed!

Pat Whealen in The Windsor Star

One of the things that seemed to pass almost unnoticed during the late holiday season was the decline and fall of England, an event that at any other time would have occasioned some comment.

England fell from a variety of causes: a severe economic crisis which was a new and unsurmountable experience, the traditional lack of energy and moral fibre in the British people, the lack of adaptability in both quaint but futile parliamentary system, an article in Life Magazine, remarks by a few expatriate Englishmen, and the complete moral decay symbolized by the miniskirt, the Beatles, and the extension of hours for the pubs.

I was a bit sorry to see England go down the drain, and I suppose quite a few others were, too. But there's no use crying over spilled milk. And besides, it has all happened before.

England was doomed back in the days of the Spanish Armada, when that great naval war against an England whose unpreparedness was highlighted by the British Admiral's being busy bowling. The Spanish Conquest is history.

England was doomed at the time of Napoleon, when that military genius walked through the opposition like Moses to the leaders, Nelson and Wellington. It took England a long time to recover from the French Conquest.

England was doomed in 1914, when the Kaiser unleashed his efficient forces against what even he called a contemptible little army. England never did recover from what was known as the First Great War.

England was doomed in 1940, when Joseph P. Kennedy reported to Franklin D. Roosevelt the obvious truth that the British were too effete to stop Hitler. Subsequent events went down in history as the Second German Conquest.

And now, England is doomed again, indeed has already fallen. It's not surprising, to those who know the dismal record of the past. But it is a matter of great interest, considering how long they have been trying.

It's lucky for the rest of the world that the diseases that killed England haven't spread to infect other countries. There may be a few traces of English influence left in a few backward and obscure countries, but the strong or progressive country do they pay the slightest attention to. Russia and China, the Japanese as the miniskirt, parliament, the Beatles, democracy, the British stiff upper lip, compression, long hair, and integrity.

Well, the English were warned, and chose to ignore the warning. As long ago as 1940, an eminent historian and philosopher named Hitler warned that England would soon have her neck wrung like a chicken's. Too bad he isn't around to see his prophecy finally come true, for he tried as hard as anyone to doom England.

The stubborn English, unfortunately, have a peculiar way of confounding the prophets of doom.

Canada One of Leaders in Controlling Consumer Prices

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada's ability to keep consumer prices down is relatively good, the National Industrial Conference Board said Sunday in a prepared statement.

In the 1949-65 period France's consumer or "cost of living" prices increased 132 per cent, Sweden's 89 per cent, Japan's 87 per cent, England's 83 per cent and Italy's 80 per cent.

Canada's relatively small increase of 39 per cent, over the same period, is described as good. Only the United States and West Germany registered smaller increases with rises of 32 and 30 per cent respectively.

The NICB statement, prepared by assistant economist Zoltan Zanyi, said the "primary cause of Canada's recent creeping inflation is the soaring cost of services."

In the 10-year period between 1955 and 1965 automobile insurance jumped 85 per cent; prepaid medical care 56 per cent; per cent; haircuts and hairdressing 61 per cent; and theatre admissions 58 per cent.

But prices of goods rose modestly—automobiles cost only 10 per cent more, clothing is up between four and 15 per cent and some durables, such as electric appliances and television sets, are down in price.

Food — accounting for more than a quarter of the average consumer's budget — showed a 21 - per - cent increase. This is only slightly more than Canada's national price barometer, the Consumer Price Index, which rose by 19 per cent.

Some of the foods showing the greatest increases were cereal products, beef and pork, fruit and vegetables. Dairy products, by comparison, rose only 14 per cent.

"The recent acceleration in price increases reflects some inflationary pressures which typically arise in the late stages of a vigorous expansion," which began in 1961, the statement said.

"Effects of the increases have been reinforced by a number of special factors, such as the devaluation of the Canadian dollar in 1962, rising indirect taxes, introduction of the Canada and Quebec pension plans and world-wide shortages of certain primary metals.

"These special factors have all contributed to the . . . adverse price developments, but they would have exerted an upward pressure on the price level even if domestic inflationary pressures had been totally absent," it said.

Five Countries Agree to Ease Spiralling Interest Rates

LONDON (AP)—In an effort to ease the cost of borrowing for their businesses and people, finance ministers of five major Western nations agreed Sunday night to co-operate to lower interest rates.

James Callaghan, Britain's chancellor of the exchequer, called the two-day conference with his colleagues from the United States, France, West Germany and Italy in an effort to achieve "a measure of disarmament" in the competition for money.

The ministers issued a cautiously worded communique agreeing "within the limits of their respective responsibilities to co-operate in such a way as to enable interest rates in their respective countries to be lower than they would otherwise be."

No date was set for cuts in interest rates, but one delegate explained that at least there was an improvement in the atmosphere, which had come close to an international rate war.

"You know now that if you start doing something, the roof won't fall in," he said.

It is hoped that co-operative efforts to lower or stabilize the interest rates will halt the flow of money from one country to another in pursuit of higher rates and produce more and cheaper credit in the home countries.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank interest rate now is 4½ per cent—the highest in years.

The Bank of England's lending rate has been at the emergency level of seven per cent since last summer's economic crisis, but Britain hopes to relax the credit squeeze now that the worst of the crisis appears to be over. How soon it can be done depends on export figure.

You can take steps now that will help your son or daughter throughout life. London Life explains below.

A report from London Life:

What the expectant mother should know about life insurance

Motherhood is a world of love. Life insurance is a world of facts. At first glance they seem far apart, but a second look brings them together. London Life reveals some facts that will probably surprise you.

YOU MAY NOT REALIZE how much you depend upon your husband and his income—until a baby comes. Then you must stop and think:

(1) If your husband should die unexpectedly, how much money would you need each month—and for how many years—to care for your family properly? Whatever the amount, a London Life policy can guarantee it for you.

(2) As well as protecting you year after year, London Life permanent insurance builds savings. These savings are an unusually good investment. Your London Life policy is not affected by market fluctuations. It is just as safe as high-grade bonds and much safer than most common stocks.

(3) If your husband buys a $10,000 London Life Jubilee whole life policy now, he can have quite substantial savings at age 65. For example, if he is now 25 years old, and in good health, he may purchase this policy for $13.09 a month. At age 65 there will be a guaranteed cash value in his policy of $5,580 and about $8,590 in dividends. Twice as much as he has paid in premiums. (Based on the current dividend scale and assuming dividends are left to accumulate.)

(4) Since the amount allotted to dividends is based on the Company's earnings, dividends cannot be guaranteed. However for many years, London Life's record of earnings has been outstanding so the return on profit-sharing policies has been excellent.

(5) The London Life Insurance Company operates only in Canada. One reason London Life premiums are low is because Canadians, on the average, are long lived.

(6) Dividends to policyowners are high because, among other things, the Company invests wisely and profitably in Canada. Interest rates are higher in Canada than in most other industrialized countries.

(7) Don't think for a minute that your husband must write one annual cheque to buy life insurance. He can buy a London Life policy on a monthly budget plan.

(8) If a financial emergency comes along, your husband can borrow from London Life on the cash value of his policy. The interest rate is comparable with banks' regular lending rates and much lower than personal loan companies'. Repay when convenient.

(9) For about the cost of a new permanent each year, your husband can add a special feature to his $10,000 London Life policy. If he should become disabled and unable to work for a period of six months or more, London Life will pay premiums falling due during the period of disability. For an additional premium, London Life will guarantee to pay him a monthly income, after the six months' waiting period, while he continues to be disabled.

(10) For about $7.50 a month you can buy your baby a $10,000 London Life Jubilee whole life policy. When he completes his education and takes over the premiums, he'll still pay this same low rate.

(11) For a small additional outlay on your child's policy, you can guarantee that if your husband should die London Life will pay the premiums until your child reaches age 21.

Know about your husband's insurance. Take an evening to discuss it. Find out what insurance he owns now and where he keeps the policies. Get to know his legal advisor, insurance man and banker. You might tear out this page and talk about it with your husband.

The London Life representative in your community has been schooled to tailor insurance to fit your needs.

Look into London Life—where your insurance is a safe and surprisingly good investment.

Presbyterial WMS Holds Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Kingston Presbyterial Women's Missionary Society was held recently in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville. Upon arrival at the church all were served light refreshments.

The morning session commenced with the call to worship by Mrs. J. Wallace, West Huntingdon. Mrs. W. Donnan and Mrs. H. Thompson, West Huntingdon, had charge of the devotional and the Rev. A. L. Sutherland of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, gave the official welcome. Mrs. John Broatch, Trenton, read the minutes of the 1966 annual meeting.

The delegates to Synodical to be held in Sault Ste. Marie in April were named as follows: Mrs. K. D. Taylor, Belleville, and Mrs. Francis McKee, Kingston, with Mrs. Grant Devolin, Belleville and Mrs. Bert Cook, Stirling, as alternatives. It was also announced that the Toronto and Kingston Synodical are responsible for a portion of the April issue of Glad Tidings, and that secretaries of the auxiliaries should send their groups' Centennial plans to the Presbyterial press secretary not later than Jan. 31. Mrs. H. Keefer, Trenton, took charge of the presentation of the annual reports, and the morning session closed with prayer by Miss Frieda Matthews, of Belleville.

The Belleville group served dinner during the noon recess, and afterwards those present had the opportunity of obtaining literature displayed by Mrs. H. Thompson, West Huntingdon.

AFTERNOON SESSION

The afternoon session began with devotions by Mrs. S. S. Murray and Mrs. F. B. Lauchton of Gananoque. Mrs. John Craig, Belleville, conducted the service of remembrance and a solo was rendered by Mrs. W. Mantle, Belleville.

Mrs. K. D. Taylor, Belleville, introduced the guest speaker for the afternoon, Miss Lois Powrie, Toronto, regional secretary. Miss Powrie encouraged the group to try to do more for their society, stating that the women hold an important place in the church today, and that they should become more comfortable in their pews, but to take a good honest look at themselves and their church and try to accomplish greater things for Christ.

Mrs. G. Lyons, Kingston, thanked Miss Powrie; also all those who had taken a part in the day's program.

The election of officers was conducted by Mrs. V. Weir, Belleville and the Rev. A. L. Sutherland was in charge of the installation service and closed the meeting.

The outfit right is a "mini" dress, with "nude-nylon" neckline and matching hem that reveals frilly panties.

Women Find It Hard to Admit Fault

WINNIPEG (CP) — It's far harder for a woman to admit she is an alcoholic and seek help than it is for a man, says the executive director of the U.S. Council on Alcoholism.

Mrs. Marty Mann of New York, who attended Manitoba's 22nd annual Alcoholics Anonymous Roundup, says society's double standards make it unacceptable for a woman to be drunk in public.

"A woman who cannot control her drinking feels much greater shame and degradation and is more likely to hide away."

Mrs. Mann says it is difficult to estimate the ratio of female to male alcoholics.

"We used to think it was about one in six, then later we estimated one in five. But some doctors claim they see more women than men with this problem. Possibly it is as high as 50-50."

She says the number of potential alcoholics among women is rising simply because more and more are joining the ranks of drinkers.

Face Surgery Clinic Gives People Lift

TORONTO (CP)—The juvenile court sent Jenny to Dr. Harold Silver, head of the plastic surgery clinic at Women's College Hospital.

She had been born with a cleft palate and harelip that had been repaired, but not well. Her face was badly scarred. Her appearance was combined with a bad home in a poor district and Jenny's behavior was getting worse and worse.

After surgery had improved her scarred nose and mouth, Jenny began to take an interest in her appearance and herself. She got a job in a department store and has held it successfully.

Dr. Silver says, "She has been a changed girl. Often when young people feel they are scarred and ugly they lose all interest and do not try to improve themselves as much as they might."

Dr. Silver says he would like to see more surgeons use the help the clinic could give them. When the clinic opened in 1964, the hospital administrator, Dorothy Macham, wrote to social agencies and the department of reformatories to tell them help was available. There have been few takers.

MISSING AWARD

Dr. Silver recalls a nurse at the hospital whose face bore severe burn scars. The unhappy girl made an effort to make friends and rarely spoke.

"We made a pact. I told her we'd change her face if she would lose weight and improve her appearance. We operated, she took off the pounds. Then we got a professional stylist to fix her how to do her hair and apply makeup to cover the remaining scarring. It worked and fine except the hospital lost a nurse. She went off to another city to start a new life."

The clinic works with the dermatology clinic and the dental clinic to help in cases of such afflictions as severe sores or mouth and jaw deformities.

The plastic surgery clinic may be used less than it could because people think nothing can be done for them or because they think plastic surgery must be prohibitively expensive.

Clinic patients must have insurance that will cover costs, but the clinic will not turn away patients who need help because they cannot pay.

U.C.W. Meetings

STONE U.C.W.

The January meeting of Stone Church U.C.W. was held at the home of Mrs. D. Moxam, with a good attendance. The new president Mrs. O. Chisholm opened the meeting with a New Year's reading "The Ten Commandments of Human Relations" stressing the importance of being friendly, considerate and always thoughtful of others. Mrs. G. Evans gave a reading stressing the importance to live each day more fully, for today will be a yesterday, as soon as it's tomorrow.

The topic was "Forward Into 1967". Mrs. Everett Phillips gave a reading.

During the business period the treasurer gave a good report of finance on hand, arrangements were made for the winter quilting. Collection was by Debbie and Denise Rashell. Mrs. Demorest read a Christmas letter from the former pastor and family "The Coopers."

The president closed the meeting and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. D. Moxam the hostess assisted by Mrs. C. Rashell, and Mrs. E. Phillips served refreshments.

Friends Honor Recent Bride

Mrs. Emory Demorest entertained at her home friends and neighbors in honor of Valeria Chisholm, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Chisholm, who was recently married to Corporal Kenneth Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Lee of Sedbury. Songs, games and contests were enjoyed.

Mrs. Demorest read an appropriate address, after which her daughter, Jewell presented a table laden with beautiful gifts.

Valeria responded and expressed appreciation to all her friends. Mrs. Demorest and Miss Jewell Demorest served lunch.

Parents Object to Daughter Working Late Night Shift

Dear Doris: I am 18. My folks are forever nagging at me and I think I'm going to go crazy.

First of all they do not like the idea of my working during the weekend. I love my job as a waitress and I enjoy working with the people at the restaurant. The tips are fun and I'm so at ease there.

The trouble is that I work from 5 p.m. to 2 a.m. Friday and Saturday nights. They do not mind a day shift but don't like me working until 2 a.m. They know I get a ride home, so I can't figure out all the fuss they are making. My mom says it doesn't look right for a girl to come home so late. Gosh, girls my age come home from dates that late.

My Dad says I don't need the money. But I do; I pay my own doctor and dentist bills since my Mom says she'll buy my own clothes. I've never asked them for a penny for spending money. I started working in the summer time. I've even loaned money to them!

What can I do? They are so unreasonable, so old fashioned so European, they make me ill! — Polish Pam

Dear Pam: Even Canadian parents would worry about their girl working until two a.m. The ride home makes you feel safe, but how can they be sure? Some day you may have your own teenage girl to think about — and you will find it is not crystal-clear how to protect her or when to stop!

I'd suggest you talk with the boss about this. If he were to see your parents and assure them of his protection on the job and even to the point of taxis home, this might make a difference.

Whatever happens, be patient with that Mom and Dad. They love you — a love you will probably prise more as the years go by.

Dear Doris: This Christmas, as I was very tired, I had my daughter address all my Christmas cards. One of my friends received hers as Mr. John Black and not Mr. and Mrs. John Black, as it should be, which was a mistake done by my daughter. But the letter was signed as Don, Jeanne and family.

My husband says a mistake could be made and it was not that bad, but I know it wasn't right. My friend was furious about this card and told me off. She asked me if she wasn't alive and what about her children, and she said that all cards should be addressed as "Mr. and Mrs. John Black and family."

Please, Doris, tell me which is the proper way. — Rebuked

Dear Rebuked: The "and family" is often taken for granted. But what kind of a friend is it who presumes to be insulted over the receiving of a Christmas card? Surely the card itself expresses good wishes and friendship!

If question the sincerity of one who so lacks in understanding of a tired friend as to add to her griefs with a petty misfit like this one.

Dear Doris: I've been trying to recall a poem of my childhood days with lines that go like this:

". . . my darting and listen
Then pay for the story with kisses.
Father was lost . . .
In just such a storm as this is."

I believe the title was "A Night With A Wolf". The reading of it would send shivers up my back. Who knows it? — D. Emsea.

Dear D. Emsea: Who indeed? We need help with this one.

Ann Landers

Waitresses' Opinions Of Teenage Customers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I need to thank someone and I don't know how to reach her. Can you help me?

I am a grandmother-in-waiting. Someone, somewhere is carrying our unborn grandchild. Maybe she is frightened or depressed or lonely. Please let her know that our prayers have surrounded her for a long time now and tell her not to worry about the reception we will give her baby. The room is nearly ready and the papa and mama are holding their breath in anticipation of the Big Day. Uncles and aunts by the dozens are in readiness both sets of grandparents are so excited they can barely stand it.

ANN LANDERS

Tell this young girl, Ann, to open her heart and accept the love we feel for her. The baby she is giving us through adoption will be her life-long contribution to our happiness. We will be forever in her debt. — MRS. J.L.P.

DEAR MRS. J.L.P.: In behalf of the young girl you are trying to reach I want to thank you for a beautiful sentiment. The warmth of your letter will touch millions of hearts today. You are a great lady.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read the letter from the girl who complained that waitresses treat teen-age customers like dirt.

Like every story, there are two sides — and I'd like to speak for the waitresses.

Some sendwich shops and restaurants go out after teen business. They cater to the high schools. Our restaurant is not. We don't see many teens and I would be glad if we never saw any. Why? Because they never leave a tip. They feel that just because they are kids it is not expected. If they would leave one nickel each it would show some appreciation for the service.

The messes these kids make are inexcusable. They set fire to the paper napkins, tear up match folders and straws, spill ketchup and mustard on the walls and floor. Cigarette butts are left floating in coffee cups. Chewing gum is stuck to the bottom of saucers. They wouldn't do these things at home. Why do they do them in public?

Kids who are old enough to think they are in love are old enough to behave decently when they eat out. If you are fair you will print my letter and let us waitresses get our side before the public. — GOODY THURSTON

DEAR GOSPEL: Here is your letter and I'm sorry to say I received over 100 from sister waitresses who said just about the same thing.

I have seen some well-behaved teens in restaurants, so I know they all don't behave like pigs. But thanks for writing — and I hope you teens who recognize yourselves will do something about it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Should I ask our daughter-in-law not to call my husband and me Mr. and Mrs. Jones? Or should we wait until she feels like calling us something more personal?

Perhaps she can never call anyone Mom and Dad except her own parents. But Mr. and Mrs. sounds so formal. Should we say something or be patient until we earn a new title? — NEED COUNSEL

DEAR NEED: Your hunch about "Mom and Dad" is probably correct, but Mr. and Mrs. Jones does seem terribly stiff. Why not suggest that she call you Mom and Dad Jones or by your first names? If she lapses back into Mr. and Mrs. don't be unhappy. You should hear what some people call their in-laws.

Susanna's Family Fare

Oil Lamp Is Revived

Think back, you city girls, to your fondest memories of vacation visits to the farm. Chances are, they revolve about that dusky hour of the day when Aunt Louise or grandma finally agreed it was dark enough to light the lamps.

What better time than our Canadian centennial year to revive the coal oil lamp and enhance our dinner gatherings with this most flattering light. Dont settle for one, track down two . . . antique shops for originals, gift and hardware stores for copies.

The next time you entertain a few friends, you might like to try these suggestions for a centennial theme.

Start by dusting one of your table cloths a rich, Confederation blue — that wonderful shade that is deeper than a royal but brighter than navy.

Space the two lamps along the centre of the table and arrange between them a combination fruit - and - flower centrepiece. A low basket is a practical container. Make a nest of evergreens, and into this place a variety of red apples spilling over onto the cloth. Always use an odd number — three, five, seven — never an even one.

Add a large helping of something white such as carnations, baby mums, or branches of snow berries. If flowers are used, you will need a well-soaked oasis concealed in a small dish among the greenery.

Drape bunches of delicious, huge, dark blue grapes over the edge; guests do so enjoy plitering them, and besides, look how well they complement our red, white, and blue color scheme.

Anyone feel like saluting?—SUSANNA

When making an arrangement of flowers, fruit or anything, it is much more balanced, somehow, if an odd number of pieces is used rather than an even one.

Right away, of course, one thinks of flowers always coming in dozens, let's face it. A dozen is more of a bunch than an arrangement.

Think how often we strive for triangular shaped groupings, never squares.

Perhaps, it all stems from the Japanese concept of using everything in threes, thus representing Heaven, earth and man.

Butterscotch Walnut Rolls

By MARY MOORE

The best way I know to start this week is to give you word "spar" recipe for Butterscotch Walnut Rolls. (That's word "spar" I saw to me. Gary and Davey brought it back from Germany. It means super special but Gary and Davey think they should not teach Canadians such a gooly word.)

BUTTERSCOTCH WALNUT ROLLS (20)

Note: 1) These are similar to my popular Sticky Pecan Rolls repeated here September 24, 1965.) 2) I kneaded my dough with the dough hook on my Kenwood Chef.

1 pkge. granular yeast
1 tsp. sugar
½ cup lukewarm water
½ cup scalded milk
½ cup granulated sugar
1½ tsps. salt
¼ cup shortening
2 eggs
4 cups sifted all - purpose flour (plus a little more for flouring your board)
½ cup light brown sugar (first amount)
1 tsp. cinnamon
½ cup melted butter
½ cup light brown sugar (second amount)
1½ cups broken walnuts

Into your large mixing bowl measure the yeast, 1 tsp. sugar, and lukewarm water and soak 10 min. Meanwhile scald the milk in a saucepan, remove from heat and stir in the ½ cup granulated sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to luke warm. Add to yeast liquid. Add 2 cups of the flour, give these a good stir, add the eggs and beat well. Add 2 more cups flour and stir with heavy spoon until smoothly blended. Scrape down bowl, cover and let rise until more than doubled in bulk. (This time might be 2 or 2 hrs. at room temperature since only 1 pkge. of yeast is being used.) Punch down dough, turn out on well-floured board and knead 200 times. (You now have what is known as a batch of "sweet dough.) With rolling pin roll out to a thin sheet of dough 18 x 18. Sprinkle all over with ½ cup light brown sugar (first amount) and the cinnamon. Now roll up tightly and stretch roll to 20 long. With sharp knife cut into 20 slices. Prepare 2 pans: there may be two 9 round pans or two 8 square pans. Add ½ cup melted butter and ¼ cup light brown sugar (second amount) to each pan. Add half of the walnuts to each pan. These 2 ingredients must evenly cover bottom of pans. Place 10 sliced rolls in each. They will not touch at this stage but will later when they rise. Let rise until touching and risen to nearly 1½ to 2" in height. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 28 to 33 min. but be sure to switch and turn pans in oven at halftime. Confidently break open the roll at centre of pan to be sure dough is baked at thick centre. Turn out rolls down on cake racks. Allow pans to remain over rolls for 5 min. but while they are resting, cover them with a tea towel wrung out of hot water. This gives the crusty bottom coating a chance to flow down and out of pan onto bottom of rolls. Remove pans.

(It was 11:00 p.m. news time when these came out of the oven and Herbie and Marianne and I each buttered one and munched on it while Stanley Burke intoned the news.)

Manitoba Sweetens Pot to Induce Reforms in School System

WINNIPEG (CP) — An impressively-rich foundation program unveiled last week is the Manitoba government's sugar-coated incentive to lure a backwards school system into an education revolution.

For more than 30 years, says Education Minister George Johnson, government officials have been locating consolidation of the hundreds of little red school houses but local pride, inadequate funds and poor roads combined to stymie progress.

The new foundation program proposes to change all this. It dangles an attractive carrot—large sums of provincial money—to solicit support for consolidated schools and also waves a whip in that non-co-operative districts won't be eligible.

The nuts and bolts of the program, which is also designed to shift and equalize the cost of education across Manitoba, is that the province will contribute 65 per cent to the annual fund, which is $65,000,000 this year. That's $5,000,000 more than the entire education budget last year.

The formula for the locally-raised share is expected to reduce the school taxes for homeowners and farmers who will be taxed on a uniform mill rate applied to an equalized, province-wide assessment.

Residents in non-consolidated districts, however, will pay for education under the old formula which had the local taxpayers picking up more than half the total tab. Premier Roblin explains the government thinking — "it's not a satisfactory system and we don't intend to bonus it."

There are, for example, several hundred one - room schools scattered across the province, plus a host of two-to-eight room units. The size of these schools precludes the offering of what the government considers one of its priorities—equal educational opportunities to all students.

Dr. Johnson says the single district divisions will provide the opportunity for school boards to change teaching techniques as they develop and permit wide use of teaching aids, such as television, which now are available.

Co-ordinated instruction from Grade 1 to 12 will also be possible.

Although more than half the student population attends consolidated schools, there are only 11 single unit divisions in the province. Total consolidation would create 34 additional divisions encompassing the mass of single districts remaining, which Dr. Johnson says total more than 1,000.

The persuasive quality of the new foundation program will be tested March 10 with a province-wide referendum on consolidation. Residents in non-consolidated areas will have to decide if they're willing to pay for the independence they now possess.

PRESS ISSUE

While Dr. Johnson says he hopes the whole province will adopt the consolidation concept, his department and the Progressive Conservative government have said they're not leaving it to chance.

A comprehensive promotion campaign has been planned with the government drawing assistance from teachers, school trustees and even the opposition benches of the legislature. In addition to posters, newspaper, radio and television advertisements, Dr. Johnson says about 300 meetings are scheduled throughout the province for the next month and a half.

Rabies Threat Eases

TORONTO (CP) — A youngster ran screaming down the street, a rabid cat clinging to his leg like a leech.

His brother had to use a heavy wood plank to knock the cat away.

For Jim Ryan, canine control officer for Markham, Vaughan and Richmond townships, north of here where the incident occurred, this was the worst case of animal rabies in 1966, an epidemic year in Ontario.

Fifty - nine persons were treated for rabies last year in York County, which embraces Toronto, the most since a major outbreak in 1959.

"It started last summer and it's been quite an epidemic," said Dr. B. C. LePage, York County health officer. "But it's dwindling now."

OTTAWA GIRL DIED

Ontario's epidemic was well under way when Donna Featherston, 4, of Ottawa was clawed on the face by a rabid cat last Oct. 21. Donna took the full course of 14 painful anti-rabies shots but died eight days ago. Three other persons attacked by the same cat are living in fear that they have contracted the disease which is invariably fatal.

Caused by a virus, rabies attacks the central nervous system inflaming the brain. It is primarily an animal disease that gets into man by accident.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics lists only five human rabies deaths in the quarter century ending in 1964. There were in Ontario where 10,000 courses of vaccine have been administered to humans in the last nine years.

In the same period, there were 10,000 confirmed cases of animal rabies. A spokesman said that for every wild animal confirmed as rabid after its death, nine more wander in the bush where they die unseen.

In the nine months ending last Dec. 31, federal figures show that Ontario led all provinces in rabid animals with 609 cases. Foxes and skunks are affected the most, followed by bats, raccoons, wolves, cattle, dogs, cats, horses, sheep and swine.

Counties like York, where there is a dense wildlife population, get a big percentage of the rabid animals.

SCIENTISTS PUZZLED

But Dave Johnson, biologist with the wildlife research branch of Ontario's department of lands and forests, is investigating one paradox.

"One of the puzzles we're trying to solve is the area south of a line drawn between Scrnia and Hamilton," he said. "It has a good skunk and fox population but the incidence of rabies is low."

"No vaccine, for any disease, is 100 per cent certain in all cases," says Dr. R. J. Wilson, assistant director at the University of Toronto's Connaught Laboratories.

Connaught manufactured the vaccine administered to Joe Featherston girl. Their scientists are testing blood samples from the three persons attacked along with Donna to determine if they are protected from the disease. Dr. Wilson said the tests will give Connaught "a good idea" if the vaccine will work.

"But there are so many variables, it's much to really know anything for certain."

Teachers Await Lawyers' Advice

MONTREAL (CP)— Striking teachers in the Yamaska region looked to their lawyers today for advice on injunctions ordering them back to work, the latest development in an educational crisis that could affect 400,000 children in the next few weeks.

The 447 teachers who went on strike in the Yamaska area southeast of Montreal Nov. 24 decided at a meeting Sunday night that they will wait for their lawyers' opinions before deciding whether to return to the classrooms.

Norman Reid, president of l'Association des educateurs catholiques de St. Hyacinthe, described the injunctions as "basically vicious" and said he has asked for an early report on their legality.

Earlier Sunday, Gaston Dore, head of the Yamaska school commission, said the 8,500 French-speaking Catholic school children in the area southeast of Montreal had been told to return to school this morning on the assumption the teachers would obey the order.

Mr. Reid said, however, that while it is possible some teachers would show up at school, "I think most will wait until we have heard from our lawyers."

During the weekend both sides in the Yamaska dispute agreed that Claude Ryan, publisher of Montreal Le Devoir, would be asked to act as a private mediator in the strike.

Mr. Ryan said Sunday he had not yet been officially approached by either side and would accept the job only if a settlement seemed possible.

In Montreal Sunday, Mr. Justice Andre Montpetit said talks under his mediation are "progressing" but no immediate end to the 10-day strike by 9,000 Roman Catholic teachers seemed in view.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Go into the Quinte McFarlands junior "B" dressing room some night and sing out "Hiyuh Soapy." The big guy with the Lumley cheeks will smile and wave you a welcome.

Big Fred Smith (Smitty) ex-hockey and football player currently a member of the Fire Department and trainer of many hockey clubs was given the nickname "Soapy" by an enthusiastic teen-age admirer some years ago.

The youngster read somewhere that one "Soapy" Smith, rapist, robber, arsonist and claim jumper had been convicted. He decided to play a joke on his trainer and dubbed him "Soapy." The name stuck.

The big likeable guy is the godfather, confidante, friend and trainer of the Junior Macs brood. He watches over them like a mother hen over a flock of chicks. He respects them and they respect him.

"They know me and confide in me," says Smitty. "I think I know some of them better than their parents. Sure they flip their lids, blow their tops sometimes but there is nothing dirty about them. I have as much confidence in them as they have in me."

"If occasionally one gets a little out of hand or has something bothering him, I always ask him to stay behind for a while. We talk it over and usually everything ends in a happy note."

Smitty has a wealth of trainer experience derived from association with many hockey clubs. But his true love is the juniors. If they get hurt he is the first to call the next morning. Many times he has gone to their homes to help or give them some minor treatment.

Smitty was overseas as a gunner in an anti-aircraft battery and while there played guard for the Canadian Army football team.

While there he met and married a winsome Scottish lassie, Isa Gilfillan of Kilmarnock (the home of Johnny Dewar). They have one daughter Helen Ann, 19.

Returning home, Smitty donned the hockey war gear and played for teams like Mountain View, the Army, and took part in the first of the charity Firemen-Police games.

He entered the equipment and training field looking after Lammy Lamrandes ill-fated Pepsi intermediate squad. He trained a Commercial League squad and later the Joyce Real Estate team.

From 1963 to date he has been the trainer for the Belleville Junior B squad. He has nothing but the best for the officials he worked with such as Jim Mathews ,Red Mavety, Gordie Bell and coaches Bell, Bob Taylor and Flori Geogan.

"I get a thrill walking down the street and hear a voice yell 'Hi, Soapy'. It could come from a kid who used to play for me, is playing for me or that youngster I gave the cracked stick to last Saturday."

Alone in the dressing room before game time, Smitty tapes the sticks and does other chores while nostalgia hits him. He thinks of the fine youngsters who have passed through his hands like Bob Boyle, Grant Hagerman and Jim Rutherford, who never forgot him card-wise at Christmas or on birthdays.

Glen Hagerman, Stu Muirhead, Bobby Elhier, Ted Rowland, Carl Boomhower, Jim "Doc" Woodcock and many more are proteges of "Smitty."

"On the road, in the dressing room, off and on the ice these fellows were grand youngsters, a credit to their team and their city," was Smitty's tribute.

"But," he added rather ruefully, "today's squad is in slump now. I want to see them in the playoffs and I'm going to see that they do. — if I can. There could be something bothering them and I'm going to find out what it is."

And if there is something bothering the youngsters "Smitty" will find out what it is.

If there were such a thing, "Smitty" would rate high as "Sports Citizen of the Year."

Marlies Still On Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros are still in first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, and they owe it to a 16-year-old goalie.

Cam Newton, called up to the Marlboros from Junior B hockey five games ago, allowed only four goals in a pair of weekend games as the Marlboros took a two-point lead over second-place Kitchener Rangers.

The Marlboros whipped Montreal Junior Canadiens 5-2 Saturday, and trimmed Hamilton Red Wings 4-2 Sunday to run their unbeaten string to five games.

London Nationals lost a 13-2 decision and two players through injuries against Kitchener Sunday.

Gary Unger, Nationals' hich scorer and team sparkplug, and Brian Murphy both suffered shoulder separations during the game against Kitchener.

In other games, the Junior Canadiens defeated Oshawa Generals 8-3 Sunday, Peterborough Petes downed the Generals 7-2 Saturday, and St. Catharines Black Hawks defeated the Petes 7-4 Sunday.

Tom Martin, Mike Byers, Cam Crosby, Chris Evans and Doug Acomb scored for Toronto, while Norm Descoteaux and Larry Pleau replied for Montreal.

Hawks Zoom Into 5-Point Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For the first time in a long while, Chicago Black Hawks can breath a little easier.

Almost the beginning of the National Hockey League season, the Hawks have been battling with New York Rangers for first place.

But the Rangers lost two weekend games and the Hawks, with a tie and a win, pulled away to a five-point lead.

The Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens tied 3-3 in Montreal Saturday night and Chicago downed the Canadiens 4-1 Sunday night.

The Rangers were soundly beaten by the league's two lowest clubs, losing 6-2 to the last - place Boston Bruins Saturday and 7-2 to the fifth-place Detroit Red Wings Sunday night.

The Red Wings came up with their first road victory this season Saturday night, beating Toronto Maple Leafs 5-1 in Toronto. Boston bounced the Leafs 3-1 Sunday night.

The Black Hawks built up a 3-0 first-period lead Saturday night on a pair of goals by Bobby Hull and one by Phil Esposito. However, the Canadiens eange back with a pair of goals by Bobby Rousseau and one by Gilles Tremblay to earn the tie. Hull's two goals were his 27th and 28th of the season, tops in the NHL.

Eric Nesterenko was the offensive star for the Hawks Sunday night with two goals. Doug Mohns and Dennis Hull scored one each. John Ferguson scored the Montreal goal.

In the matinee game Saturday at Boston, Ed Westfall led the Bruins with two goals and assisted on goals by Ron Schock and Bob Dillabough. Wayne Marshall and Bill Hicke scored for the Rangers.

At Detroit Sunday night, Red Wings' Dean Prentice scored three goals and assisted on a goal by Gordie Howe against the Rangers.

Bruce MacGregor, Howie Young and Norm Ullman were the other Detroit goal - getters. Jean Ratelle and Rod Gilbert replied for the Rangers.

MacGregor led Detroit against the Leafs in Toronto scoring two goals. Ullman, Ted Hampson and Gary Bergman scored the others. Tim Horton, Marcel Pronovost, Brian Conacher and Eddie Shack scored for the Leafs.

The victory was Detroit's first on the road in 20 games this season. The club had lost 18 and tied one of their road games before beating Toronto.

Sunday night the Bruins got goals from Stewart, Westfall and John Bucyk to trim the Maple Leafs 3-1. Shack scored the Toronto goal.

The three points Hawks picked up against the Canadiens gave them 52 points for 23 wins 11 losses and six ties. The Sunday night win extended their unbeaten streak to five games.

The Canadiens fired 20 shots at Chicago goalie Denis Dejordy Saturday night while the Hawks had only 21 at Charlie Hodge in the Montreal nets.

The game was marred by a third - period brawl between Montreal's Claude Larose and Ken Hodge of the Hawks. Both were given majors for fighting and both also received game misconducts.

Gary Bauman replaced Hodge in the Montreal nets for Sunday's game and the Hawks took 24 shots at him, one more than the Canadiens had at Glenn Hall.

Detroit's weekend victories gave them three in a row and moved them to within two points of the fourth-place Canadiens.

The Leafs rolled up a 3-0 first-period lead Saturday but the Red Wings tied the game 3-3 in the second and then outscored the Leafs 2-1 in the third.

Detroit fired 44 shots at Bruce Gamble while the Leafs had 32 at Roger Crozier.

Prentice's three-goal performance against the Rangers Sunday night was the fifth of his NHL career. He is in his 15th season.

Both clubs had 41 shots on goal. Ed Giacomin was in goal for the Rangers and Crozier for the Wings.

Westfall, an unheralded winger noted mainly for his defensive skill, came up with one of his best NHL performances as the Bruins beat the Rangers Saturday.

The Bruins grabbed a 4-0 lead before the Rangers were able to score.

The victory was Boston's first against the Rangers in nine meetings this season. The Bruins had managed only 17 goals against the Rangers in the previous eight meetings.

The sixth - place Bruins held the third - place Maple Leafs to 18 shots in their Sunday game—six in each period—to post their second straight NHL victory for the first time since early November.

Only Gamble's netminding kept the score close as the Bruins fired 42 shots. Ed Johnston had 17 saves.

Bucyk broke a 1-1 tie early in the third period and Westfall scored his goal with 20 seconds remaining after Gamble had been lifted in favor of a sixth Toronto attacker.

Bobby Orr, Boston's 18-year-old rookie sensation, was given a major penalty for fighting and a misconduct penalty when he flattened Toronto's Larry Jeffrey twice during a third-period fight. Jeffrey drew a major penalty.

Wednesday, the Maple Leafs will be host to the Canadiens and the Bruins visit the Rangers in New York.

Based In Ottawa

Will Organize Second National Team

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has decided to establish a national office here and base a second national hockey team in Ottawa.

The central headquarters will replace a one-man operation run by Gordon Juckes in Melville, Sask. He has worked as secretary - manager, registrar and treasurer since 1960 for a salary that never exceeded $7,200 annually, although more than $1,063,000 was passing through CAHA channels each year and player registration had increased threefold to more than 200,000.

Juckes will move to Winnipeg as executive director. He will have an administrative assistant and a promotion and development co - ordinator.

The CAHA executive members decided to form the second national team as a hookup program for the current national unit based in Winnipeg.

The national office will go into operation next summer, a few months before the second national team starts practice in Ottawa.

The Winnipeg team will stay intact until after the 1968 Winter Olympics, then will probably merge to some extent with its Ottawa counterpart under the guidance of a general manager who will have assistants in each city.

The Ottawa team will have the same student format as its Winnipeg predecessor.

The CAHA also decided to make a bid for the 1969 world championships. It will try for the 1969 world tournament should Czechoslovakia, the other bidder for 1969, be successful.

The Canadian application will be for the A pool, which in 1969 will become a six-team double round - robin event. Juckes said Winnipeg and Vancouver have expressed interest in holding the championship but the site will be open for bids if Canada wins approval.

Money for the new office and other CAHA programs will come from a promised agreement with the National Hockey League. It calls for the professional clubs to pay a $25,000 annual assessment and a minimum $250,000 development fund for the right to draft over-age juniors. Draft prices will be $9,000 for the first 25 players picked and $2,000 for others.

Blake Sizzles; "Bunch Of Quitters"

CHICAGO (AP)—Coach Toe Blake called his Montreal Canadiens "a bunch of quitters" and virtually dismissed their hopes of repeating as National Hockey League champions Sunday night following a 4-1 loss to the Chicago Black Hawks.

"I never thought I'd have a team that would "quit," shouted the infuriated, gum - chewing Blake, who has guided the Canadiens to eight championships in the last 11 years.

The Canadiens, who obviously received an earlier tongue lashing from Blake, sat dejectedly and stripped their uniforms slowly.

Asked if he thought anyone could catch the Hawks, Blake shook his head.

"Not if they play the way they play against us and everybody else," he said. "It's a good lead they got."

Told that the Hawks all season have been worried about the Canadiens, Blake blew up again.

"Everybody is worried about us. What for? What for? The only team that should be worried about us is us. But all we get is alibis and excuses.

"I've been accused of not playing everybody," said Blake, fuming. "All I know is I got 18 guys dressed and they all played . . . or should I say they were on the ice."

Blake then took a crack at the Chicago fans who were on Montreal goalie Gary Bauman. At one point Bauman tossed a puck into the stands and the fans retaliated with paper cups, an egg and an orange.

"In Montreal we cheer them (Black Hawks) and the Golden Jet (Bobby Hull). Here they throw stuff at us. Put that in the paper. Maybe it will wake our fans up."

Billy Reay, coach of the Black Hawks, smiled when he learned of Blake's outburst. "We're playing real good and when you do that you're liable to make the other team look bad at times."

Reay admitted that the five-point lead is nice to have as the Hawks are making another charge toward their first National Hockey League title but added, "You can never get ahead far enough."

Faulkner Hat Tricks In Rebel Win

Glen Ross Rebels took a seven-point stranglehold on the Centre Hastings Hockey League pennant Sunday by defeating tail-end Plainfield 6-3.

In another game, Frankford Shoemen tightened their grip on third place with a 5-3 decision over Foxboro Lumber Kings.

Andy Faulkner, who scored seven goals Friday night, exploded for three more, plus an assist, to pace the Glen Ross victory. Ken McConnell, Ross Anderson and Gary Mason added single goals.

Reid Mallory had one goal and an assist for Plainfield with Bob Hunter and Don Reid also scoring.

Frankford's five goals were divided among as many players. Bob Chesher had one plus two assists. Jerry Fuller, Jim Chard, Smokey Nelson and Bob Wright also scored.

Ralph Sine, Wayne Tummon and Dennis Ray had Foxboro tallies.

Frankford's win moved the Shoemen four points up on Wellington and Foxboro in their battle for the third and fourth playoff spots.

Shore Era Closes

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (CP)—An era came to a close here Saturday when owner Eddie Shore announced he had given up active operation of the American Hockey League Springfield Indians.

Some might have shed a tear for the one-time National Hockey League star, but there was only rejoicing by the 23 Springfield players, who walked out temporarily in December and were threatening to leave the club forever rather than play under Shore.

It was one of the few fights he had lost during his 64 years.

Troubled by a heart ailment, Shore will remain as the reason for his retirement, His son, Eddie Jr., and general manager Jack Butterfield, president of the AHL, will take over.

Butterfield said the elder Shore will continue to handle the business and financial phases of the club, but he said Shore's son will conduct operations on and off the ice.

To Toronto, lawyer Alan Eagleson, who had been handling the players' case, said the retirement will restore peace to the league.

"There is nothing more for me to do," said Eagleson, who had chosen to eliminate on behalf of the players last week.

Eagleson said one of the conditions set forth had been that Shore step out of the picture by 4 p.m. Saturday.

Shore's retirement was announced a few minutes after the deadline Saturday.

The league shutdown out last month in protest against Shore's suspension of players for what he termed "indifferent play." Eagleson advised the team to return without missing a scheduled game.

Earlier this month, coach Harry Pidhirny quit. Shore suspended Lynn Roger Cote and goalie Jacques Caron for "indifferent play" soon after.

Mrs. Reid defeated Mrs. Charlene Kaiser of Cornwall 10-7, Mrs. Beardsley downed Marjory Lindsay of Renfrew 12-8, while Mrs. Smolkin edged Sheila Davis of Ottawa 12-10.

The three-day championship ends Tuesday night with the winning rink going to Sudbury for the Ontario championship Feb. 6-8.

Blanked Mo-Hawks 1-0

MacNamara Led The Grad Band

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

TORONTO — Jerry MacNamara once belonged to the Toronto Maple Leafs but the lanky netminder never made it in the National Hockey League.

The Belleville Mo-Hawks

* * *

STEVE REXE

* * *

are wondering why not.

MacNamara was out of this world here last night while protecting an early goal and a 1-0 Varsity Grad squeaker over the Mo-Hawks.

The Mo-Hawks turned in a fine performance and over the final two periods blasted 25 shots, many of them from point-blank range, at the Toronto cage — only to have MacNamara kick them out.

Belleville outshot the Grads 33-26 and only MacNamara's great puck-stopping prevented Mo-Hawk goalie Steve Rexe from being number one star. Rexe was just as strong as the score indicates.

The performance was nothing new for MacNamara as far as the Mo-Hawks are concerned. On three visits here, they have been beaten 3-0, 3-1 and 1-0 with the Toronto goalie outstanding in each game.

Belleville's loss was number three of the week, all tight ones, and leaves the club not too safely in sixth place in the OHA Senior "A" standing.

Woodstock visits Belleville Friday in a game re-scheduled from Saturday.

The rest is welcomed since two more Mo-Hawks joined several limping buddies last night. Ralph Plane injured a knee while bodychecking a Grad early in the second period but came back to finish the game. He said "it was most uncomfortable" later.

Lionel Bolly appears to be the worst of the injured. He was helped from the ice after being hit on the side of the foot by a shot at 7:00 of the third period and did not return. X-rays will be taken today.

Moe Galand was the Varsity scoring hero with the million-dollar goal coming at 12:44 of the first period.

He gathered Ian Sinclair's point-shot rebound off the backboards, stepped out from the corner of the net and punched it past Rexe in a swift - moving play. Bryan Crawford also drew an assist.

After experiencing clearing woes early in the game, the Mo-Hawks had more than their share of play. Brown and Marineau on a 2-on-1 rush, Darling and McAlpine, had good first-period opportunities. Rexe robbed Rick Hay, a forechecking demon for the Grads on the night's play, when he broke through alone.

Plane and Carl Hymers tangled for majors in the last minute and when Marchen joined them early in the third, Taylor, Bolly and Brown, then later Marineau, added the penalty in fine style.

Gary Darling worked in relief and gunned a single from point-blank range at 9:00 and seconds later Wiener-Brown repeated but MacNamara booted out both drives.

Rexe bested Hay cutting in from the wing before Hoffman went for holding at 15:13. Marineau and Darling failed to jam the disc home from a goalmouth pileup on the powerplay.

The Mo-Hawks never eased pace and Rexe skated off for a sixth attacker at 19:15. MacNamara met the challenge with a terrific save off Bob McAlpine's low point blast and Eddie Marineau's close-in chance was blocked by a defenceman.

Rick Bradford, a defenceman by trade, was used as a forward last night after seeing little action behind the blueline of late.

Shutout victories by the unbeaten Smith Flyers, peewees and by Ritzway novices featured OMHA league and exhibition games over the weekend.

The peewees stretched their undefeated string to 27 games by blanking Gananoque 10-0 Saturday and edging Oshawa 3-2 Sunday. The shutout was the Belleville club's tenth.

Ritzways whitewashed Bancroft by a 5-0 count.

Leafs, of the BMHA bantam section, edged Kingston Athletics in a 6-5 thriller.

Another Belleville bantam team, thought to be the CMHA Kinsmen, tied 2-2 with Trenton.

Other Belleville teams judged to be the Ellis midgets and Western Tire juveniles were names of players scoring, tied 4-4 with Norwood and lost 4-2 to Gananoque.

No classification or team name was listed on the final two scoresheets nor was the team name on the bantam game.

Casper Leads Crosby Field

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Billy Casper, Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, each a winner of more than $100,000 in 1966, led the race for top cash in Bing Crosby's $104,500 golf tournament heading into the stretch today.

Casper, at 215, led by a stroke as the only golfer among the 168 pros who started to better par for 54 holes. Pressing the U.S. Open champion at 216 were Masters' champ Nicklaus and Palmer, the leading money winner at all time.

They battle 72 other finalists for a $18,000 top prize.

Golfers dueled over the long Pebble Beach course, attested one of the world's best, where Nicklaus' scrambled at 36 one errant shot cost him a round.

All the finalists have played three courses already—Cypress Point, Spyglass Hill and Pebble Beach—with varying success. The tournament runs a day longer than usual because a Pacific storm concealed Saturday's play.

After Sunday, Bill Parker of West Orange, N.J., surprisingly found himself in fourth place with a 70 and 217.

Jim Colbert of Kansas City, Kan., Jerry Pittman of Locust Valley, N.Y., each with 74, and PGA champ Al Geiberger of Carlton Oaks, Calif., with 71, were all at 218.

For the third 18-hole test, Nicklaus scrambled at 36 to Spyglass Hill, Palmer charged at Cypress Point and the methodical Casper passed them both with his routinely - spectacular game at Pebble, where twice he has won.

Pro Bowl

East Whips West 20-10

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom Landry, coach of Dallas Cowboys and the All-Stars of the National Football League's Eastern Division, thinks his conference has closed the talent gap with the West—and the Pro Bowl supports his contention.

Landry's easterners slugged out a 20-10 win over the West in a persistent rain Sunday before 15,062 fans. The success was the second in a row for the East stars who, a year ago, dumped their western counterparts 36-7.

For the first 30 minutes, the East was dominant to the point of embarrassment.

Pittsburgh Steelers' Mike Clark opened the scoring with first-period field goals of 18 and 17 yards.

In the second quarter, Cleveland Browns' Ryan hit teammate Gary Collins on a 24-yard pass that put the ball on the one-yard line. Moments later, Johnny Roland of St. Louis Cardinals smashed through for the score.

Then defensive back Larry Wilson, also of St. Louis, intercepted a pass and Ryan found Collins in the end zone with an 18-yard scoring throw.

Additional Clark missed three field goals in the half and, statistically, the East outplayed the West better than 2-1.

The West defence rallied in the second half and the offence moved the ball well, but a strong eastern pass rush and three interceptions preserved the lead.

Bruce Gossett of Los Angeles Rams kicked a 27 yard field goal in the third quarter and San Francisco 49ers Ken Willard caught a 31-yard touchdown pass from Bart Starr of Green Bay but the West never really threatened to pull out a victory.

Minor Hockey

In Saturday's BMHA peewee play, Hornets whipped the Bears 7-1 and Canadiens topped the Hawks 4-1.

Blake Reeves starred for the Hornets with a sparkling 5-goal effort. He also had an assist. B. MacDonald, S. Cowley and J. Aitken scored the other goals. J. Young helped on two, Cousins, Aitken and R. Williams on one each. Colin Sager clipped Rangers 4-1.

John Garvin and K. Joslin scored two goals each for Canadiens and M. Bruce had a helper. Mike Burley was the Hawk marksman.

In two other peewee matches, Wings and Firefighters Bruins tied 3-3 while Leafs clipped Rangers 4-1.

R. Burnett, John Bowen and Bob Salsbury scored for Wings with B. Clarke and S. Bendera assisting. John Tracey, Scott and Kelvin Burshaw were Bruins' marksmen while J. McKay, Bridge and Masterson having helpers.

John Gorman, Wally Dalrand, Marvin Jackson and Larry Wright scored for Leafs with M. Thistle and T. Marta drawing assists. Robert Menard was the lone Ranger lamp-lighter.

In the bantam division, Bears blanked the Aces 3-0, Canadiens whipped Bruins 7-1, Americs topped Hornets 9-5 and Leafs edged the Wings 2-1.

Roger LaMoore collected the Bears' shutout while J. McKay, B. Houle and Kerr scored goals. Cole helped on one.

Farrell and Pope paced Canadiens with two goals each. Fraelick, Boardman and Pearson notched the others. Farrell also assisted on two, Culkin, Parker, Nelles, Lynch and Neil on one each. Doran from Petes was the Bruin scoring play.

Easton sparked the Americs' win with three goals and an assist. Gay, MacConnel, Carmichael, Cartlin, Vance and Sullivan also scored. Cowpland had two helpers, Carmichael, Gay and Redner one each. Harrington potted three and helped on another in a strong losing effort. Morse had a goal and assist for the Hornets. Wills scored and Thomson helped on one.

Smith and Wilson scored for Leafs in their tight win. Murray and MacDonnel collected assists. Adamson from Leafs was the Wings' scoring play.

In juvenile games, Melrose whipped G.S.D. 13-4 and Flyers edged the Aces in a 3-2 thriller.

R. Jarrell scored twice, T. Ford and Middleton one each for the Tigers with Muir helping on one. P. Jury, Garland and Coughlin replied for Aces and Hill had an assist.

It was a great night for the Pascoe boys in Melrose's lopsided win.

B. Pascoe scored eight goals and assisted on two more. M. Pascoe fired three goals and drew the same number of assists. J. McLaughlan fired the other two goals and helped on two. Ritz and Markuschewsky also had assists.

B. Gregory scored two and assisted on another for O.S.D. J. Phillips and E. Hamp also scored and M. Gagne helped on one.

Robinson Wins Hickok

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Baseball's Frank Robinson hauled in another valuable prize Sunday night when he was named winner of the S. Rae Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year Award, a $10,000 diamond - studded, gold - buckled belt.

The 31-year-old outfield star of Baltimore Orioles won by an overwhelming margin in the balloting of a panel of sports writers and sportscasters throughout the United States.

The trophy was presented to him at the annual charity dinner of the Rochester Press and Radio Club.

Robinson received 91 of the 168 first-place votes and 302 points on a 3-2-1 scoring basis. Bart Starr, the quarterback of the champion Green Bay Packers and the National Football League's Player of the Year was second with 26 first-place votes and 132 points. Sandy Koufax, the pitching star of Los Angeles Dodgers, was third with 24 firsts and 101 points.

BRUMEL STILL HAS CAST

MOSCOW (AP) — Valery Brumel, world record-holder in the high jump, probably will not be ready to compete again for another two years, his doctor said Saturday. This appeared to rule out all chances that Brumel will be recovered in time for the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico City. Brumel injured his right leg in a motor cycle accident May 15 months ago. The leg still is in a plaster cast.

McDonald Harris Trigger 5

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Baltimore Clippers and Buffalo Bisons are going to remember Ab McDonald and Duke Harris for a long time.

McDonald scored three goals and Harris two as Pittsburgh Hornets humbled Buffalo Bisons 10-2 in American Hockey League action Saturday night. They scored two goals each as the Hornets walloped Baltimore Clippers 10-2 Sunday.

The Clippers dressed only 12 players and two more—Sandy McGregor and Aldo Guidolin—were forced out of action after the first period. Four other Baltimore players continued with injuries.

In other Saturday action, Cleveland Barons edged Quebec Aces 4-3, Hershey Bears shut out Baltimore 3-0, and Springfield Indians walloped Rochester Americans 7-2.

Sunday, Buffalo defeated Quebec 7-2, Springfield battled to a 4-4 tie with Providence Reds, and Rochester defeated Cleveland 3-1.

LEWIS SPRINGS SURPRISE

FREEPORT, Bahamas (AP) —George Lewisz a 28-year-old pro from Dubois Ferry, N.Y., who had never won an open golf tournament, shot a one-under par 71 Sunday and captured the second Grand Bahama Open by one stroke over Paul Kelly of Scarsborough, N.Y. The money was $750. Wilf Homeniuk of Winnipeg, the third - round leader, went over par on three holes on the front nine and carded a 76, good for a third-place tie with Stan Mosel of Essex Falls, N.Y., at 286.

Bantam Basketball

BCI Retains Trophy

By DON MATTHEWS

The B.C.I. bantam A's retained the Rawson trophy for the second year in a row in the Bantam Basketball Tournament held Saturday. In their first game B.C.I. crushed Nicholson 43 to 16. For B.C.I. Gallupe netted 9, Gill and Lambert 7 and Wright 6. Nicholson's highest scorer was Allore with 9.

The next game saw B.C.I. swamp Norwood 46 to 27. Gallupe and Wright put in 11 apiece and Labaron and Gill hit 6 each. For Norwood Irwin had 15 and Clements, Harnder and Coughlin scored 4 apiece.

The third game and B.C.I.'s toughest was with Campbellford. Earlier Campbellford had smashed the Moira B team 58 to 8 then went on to defeat the Moira A team 71 to 20. The first quarter of the Campbellford - B.C.I. game ended 6 to 6 in favor of Campbellford but B.C.I. retaliated in the 2nd quarter and led throughout the game with a 10 point advantage to finish 39 to 29. High scorers for B.C.I. were Labaron and Grant for Campbellford with 10.

At 7.00 B.C.I. met Cobourg West for the championship. Cobourg, during the course of the tourney, had defeated Napanee 39 to 16, Centennial 50 to 10 and Quinte 30 to 13. But their luck had run out for B.C.I. defeated them 43 to 21. B.C.I. took a quick lead sparked by Gallupe in the first quarter and maintained it throughout the game. Gill netted 12, Gallupe 10, Class 7, Wright 6, Labaron 4, Hewson 3 and Scarlet 2. For Cobourg Winter hit 4, Enton 6, Allen 6 and Rywinsky 5.

In the consolation game Madoc and Napanee met after losing in the preliminary round and defeated their next two counterparts. Madoc easily crushed Napanee 55 to 19 with Mahmen of Madoc netting 32 points.

OHC Willing to Build Houses on the Reserves

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — The Ontario Housing Corporation is willing to build houses on the Reserves the same as anywhere else, provided two conditions are met. The approval of the Federal Government and of the Reserve council must first be received.

Announcement of this policy was made by H. W. Suters of the Housing Corporation in Toronto, to the members of the all-Indian advisory committee to Hon. John Yaremko, Minister of Public Welfare. The houses would probably be built in groups, or small settlements, with the minimum of probably six each group, increasing in number as need warranted. These would include all facilities such as hydro, water and sewage disposal. The Housing Corporation could not buy the land, as it does elsewhere, but could control it on a long-time lease. Indian land must remain the property of the Indians. As elsewhere, rentals would be gauged to fit the income of the occupant. Welfare cases would not be included.

Mr. Suters pointed out, however, that although the Ontario Government is willing to give this service to Ontario Indians, it could not do so unless the Federal Government also gave its approval. Individual Indian councils must then apply for the service.

Once these two conditions are met, the Ontario authorities are ready to start building in the spring, Mr. Suter stated.

Melville Hill of the Tyendinaga Reserve, member of the advisory committee, believes that will be a boon to those Reserves with housing problems.

Melville Hill Attends Advisory Committee Meet

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — Melville Hill, former chairman of the now disbanded all-Indian advisory committee to the Hon. Ralph Rogers, retired Minister of the Department of Lands and Forests, recently attended a two-day meeting in Toronto of the broader all-Indian advisory committee of which he is a member. The new committee is responsible for giving information to the Hon. John Yaremko Q.C., recently appointed Minister of Public Welfare.

Several meetings of this committee have already taken place but have resulted in little action as yet, because of the delays in personnel, and also because the former co-ordinator, Sidney Hogg, is now with the Federal government, and his successor has not yet been announced.

Mr. Hill stated that the minister spent half a day with the committee, discussing general problems. The minister stated that he was leaving heavily on the committee for information, and for advice in plans and methods for bettering the conditions of the Indians of Ontario.

New School Addition Is Again Delayed

NAPANEE — The Napanee District Collegiate Board is still in trouble regarding the $2½ million addition to the school. The Board applied to the County Council at its meeting last week to issue debentures for an additional $50,000, made necessary because the Weller Construction Co. stopped building operations. New tenders were called for and that of the Kent Construction Co. was accepted December 29, with the contract to be signed within 30 days.

When the request of the Board was referred to the finance committee of the County Council, it was found that the resolution of the majority of the 11 municipalities within the school area had not been included.

Before the debentures can be issued, each of the 11 municipal councils concerned must meet to approve or disapprove and when and if the majority of six has passed its resolution of approval, Warden William Briscoe has guaranteed that an emergency meeting of the County Council will be called within 48 hours. All this must be done before January 29, when the contract is due to be signed.

Warden Briscoe stated Sunday evening that things looked hopeful and that he expected to have the necessary majority of approvals warranted calling the County Council to meet by Wednesday or Thursday at the latest.

Italian Cowboy Gets Role Of Sir Lancelot in Camelot

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The role of Sir Lancelot in Warner Brothers' $12,000,000 Camelot has fallen to an Italian cowboy named Franco Nero.

The new Lancelot is a muscular, 25-year-old native of Parma who first found fame as a western hero named Django.

Nero is a determined young man who knows what he wants and is getting it. He realized at an early age that acting was for him.

His big break came when the new wave of European-made westerns struck Italy. Nero's physique suited him for the role of a gunslinger, and he was cast in the title role of Django.

"At first I didn't think I would do it," he recalls. "I considered myself a serious actor, and the thought of playing a cowboy repulsed me."

But a friend changed his mind.

"I played the role as satire, but with serious undertones. Everything was done to avoid clichés. The whole thing was played in mud, fog and rain. Instead of the usual upturned brim of western hats, mine was turned down. I even wore a long coat so that you never saw my guns until I brought them out to shoot."

Django was a hit, and Nero was sought for other westerns. He played in two more, then refused all others lest he become known as a Roman Randolph Scott.

Meanwhile Joshua Logan was looking leads for Camelot. John Huston suggested he cast Richard Harris as King Arthur and Nero as Lancelot. Harris and Nero had appeared for Huston in The Bible as Cain and Abel, respectively.

Logan was impressed with Nero after meeting him in London, and the Italian came to Hollywood for a test.

A day before he was going to scan for another Italian film, Nero was notified he was wanted for Camelot. He has since undergone coaching in English and manages his lines with facility. The singing?

Biography of Thoroughbred Warmly Told and Interesting

NEW YORK (AP) — Bing Crosby and his golfing associates encountered rough going Saturday and the all-star network and assorted sponsors must have thought longingly of those safe and certain golf programs made months in advance of broadcast.

A bowling gale caused the postponement of the third round of the pro-amateur tournament. But Saturday night Crosby and others tried—rather lamely—to fill out a half hour with chitchat and news notes. Mostly they talked about the weather.

The camera work Sunday was rather erratic, but it was interesting because we had a chance to see some of the celebrity amateurs, such as Dean Martin, Andy Williams and Robert Goulet.

The final rounds will be played at Pebble Beach, weather permitting, today.

NBC's biography of a race horse, Thoroughbred, came along while the golf tournament was still on the air.

CAMERAS THERE

Network cameramen were present March 26, 1964 when a baby colt was born in the Greentree stud farm near Lexington, Ky., and took his first wobbly steps. And they were around during all the important events in the thoroughbred's life until last Aug. 17 in Saratoga when, as a two-year-old he ran and lost his first important race.

In between there was fascinating information on the care and training of a valuable horse. The colt, Stamp Art, and 23 other foals of the 1964 Greentree crop, were weaned at six months. Bit by bit, they were taught to be race horses.

By the time Stamp Art was ready for his first race—not the important one—the viewer was rooting for the beautiful, spirited animal. He won that one, and four days later he won again, through a disqualification. But in the Saratoga special he came in fifth.

Eddie Arcaro, who had once owned Stamp Art's sire in victory, was the narrator. It was a warm program and enlightening as well.

Take Half Century To Finish Volume

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—After a half century of devoted labor, Will and Ariel Durant have finished their 10-volume The Story of Civilization.

What are they doing now? The same thing they have done during their long life together: research and writing.

The Durants live only a mile from Hollywood and Vine, but they lead a remarkably secluded existence removed from the outer world. Their routine hasn't changed since accumulated their magnum opus. They still spend their days in solitary reading and composition, then exchange ideas in the evening.

"But we're glad that the big work is over—and that we were able to finish it while we were still sane and not doddering idiots," says Mrs. Durant.

"The last book is Rousseau and Revolution, and it will be out this fall. It carries us to the fall of the Bastille, and that is as far as we will go. Will is 81, and we don't believe we should write in our dotage."

The Durants finished Rousseau and Revolution in late summer, ending it with a salute to their readers.

"After all," said Mrs. Durant, "the unseen but ever-present audience has stuck by us all this time, so we felt we should thank them for their many years of fidelity."

They delivered the manuscript to Simon and Schuster in New York and then departed on a "farewell tour" of Europe.

When the Durants returned to Hollywood, they found the habits of their lifetime could not be altered, and they plunged once more into their usual endeavor. At present they are working on a small volume to be called The Lessons of History, in which they will detail what they have learned from their study of civilization.

Von Thadden Failed To Explain Doctrine Claims Abe Arnold

TORONTO (CP)—More than 3,000 persons paraded in front of CBC studios Sunday night protesting a special taped interview with Adolf von Thadden, right-wing West German politician, on a public affairs program.

The demonstrators — men, women, teen-agers and children—carried placards reading: The Nazis must not be allowed to poison our atmosphere; Spending taxpayers money to hear murderers; Is the CBC spreading nazism?

In the filmed interview, von Thadden, 45, deputy chairman of the National Democratic party repeatedly denied his party is neo-Nazi or that he ever was or is a Nazi.

"It's a right-wing party with a strong conservative direction," he told interviewer Larry Zolf and Bob Hoyt of the program Sunday. "I utterly reject, absolutely that we are a renovation of nazism."

Reaction to the program spread outside Toronto. In Montreal, 75 demonstrators carried signs outside CBC studios protesting the telecast of the interview.

In Winnipeg, Abe Arnold, executive director of the Canadian Jewish Congress, western region, said the interview achieved what Jews across Canada had feared—"I gave Mr. von Thadden a chance to present himself as the leader of a respectable right-wing party."

The interview by the Crown-owned CBC was conducted in Hanover, West Germany. Jours say and the tape was flown to Toronto Friday. It was shown Sunday night, a week before a scheduled live interview with Mr. Diefenbaker. Von was to be shown. The live interview was cancelled after protests by the Canadian Jewish Congress, the Canadian Labor Congress and other groups.

Rabbi Gunther Plaut of Toronto was interviewed on the program immediately before the von Thadden film was shown. He said von Thadden should not have been allowed to appear.

His appearance would bring "mental torture to Jews who recall the suffering and persecution at the hands of Hitler," he said. Seeing von Thadden was sure to upset Jews who saw him on Thadden the possibility of racial persecution again.

The controversial interview took up half of the hour-long program, and its exposure received support from some who felt that it was better to understand the views of the right-wing party so that they could be challenged.

Ayre Neier, secretary director of the New York Civil Liberties Union, appeared on the program with Rabbi Plaut and said von Thadden should be given an opportunity to express his opinions publicly because "the easiest way to combat evil is to expose it."

In London, Ont., David Lewis, deputy house leader of the New Democratic Party, said it was not worth creating "hysteria" over the interview. He felt von Thadden's appearance did not pose a threat to the Jewish people.

But Mr. Arnold, in his Winnipeg interview after watching the program, said interviewers "dropped the ball." What they say in public and what they say in private among their own supporters are two different things."

Mr. Arnold said von Thadden adeptly exploited his own family tragedy—his sister being killed when the Germans bombed a military establishment—to prove his ideas could not bear any resemblance to those of Hitler.

"He seemed to be a nice political father figure in his home setting," he said.

The Toronto demonstration was orderly. At one point Peter Reilly, a host of the program Sunday, tried to talk to some of the marchers and was politely told to stand aside. About 50 police officers watched the demonstration, organized or, only a day's notice.

Widespread demonstrations had been planned for next weekend in several cities to coincide with the planned showing of a von Thadden interview.

During the Hanover interview, the 45-year-old von Thadden talked of his family's history, Germany's present political and economic problems and the neo-Nazi label he said has been unfairly attached to his party.

"I never was a Nazi and there is no reason to become Nazi now," he said. "And this party formed two years ago is not neo-Nazi."

He said less than one per cent of Germans wanted to return to the days of nazism experienced by many Germansmany. The percentage of neo-Nazis in the National Democratic party was no more than in the other two major West German parties.

Meanwhile, in another development in the von Thadden controversy, the political science section of the University of Victoria announced it had cancelled plans to invite the politician to address students.

Tim Glover, co-chairman of the section, said von Thadden's appearance could be misconstrued as a concession to race hatred, tyranny and war.

Earlier last week, a University of British Columbia students organization backed out of an invitation for von Thadden to speak to students next weekend.

GIRLS DROWN SELVES

MADURAI, India (AP) — Six high school girls drowned themselves in a well Saturday because they dreaded failing their school examinations. After scoring low marks in tests last December, seven girls from Kalluputhi high school in the Madurai district decided to end their lives. Six fell to their deaths. The seventh landed on a stone step and hung on until passers-by heard her cries.

Chinese Leaders Involved in Struggle for Power

Ghost 400 Years Old Frightens Mao

What is going on in China and what is the outlook? William L. Ryan, an Associated Press specialist on Communist affairs, seeks to answer these and other questions in a series of of articles this week, of which this is the first.

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN

The 400-year-old ghost of Hai Jui returned to haunt Mao Tse-tung and frightened him into launching the gigantic struggle that grips Communist China today.

The confusing and dangerous upheaval is traced by Chinese in the West to June, 1959, and the publication of an essay called Hai Jui's Scolding of the Emperor, made into a play two years later with the title of Hai Jui's Dismissal.

When the essay and play appeared, says Dr. C. Y. Cheng, head of the University of Michigan department of Chinese studies, every Chinese intellectual and many non-intellectuals immediately recognized the symbolism.

Hai Jui, in the Chinese mind, stands for righteousness and justice. In this case, he stood for Peng Teh-huai, whom Mao dismissed as defence minister because Peng opposed the Great Leap Forward launched in March, 1958.

The "leap" was supposed to transform China within three years into a mighty economic power—by regimenting the half-billion peasants in "people's communes" and by putting urban workers into millions of backyard smelters. The "leap" was headed for debacle even in its early stages.

WRITTEN BY OFFICIAL

The author of the essay and play was Wu Han, deputy mayor of Peking and right-hand man to the powerful mayor and politburo member, Peng Chen, considered then an outstanding contender for Mao's mantle.

The work was a protest against Mao. Even as far back as 1958, the big struggle had begun. Mao's position had been considerably weakened late that year by opposition to his policies. His opponents included his old comrade-in-arms, long an heir apparent, Liu Shao-chi.

It now develops, from what is being disclosed in the internal propaganda war in Peking, that Mao was shoved aside as chairman of government, the equivalent of president, and retained only his party chairmanship. Liu took the presidency. Today's Red Guard wall newspapers say Mao left the job against his will. Dr. Cheng says that probably is correct.

Mao's worries about his leadership led him in 1357 to an experiment.

"Let a hundred flowers bloom, let a thousand schools of thought contend," he proclaimed, suggesting that criticism was welcome. The criticism came, in a flood, from intellectuals who spoke up against Mao's policies. The flowers didn't bloom for long.

ANNOUNCES CAMPAIGN

Mao suddenly announced a new "rectification" campaign. The alleged "rightists" who had been discontended found themselves purged and out of jobs.

China now was entering a critical period in its relations with the Soviet Union. Premier Nikita Khrushchev of Russia in October, 1957, had promised Mao a prototype sample of the atom bomb and data on how to manufacture it. But he dragged his feet. In November, 1357, Mao Mayor Peng Chen were allies. A rival group appeared to be headed by Premier Chou; Chen Yi, vice-premier and foreign minister, and their government, and Marshal Peng, his defence minister, travelled to Moscow to prod Khrushchev. It became clear the Soviet chief had changed his mind. Mao was furious.

Defence Minister Peng, who had loyally supported Mao at critical moments, evidently opposed the idea of getting into a verbal donnybrook with the Russians. As a professional soldier, he saw the U.S.S.R. as the only source of wherewithal for China's ascent to the status of major world power.

As Hai Jui had challenged the emperor 400 years before, now Peng challenged the master of the party. Mao, desnite other differences with members of his politburo, still had plenty of authority. He turned for help to the saturnine military strategist, Marshal Lin Piao. In April, 1959, Mao fired Peng as defence minister and appointed Lin in his place. Lin eventually would become Mao's favorite, in effect, a demand that Marshal Peng be reinstated as defence minister.

Implicitly, the play was an indictment of Mao and praise for those purged for opposing him. By now, it seemed likely that President Liu and Peking's apparatus.

For two years, there seemed to be an uneasy truce between the two contending camps. Then the dam broke.

China's Army Vows to Restore Party, State Powers to Mao

TOKYO (AP) — China's official news agency said today the country's military commanders have vowed to help Mao Tse-tung seize "party, state, financial and other power from the persons in authority who are taking the capitalist road."

It was a rare admission that such broad power had slipped from Mao's hands.

Japanese correspondents in Peking quoted wall posters as saying the army had gone into action during the weekend to crush an uprising in the Peking suburb of Fangshan. Wall posters also reported clashes in Tientsin, 100 miles southeast of Peking, and in Paoting, 80 miles southwest of the capital.

Red Guard wall bulletins said army troops moved into Fangshan and seized control of the Communist party's county headquarters and the security bureau. The bulletins said a "handful of counter-revolutionary elements" had "arrested several hundred revolutionaries and subjected them to fascist torture."

The New China news agency reported pledges of support from "commanders and fighters of the three services of the Chinese People's Liberation Army" in 13 cities and areas. It did not mention Kiangsi, the southeast province where Mao's opponents are reported to have formed an army of workers and peasants.

Another agency dispatch related a series of seizures by pro-Mao forces and thereby revealed that at one time or another his opponents controlled wide sectors of trade, industry and finance.

The Peking correspondent for the Japanese news agency Kyodo reported that Mao personally had ordered his defence minister and heir apparent, Lin Piao, to have the army "support and assist revolutionary institutions rather than smash them."

The Kyodo report said Mao's instructions were reported by a wall poster written by Peking by pro-Mao revolutionary rebels.

The whereabouts of Mao's chief opponents, President Liu Shao-chi and Teng Hsiao-ping, party general secretary, remained a mystery.

Bet on Canada and Stop Foreign Control--Hees

TRENTON — Canadians should "take a chance on Canada" or stop talking "about the ogre of outside interests taking over Canada's resources." That is the opinion of Hon. George Hees, PC member for Northumberland - Durham, who last night addressed the organizational meeting here of the Progressive Conservative Association for the new riding of Prince Edward-Hastings.

Mr. Hees said Canadians should show more courage and daring when it came to investing in sound industrial stocks.

Canadians put away annually a billion dollars in new savings accounts and invest in Canada Savings Bonds, Mr. Hees said. This money invested in industrials could mean a good return to the investors and help the Canadian economy as a whole.

The government could do a lot to help in this investment proposal by keeping a tight rein on investment companies, increasing the present income tax exemption of 20 per cent to 25 or 40 per cent of dividends from common stocks, and forcing companies to reveal more about their operations.

At the same time, Canadian manufacturers must make goods of better design and better quality to compete in world export markets as per cent to reduced goods from Communist and other) countries, Mr. Hees said.

In Russia, every student who is capable of passing the entrance examinations is sent to university by the state.

Mr. Hees advocated a free university education across Canada for any student who could pass the required entrance examination to develop more "top flight" brains to keep Canada on a competitive basis with other countries.

"A few years ago the proposal that all secondary education be free was thought to be revolutionary. Let's face it, a small country (in population) must develop a certain amount of geniuses, and the only way we'll find them is to send everyone to university who can make it."

Mr. Hees said the government must no longer tolerate strikes in vital services, but should set up the machinery whereby an independent arbitrator would be appointed to rule when negotiations fail between management and labor.

The economy of the country warranted more long distance planning on the part of the federal government, Mr. Hees said, and there should be advisory groups set up in all fields of endeavor.

Above all, said Mr. Hees, politicians should not try to operate this country from "an ivory tower" in Ottawa but should get down to bed rock and discuss problems with the people where they live.

Hees Sells Canada – to Canadians

Gordon Heads Control Study

OTTAWA (CP) — Former finance minister Walter Gordon was named Monday to head a committee of ministers to study foreign control and ownership of Canadian industry.

The committee and the leadership of Mr. Gordon, who recently resigned the cabinet as minister without portfolio, was announced by Prime Minister Pearson.

Also announced were plans for a task force that will make initial studies. It will report to the committee, which then will make recommendations to the government.

On the committee with Mr. Gordon are Finance Minister Sharp, Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet, Manpower Minister Marchand and John Turner, minister without portfolio.

Before and since his resignation as finance minister after the 1965 general election, Mr. Gordon has been a severe critic of the extent of U.S. control of Canadian business. Shortly before he returned to the cabinet a few months ago there was speculation Mr. Gordon planned to resign his Commons seat.

Mr. Pearson said in a statement the government "has for some time been examining the question of foreign investment in our country, the extent of foreign ownership and control of Canadian industry, the operations in Canada and the importance to Canada of subsidiaries of foreign companies."

He said also that response to guidelines for corporate behaviour sent last March to all foreign-owned businesses operating in Canada has been good.

"But the committee was being set up as a further measure to examine the structure of Canadian industry, with special reference to foreign ownership and control."

"The study will include the significance—both political and economic — of foreign investment in the development of our country, as well as ways to encourage greater Canadian ownership of our industrial resources while retaining a climate favorable to the inflow of foreign investment as required, for Canada's optimum development."

The prime minister said the government would consider submitting a white paper based on the task force's report to a parliamentary committee for study.

Budget Cuts Perilous--LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson called today for higher taxes, higher postal rates and higher pay - cheque deductions to help finance the biggest U.S. budget in history.

Along with a $135,000,000,000 spending request for fiscal 1968, the year starting next July 1, the president sent a hands-off warning to Congress members who are grumbling loudly at rising deficits.

Deep budget cuts would cause a recession instead of the expected seventh successive year of record prosperity, Johnson's annual budget message said.

He said "the economy, the Congress, and the arms of our society would be jeopardized by either a large tax increase or by large slashes in military or civilian programs.

The budget bears what Johnson called "the deep imprint" of Vietnam, Acknowledging that the war is beginning to pinch, Johnson asked $10,400,000,000 for Vietnam alone in this year's expanded $67,000,000,000 defence department budget and $21,900,000,000 in the 72,300,000,000 defence department budget for fiscal 1968. Roughly another $500,000,000 in each year would be spent for economic aid in Vietnam through the agency for international Development.

The president requested $385,000,000 to start production of the Nike X anti-ballistic missile defence "for such purposes as defence of our offensive weapons systems," pending arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union.

The deployment of the defence system — which could cost $40,000,000,000—will be deferred, Johnson said.

But he added "in the event these discussions with Moscow prove unsuccessful, we will reconsider our deployment decision."

Measures called for by Johnson included the six-per-cent surcharge on corporation and most personal income proposed in his State of the Union address—and widely criticized in Congress—as well as a further speedup in corporation tax payments and more "user taxes" on transportation. Successive step-ups in social security taxes in 1968 and 1969 would be required to pay for the benefit increases Johnson proposed to Congress.

Brawl Greets Ky on Arrival At Auckland

AUCKLAND (AP) — New Zealand police wrestled with police dogs broke up a wild brawl at Auckland airport tonight after demonstrators mobbed the car of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky of South Vietnam by throwing themselves on the roadway.

Citibank Makes Its Final Plea

OTTAWA (CP)—The American-owned Mercantile Bank of Canada makes a last plea for its future today, with the U.S. government firmly on its side.

Mercantile appears before the Commons finance committee to argue against a Bank Act amendment that will halt its growth in Canada unless it is sold to Canadians.

On the eve of the committee hearing, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons a reply to official Washington protests against the legislation will go before the cabinet today for approval.

The government has said any expansion of foreign owned banking in Canada is against Canadian interests. Mr. Pearson declared last week: "We do not intend to retreat on this matter."

The bank's brief to the committee, released Monday, calls the legislation discriminatory, repressive, and an attempt to punish Mercantile because it is wholly-owned by the First National City Bank of New York.

The argument, which has driven a wedge in Canadian-U.S. relations as deep as any in years, reigns on one of several revisions already given approval in principle by the Commons.

The amendment limits the size of any bank whose shares are more than 25 per cent owned by foreign interests. Only Mercantile among Canadian chartered banks is affected. Its assets have already exceeded the total that would be allowed under the new act.

And the question of what transpired at a critical meeting on July 18, 1963, has caused Walton Gordon, now minister without portfolio and then finance minister, to be contradicted publicly by Mercantile President Robert P. MacFadden.

Although the controversial amendment affects only Mercantile, other amendments are also being proposed as restrictions against foreign ownership. One limits to 10 per cent the holdings of any foreign individual or group in the shares of a Canadian bank. This would prevent another foreign bank coming in or an existing bank coming under foreign control.

Mr. Gordon was the author of the restrictions originally, but they have been adopted almost without change by Finance Minister Sharp in the current amendments to the Bank Act, which is already more than two years late in the revision that by law must take place every 10 years.

Mercantile's brief said the bank was chartered in Canada 15 years ago by Dutch interests and its foreign ownership was specifically approved at the time.

The legislation not only hit a specific institution and a "particular friendly country," but it did so retroactively, "contrary to the Canadian legislative tradition of not changing the rules in the middle of the game, and not discriminating against one corporation in favor of others."

The brief does not refer directly to the July 18, 1963 meeting with Gordon, but it says that a binding written agreement had been signed June 26, 1963, for sale by the Dutch interests in Citibank.

This contradicts Mr. Gordon's recollection of the meeting, as well as a supporting memorandum signed by Clayton Elderkin, then inspector-general of banks.

The memorandum says Citibank had made an arrangement with Mercantile shareholders for the sale but quotes Citibank chairman James S. Rockefeller as saying that no firm commitment had been made.

The memorandum says further that Mr. Gordon advised against the sale, warning that this might lead to encourage restrictive legislation. . .".

It quotes Mr. Rockefeller as saying: "In other words, if we do so, it will be at our own peril."

Services Mushroom

TORONTO (CP)—About 80 per cent of all jobs created in the last 20 years were in the service sector of the economy, the sector with the poorest record of price and productivity performance, the chairman of the Economic Council of Canada said Monday.

John J. Deutsch told the opening session of a three-day conference on wages, prices and profits sponsored by the University of Toronto's Centre for Industrial Relations that "a large part of our prices increases have arisen out of this sector."

The council chairman said the fast growth of the service industry now accounts for more than one-half of total output, was a noteworthy development, but one that had largely escaped economic analysts.

Gordon Unfit--Molgat

WINNIPEG (CP) — While foreign ownership of Canada's economy is of concern, Walter Gordon should not be connected with any study of the situation, Liberal Leader Gil Molgat of Manitoba said Monday.

Mr. Molgat was commenting in an interview on the appointment of Mr. Gordon, minister without portfolio, to head an inquiry into foreign ownership of the economy.

"I don't think Walter Gordon should be connected with any study of the situation. The government should try and get someone who is recognized as an impartial observer," Mr. Molgat said.

"Some Americans might consider this a deliberate, provocative action, the same way that I, as a western Liberal, view this with concern."

CN Passenger Train Derailed In BC But Nobody Is Injured

BLUE RIVER, B.C. (CP)—Canadian National Railways crews worked today to restore 1,000 feet of track on the CN main line, uprooted Monday when 10 cars of a westbound passenger train left the tracks near this small community.

The 10 cars, all passenger units, carried about 80 persons, none of whom was injured in the derailment. A CN spokesman said the track was travelling about 30 miles an hour when the cars hit a broken section of track.

The cars remained upright.

"There was hardly any jolt when the cars jumped the track and it was not immediately obvious what had happened," said train steward Alex Halagaza of Winnipeg in a brief interview at this community, 100 miles east of Vancouver. "Everyone was very calm."

Temperatures in the area dropped to five degrees and there were walls of snow 15 feet and higher flanking the line, reflecting the light from the train windows. The passengers remained warm, however. Steam heating lines linking the cars remained intact.

The train was the CNR's Panorama, train No. 3 which left Montreal Friday night and was due in Vancouver at 8:30 p.m. Monday.

The train's diesel units, baggage and mail cars stayed on the tracks and the passengers were transferred to these for the 30-mile trip to Blue River about four hours after the accident.

George Towill, CN's public relations officer in Vancouver, said there were a number of things that could have caused the broken track, including hidden flaws in the steel rails.

The passengers taken to Blue River were later transferred to Kamloops by bus and were brought to Vancouver today.

Passengers travelling between Vancouver and Edmonton were airlifted by CN-chartered Air Canada planes with the last group arriving in Vancouver early today.

A CNR official said there was little physical damage to the cars which were derailed. He said they just hopped off the track and landed upright a foot away.

IN MEMORIAM

STEED — In loving memory of Arthur Steed, who passed away January 21, 1958.
Time may heal the broken-hearted,
Years may make the wound less sore,
But it cannot fill the longing
For the loved one gone before.
We shall see the grief is deserved,
Though the smile may hide the pain;
Memories keep the wound still open,
Despite the passing of the years.
—Always remembered by wife Lillie and son Stan.

INSLEY — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, William Insley, who passed away January 24th, 1958.
Though all our troubles, he bore as we did alone,
If we live like him, we will never go wrong.
On earth he was loved, in heaven he rests,
God bless you dad, you were one of the best.
—Always remembered by wife Hazel and family.

OMB Hears Discussion On Ameliasburg's Plan

Ameliasburg township's much discussed official plan is before the Ontario Municipal Board today.

Submissions both for and against the plan are being heard at a one-man sitting of the OMB at the Ameliasburg township hall attended by about 20 interested citizens. William Greenwood is the presiding officer.

There are 14 written objections to the official plan and throughout the day these were expected to be augmented by personal representations.

One of the main objections to the plan is the suggested size for building lots along what is known as the "front road."

The plan calls for lots of 30,000 square feet but objectors feel this is too large. They want 15,000 lots instead.

There is also a feeling that the suggested size for houses (1,200) square feet is too large in view of today's high building costs.

One objector, Jack Parrott of Stanley Park Ltd. in Belleville, said that building lots of 7,500 square feet should be sufficient if sub-divisions were supplied with sewer and water.

There is some objection also to the fact that the plan does not allow year-round homes in cottage areas.

Zoning regulation discussions got underway in Ameliasburg township back in 1962 during the reeveship of Harmon Montgomery. The next year there was an OMB hearing at which time a comprehensive zoning by-law was recommended.

Since then the Ameliasburg Homeowners Association has held a number of meetings with the township planning board resulting in several changes in the proposed official plan.

Hi There! Millbrook Graphics Prompt

Hi there!!

That's the New Year greeting from inside the medium security prison at Millbrook southwest of Peterborough — where Ontario's auto license plates are manufactured.

George Olsen, lawl licence issuer, says that occasionally a set of plates comes through with a humorous greeting printed on the wax paper envelopes in which the plates are packed.

So far this year two such greetings have been noted; both apparently printed by the same prisoner.

This week's note included the graphic drawing of a man peering over prison bars.

The message was: "Hi there, I'm a Correctional Officer."

Maureen Edness With Award

Rotary Club Presented With Beautiful Pennant

Maureen Edness, a 17-year-old Bermuda girl attending Albert College was guest of honor at Belleville Rotary Club yesterday.

Winner of the club's award to the Albert College student resident outside Canada who has made the greatest contribution to international goodwill, Miss Edness attended the meeting with College principal Bert Simpson.

A grade 11 student, Miss Edness is in her second year at Albert. She was chosen for the award at the college convocation last fall and it also recognizes her proficiency as a student and her good citizenship.

When the Rotary Club of Hamilton, Bermuda, heard of the award, it asked Miss Edness to present the Belleville club with a pennant. This she did at yesterday's meeting and in turn received one from Belleville President Dr. J. F. Mecorquodale to take back to Bermuda.

Bob Lanning, chairman of the Rotary Science Fair and Hobby Show committee, told members that this year's event has been put back until April 21-22. Originally scheduled for April 7-8, the Rotary - sponsored science fair and hobby show is being delayed because of a visit by Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe on the earlier dates.

Club member "Doc" Daugherty was the speaker at Monday's meeting. He addressed the club on the magazine of international Rotary — The Rotarian.

Tracey Visited Wyatt Home Twice With Wife Court Told

The husband of Mrs. Gertrude Tracey, a 31-year-old Ottawa nurse, set aside the alleged victim of a criminal abortion, testified today as the preliminary hearing in a two charged in Mrs. Tracey's death, entered his second day.

Charles Tracey, 27-year-old Jamaican-born auto mechanic, identified the accused man, Belleville chiropractor, Robert Allen Wyatt, 47, as the person he and his wife visited twice in Belleville for the purpose of procuring an abortion on Mrs. Tracey.

He told the court he first came to Belleville in 1963 with his wife. At that time Mrs. Tracey saw Mr. Wyatt for about 20 minutes.

Following her return to Ottawa she took 10 days off work.

The second visit was Sept. 3, 1966.

"We went to Applewood Drive. The number is 31," said Mr. Tracey.

At that time, testified Mr. Tracey, he paid Mr. Wyatt $60.

Wyatt then gave Mrs. Tracey a couple of pills, testified the witness.

COMPLAINED OF CRAMPS

Mr. Tracey said about 1 a.m. the next day after their return to Ottawa his wife complained of severe cramps.

She was taken to Ottawa's Grace Hospital several hours later and — Mr. Tracey said — he last saw his wife alive about 10.30 a.m.

"Why did you and your wife come to see Mr. Wyatt in 1963?" asked Crown Attorney John Pringle.

"My wife was pregnant and she didn't want to have the baby," answered the witness.

"Why did you come in 1966?" asked the Crown.

Replied Mr. Tracey: "For the same reason."

Under cross-examination by defence counsel Malcolm Robb, Mr. Tracey admitted he realized he and his wife were committing a criminal offence.

Mr. and Mrs. Tracey were married in Ottawa in 1962.

They have two children. Mrs. Tracey was a native of British Guiana.

One of the five crown witnesses at yesterday's opening testimony was Dr. W. F. A. Davies, of Ottawa's Grace Hospital.

Dr. Davies said Mrs. Tracey's symptoms — relayed to him by phone — appeared to be those of "an inevitable abortion."

He said her condition from the time she was admitted did not appear to be that of a woman whose womb had been punctured.

Dr. Davies was in the operating room when Mrs. Tracey died as doctors attempted to save her life.

Another hospital physician present in the operating room, Dr. William Patterson, today corroborated previous medical testimony that Dr. H. Beattie attempted to administer blood intra-sternally through the chest to Mrs. Tracey.

Dr. Patterson said that Dr. Beattie suggested the procedure.

"Apart from this case have you ever seen blood administered intra-sternally?" asked Mr. Robb.

"No", replied the doctor.

"Would it be fair to say most doctors have never performed this procedure?" asked counsel.

"Yes", said Dr. Patterson.

Child Playing With Matches Causes Blaze

Fire Chief Ted Posie today issued a warning to parents on that most combustible of combinations: Children and matches.

The warning follows a fire at a Bayview Heights residence yesterday which the chief said was caused by just such a combination.

Fire broke out at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald after their three-year-old son, playing with matches in an upstairs bedroom set curtains and a mattress alight, said Chief Posie.

Firemen had to use smoke masks before striking out the fire.

Damage was estimated at $250 — and there was no covering insurance, added the chief.

The boy escaped injury, but Mrs. Wade had her hands blistered trying to put down the blaze.

Heavy Fog Settles Over Quinte Area

Visibility in the Quinte district was reduced to a few yards early today as a ground hugging fog swept in over the area.

At Belleville the fog swept in after daylight and was at its worst about 7.30 when visibility was reduced almost to zero on 401 highway. The fog lifted before 9.00 o'clock.

Further south in Prince Edward county, however, the fog came in earlier and stayed longer and was still heavy at Picton at 9.30.

Despite the fog no accidents were reported by provincial police at Belleville and Picton.

Chinese Boycott Macao Officials

MACAO (AP) — Pro-Communist Chinese workers tonight ordered food, services and taxes denied the Portuguese officials of Macao.

The boycott announcement followed a broadcast by the government of the six-square-mile colony on the Chinese mainland in which it has been unable to agree with China on wording of a Communist demanded "apology" for the deaths of eight Chinese during pro-Communist riots early in December.

Change Time of Cheese Parade

There has been a change in plans for cheese centennial celebrations to be held in Belleville this year.

Originally a cheese parade, reliving the early days of the cheese industry in this area, was scheduled for Friday, June 2nd.

Mr. Donald Joss, president of Black Diamond Cheese, and Mr. Arnold Johnston, director, of the cheese division of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board today announced that the cheese parade with its old time wagons and other materials will be set back and incorporated into the city's big centennial parade on July 5th.

However, there will be a cheese carnival on June 3rd featuring the official opening of Black Diamond's Plant tour Program.

The carnival program will include the premier showing of the cheese industry movie "Fabulous Gennie". Bands will be on hand to entertain the visitors and of the main attractions will be a cheese museum jointly sponsored by Black Diamond and the Ontario Milk Marketing Board.

There will be a special surprise for the kiddies.

The date for the cheese carnival has been changed from Friday to Saturday to allow for maximum participation by the public.

Pharmacists Ask Tax On Drugs Be Removed

OTTAWA (CP)—The cost of drugs to the public would be cut by $14,000,000 to $15,000,000 annually if drugs were exempted from the 12-per-cent federal sales tax, the parliamentary committee on drug prices was told Monday night.

The estimate was given by J. C. Turnbull of Toronto, executive director of, the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association, which represents retail pharmacists.

Committee chairman Dr. Harry Harley (L—Halton) asked whether druggists would pass the saving on to their customers if the sales tax was removed from drugs.

The association president, D. A. Denholm of Vancouver, said the druggists would, provided drug manufacturers cut their prices in line with the tax relief.

In a supplement to its brief submitted last June, the association said removal of the "highly discretionary levy on illness" would result in retail price reductions of five to 10 per cent.

The group denied that drug prices are "too high", but contended that the drug bills of persons with certain chronic illnesses are almost unbearable. Government assistance was recommended for such persons.

Auto Markers Selling Slow Says Issuer

New auto licences have been on sale in Belleville since December 1st but according to licence issuer George Olsen business has been a bit slow.

In almost two months only about 2,600 sets of plates out of the more than 11,000 to go out, have so far been sold.

However, this works out at slightly more than 20 per cent which is more than the all-Ontario sales of about 15 per cent announced last week.

The deadline for purchase of 1967 plates for autos and motorcycles is February 28th and according to Transport Minister, Hon. Irwin Haskett there will be no extension.

"Tropical Season" Boon to City

Road grading in January? Thanks to unseasonable temperatures soaring into the high 40s, that is exactly what the Belleville public works department is carrying out this week.

Held up last fall by exceptionally wet autumn weather which hampered sewer installation, work is now being carried out on Harder Drive, a new street leading from Palmer Road to the new Sir John A. Macdonald public school in West Belleville.

Top soil was excavated last fall and yesterday the city road grader was in operation, pairing off the high spots in preparation for the base coat of gravel.

Actually, the city road graders have been in operation all winter, although possibly for moving snow instead of dirt and gravel.

Today ice and snow was being moved away from the curbs on Victoria Ave., George, and John streets where works crews were operating up catch basins and draining off puddles and ponds which form along the street.

Despite the exceptionally mild weather which is rapidly cutting the snow, there has been no appreciable flooding in the city.

The City engineer admits, however, that the unseasonable weather is hard on the streets.

But, as the old saying goes "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good," the mild weather has its good points as far as the works department is concerned.

Instead of a heavy ice mantle expected at this time of year, the Moira River is running open from Canniton almost to the CPR bridge in downtown Belleville.

Last year at this time there was concern over heavy ice and a possible spring flood.

University Forum

Universities traditionally are in the forefront of political thought and action.

However, there is a degree of immaturity among political groups in universities that may be attributed to the very youthfulness of their members. The agents provocateur of varsity life are the radicals who favor radicalism as a cult, for its own sake. This trend is observed the moment a new political figure appears on the scene, because the next thing we know the fellow is being invited to speak at some university or other. And the more extremist he is the better.

The University of Victoria affords an example of this. Its political science forum is reported interested in issuing a speaking invitation to German politician Adolf von Thadden, vice-chairman of the controversial National Democratic Party of West Germany. The party, representing what has been described as the residue of Germany's rightwing fringe groups, had bolstered its Neo-Nazi in its learnings, won 7.4 per cent of the vote in last November's Bavarian elections.

Von Thadden had received other such invitations, only to see them withdrawn — their initiators, apparently having second thoughts. The University of British Columbia last week cancelled a speaking engagement by the German. In Britain the Oxford University Liberal Club and Southampton University had already done likewise.

It may be asked if universities, in cancelling the invitations are adopting a more mature outlook? Indeed, have we not had enough of Nazism, which still flourishes, albeit clandestine fashion, both here and abroad?

Moreover, there is enough of the Nazi brain in the National Democratic Party of Germany to render suspect any denials by Von Thadden himself. In other words, many universities climb on the bandwagon as it were, to assist in propagating the views of people of alien ideology like von Thadden?

Or viewed from the purely academic standpoint, have students nothing better to do? Must the public forever be subjected to extremism of one kind or another, fostered not only on political platforms and in universities but on television too?

Vietnam Terrorism

"Two wrongs do not make a right." This is an old saying that makes sense.

However, when it comes to Viet Nam, those who are forever painting the United States as an aggressor, criticizing the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam for instance, and accusing it of committing atrocities in the war against the Communists, should consider some facts.

We pointed out recently that some 1,000 South Vietnamese civilians — men, women and children — die every month at the hands of the Viet Cong. The authority for this statement is evangelist Dr. Billy Graham who visited the war area recently.

South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, while using the word assorted the civilian deaths resulting from U.S. bombing, told Australians last week that comparatively little notice is taken of Viet Cong terrorism.

"Doctors, priests, monks, welfare workers and nurses are slaughtered in cold blood," he said. "Busloads of small children going to school and housewives going to...market are blown up.

"What of the 7,277 civilians who have been murdered and the 35,218 persons kidnapped by the Viet Cong during the past five years?"

Certainly the Americans and South Vietnamese have no monopoly when it comes to the baser elements of war itself an ignoble pastime. Once the war is ended, however, and peace is restored, terrorism as a factor present in one degree or another in any conflict will tend to lessen and ultimately die out.

New Status

Britain is conducting an interesting experiment in the government of some of its remaining West Indian territories.

The islands of Antigua, Dominica, Grenada, St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla and St. Lucia shortly are to become states in association with Britain. With the introduction of the new constitutions the islands will be known as the West Indies Associated States.

The changeover is expected within the next seven weeks. Britain will retain responsibility for defence and foreign affairs. In all other respects, however, the territories will be self-governing, and will have the right to end the association and to assume their independence without further reference to the British Parliament.

The new status in these Caribbean islands should work out to their advantage. Too small and economically dependant at the moment to be offered independence, as in the case of Jamaica, of Trinidad-Tobago, and Barbados, the islands nevertheless will enjoy a degree of self-determination which will prepare them for that eventuality in the days ahead.

Kooky Carryings-On Crumbling Company of Young Canadians

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — For the Company of Young Canadians, once the apple of Prime Minister Pearson's eye, it may be one-two-three-four times and out.

For the Prime Minister, always a man who would rather let things work out for themselves than work them out himself, now finally could be getting around, if rather reluctantly, to doing something about the controversial CYC, that supposed "great experiment in youthful democracy," as the Administration's Swingers like to call it.

That sort of puts the Company at the crossroads of its short and stormy life.

Because, despite the Prime Minister's hesitating defence — and he himself was very much on the defensive since he is the honorary father of the father kooky Company — the word is out that his Young Canadians may have had it.

Studies are under way to determine just whether, but what changes must be made in the Company to end strange carryings-on.

And the suggestion already is that if the Young Canadians can't straighten up, then they just might have to shut up — shop, that is.

For contrary to general belief, the Company has been in trouble, not merely twice, but four times — to the embarrassment of the Government and the anonymous, or worse, of the Prime Minister.

The Company of Young Canadians, you'll remember, is that group of starry-eyed young world-saving do-gooders which, at the annual cost of $1,200,000, two years ago was assigned by the Prime Minister to fight poverty wherever it could be found, at home or abroad.

ONE . . . Then the Company's Deputy Director, writing for the students' newsletter, told them that in the view of many young people, the democratically - elected governments had what he called "the Canadian power structure," were their "implacable foes." Then he counselled them: "One must try to encourage new power centres," which in its particular context was widely interpreted as an invitation to civil disobedience or even violence.

. . . THREE . . . The more recent leading by two Company "volunteers" of an anti-American pro-Viet Cong demonstration in front of Toronto's U.S. Consulate.

. . . Four . . . Circulation by the Company of another "newsletter," this one including some positively unprintable four and seven-letter words.

Well, just how kooky is the Company?

Listen to Douglas Fisher, the former NDP MP: a man even more inclined than the Prime Minister to forgive and forget the indiscretions of youth, basically a fervent Company supporter: "I visited a couple of Maritime training centres, returned and reported:

"'This was . . . a group which rejected structure, organization and discipline, expertise and professionalism. It seemed to me that this could be the pooling of ignorance in the magic name of youth, using the critique of society and the methods of the New Left.'"

As the evidence accumulates, it is becoming the consensus of the Commons — the NDP, of course, excepted — that too many of the Company's youth crusaders are more concerned with whosophomoric rebellion than in service to humanity.

There is no question that the Company lacks respect for authority, purpose and organization and is being used as an instrument of social upheaval — subscribing, as it seems, to the proposition that duly - elected government and society as it currently is constituted are the "implacable foes" of youth including, presumably, the Young Canadians themselves.

There is also suspicion that some of the Young Canadians have been associated with groups or "fronts" that are suspect by the Security and Intelligence Division of the RCMP, and so, of course, are denied access to confidential and classified government documents.

"The Company," one now - disillusioned East Block executive says quite frankly, "is more in need of assistance itself than capable of giving it to others."

Final note: The Company is a Crown Corporation, and so a charge on your tax bill.

To Your Good Health

Hormones Play a Part in Hysterectomy Operation

Dear Dr. Molner: Four years ago, at 36, I had a partial hysterectomy (only uterus and tubes removed, not the ovaries).

Some time later my doctor started me on hormones and said I would have to take them as long as I live. Since then my doctor has left town, but I am still taking the pills. Should I quit? I read in your column that it is not necessary to take them for life.

Is it necessary to have Pap smear tests after a hysterectomy? — Mrs. T. M.

As I wrote, hormone medication may be necessary only to help a woman over the troublesome symptoms of menopause. As the symptoms subside, the treatment can be stopped. If the symptoms recur, hormones can be resumed.

There is a tendency lately to try continuing hormone medication well past menopause because it makes some women feel generally better. To this, I can say only that we should exercise good judgment. If the patient clearly is more comfortable with the hormones, that is good reason for continuing them.

But I look with suspicion on the tendency to think that because hormones help some women, that all should have them. Health and the practice of medicine are intensely personal, individual matters, and each case should be judged on its own merits.

I do feel that when such hormones are taken for a prolonged time, it is usually wise to use them cyclically — that is, to omit them for a week or two each month.

As to Pap smears, they are necessary after a total hysterectomy, but if some organs are left in, particularly the cervix or part of the uterus, then Pap tests should be continued.

However, even after a total hysterectomy the type of cells found in vaginal wall may give your physician a clue as to the need for hormonal treatment.

Dear Dr. Molner: Much of the time when I have a strong need to urinate, the force of flow is noticeably restricted and it takes more time to relieve the bladder pressure. What can be causing this? — S. G.

It is one of the classic signs of prostatic enlargement, although occasionally other factors may be involved. I'd report this to your doctor at once. If you want more data on where the prostate gland is, and how it behaves and misbehaves, I have a new booklet, "The Prostate." You can obtain a copy by sending 20 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundee Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: A friend tells me that I use a tongue scraper for a long time but is unable to find one any more. I couldn't find one either. — W. H.

Reaching far back in memory, I can recall seeing people use a strip of flexible whalebone or some such thing to scrape the tongue, but it isn't often necessary and I haven't seen one in years. If scraping is really needed, a toothbrush or the edge of a spoon should serve the purpose.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes a person's stomach to swell? They told him he had liver trouble. — Mrs. L. M. B.

It probably would be more accurate to say that the patient's abdomen swells. Cirrhosis of the liver can result in a great deal of water accumulating in the abdominal cavity (dropsy), and congestion can also cause swelling of the liver itself.

Age of the Coddled Student

Orillia Packet and Times

It is one of the absurdities of the age we live in that our youth, born into the most comfortable and affluent society the world has ever known, should appear to wallow in self-pity and devote its energies to bleating protests about almost every aspect of human endeavor. Life can offer few more ridiculous spectacles than that of the coddled university student, his education subsidized by the public purse and his every expense paid for by indulgent parents, the heedless recipient of rights and privileges, luxuries and amenities won for him by less fortunate generations, lashing out at a society which asks nothing of him or parading in protest of actions he doesn't understand by people he doesn't know in lands he's never visited.

Yet as every parent knows, this image is largely an illusion. Look about you; most young people, your children and mine, are much like the young men and women of any generation, generally taller, brighter versions of their parents, perhaps with more schooling and less learning than their predecessors. They seem a casual, happy crew, despite the callow crusading of campus crackpots and the philosophical inanities of studentquote lecturers, for the tortured image of Protesting Youth is almost wholly the creation of a handful of self-appointed spokesmen for Youth.

These are the Peter Pans of campus and coffee house, the ageless youths who never grow up. They are the professional hipsters, for whom the irresponsibility, the ease, the shallow attitudes of youth are a way of life or a form of escape. Their beards, the bards, the dress, the folk singers, the rabble rousers, these are the creators of the image of Youth in the newspapers and newscasts of today.

A credulous public has connived at this distorted image of Youth; a public with an insatiable appetite for stories of the new, rather than substance, for teachins rather than teachings. In any controversy, it is the antics of the few, rather than the attitudes of the many, that make the headlines. We are being solemnly acted out the charade required of us "to understand youth," instituting tedious forums and mindless debates dedicated to youthful woolgathering, and have even inaugurated a Company of Young Canadians who organize protest picketing, investigate conditions in Yorkville and undertake other missions of equal merit and moment.

It is all nonsense, of course, the tomfoolery of a sheltered society with time and money to waste. But it would be as well for Canadians to remember, amid all this high-flown hugger-mugger, that despite the efforts of the professors and promoters, the preachers and pornographers, to depict Youth as some new and alien race suddenly precipitated within our midst, it is really only the sons and daughters who've been growing up around the house all this time.

English Is Essential

La Voix de l'Est, Granby

The teaching of English in public schools will always be a controversial subject. There will always be some people opposed to it. Why? They would find it difficult to give even one worthwhile reason. And yet, still, it is essential for our people to know their language well, to speak it well, to write it well. They will always be better placed to learn the second language, if they wish to succeed in the business world on the local, provincial, national or international level.

Though Quebec remain the bastion of the French-language, whether it becomes independent or not, though in the new day the working language in all the factories and offices, it still will be necessary for them to know English . . .

Since we could not live in a closed cell, and even if we declared all English - speaking people to speak French in Quebec, we would still need to know English to communicate with those of other provinces and of countries with which we wish to do business.

Ottawa Plans to Lure Private Capital Back to Housing

REGINA (CP)—Housing construction in Canada fell off last year but may pick up again this year, Labor Minister Nicholson said Monday.

Addressing the first of a series of housing conferences to be held across Canada, Mr. Nicholson, minister in charge of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. said private capital usually invested in residential construction was attracted elsewhere in the booming economy last year.

The federal government had to spend $100,000,000 more on housing aid than it did in the record year of 1965, but even increased federal spending did not compensate for the drop in private investment. There was a decline of 32,000 in housing starts last year compared with 1965, he said.

The government planned to maintain the same level of financial aid but hoped private investment would be attracted once again to housing construction.

"I believe in a few months there will be some help for housing from the private sector and, later in the year, from banks," he said. The government hoped to make an announcement within two weeks which would "at least partially alleviate the housing shortage."

"Housing must be a priority item for 1967, but housing will not be with volume alone, as volume means little if dwellings available are only for those above a certain income level," he said.

The trend to urbanization was disturbing to both federal and provincial governments as more and more people moved to cities where building lots were often not available.

"The answer seems to be, at least for low-income - bracket people, more public housing with an association between rent and income. This is not the complete answer, but it certainly is necessary for those with incomes of $5,000 to $6,000."

He said public housing rents should be based on the tenant's income, but that this was difficult when monthly income was $300 or $350.

Primary concern must be given to providing decent housing for senior citizens, students and others living on a fixed income, he said.

"Those of us charged with formulating policy must be prepared to propose new programs to meet the problem where current legislation is lacking."

He said the one-day conference helped attract greater interest in public housing and encourage more activity among builders and lending institutions. It also helped local officials become more aware that funds are available for housing.

The conference also discussed the problems of housing for Indians and construction in areas developing into industrial regions and attracting new workers.

Alec Caldwell, representing the Saskatchewan Federation of Indians, said that adequate low-rental housing developments should be built, with additional income supplied if needed during the Indian's period of adjustment to urban life.

Mr. Nicholson said "most municipal officials would question whether they had any financial responsibility for providing this. The responsibility is primarily federal and to some extent provincial."

Conferences similar to the one here Monday are to be held in every Canadian province during the next few months.

The market began its decline Monday when the index slid .30 during the last 30 minutes of trading but still managed to show a gain on the day, closing at 159.08.

The industrial index, which measures the market's performance closely, rose 2.10 to 159.08 after it had been as high as 159.34 in early-afternoon activity.

Trading was light and only 2,603,000 shares changed hands compared with 3,280,000 Friday.

Since the beginning of the year the industrial index has gained more than 12 points which brokers have attributed to prospects of easier money.

Wilson Says Market Entry Curb to U.S.

PARIS (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson told President de Gaulle today Britain sees no entry into the European Common Market as a way of curbing American industrial domination in Europe and of developing an active partnership with Eastern European Communist countries.

In response, de Gaulle quizzed Wilson about various aspects of Britain's European policies but without giving any indication of whether he will support or oppose British entry.

Nutria Breeders' Assoc. Holds Annual Meeting

NAPANEE — The annual meeting of the Eastern Ontario Nutria Breeders Association here was held recently at the home of the president, Wallace Hogeboom of the Deseronto Road, and was well attended, with 22 ranchers present from a score of widely separated points as Pierce, Chrysler, Trenton, Prince Edward, Godfrey, Belleville and Gananoque.

Enthusiasm ran high as they reviewed the year's progress, with the successful shipment to Russia of breeding stock and the prospect of still further markets opening up in Europe. Walter Whale of Stouffville, president of Canadian Nutria, Limited, la now in Dublin on official business.

The meeting was called early, with the first hour taken up with a demonstration in pelting given by Wallace Hogeboom and Cecil Peters of Godfrey.

Mr. Hogeboom vacated the chair and it was taken over by Mrs. Cecil Peters of Godfrey for the election of officers. Mr. Peters is the new president by acclamation; Robert Louyr of Belleville is vice-president; and Mrs. Lloyd Chase of Gananoque, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Hogeboom had held the office of president for two years.

One of the interesting items on the menu for the refreshments which followed the meeting was roasted nutria, prepared by Mrs. Hogeboom. The meat is considered a great delicacy. Nutria are members of the beaver family.

Leaking Gas Causes Rerouting of Traffic

DESERONTO — Traffic was rerouted for more than three hours off Highway 2 here last night after a gasoline tank truck was discovered leaking gas at a roadside bus terminal.

Fire Chief Al Fraser said he ordered the area sealed because the situation "could have been a real dangerous thing," as the gas seeped beneath the terminal premises.

Firemen and police were called after Mrs. A. E. Hill, who is employed at a store and service station on the spot, smelt the fumes.

Traffic was diverted off the highway running through the centre of town from 10 p.m. to 1:30 a.m until gas company officials arrived from Belleville and pumped the tank empty.

Residents in a neighbouring three-unit apartment block were warned to stay indoors during the emergency.

Trans-Canada Claims Firms Protecting Private Interests

WASHINGTON (CP) — Two American natural gas transmission companies have private interests in seeking to extend hearings before the Federal Power Commission, says Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd.

The Canadian company is asking the commission today to proceed so that Trans-Canada will have authorization for a $200,000,000 project in time to start delivering more Alberta gas to Eastern Canada and U.S. markets by next fall.

Northern Natural Gas Co. and Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co. last week asked the commission to reopen hearings concluded last summer to take further evidence.

Trans-Canada's objections to such a step is being submitted today to commissioner examiner William Levy. He has called a conference of the interested parties and then will decide whether to have more hearings or proceed with a nonbiding recommendation in the form asked for the full commission to reject or confirm.

A Trans - Canada statement about its submission says granting the Northern request would mean delaying construction of its pipeline across territory now served by Northern and the "issue is one of a private interest against the interest of the public."

TRADE RIVAL BID

Northern has its rival proposal before examiner Levy, offering to take Canadian gas at the Manitoba border while providing Ontario with American gas.

As for Panhandle, Trans-Canada said the company is selling to Ontario distributors now on a temporary basis "at a higher price than the company is permitted to sell in the U.S."

"Obviously this company would like to have those sales continued as long as possible. This would be accomplished by a delay of the construction of the Trans-Canada line."

Both American companies want to submit evidence arising from the agreement last fall between Trans-Canada and the Canadian government. Thus ensure that the proposed line through the U.S. will be a secondary source of supply for Eastern Canada while the main channel continues to run through Northern Ontario from Alberta.

Trenton Auxiliary Can Promote Hospital Image

TRENTON — During 1966, the members of the Trenton Memorial Hospital women's auxiliary donated equipment worth $2,055 to the hospital.

Ways and Means convener Mrs. T. W. Spear told the annual meeting yesterday the auxiliary had raised $1,250 by holding a rose tag day, a fiesta day and a rummage sale.

In addition to assisting with the purchase of hospital equipment, the members also helped out at blood donor clinics, assisted in the hospital in a number of ways and gave its annual $100 bursary to a high school student.

This year, the auxiliary will give $100 bursaries to two students entering some branch of the medical profession, as a Centennial project.

Mrs. F. A. Beeby of Belleville, District 8 auxiliaries' representative, outlined the requirements of a well - run auxiliary. She said well informed members could sustain community interest in the running of the hospital. Members may gain this knowledge of their hospital by taking a tour of the institution, attending demonstrations of new equipment and maintaining a close relationship with the hospital staff.

A number of past presidents attended yesterday's meeting, among them the charter president, Mrs. A. S. McConnell of Belleville.

DEMANDS SAME RIGHTS

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State representative Bob Bass proposes to introduce a bill in the legislature giving wives the right to shoot their husbands' paramours if caught in adultery. Husbands now have the right to shoot adulterous boyfriends. "The women wanted to repeal the paramour law altogether but I want to have a man the right to pro-ect his home," said Bass. "This just gives them e q u a l shooting rights, that's all."

January School for Children In Kindergarten a Success

TORONTO (CP)—If a child is born in December he'll be admitted to kindergarten in the Ontario public school system in the September before his fifth birthday.

But if he happens to be born in January he'll be almost six before he starts school.

This is the story behind the January School, founded five years ago by Tadeusz Grygier, a Polish-born University of Toronto professor, and his psychologist wife Patricia.

When they came to Canada in 1961 they found their four-year-old son Jan barred from kindergarten although they thought he was ready.

They rounded up six other children also born in January and started the school.

Enrolment now has risen to 35 and the age level has been lowered even more. Mrs. Grygier says some children in the late three-year-old and early four-year-old categories have been admitted to what she calls the pre-prep or junior kindergarten class.

READY TO LEARN

The school's curriculum is based on the Parents' National Educational Union in England which came into existence 100 years ago and, says Mrs. Grygier, was far ahead of its times.

She says it stressed principles now borne-out by research—that children are often ready to learn sooner, than most people realize, and that they should be free to advance at their own pace.

The school has five classes ranging from pre-prep to Grade 4 with Grades 3 and 4 grouped together. When children graduate they usually enter Grade 5 in the public school system, although occasionally the January School recommends they start one grade lower.

A limited survey was done by the mother of a January School student and she found that the school's pupils fit smoothly into other systems.

The school charges from $350 a year for half-day kindergarten children to $825 for those in Grades 3 and 4. It's a non-profit operation.

"The Cultural Explosion in Canada" Timely Subject at Club Meeting

The Canadian Club of Belleville and District held its first meeting of 1967 at Sir Winston Churchill School on Monday evening, January 23rd, with a truly interesting guest speaker and a timely subject, "The Cultural Explosion in Canada."

Dr. Ross Burtt, president of the club, chaired the meeting and introduced Mr. Nicholas Goldschmidt, well-known Canadian conductor and director of music. "Niki" Goldschmidt was born in Czechoslavakia of Belgian and Austrian parents but trained in Europe. His career has been notable in the field of performing arts in Canada and the United States. He was artistic director of the Vancouver International Festival and has conducted many world famous orchestras.

Mr. Goldschmidt is assisting the Centennial Commission in developing its cultural program, especially in the field of the performing arts.

The speaker's theme was a plea for more appreciation of the talent within Canada and opportunities and facilities for this talent to be developed and appreciated by Canadians.

"Eighty five thousand people saw the Confederation Train in Victoria and Nanaimo, the tour of Les Feux Follets was attended by thousands of people in the western provinces — houses were sold out wherever this colorful and entertaining company gave its Festival Canada performances. The Centennial Play received bad notices, but the audiences loved it; the film "Helicopter Canada" has received rave notices."

Mr. Goldschmidt continued, "During the many years of preparation for Centennial celebrations, people argued about the wisdom of erecting the many cultural centres, theatres, auditoria, and others. At the same time the press was full of praise for the imaginative project of Youth Travel that started in 1965, and as far as is known will even be carried out after 1967."

"There is so much what one can share with others and I do not mean just material things. Above all, one should share those things which are worth living for; and there I mean values, education in the best sense, appreciation of our creative forces, awareness of our role in the world affairs, pride in our heritage, belief in ourselves and our fellow man and a willingness to place ethics above ambition."

"We must not disregard tradition; instead a spirit of adventure should encourage artists, explorers, statesmen to search for the new, for the unknown. Only by creating an environment that looks ahead, that promises new discoveries and expansion, can we look forward to the exciting and challenging second century of Confederation."

"This 100th anniversary of ours might very well be the beginning of a new era in which, through the advancement in science and technology, distances will shrink to mere hours, and will be measured in dollars, not in time."

"Festival Canada — the name identifying the Performing Arts in Centennial Year — has been planned in co-operation with the Provinces and Territories. It is an expression of Canadian talent in a variety of entertainment from coast to coast. Its purpose is to present a program that is must be as diversified in content as it is widespread geographically. It must be recognized as one of the strongest media to bring about better understanding among our people; it must appeal to the young as well as the old; it must inspire the student and improve the craft of the professional; it must educate without preaching and it must entertain in the best sense of the word. Above all, monies spent must become an investment in the future."

"I can assure you," Mr. Goldschmidt continued, "that if the Commission had not been convinced that we have in Canada as much talent as any other country in the world, we would not have given the Arts such prominence in the program for Centennial celebrations.

"Under federal - provincial grants some $45,000,000 have been allocated for auditoria and theatres alone. These buildings must not remain empty shells. They must become living edifices which will be in keeping with the idea of erecting lasting monuments to the Centennial of Confederation. Up until-now opportunities were few and places to perform in were almost non-existent. But once these buildings are up, 1967 will stand out as the beginning of a new century."

Many other events will take place during 1967. Besides the train and the youth travel program there will also be the Confederation caravans, the military tattoo, the canoe pageant, the publication program, the medallions for school children, the tree planting and the community centennial program. Whatever the plans are or how diversified and imaginative the project will be, the Centennial celebrations can only succeed if all of you want them to succeed."

After Mr. Goldschmidt's address a spirited question and answer period occurred.

Mr. Charles Wilson, in thanking Mr. Goldschmidt, expressed the pleasure of the audience in having such a delightful person to burk on a community where culture has become a neglected commodity and he expressed the opinion that, through the efforts of the speaker and his like, "culture is indeed due for a glorious revision."

Lunch and social hour followed the formal closing of the meeting.

Reader Lists Favorite Recipes

By MARY MOORE

In my note to you on Christmas Eve I wistfully wondered how many of my Christmas recipes you had made, not dreaming anyone would clue me in.

But Beth C. did and it is a great help and I hope you will pardon my pride in quoting her letter:

"Dear Mary: One evening recently you were wondering how many of your recipes your readers had used, so thought I would just let you know my list:

1) Christmas cake, very nice
2) Christmas pudding, super
3) Cranberry jelly mould worked beautifully
4) 1958 Christmas cake — but used jelly gumdrops cut up in place of fruit (put in pineapple)
5) Tomato juice — fixed as you suggested some time ago
6) Crescent cookies with chopped walnuts, a great favorite with my family
7) Turkey stuffing — given October 1965 which is the best dressing I have ever made
8) Lemon dessert cake — made with the two jelly roll recipes and the lemon filling and whipped cream icing. This was devoured by the busiest eaters at a Boxing Day dinner party.

The Santa Claus cake my neighbor made to take to the kindergarten party. It was so good, she then made a second one for her family. The children ate kindergarten each chose which part they wanted to eat. It made a lovely centre-piece too.

Now I will thank you for all your other good recipes which I have filed away and wish you all the best in the New Year. — Beth."

Thank you Beth.

Ann Landers

Admits Error in Advice Given to 15-year Old

ANN LANDERS

DEAR READERS: Somewhere out there is a 15-year-old girl who is doing all the ironing for a family of eight. When she wrote recently I told her to quit beefing, that one thing was certain — when she got married she would know how to iron, which was more than I could say for most teen-age girls.

I am changing my advice. The avalanche of mail from irate readers has persuaded me that I was wrong. Here's a sampling:

From Louisville: When was the last time you did all the ironing for eight people? Check with someone who has and you will reverse yourself. Your advice is usually solid, but this time you goofed.

From Eureka, Calif.: You gotta be kidding. My daughter is 15 and does her share of the work in the house, but I certainly would not expect her to do all the ironing — and we are four, not eight.

From San Francisco: There are seven in our family and I do a washing every day. Our 15-year-old daughter irons the towels and sheets and her own blouses. I wouldn't ask her to do many more! I'm thankful I don't have to do her homework. Have you been inside a high school lately?

From Memphis: If there are eight in the family there must be other girls who are old enough to help with the ironing. Why should the 15-year-old be stuck with all of it? A girl of 11 can iron handkerchiefs and pillowcases and towels. Please change your advice.

The readers have proven once again that everybody knows better than anybody. I now take the position that a 15-year-old girl should do part of the ironing, but not all of it and I'm ready to take my punishment. (How about 10 lashes with the electric cord?)

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother-in-law is a wonderful woman. She has lived with an abusive, alcoholic husband for 30 years and raised a fine family in spite of her terrible problems.

Two years ago my father-in-law got so mean she couldn't take it any more so she left him and moved in with us. One month later the drunken bum showed up and he moved in, too. When I came home and found him here I took my husband aside and told him to get the guy out. His answer was, "He is my father. I can't."

Now, Ann Landers, our marriage is in danger. The fighting and flying crockery have made my husband a nervous wreck. Last night he said, "If you don't get them out of this house I am leaving.

They are his parents, Ann. Isn't it up to him to tell them to go? I also worry about what will happen to my mother-in-law if we throw them out. Please give me some advice and fast. — SMACK DAB IN THE MIDDLE.

DEAR DAB: It's your husband's place to invite his parents to continue the Thirty Year War elsewhere, but obviously he is not equal to the task so you'll have to help him.

A few weeks after they leave, when your father-in-law has re-arranged your mother-in-law's bridgework for the 50th time, she'll be back. Welcome her. But don't let the old man move in again or you'll have a re-run of the nightmare you've lived with for the past two years.

* * *

Confidential to IF YOU WERE IN MY SHOES: I would throw them out and buy another pair right now, throw them out anyway and go bare-footed. You'll be more comfortable and you'll look better, too.

Husband's Smoking in Bedroom Bothers Wife With Sinus Allergy

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have sinus trouble, and smoke smell makes me sick to my stomach.

My husband has a habit of smoking in our bedroom. When I go to bed it just takes about five minutes before my nose is blocked, my head aches, and my stomach starts feeling nauseated. I have asked him to please smoke in the hall and not too close to the bedroom door, but he won't do this until I start swearing at him and yelling, and he starts having a big smile on his face and walks out of the room.

I just got out of the hospital last week and I can't take this much more. — Help

Dear Help: People without sinus trouble or asthma seldom guess the discomfort — and even panic — which may go with not being able to breathe properly. The smokers go blithely along tempting fate and feeling superior.

Then you lose your temper and he gets the idea you have no sympathy or tolerance for his enjoyment of smoking.

Could you reverse the tables by setting him up a smoking spot? An easy chair, a smoker's side table, located in front of the TV, would be evidences of your pampering a good will. And this may indeed be important to him when it comes to relaxing.

Then you could ask him to either put on exhaust fan in the bedroom or select a room for you to sleep in where he promises he won't smoke.

Dear Doris: I am a girl 13 and worried about my girl friend.

One day a few weeks ago she and this boy went to our drugstore and this boy picked up a couple of bars and then left without getting caught. Another day they went to the store again and stole around a dollar's worth of chocolate bars. To make things worse, she is a diabetic and should not have sweets.

While telling me this she actually said that the stealing was fun. I know her parents should be told, not only because of her stealing but because of her diabetes. The only thing is that she told this to me in confidence and I want to know how to go about telling her parents without her knowing I squealed on her, for she is still my girl friend. — Not a Fink

Dear Not A: What a dilemma! But her disease will tell on her. Many an adult diabetic has cheated on the no-sugar regime and made himself sick.

Your girl friend may be turning to the mischief of stealing, not only for forbidden sweets, but also for the excitement of doing something dangerous. Anxious parents may have laid down laws about just about everything, and she has few outlets or compensations.

Both she and the boy need to understand more about her condition. Could you help here? At the very least you could make her a present of a chocolate bar made with a sugar substitute (to be found in the diabetic section of the grocery store).

And you could use your influence to get her involved in exciting activities which are not against the law. Don't betray her confidence.

Dear Doris: Are there football clinics for coaches in Canada? How would a person find out about the ones in the USA? — Bertie Joe

Dear B.J.: Yes indeed, and hockey and basketball clinics too. And others. It is a part of the Canadian Government's Fitness and Amateur Sport program to give backing to coaching clinics, in cooperation with the athletic organizations concerned.

Write to Information Services, Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa, for more details and for camps and clinics which are operated in the South.

Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

linen towels people bring home as small gifts from abroad. This one is attractive — pictures of three Wren churches in London. I'd like to hang it in the kitchen for a while before demoting it to the mundane task of drying dishes.

Last time I did this I fastened the towel with sticky tape, which didn't hold too well, then with masking tape. However, when it came down so did the paint. Have you a better idea? Would appreciate your help. — H. A.

Unless you put a nail in the wall, you must use something sticky. Right! And anything sticky takes off the paint. So back to the nail; preferably a picture nail. This neat part will take a little listening to.

Make a trapeze, to hang on the nail, to hold the towel. (Sounds like an excerpt from The House That Jack Built). From your nearest building supply or lumber dealer, buy two narrow strips of wood that are flat on one side and rounded on the other. Have him cut them a few inches longer than the width of the towel.

With the flat sides of the wood facing each other, place the straight top edge of the towel between them. Centre, and secure the strips with a few finishing nails so that they hold the towel firmly. Tap the nails in lightly so that they can easily be removed when you wish to use this contraption to hang something else. It will support a fair amount of weight.

Choose a colored piece of rope cord to tie on each end so that when the middle of the cord is hooked over the nail it will form a V-shaped trapeze with the towel hanging down from the bar at the bottom.

When not in use for this purpose, keep the nail covered with a plaque, mirror, picture or pretty plate.

Are you still with me? Good. You're a bright one. — Susanna.

Transportation Bill Expected To Receive Approval Shortly

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons enters the 12th day of committee study on the transport bill today amid growing optimism that opposition MPs are ready to end the marathon debate.

Three clauses still need approval in the 94-clause bill establishing a national transportation policy.

A government spokesman said Monday night he expects the bill to be approved today. Several Western Canada MPs, absent from the House Monday, still want to speak on the bill, he said, but they would likely require only a short time today.

George McIlraith, government House leader, says priority Commons business after the transport legislation is completed includes bills revising the Bank Act, unifying the armed forces, establishing a collective bargaining system in the public service and two bills dealing with Finance Minister Sharp's December mini-budget.

He said in an interview the government feels these measures must be approved before the end of the session.

But a number of lesser measures, including a bill establishing a film development corporation and a resolution on the adoption of O Canada as national anthem, were slated for debate today if the transport bill is finished on time.

On Monday MPs approved one government amendment, writing a guarantee into the bill protecting subsidized freight-rate levels in the Maritimes.

Michael Forrestall (PC — Halifax) argued that the government amendment didn't offer sufficient protection. Low rates were essential if hopes for establishment of secondary industry there were to be realized.

The amendment guaranteed that nothing in the bill "shall be construed to affect any obligation imposed upon any railway company. . . ."

Transport Minister Pickersgill assured MPs from the Atlantic provinces the government expects to introduce legislation next year dealing with Maritime transportation problems generally.

A study was under way on this topic and there would be no erosion of statutory protection of rates, including those affecting the ports of Saint John and Halifax.

Maritime MPs had complained that Montreal and Quebec city were steadily grabbing more and more tonnage from the Maritime ports. The rate protection was needed to meet this competition.

The three clauses up for committee study today include the first one in the bill, setting out its principles and due to be amended by the minister; one empowering the proposed 17-member transportation commission to investigate allegations of prejudicial rates or transportation conditions, and one allowing for appeals by railways to the commission against statutory rates two years after the bill's passage.

The latter clause, the subject of a three-page amendment by the minister Monday, was the one that embarrassed the government last week. A committee amendment to it was passed by one vote, necessitating the new provision proposed Monday.

Originally, the clause proposed a review within three years by the commission of grain freight rates.

The current amendment proposes that the railways must first seek a rate review, then convince the commission with proof that the rates are out of line. Even then, the government is not obliged to recommend a change in statutory rates.

Western MPs have expressed concern that any review might result in the Crowsnest Pass freight rates being increased. These rates, set by statute in 1897, are said by the railways to be too low. A royal commission on transportation said the same thing in 1958.

The Commons approved several times Monday dealing with gas pipelines, Reg Cantelon (PC—Kindersley) suggested in the Commons that pipelines in commodity pipelines where the economy of an area, from which the product was being piped, would be hurt.

The Saskatchewan MP said there is great industrial potential in the potash and sulphur deposits now being developed in the province. But commodity pipelines might move these materials as raw products to go to established industrial areas for treatment.

Mr. Pickersgill said the national energy board and proposed commission would hold joint hearings on matters concerning "combined pipelines" in which capsules containing commodities move through gas lines along with oil and gas.

The commission alone would review commodity pipelines. None exists in Canada at present.

Ontario Science Centre To Fix Completion Date

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's Centennial Centre of Science and Technology, hard-hit by spiralling costs and a wave of resignations, will attempt today to improve its tarnished public image.

Centre officials will announce a firm completion date for the major Ontario centennial project at a news briefing designed to prevent the centre becoming a political football in the Ontario legislature session which opens Wednesday.

The officials will also attempt to explain why cost estimates have risen from an initial $5,000,000 to the present $25,000,000 to $30,000,000.

They are also expected to explain why the centre's first director and nine of his staff have resigned during the last six months.

A centre spokesman said Monday that a major factor in both the increasing costs and resignations has been an evolution of opinion in the size of the centre.

Initially, the centre was conceived as essentially a museum with an emphasis on development of science and technology. Exhibits were to be largely historical.

The $5,000,000 figure was based on Ontario matching a $2,500,000 federal grant to each province for its major centennial project.

Federal grants were announced in 1963, the year April of 1965, when Premier John Robarts unveiled detailed plans for the centre, cost estimates had soared to $14,000,000.

At this point the centre's emphasis has been widened to where it was to be one of the world's great science and technological institutions concentrating on recent scientific breakthroughs.

The premier said then that the first buildings would be ready by mid-1967, but further modifications in official thinking and design postponed construction starts.

Then late contract for the first three buildings was awarded last year to Pigott Construction Co., the cost had risen to $21,700,000 and it was generally agreed the project couldn't possibly be finished in 1967.

Subsequent resignations and the upheaval they caused prompted suggestions that the centre wouldn't be opened until 1969, but the spokesman said Monday the target date will be some time next year.

The spokesman said press reports of dissension within the centre's staff have been misleading.

He said the centre, being built on a 180-acre site overlooking Toronto's Don Valley, will be unique in Canada in that it will attempt to be fully contemporary.

Aim of the centre will be to translate recent scientific advancements into terms understood by the general public who visit it.

The spokesman said the restrictions, delays and cost inflations could all be traced to indecision as to the centre's future role.

Liberals and NDP Base Plans On Early Election in Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition members of the Ontario legislature will meet today in a last-minute strategy get - together on the eve of Wednesday's opening of the 1967 legislature session.

The 20-member official Liberal opposition and the eight New Democratic Party members will be behind closed doors, but the basic premise behind their strategy is an open secret.

Both opposition parties will wage their political warfare on the assumption that Premier Robarts will call an election in the spring. His Progressive Conservatives now hold 78 of the 108 legislature seats.

A Liberal spokesman said Monday the consensus among party members is for a election "in late May or early June."

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald said arguments could be made for an election in either the spring or the fall "but we're going to be ready for it in the spring."

Mr. MacDonald said he has learned that the Progressive Conservatives are conducting a "survey in depth" in the wake of several public opinion polls that showed the government's popularity to be on the wane.

He suggested the survey's result may determine the timing of the election. "It may show they will need a longer time in which to try to build support."

The NDP leader felt another factor in the timing will be the after-effects of the collapse of Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd. He said the collapse "has disturbed even people who normally are immune to doubts about Tories."

A third factor, he said, would be timing of a federal Conservative leadership convention. A spring election would be little aid to any federal aspirations by Mr. Robarts if the federal convention were in the spring.

Spokesmen for both opposition parties doubted a pre-fall election would be held later than mid-June, since centennial celebrations would be in full swing by then.

Mao's Present Troubles Date From Bad Cures for Old Woes

For years, many Westerners have pictured Mao Tse-tung as a sort of monolithic monarch who bent China to his will. Actually, troubles and dissensions have plagued him since his Communists took control in 1949. As Associated Press specialist in Communist affairs traces the story in a series of articles backgrounding the current upheaval in China.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

China is a land of calamity. For at least 2,000 years its people have been the victims of disasters, natural and manmade. Another man-made disaster may be just around the corner.

The current power struggle dates back at least a decade. Behind the political troubles lie the ancient economic ones, aggravated now by reckless totalitarian measures which desperately sought cures. An attempt was made a decade ago to turn China's teeming millions into what a French observer once described as a "nation of blue ants." It failed, miserably, and the fuse of today's great political explosion began sputtering.

The "great proletarian cultural revolution" launched last summer by Mao Tse - tung, chairman of the Chinese Communist party, and his chief ally, Defence Minister Lin Piao, was just one more step in the developing upheaval which now has reached a new and critical stage.

At the base of China's troubles are backwardness and empty bellies—this despite the fact China has achieved above atomic explosions and produced a nuclear-tipped missile.

For at least 2,000 years, feeding China's population has been a major problem. For that long, China has been subject to floods, droughts and famines, tormented by eroded soil and ferocious rivers, condemned to plagues of pests.

China is slightly smaller than Canada, but only one-tenth of its land can be cultivated, and less than half of that is good farmland. This must feed a population of 750,000,000, growing at a current annual rate of 15,000,000.

China might have had a chance with Sun Yat-sen's 1911 revolution against the Manchu dynasty. The agent for destruction of that revolution was the Kong Chin Tang (Chinese Communist party) created by agents of Moscow's Communist International, including a man named Nguyen Than, who now is Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam.

Mao, who was at the founding meeting in Shanghai in 1921, later purged Soviet elements and the party went over to insurrection which continued into revolution, with Chu Teh as the organizer of Mao's 4th Route Army. Today Chu, at 80, is pilloried by Mao's "great proletarian cultural revolution" as a traitor to communism.

Mao had many clashes with Stalin's Soviet party and survived his revolution out of Moscow's reach.

The revolution almost failed. He saved it by his famed 8,000-mile Long March to escape Chiang's troops. Thousands perished. But the remnants hoved up in 10,000 caves around Yenan in the bleak northwest. The Japanese attack on China and then the Second World War gave Mao's forces a new lease on life.

Eight years of war left China prostrate and exhausted. The result was a Communist victory on the mainland by Oct. 1, 1949.

Mao and his party went through several convulsions thereafter and China's people were dragooned into this steel production effort.

By the end of that year, 98 per cent of all farms were on the "people's commune" system, a total of almost 125,000 000 families. Those who objected that this was a desperately reckless attempt to cure China's ills were branded "right-wing opportunists."

The objectors included many who today are judged to be among Mao's chief opponents.

The "leap" became the object of scorn and ridicule from the Soviet Communist party. So it was one of the contributing factors not only to today's convulsion, but to the deep split in world communism which the device of backyard smelters, developed swiftly after 1958.

In 1958, about 60,000,000 men and women in towns and cities were dragooned into this steel production effort.

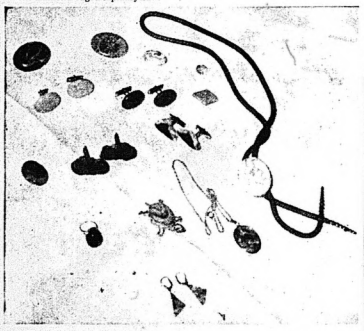
Special Saw Knifes Through Rock

Pieces selected for further workmanship are cut from original rocks with diamond-edged lapidary saw.



Silk Purse From Sow's Ear

Delicate handicraft, including brooches, cuff links, and ear rings are fashioned from rough stone, petrified wood, or bone.

Petrified Earrings

A Rolling Stone... ..Makes Perfect Gem

Lapidaries leave no stones unturned in the pursuit of their hobby. Stones are, in fact, the object of that pursuit.

One lapidary, gemologist, or just plain "rockhound" who can vouch for the hours of work and enjoyment that can be derived from working with rocks is Ralph Hotson, whose off-hobby hours are spent as manager of the Trenton branch of the Bank of Montreal.

A branch of the broader pastime of rock collecting, lapidary involves not only the collecting, identifying, and cataloguing of mineral or fossils, but also the cutting and polishing of specimens to yield finished gemstones.

From a small, but elaborately equipped basement workshop, Mr. Hotson can turn out cufflinks made of 80 million year - old dinosaur bones, an artistic petrified wood pendant, or delicate opal earrings. Despite expert examples of his skill at his craft, Mr. Hotson prefers to maintain his interest at the hobby level.

"The fascinating part about this facet of rock-collecting is that some unbelievably beautiful pieces of jewelry can be fashioned from what, to the average eye, might appear to be nothing more than junk."

Hundreds of "junk" samples that litter the Hotson basement were collected on family vacation trips in the 10 provinces. Others were traded or received as gifts from fellow "rockhounds."

With the exception of Prince Edward Island, gem stones are to be found in every area of the nation. The Kingston and Bancroft vicinities are well-known haunts for the ardent lapidary in this province.

Mr. Hotson is one of the minority of rock collectors who go a step further than picking up rough material and putting them on a display sheff, or even those who only go so far as collecting colored stones for a rock garden.

Stone fragments may be finished for jewelry in a simple "tumbling process", in which they are rotated in a revolving motor-driven drum and polished in a solution of abrasive grit. Gemstones finished in this manner retain their natural basic shape, but lose rough corners and gain a shiny surface. Certain stones may take up to 45 days before the desired effect is achieved to Mr. Hotson's satisfaction.

A more demanding finishing technique requires a circular, diamond-edged stone saw, and grinding and buffing wheels.

After a rough stone or fossil is cut on the saw to determine its interior pattern and color, a cut section of the fragment is ground to the shape desired (usually oval) and brought to a polish.

Dingy and shabby appearing rock often yields gemstones bearing lovely - like patterns so intricate they appear to have been painstakingly hand-painted.

Mrs. "Peg" Hotson, as might be expected, has become engrossed in her husband's hobby. At present, she is studying the intricate art of fashioning the "findings" (or fittings) needed to mount finished gemstones in chains, rings, and other items of jewelry.

Although the mounts can be purchased, Ralph Hotson feels that silver and gold findings wrought by his wife would give his jewelry a "completely hand-made touch"; as well as confirm his conviction that gemology makes an excellent family hobby.

After years of experience in the field and at the work, bench, Mr. Hotson has become impressed with a somewhat uncommon concept — namely that "many rocks are not simply 'there' — they have formed over many years through some mineralizing or fossilizing process of nature.

In effect, some rocks 'grow!'"

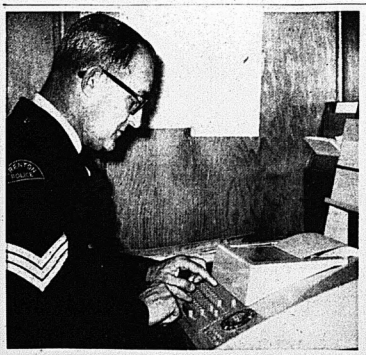
A Real Weekly "Free-for-all" Each Sunday at Trenton

Everybody appears to be taking advantage of the two-hour free public skating period offered at the Trenton Community Gardens every Sunday.



Police Taking Business Course?

Not really. Sgt. G. Steenburg of the Trenton police force is shown at the keyboard of a TELEX machine, used by police to receive and send inter-department dispatches.

Telex System Valuable to Police Dept.

Trenton police Constable Mark Holden, while walking his beat, recently spotted someone whose description "rang a bell." After questioning, the man was arrested as an attempted murder suspect from Toronto.

While to the average eye, this turn of events might appear to be somewhat of a fluke, the arrest came about as a result of good use of standard police equipment.

Constable Holden had matched the suspect's description with one received by Trenton police over their Telex machine, a telephone-teletype device that has proven invaluable to law enforcement agencies since its introduction several years ago.

The 20-man Trenton force have had the services of their teletype system for a year and a half.

Dispatches are received from other departments, or from command headquarters in Toronto which may involve the relaying of information of certain crimes, or be routine communications. Messages can also be typed out to other departments.

Areas being contacted and the nature of specific crimes are coded by letter and number so that only someone acquainted with the Telex operation could make use of information it carries.

Sgt. Gordon Steenburg of the Trenton force says that a great many of the dispatches received over the wire involve car thefts. Local departments make out "hot sheets" from information received to enable quick checks to be made on any suspicious car in their respective areas.

Unlike other similar services, the police teletype network involves more than the selective use of what is received, such as is the practice in newsrooms.

Says Sgt. Steenburg, "We file every single item for ready reference until the case has been cleared off the books."

Education Minister Guest Speaker At Belleville Chamber Dinner

Education will be in the spotlight at the annual Chamber of Commerce dinner tomorrow night at the Hotel Quinte.

WILLIAM DAVIS

The Hon. William G. Davis, at 37, one of the youngest ministers of education in the history of Ontario, will be guest speaker.

In 1965, Time magazine called him a "whirlwind" and described him as "usually in motion."

A native of Brampton, he first entered the Ontario legislature when he won the Peel Riding in 1959. He was named minister of education in 1962 when Prime Minister John Robarts of Ontario chose his first cabinet.

There is some speculation that Mr. Davis may make a formal announcement about the placement of the new college of applied arts and technology for the Quinte District at the meeting.

At a meeting in Peterborough last week, the college board of regents approved a split campus, one to be located in the Peterborough area and the other in the Belleville district.

Though the Ontario Council of Regents has not yet approved the split campus proposal, approval is considered to be a formality. To date there have been no definite commitments made by the governors on choice of sites.

The Quinte district campus will be called Loyalist, while its counterpart in the Peterborough district will be named after Sir Sandford Fleming, who devised the international time zone pattern.

In other business at the meeting, Judge J. C. Anderson will induct new officers for the 1967 season. S. D. Hagerman will be inducted as president, along with first vice-president H. H. Murray, second vice-president J. A. Ireland, and five new directors: J. R. Belanger, E. G. O'Connor, H. J. Fast, V. L. Lewis and W. S. Wills.

Retiring president Fred B. Deacon will outline the activities and accomplishments of the Chamber of Commerce for 1966.

The chamber's secretary-manager, Brad Bradley, reports that all 200 tickets to the meeting have been sold out.

Airlines people will tell you if you want to go a long distance in the shortest time possible — join the jet set.

But Tom Fox of the Alberta Quarter Horse Association says if you want to travel a short distance in a hurry get a horse — a quarter horse.

He says that in Texas the animals race against a new top-priced one every year over 440 yards and the car hasn't won yet.

Art Corfield, vice president of the Western Horse Association here agrees, Says Art, "After a quarter mile the quarter horse will start to slow down — up to that point there's nothing horse-wise alive can touch him."

A quarter horse has covered two furlongs in 21.7 seconds. The fastest recorded time for a thoroughbred is 21.6 but the latter was clocked in full stride while quarter horses cover the distance from a standing start.

Mr. Corfield tells me plans are in the talking stage for his association to stage a quarter horse quarter mile race at the Belleville Fair this year. "It would be very fast and a departure excitement-wise from the harness racing events," he said.

The popularity of the quarter horse in the Western Horse Association is increasing in leaps and bounds. It now has a population of some 25. Two years ago it counted them on a handful.

Don McNevin has some ten or twelve of them and most of them are registered stock bred in the south. Fair-goers here have seen them in action in various events and a race of the quarters would prove an excellent attraction.

The breed originated in the southeastern United States and was developed mainly from English thoroughbreds mares and Spanish Barb sires. The Barbs were working horses introduced by Spanish settlers for cattle chores.

The jokesters of the old days dubbed the horse a "quarter of this and a quarter of that" but it officially owes its name to its favorite racing distance and has a pedigree dating back to the 17th century.

Mr. Fox says there are about 430,000 quarter horses registered in North America, 65,000 to 70,000 of them in Canada. "That is more than all other breeds combined," he claims.

They began racing in the old colonial days before big tracks were invented and a straight stretch of road or the village main street were the only courses available.

Thoroughbred racing became established and the quarters retired to the ranches of the southwest where racing was revived 30 or 40 years ago and has increased steadily in popularity.

The annual $150,000 All-American Futurity for quarter horses at Los Alamitos, California is the richest horse race in the world.

A few Canadian owners run quarter horses in the southwestern circuits but there are no established races in Canada. However the Northlands Park in Edmonton is considering introduction of the first races for the breed in Canada. The quarter horse is already well known here in the rodeos and show rings.

It is readily adaptable to training and is easily taught the skills of ranch activities. It is ideal for calf-roping competitions and cutting demonstrations. Its outstanding ability has earned the quarter horses a place on the U.S. equestrian team.

And unlike their other racing counterparts they don't reach the rocking-chair stage while still comparatively young. They are prized for their working life. Unlike thoroughbreds which rarely remain in competition until their 10th year, the quarter horse is tops at 15. One horse in a Canadian team of cutting horses making a three-months tour of England in 1967 will be 20 this spring.

Larose Versus Hodge

Fight Proved Costly!

MONTREAL (CP) — The "three - round" fight between Claude Larose and Ken Hodge during a Montreal Canadiens-Chicago Black Hawks National Hockey League game last Saturday night cost the parties another $100 each Monday.

League president Clarence Campbell said, in levying the additional fines totalling $100 each . . . are not adequate in respect to their disgraceful conduct . . ."

A report from game officials said that the Canadiens' Larose and Hawks' Hodge began battling near the Chicago goal during the third period of the game in Montreal. Several other players joined in the melee.

Larose and Hodge were separated, and referee John Ashley warned they would be liable to the automatic $50 fine if they started again. They did and the fine was imposed.

After being parted a second time, the Larose-Hodge match began again as the players were en route to the penalty box.

Toronto Maple Leafs, Montreal Canadiens have 37 points.

Detroit Red Wings found new life during the week, winning three starts, including their first game in the 21-this season—3-4 over Toronto Saturday.

The six points last week increased the Red Wings' total to 35, two behind Canadiens. But the Habs have four games in hand.

Spearheading the Detroit attack was Norm Ullman, who scored eight points to move into second place in the individual scoring race with 43, 15 fewer than Stan Mikita of Chicago. Mikita has 19 goals and 39 league-leading 39 assists for 58 points.

Official statistics released today show Ken Wharram of the Hawks in third place with 41 points, one more than team mate Bobby Hull, who leads in goals with 28. Fifth is Bobby Rousseau of Canadiens with 38, one more than Gordie Howe of Detroit.

The goaltending race tightened as Ed Giacomin of New York had his toughest weekend of the schedule, being beaten for 13 goals in two games. That lifted his goals-against average to 2.33 for the season, but Ranger's over-all average of 2.44 still is the best.

Charlie Hodge of Montreal has the top personal average of 2.20 and Giacomin still is the shutout leader with six.

Defenceman Bert Marshall, Andy Bathgate, Ted Hampson, Peter Mahovlich and Dean Prentice scored the other Detroit goals.

Right wing Sandy Snow scored for Hamilton.

Detroit drew all three minor penalties and fired 31 shots at Gerry Gray, the Junior A series leading goalie.

Hank Bassen, in the Detroit goal, was tested 23 times.

Gas House League Sets Playoff Dates

Official team and individual statistics, plus playoff arrangements, were announced for the Gas House Hockey League yesterday.

Mustangs took first place with 17 points, followed by Comets and Maloney's Sunoco, with 11 each, and Marysville B.A. with nine.

Mustangs meet Sunoco and Comets tackle Marysville in a 3-of-5 semi-finals starting this Thursday. Game times are 9.15 and 10.15 in Belleville Memorial Arena. The clubs will rotate first and second games each week.

A three-way tie existed for the scoring championship. Comets' Hylie Bryant (11-3), Marysville's Jim Woodyer (10-4) and Sunoco's Doug Bolte (7-7) had 14 points each. Mustang's Jim Horwood (7-5-12), Mustang's Pat Asseltine (5-6-11) and Sunoco's Gerry Brenan (7-3-10) followed in that order.

Cook and Smith, of the Mustangs, led the goalies' average race with a mark of 2.16. Cook paced the league in shutouts with three.

Junior Macs Fail To Shake Slump Jinx

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

KINGSTON — The Quinte McFarlands' "January thaw" is threatening to melt them right out of the OHA Eastern Junior "B" playoff picture.

Kingston Frontenacs handed the Macs their fifth setback in the last six games before 193 fans here last night. The score was 7-1.

The Macs find themselves hanging onto fourth place by a slim one-point margin over Kingston.

The red-hot Peterborough Don Byes, who now share first place with Oshawa, visit the Macs in Picton on Thursday.

Quinte brass brought up three Belleville juvenile players for last night's game and while the move failed to produce a win, they played at least as well as the re-st of the team.

John Holgate and Dave Muir were two of the more aggressive Macs. Rick Boucher was the third juvenile. Missing from the regular lineup were right-wing Jerry Sharpe and defenceman Al Calver, writing exams at Picton this week, and centre Larry Stewart. Stewart missed a Sunday practice and did not show up for last night's trip.

"The kids played well and I hope to use them again Thursday," coach Fiori Gregan said after the game. He signalled out Holgate, playing his first junior game, for special mention.

The Macs offered no offensive threat in the first period when Frontenacs outscored the 3-1 and outshot them 15-2. They twice came close early in the second before Kingston whipped in four more by 6:22 to complete the scoring. Kingston had a 34-23 shooting margin but the Macs outshot the winners 10-6 in the penalty-riddled third.

Doug Potts, Quinte's best scoring bet on the night despite playing defence, netted the club's only goal at 14:05 of the first, cutting Kingston lead in half. Ron Riley dug the puck loose and Potts stuck home-fast through Frontenacs before scoring.

John McFarlane, on a powerplay after Quinte had been given two penalty minors, and Leo Lavallee, with a short - side backhand, got Kingston ahead 2-0. Paul Gavel scored right behind Potts for the 3-1 count.

Riley rattled a shot off the goalpost and John Coates made a good toe save on Ray Summers' breakaway. Still a Quinte comeback bid early in the second. Gavel's second goal after 50 seconds and another by Mike Flannigan at 3.42 put it out of reach. Scott Nicholson scored at 6.00 and Ed Leeman completed it with a pretty solo rush 32 seconds later.

Referee Keith MacDonald, who seems to officiate in about 90 per cent of Quinte's games in Belleville, Picton, Trenton and here, let a lot of charging, high sticking and elbowing go during the first two heats. The game threatened to get out of hand in the final period.

17 sentences were called in the third, 22 in all, with Kingston taking a lot of late ones for a total of 12. In numerous cases, an offending player was missed while another retaliating was penalized. At one time four Kingston players were in the sin - bin but one skated onto the ice with play in progress when a minor acquired. The official refused to give a "too-many-men" penalty.

During a fight between Quinte's John Todd and Rod Graham, Todd was hauled off by the linesmen but the Kingston player appeared to strike one of the officials in the face and stomach when he was held. No additional penalty was given.

Welter Champions Fight Draw

PARIS (AP)—World welterweight champion Curtis Cokes thought he won. The French crowd thought Francoe Pavilla won. The referee didn't think either of them did.

Since the referee's opinion was the one that counted, the 10-round non-title fight between the 29-year-old champion from Dallas, Tex., and Pavilla, the French titleholder, Monday night was declared a draw.

Cokes kept Pavilla off balance throughout the fight and staggered him with a hard right at the start of the eighth round. But he couldn't put him down.

Nick Clicks In Neck-And-Neck Race

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, flashing home on 5 string of birdies while Arnold Palmer collapsed, has added the Bing Crosby golf tournament championship to his ever-growing list of titles.

"I've wanted to win this tournament ever since I turned pro, and everything I did happened to come out right this time," Nicklaus said. He now heads for the Los Angeles Open starting Thursday.

With five birdies on the final seven holes despite a cold, biting wind over the tough Pebble Beach course, Nicklaus scored a 31 over the last nine holes. He passed Palmer and Bill Casper and won with a 72-hole score of 284, four under par, on a final round 68.

All three battled the final day head and head. Three times they were in a three-way tie for the lead and the situation changed on 14 of the 18 holes. Palmer bombed Monterey out with two shots out of bounds and a 9 on No. 14.

First Casper led, then Palmer, and finally on the 12th hole Nicklaus dropped the second of three straight birdies to go into a lead he kept to win the $16,000 top prize in the $104,500 tournament. Casper collected $9,500 for 74—289 and Palmer $6,000 for 75—291.

The final round in the storm-delayed Crosby Tournament matched the three men who led the 1966 money lists—U.S. Open champion Casper at $121,944, Nicklaus at $111,419 and Palmer at $110,467.

Casper held a stroke lead at the start. At the end of nine holes he had a 37, Palmer had a 36 to tie him and Nicklaus stood just one stroke back with a 37.

Mike Souchak, who didn't qualify for individual pro competition in the final round because of a 228, one above the cut-off, collected $2,700 by teaming with his brother Frank for the best - ball title with a 29-under-par 259.

Deadlocked at 293 and collecting $3,483 each for fourth were Bob Rosburg and Jack Burke Jr., with 74s, and Bill Parker with 76.

Joe Caer, who led the first round with a 66, one stroke ahead of Nicklaus, finished with an 89—307 and no money.

George Knudson of Toronto collected $1,040 by finishing 20th with 296. His final-round score was 73. Bill Ezinicki, former National Hockey League player, shot a 75 for a 302 total.

Griffith Retains Middle Title

NEW YORK (AP) — Middleweight champion Emile Griffith apparently has ended his series with Joey Archer on a second straight close decision and now it may be the turn of Italy's Nino Benvenuti.

After the 28-year-old Griffith had scraped out his narrow but unanimous 15-round decision at Madison Square Garden Monday night, matchmaker Teddy Brenner said that Benvenuti, the European 160-pound champion, had agreed to terms for a March 22 title fight at the Garden.

"If the price is right, Emile will be ready," said Gil Clancy, Griffith's trainer and co-manager.

"I was not at my best but I thought I won clearly," said Griffith. "The more pressure I put on him the more he ran."

"I thought I won it decisively," said Archer, who relied on his snapping left jabs, occasional rights, and dancing feet.

"I thought I won at least nine rounds. I don't know what I've got to do to win a decision in the Garden."

Referee Art Mercante and judge Joe Dran each scored it 6-6-1 in rounds for Griffith. Judge Joe Eppy had Griffith ahead, 6-7. The Associated Press had Griffith ahead on one card, 7-6-2, and Archer the winner on a second writer's card, 8-6-1.

A ringside poll showed a big edge for Griffith, 21-8-1, but most of the writers had the scoring very close. It was that kind of a fight.

In their first fight on July 13, Griffith won by majority decision.

Rural-Urban Night

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Rotary Club held its annual rural and urban night when a capacity crowd was present in the auditorium of St. John's United Church.

The first speaker of the evening was Hon. John Roberts, Premier of Ontario.

Previous to the dinner, Mr. Roberts had visited the schools including Merrywale School for Retarded Children, speaking to the children of various educational levels.

The guests at head table, introduced by president of the Rotary Club, Thomas Smith included George Hees M.P. and Mrs. Hees, Russell Rowe M.P.P. and Mrs. Rowe, Reeve K. Parr and Mrs. Parr of Seymour Township, Mayor Tanner and Mrs. Tanner.

Musical numbers were contributed by Mr. Francis De-Carroll, Miss Nancy Hermiston, Mr. John Donald and Mr. Parker, music director of C.D.H.S.

George Hees, Reeve Parr and Mayor Tanner each spoke briefly.

Caterers for the dinner were U.C.W. groups of St. John's United. The latter donated the proceeds of the dinner, about $300. to the Campbellford Community Centre fund.

INTRODUCES SPEAKER

Speaker of the evening Hon. John Roberts was introduced by Russell Rowe M.P. of Northumberland County, who first of all commended the Rotary Club on the idea of the combination of rural and urban association.

Mr. Rowe also congratulated the members of the Rotary Club and the agricultural residents of Seymour Township on continuing this important event.

In his introduction of the speaker Mr. Rowe referred to Premier Roberts as "the quiet one who gets things done." Chosen some five years ago he has been guiding the destiny of Ontario since that time.

In his opening remarks Premier Roberts paid tribute to the world wide membership of Rotary which number now approximately 600,000 in various countries and of their contributory basis particularly in the area of crippled children. He also paid special tribute to the work of the members of the Campbellford club, organized in 1929, who are still active, Harold Carr, formerly Liberal M.P., and Dwight Bennett, both present.

Children Getting Little For Time Spent on TV

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Isidore Zifferstein, Los Angeles psychiatrist, in a recent article, that was critical of some television programming for children, wrote that children between the ages of five and six watch television on an average of more than four hours a day.

Nicholas Johnson, a member of the Federal Communications Commission, in an interview taped for broadcast Monday night observed that "tens of millions of children in this country are spending more time with the television set than in school—and are getting very little for this expenditure of time."

And even the casual observer notes a marked shortage of regularly scheduled network quality programs for young children.

There is Captain Kangaroo on CBS; a highly lauded program, and that network plans to start a children's film festival of 13 programs early in February.

NBC has its occasional Children's Theatre and early in March will present Rabbit Hill.

But seen only by small children and some vigilant parents, are the blocks of cartoon programs on all three networks from 9 a.m. until after noon Saturdays.

There are, in all, 24 different cartoon shows during these hours each Saturday. They range alphabetically from NBC's Atom Ant to CBS' Underdogs. In between are diversions like King Kong, Frankenstein Jr., Superman, The Beatles, Milton the Monster, Magilla Gorilla and Hippety Hopper. Most of them are harmless enough and are built around animals.

But what worries the experts is that the shows, while amusing the youngsters, add nothing to their lives and make for more of the passivity the experts deplore.

CBS, in spite of the death of star Ann Sheridan, will continue her conversation series, Pistols 'n' Petticoats to the end of the season. When Miss Sheridan was taken ill two months ago, she had completed all but one episode under the network contract.

NBC will have William Manchester, author of the controversial Kennedy book, for a special hour-long Meet the Press program Feb. 12.

SPANS THE YEARS

Rudy Vallee, co-star of How to Succeed in Business, made his first film in 1929.

"I've been thinking seriously about settling down."

"More Interested in Having Fun" Says Warren Beatty

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Every man should be afforded the experience of being a movie star in his early 20s," says Warren Beatty.

"The life is truly wonderful—the public acceptance, the absence of anonymity, the acceptance of available girls. Why, I've seen men of 65 still struggling to have those things. How lucky a person is to have those things early in life—and then go on to something else."

Beatty was reviewing his own unorthodox career in the film business. Five years ago he made a startling debut in Splendor in the Grass and followed with two other performances of such distinction that people ceased identifying him as Shirley MacLaine's brother.

Then Beatty went into a two-year eclipse that seemed inexplicable. What happened?

"I was more interested in having fun," he says. "The external aspects of being a movie star fascinated me, and I found more pleasure in dashing off to Paris, getting drunk and carrying on with the dolls than in working."

Meanwhile, he was getting a reputation as an "enfant terrible."

"Perhaps I was," he remarks. "I suppose some people would call me temperamental, but I'm a business of temperament."

"Much of my reputation for being difficult came from people whose scripts I turned down; I refused between three and four million dollars' worth of jobs during that time. I would lead them on, and then at the last minute I couldn't do the picture. I couldn't bring myself to make the decision.

"Success had come too early, too fast, too easily. I didn't know how to handle it, and so I did nothing but have fun."

At the end of two years, the fun began to diminish, as did his bankroll. Finding himself $10,000 in debt, he agreed to perform in Youngblood Hawk. But two weeks before the film was to start, he walked out. James Franciscus played the role.

Beatty decided he would have to go to work in a hurry or else be permanently banished. He accepted Lilith. It was a disaster, but at least he proved the ability to work. He followed with three other films, notably Kaleidoscope.

Figure-Skating

Suggests Rules Change

TORONTO (CP)—Don Jackson, men's singles world champion in 1962, says scoring in figure skating is antiquated and suggests the rules should be changed.

Jackson, who now earns about $40,000 a year as a star of the Ice Follies, said in an interview Monday that the 60-40 break in favor of school figures is out of line. He would like to see the points evenly divided 50-50.

"Free skating, which is the most dramatic part of the game, has improved 100 per cent but has penalized some of the judges by ," Jackson said.

"The school figures are important, but there is no excitement to them."

Jackson found support in his bid for a scoring revision from Kevin Lethbridge, Canadian dance champion with Carol Forest in 1965-66, and Max Gold, public relations director for the Canadian Figure Skating Association.

PROMOTE CHAMPIONSHIPS

Both are here trying to stimulate interest in the Canadian championships which open Wednesday.

"It's all up to the International Skating Union and we're trying to have it changed," Lethbridge said.

Meanwhile, many titles are up for grabs in the competition which continues hours through Sunday.

Valerie Jones of Toronto, and Karen Magnussen of Vancouver are among the favorites in the women's singles, with last year's by Petra Burka of Toronto, now a professional.

Observers said that Linda Carbonetto, 16-year-old daughter of a Canadian diplomat official could upset the works.

Miss Carbonetti took lessons from Jackson in San Francisco last year, while he was training for the ice show.

While Miss Jones and Miss Magnussen are favored for the singles title, the spectators will be keeping a watchful eye on Miss Carbonetto, Fed Roberto Laurent of Toronto.

Donald Knight of Toronto will defend his Canadian men's singles title against Jay Humphreys, 17, of Vancouver and veteran Dr. Charles Snelling of Welland, Ont.

CHHL Games End In Ties

The Centre Hastings Hockey League got its "Christmas ties" in a big last evening.

Wallbridge Warriors and Foxboro Lumber Kings tied 6-6 while Thomasburg Thunderbirds held leading Glen Ross Rebels to a 5-5 stalemate.

The two results did not change the order of standing in the seven-team grouping.

Glen Ross led 4-2 going into the third period but the fast-improving Thunderbirds stormed into a 5-4 lead. Myles McDonnell got the equalizer at 16:23 and both clubs missed golden opportunities for the winner in a wide-open final two minutes.

Other Rebel scorers were Andy Faulkner, with a goal and three assists, Larry Wells, Gary Mason and Jack Wright.

Don Henderson had two goals and a helper, Burton Sherry one of each for Thomasburg. Gary Rutherford and Jim Middleton also scored.

Wallbridge snapped a long losing streak with the six after leading the game until the dying minutes. Foxboro's Jack Stewart scored his third goal of the night to tie it at 18.47 of the third heat. Stewart has a total of six goals this season, coming on two "hat tricks" against the Warriors. John Hill scored twice for the Lumber Kings, Jerry Mann once and Ralph Sine helped on three. Kevin Allen collected two goals and one helper on Wallbridge's behalf. Ron Geen, Larry Rupert, Rick Durand and Murney Bradshaw notched the others.

International Bonspiel

Quebec Rink Grabs Lead

QUEBEC (CP)—One of last year's big brooms was tossed aside Monday but another swept in two victories during the first day of the annual Quebec International Bonspiel.

Carl Ott, whose Outremont, Que., rink last year won the Chateau Frontenac Trophy and the Grand Aggregate Award, dropped his two matches and was eliminated from competition for any of the top prizes in this year's tournament.

Gerry Johin, whose Jacques Cartier Club from Quebec had won the LieutenantyGovernor's Trophy, directed his rink to two straight victories.

Johin finished his second Monday match at midnight with a 9-8 extra-end win over Hal Hunter's Sudbury, Ont., rink.

Johin won 16-7 over a Toronto Granite rink skipped by H. Bell, in an opening - round match of the Francis Johin Gold Cup draw.

Dr. Peter Lyons of the Beauséjour Curling Club in Moncton, N.B., doubled Ott's score in the opening round of the Chateau Frontenac Trophy race, winning 14-7. The Moncton rink won again on an extra-end 11-10 decision over George Bell of Burlington, Ont., to gain main strong contenders for top honors.

Ott dropped his second match of the bonspiel when Glenn Ardrein of St. Catharines, Ont., beat him 8-5.

Dr. Robert Chalmers, whose Fredericton, N.B., rink won the Chateau Trophy here in 1966, beat A. L. Reid of Schnectady, N.Y., in the first round of Chateau play, 7-6, and then whipped Jack Clark of Oakville, Ont., 7-4.

Ken Moebius of Milwaukee, Wis., edged Beecher Menzies of Seaforth, Ont., 9-7 in first-round play and then trimmed the rink of Robert McEnry rink from Elora, Ont., 14-10.

Don Dixon of Montreal's Wentworth Curling Club won 12-4 over Aberdein's rink in opening-round play.

Ubald Rouleau's Cornwall, Ont., rink, which is on a strong showing for top honors here last year before fading, won twice Monday, beating Gi Guyatt's rink of Hamilton, Ont., 6-3 in the evening round of the Johin Gold Cup play and trimming Royce MacAuley's Seaforth, Ont., entry 13-9.

Play continues today with the third and quarter-final rounds scheduled in the two top trophy races — the Chateau and the Johin—and the second and third rounds of the section C, Dow Gold Bowl.

PROGRESS

toward an ever brighter future for all of us

In the space age, as in any age, the story of progress is still the story of people. Our own community proves that! We can look at our town with justifiable pride in its advantages and opportunities, thanks to the endeavors of all to make this fine community of ours a better place to live and work. In the same spirit, we can look with hope and confidence towards a future that holds continued community growth, with greater benefit to all.

The minds of industry provide employment

Industry is a vital and integral part of every community and the growth of each city is contingent upon the progressiveness of its industries. As our factories enlarge and expand new employment, positions are created providing jobs for our ever-increasing population.

Some, however, particularly those employed in the construction business and similar out-door labors, find continual employment more difficult to find at this time of year. This can be overcome. We, the undersigned industries, urge you to have that job done now while men and materials are readily available instead of waiting for the warmer weather. If we all co-operate with the "Do It Now" campaign our unemployed numbers will decrease.

Shall City Slickers Inherit Canada?

WINNIPEG (CP) — Shall the city slicker inherit Canada?

Agriculture Minister Greene tossed the question Tuesday to the year's biggest forum of farm representatives, the annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

He is troubled, he said, that decisions lending headlong to a Canada where 90 per cent of the people live in a few great cities were not made by popular choice but by "the managers of our industrial society."

The question is whether or not it should be a matter of national policy to permit the away-from-the-land trend to continue, the minister said. The trend by the 1980s would see perhaps four or five percent of the population producing all food requirements.

No meaningful agricultural policy could be conceived except within the framework of a national economic policy delineating national goals and Canadian economic philosophy.

"Agriculture cannot move in one direction if Canada as a whole is going in another direction."

It was are to continue willy-nilly to permit the managers of our industrial and economic communities to determine the nature of the Canada we will have in the future, then we will have a continuing uncontrolled growth of these few huge metropolitan complexes.

"If we would heed the still far too small, far too still voices that are beginning to be heard, that we maintain a Canada which has some 20 per cent of its people in our rural areas and our small towns, and to create communities that will afford not only an attractive social way of life but an economic potential which will give a good way of life, then it may well be that this different set of values will require a different book of economic policies."

Canada Urges Hanoi Reward Bombing End

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's ruling military junta tried to head off another political crisis today following the ouster of Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Huu Co. He had been deputy premier, defence minister and the leading southerner in the junta dominated by the refugees from North Vietnam.

Informed Vietnamese sources said 20 to 30 supporters of Co, most of them military personnel, had been put under house arrest, and assistants of his on the defence staff were being transferred or watched by security police.

Saigon, although filled with rumors, was quiet and there was no indication that the directory of ruling generals was breaking up. But some disgruntlement at the ouster of the southern general was reported among southern leaders in Saigon who resent the northerners' domination.

No troop movements were reported. Some officers of the 7th Vietnamese Division headquartered at My Tho, 20 miles south of the capital, were among those arrested, sources said.

Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu was reported travelling in the Mekong Delta. Premier Nguyen Cao Ky was winding up a tour of New Zealand. He was expected back late Thursday or early Friday.

Vietnamese sources said Ky was pleased when the junta met before he left and decided to fire Co.

Co was on an official visit to Formosa when the junta ousted him. Sources said he returned to Vietnam. The message announced he was Tokyo and Seoul. He got to Taipei on Monday, but today but was intercepted there and taken to a hotel to see Secretary of State Dean Rusk. Vien, who had hurriedly flown to Hong Kong after word was received that Co planned to return.

Informed sources said Vien would tell Co of the decision outside Vietnam, he might be appointed Ambassador to South Korea, Nguyen Van Thieu and Co Coast. The sources said Co would be warned that if he returned to Saigon, he would face a military trial on corruption charges. It was understood Co's political packers in the junta played a part in his ouster.

The move against Co had been long planned and came as a surprise, the sources said. His removal leaves Thieu and Lt. Gen. Pham Xuan Chieu the only junta members from the group of 13 officers who overthrew the late president Ngo Dinh Diem Nov. 1, 1963.

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is discreetly sounding out North Vietnam on what Communist reaction would be to a cessation of the U.S. bombings, informal sources say.

There has apparently been no firm reply as yet, discreet or otherwise.

An end to the bombings, now nearly two years old, is regarded here as the key to any settlement of the Vietnam war.

But Prime Minister Pearson has said there should be some kind of military disengagement by North Vietnam as well if the Americans stop the air strikes.

Canada now is trying to find out what North Vietnam would be prepared to do in exchange for a bombing halt.

Sources indicated the soundings have been made at various heads of the Hanoi government by Canadian members of the International Control Commission in Vietnam. The commission maintains an office in Hanoi as well as in Saigon and has, in effect, the simplest and most direct channel of communication between the two sides. Victor Modan, senior Canadian delegate to the commission, is expected here in a few days after completing a tour of duty in Vietnam. He spent 45 days in Hanoi early this month.

At the same time as the soundings have been made, Canada has been trying to persuade Poland, the Communist member of the commission, to agree to the commission acting as a peacekeeping role.

This plan was first assigned to the commission under the 1954 Geneva agreement, which ended the fighting between the French and the Communists.

So far, Poland has maintained that the commission must be asked for the cessation by both sides before a cessation in the bombing.

In trying to get some movement anywhere, Canada has built dome of the commission's previous services to both sides in the conflict and has declined to criticize the U.S. publicly for continued bombing of Hanoi.

On March 26, 1965, for instance, External Affairs Minister Martin suggested in a Toronto speech that if Communist "covert aggression" against South Vietnam was not halted, similar sanctions might arise in Thailand, Malaysia, India and even in Latin America and Africa.

In the last year or more, Canada has tried to convince Hanoi —with some success, sources say—that this country's foreign policy is not just an echo of that of the U.S.

Consequently, former references by Mr. Martin to Communist blackmail, subversion and terror in South Vietnam have disappeared from his comments on the situation.

By the same token, the government has resisted the temptation to express in much more blunt language than it has its opposition to the U.S. bombings.

Officials said Canada's objective of trying to help bring peace to Vietnam is far more important than publicly pressuring the combatants no matter how reprehensible their actions may be deemed to be.

Mao's Men in Minority So Army Told to Act

TOKYO (AP)—Defence Minister Lin Piao's propaganda outlet said today Chairman Mao Tse-tung's forces are in the minority. Lin's Liberation Army Daily directed the 2,500,000-man armed forces to stamp out Mao's enemies "within the ran."

The paper says the massive role of Mao's forces was only temporary and that the 73-year-old Communist chairman himself had issued "a vital call" for military help.

The Peking People's Daily reported Tuesday that Mao's forces, with the decisive help of the army, had seized the government of Shansi province and placed it under the capital city of Taiyuan.

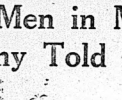
But wall newspapers in Peking, reported by Japanese correspondents, said that pro-Lin Red Flag Guards and another anti-Lin organization took over a military barracks, the provincial government offices and Communist party headquarters in Changsha, capital of Mao's native Hunan province, after clashes with the army Jan. 15. The report said six soldiers and two Guards were killed.

The editorial in the Liberation Army Daily hints at resistance within the military to Mao throwing the massive power of the army into what began as a political and ideological conflict between Mao and Premier Chou En-lai and party officials headed by President Liu Shao-chi.

"Some people use 'monster' vention' as a pretext to suppress the masses in reality," it says. "This is absolutely impermissible ... The question is not whether or not to intervene but which side to stand on."

The paper says the army has been called into action because of "the new situation" in Vietnam, which was intended to turn the tide of the year by factories, mines and the countryside. Under the changed circumstances, it said, "it is not possible for the People's Liberation Army to refrain from intervention."

The army until this week had not been thrust directly into the Mao-Lin confrontation, and the call to it suggested that some attempt to wrest control of the government and the party organization was still running into throwing the massive power of heavy forces.



THE WEATHER

Synopsis: The unsettled weather and the wide-ranging temperatures across Ontario is due to a vigorous disturbance moving through the Great Lakes. As this storm moves into Quebec late today, strong northerly winds will bring colder air to the province. Snow in the north will change to flurries. The prospect for Thursday is for cloudy skies with some snowflurries in the north and rain near the lower Great Lakes area late in the day.

De Gaulle Shuts Euromart's Gates

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle is slapping the gates of the European Common Market in Britain again for an indefinite time to come.

This seems the only conclusion to draw from his treatment of Prime Minister Wilson's mission arguing the case for British entry.

Wilson flies home tonight with no more than an austere, unsmiling from de Gaulle to ensure France's five Common Market partners—but not Britain—will play a part in his ouster.

The move against Co had been long planned and came as a surprise, the sources said. His removal leaves Thieu and Lt. Gen. Pham Xuan Chieu the only junta members from the group of 13 officers who overthrew the late president Ngo Dinh Diem Nov. 1, 1963.

Camp Would Increase Grass-roots Delegates

TORONTO (CP) — Dalton Camp, national president of the Progressive Conservative party, said Tuesday he will propose that the party's executive committee authorize five delegates from each federal constituency to the party's leadership convention later this year.

Mr. Camp said the increase to five from three delegates would allow wider representation at leadership conventions, giving Young Progressive Conservative organizations one delegate, women's PC groups a delegate and the senior constituency organizations three delegates.

The number of delegates to national conventions before the Second World War was five, Mr. Camp said, but was re-

Questioned about published reports that he will ask for only an at-large delegate from each constituency organization in addition to the five regular delegates, Mr. Camp said he plans to propose at large delegates to the executive committee but is not committed to the idea.

Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker said in a nationwide television address last night that there should be no at-large delegates at the convention.

Tornadoes Kill Six in Mid-west

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—At least six persons were killed and hundreds injured Tuesday by tornadoes in Missouri, Iowa and Illinois.

The violence erupted as the midwestern U.S. basked in spring-like weather that sent the temperatures soaring into the mid 70s. It happened when a cold air mass collided with the unseasonably warm air.

A teen-age boy and two small girls were killed in Missouri and a three-year-old boy died in Iowa. A policeman in Chicago and a farmer in Illinois also died as a result of the fierce winds.

Damage was heaviest in the Kansas City, St. Louis and Orrick, Mo., areas where trees were uprooted, power lines felled, roofs razed or were ripped off buildings, and various structures were demolished. The Orrick high school took the brunt of the first tornado reported. One student was killed and 31 other students, a teacher and two townspeople were injured.

The storm front, gathering strength, spread out over a wide area. Tornadoes ripped into sections of southeastern Iowa and killed three-year-old Byron Snyder of Fort Madison when one of the twisters wrecked a converted school house in which he and his family lived.

A number of persons were injured in Iowa and damage was widespread.

Almost six hours after Orrick was struck, the massive storm pushed into the St. Louis area, with golf-ball size hail, heavy rains and lightning.

The storm also bore a twister which hit heavily populated St. Louis County, leaving two children dead, more than 200 injured, and property damage that officials said would run into the tens of thousands of dollars.

U.S. Troops Move Into Delta Area

SAIGON (AP)—A reinforced battalion of U.S. infantrymen moved into the Mekong Delta today, becoming the first large contingent of U.S. combat troops based in the area where some commanders say the Vietnam war will be won or lost.

An artillery - supported battalion of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division moved into a base camp 43 miles southwest of Saigon near the delta city of My Tho.

The contingent - estimated at 1,000 men — also included elements of a brigade headquarters in the start of a buildup of American strength in the rice bowl where until now operations have been largely by South Vietnamese forces.

PS Students Will Visit House

A line - up of youngsters that started near Victoria Avenue in Belleville ended in Ottawa this morning.

It didn't stretch that far of course, but it eventually got there - by bus.

It also meant that every grade 8 class room in the Harry J. Clarke public school on Rollins Drive was closed for the day, since its entire enrolment of 168 - plus teachers - had been transferred to Parliament Hill.

The junket was educational - with all the fun of freedom from class as a side dish - aimed at imparting a working knowledge of the nation's business to the students.

The Ottawa visit was to take them on to the Governor - General's official residence, Parliament Hill and the nearby National Art Gallery.

Slated as a highlight of the trip was attendance in the Commons Chambers for the hour - long daily Question Time period. A blue of seats in the Visitors' Gallery was earlier reserved through Lee Grills, MP South Hastings.

The students left Harry J. Clarke at 7 a.m. after a shuffle of cars driven by sleepy-eyed parents, caused a pocket-size traffic jam outside.

Some parents went along as chaperones -- with police safety officer Bob Hall on guard for good measure.

The tour got off to a wet start, but early - morning rain was no dampener on the enthusiasm of the youngsters for the outing. Shouting and cheering, they scrambled aboard four chartered buses that swung jauntily into the school yard on the dot.

They were scheduled to leave Ottawa at 4 p.m.

- On Guard Ottawa...

Here comes young Canada — or part of its Belleville contingent. Harry J. Clarke public school principal Everett Fairman looks into happy jumble of students to give departing directions — and didn't need that policeman. School safety officer Robert Hall was just along to lend helping hand with day's events.

Hastings and P.E. Counties Nearly Free of Rabies

No rabies threat is presently posed in Hastings and Prince Edward counties and 'no plans have been projected for mass inoculation of household pets.

The confirmation came today from federal government; veterinarian Dr. J. F. McCorquodale in Belleville, following announcement of anti-rabies clinics in the United Counties of Durham and Northumberland.

Dr. McCorquodale said the current rabies "hot spot" is centred in Durham, faced with its worst outbreak in many years.

In Northumberland, the lowest incidence of rabies has been reported since 1966.

"However," said Dr. McCorquodale, "since the request comes from the council of the United Counties, it was also necessary to institute clinics in Northumberland — the county bordering both Hastings and Prince Edward. The move also is aimed at halting any spread of the disease from Durham.

29 ANIMALS DISCOVERED

In the core of the hot spot, 20 rabid animals have been discovered since November 1, with skunks and foxes predominating. At least two new reports of suspected rabies are being received every day.

During the past six weeks, three adults and five children have received anti-rabies vaccine following contact with suspected rabid animals.

"By contrast," says Dr. McCorquodale, "there have been only about four cases reported in the Hastings-Prince Edward region since last June."

A fox and a calf were diagnosed rabid at Tweed and two skunks were found carrying the disease in the south end of Prince Edward.

No particular trend for the increased rate in the Durham area has yet been established.

Previously veterinarians usually suspected a link with the growth of the fox population.

"This time," says Dr. McCorquodale, "the Department of Lands and Forests report the number of foxes quite normal."

Drama Club Of BCI to Present Play

As its Centennial project, the Belleville Collegiate Drama Club is proud to present Tongue in Cheek, a play with a Canadian setting by a Canadian playwright.

The uthor, Catharine Brickenden (Mrs. G. A. P. Bricken, den) of London, Ontario, has been associated for many years with the Simcoe Little Theatre and the London Little Theatre. Several of her plays have been published by Samuel French, but Tongue in Cheek is as yet unpublished.

The play - a light, romantic comedy verging on farce - takes place at Eastwing Lodge, a northern Ontario summer resort. The characters involve the two proprietors of the lodge: Brad McMurdo, played by Jim Slavin, and his lively partner, played by Terry Geeow; and several of the lodge's guests, portrayed by Joan Renouf, Sharon Fraser, Sherry Graves, Mary Romanow, Penny Wright, and Allan Potts.

Performances are this Friday and Saturday in the B.C.I.V.S. auditorium at 8 p.m.

Wyatt Preliminary Set Over Until April

The preliminary hearing of the Belleville chiropractor charged with manslaughter in the alleged abortion-death of an Ottawa nurses' assistant was adjourned Tuesday until the first week of April.

The second day of the hearing focused on the testimony of Charles Tracey, a Jamaican born auto mechanic and husband of the woman the Crown alleges died as a result of a criminal abortion performed Sept. 3 by Robert Allan Wyatt.

Mr. Tracey, 27, spent five hours in the witness box yesterday, most of which time he was under cross-examination by defence counsel Malcolm Robb.

He told the court that he and his wife had made two visits to Mr. Wyatt, the first in 1963, and again on Sept. 3 of last year, for the purpose of procuring abortions for Mrs. Tracey.

Tracey said his wife had been given Mr. Wyatt's name and phone number by someone in Ottawa.

Earlier medical evidence revealed that Gertrude Tracey, 31, and mother of two, died in an operating room of Ottawa's Grace Hospital Sept. 4 as doctors tried to save her.

One of those present in the operating room, Dr. W. F. A. Hamilton, testified that she "was under his care while she was in the hospital, and that her symptoms were those of an inevitable abortion."

Under questioning by Mr. Robb, Tracey admitted he realized that attempting to procure an abortion was a criminal offence. He said "I felt, the police lies about my wife (when I was first questioned after her death) but I made up my mind to tell them the plain truth — whatever it might cost — so that things like this will be stopped."

Square Dance Groups Hold 'Party Night'

Square dance enthusiasts in Belleville and district have their fun but they are also very much charity minded.

Last night more than 50 couples turned out for "party night" at Tobe's County Garden at Rossmore with the entire proceeds of the night's event to go to the Retarded Adults Workshop on Cannifton Road.

Last night's "party night" was sponsored by members of Belleville Whirlaway square dance group who invited as their guests members of the three other dance groups making up the Quinte Twirlers Square Dance Organization.

The other square dance groups are the Dancelots, the Hits and Mrs. and a group of single adults who appropriately enough call themselves the "Beau - Nots".

The local square dancers are a somewhat serious group and only fully qualified dancers are eligible for membership.

Each fall dance classes are started and in the spring dinner mas are handed out to the successful dancers. Then, and then only can they become full fledged members of the dance group of their choice.

To love to cherish and never forget.

The tears in our eyes we can wipe away,

Officials of First National City Bank of New York appeared before the Commons finance committee with their case against proposed legislation curbing the growth of the Canadian subsidiary, Mercantile Bank of Canada.

They said they had learned of strong government objections to their purchase of the bank in 1963 only after the deal was signed.

Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons the U.S. was informed Tuesday in a reply to two protest notes on the case that the legislation would not be dropped.

Mr. Pearson also said a study of foreign ownership of Canadian industry will not delay legislative action on the Canada Development Corp.

The Commons studied transport legislation for the 12th day, dealing with a government amendment on a review of freight rates.

Opposition MPs charged that the amendment replaced one defeated earlier that they saw a challenge to the Crowsnest rates.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 25

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to resume debate on the transport bill. The Senate stands adjourned until Jan. 31.

Township Will Give Silver Dollars to Babies

PICTON (Staff) — North Marysburgh township has again brought publicity to the county of Prince Edward. The township's latest publicity success, although probably never intended, was council's decision to award a silver dollar to every baby born during the centennial year, to a township resident.

The story has been carried by large daily newspapers, and last weekend a crew from CFTO-TV in Toronto, the CTV network station was in the area doing interviews and pictures with North Marysburgh township residents and other county residents on the idea.

Official Plan for General Good Says OMB Member at Hearing

AMELIASBURG — A representative of the Ontario Municipal Board said here yesterday at the conclusion of the five-hour hearing that the basic idea behind the official plan and zoning by-law compliments it was for the general good of the public. "Some regulations are needed, Mr. Greenwood added, may seem severe to some objectors but I would say I have studied the written complaints and made the necessary changes. Evidence heard today reflects that the council and planning board have done their "homework" well." My concern now is to get planning in force without further delay, he declared saying he would reserve his decision pending a report on the proceedings to the other three OMB members, who were not present. He said he would recommend council approve regarding one restrictive clause pertaining to use of residence by doctors and dentists. Otherwise the zoning by-law would remain as submitted.

"It is reasonable to assume the plan and zoning will take effect within a short period of time," he said.

Seeking lots sizes reduced in the proposed R-2 areas and restrictions against building cottages in the same areas Stanley Hagerman, R. R. 1, Belleville, termed approval of the plan "democracy in reverse." "Under the regulations I will be forced to build a summer place for my children on land that belongs to me," he insisted. He asked lots requirements be cut to half the 30,000 square feet as called for by the planners because the cost of landscaping and maintenance of the larger pieces would be prohibitive. In most cases, A widow Mrs. Eileen Leeman, R. R. 1, Belleville another of the 14 landowners who protested in writing also appealed for smaller lot sizes in the residential sections.

Providing background for the hearing township planning board chairman William Tatham said the philosophy and principle which guide planners is designed to produce orderly development. Planners without being discriminatory try and direct people of more modest means to small communities (villages) where lot sizes are smaller and less expensive.

Redmersville resident, Fred Evans, in his protest against land usage as zoning would regulate said the township had already set the pattern for large country estates. He questioned the decision to establish an industrial area at Rossmore revealing that he had learned banks had refused loans to people to build in residential areas across the road since it had been zoned.

Truscott Arguments Presented

OTTAWA (CP)—Steven Truscott goes to work as usual today in the medium security prison in Collins Bay, Ont.

Meanwhile, his lawyers open their final arguments before the Supreme Court of Canada, which they hope will either make Truscott a free man or give him a second chance to prove he didn't kill Lynne Harper at Clinton, Ont., in 1959.

Truscott, now 22, was only 14 when convicted of the crime. His death sentence commuted to life imprisonment, he had denied being a murderer ever since.

But it took a best-selling book by Isobel LeBourdais of Toronto to whip up enough public feeling and prompt the cabinet to order a review of the case by the Supreme Court.

Only 24 seats are put aside in the courtroom for the public. All are expected to be snapped up before G. Arthur Martin of Toronto begins to read from a 50,000-word argument he hopes will convince the nine justices of Truscott's innocence.

The final arguments are expected to go on for three days.

Teachers' Union Orders Them To Resume Work

MONTREAL (CP) — Roman Catholic teachers are ordered to their jobs today in the Yamaska region of Quebec, ending a strike which has left 8,500 children without classroom instruction since Nov. 24.

At a meeting Tuesday in nearby St. Hyacinthe, 417 teachers employed by the Yamaska school commission voted 4 per cent in favor of staying off the job despite a court injunction served Sunday ordering them back to work.

However, union officials told the teachers they must go back to their classrooms. Only 67 teachers reported to work Monday and Tuesday after the injunction had been served.

CAMPAIGN SUCCESSFUL

OTTAWA (CP)—The Unitarian Service Committee of Canada in 1966 had the most successful fund-raising campaign in its 21-year history, its executive director said in the annual report. Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova said $1,055,161 was raised last year. USC gifts of money and clothing partly or completely support 81 projects in Korea, Hong Kong, India, Gaza Strip, Syria, Greece, Italy, Austria and France.

School Board Facing Choice Says Speaker

PICTON (Staff) — Mrs. Kenneth Carson, newly appointed representative from N. Marysburgh speaking at the North Marysburgh ratepayers meeting this week said the high school board is facing a decision whether to continue the present "shift system" or return to extremely crowded conditions or a one-shift system and curtail courses. She asked the ratepayers to think about the situation and let either herself or township council know how they feel.

One of the business of the meeting concerned school questions although they did elect a new executive a panel from which officers for the new year will be selected at the regular meeting. The meeting was held in the auditorium of the newly opened central school at Lake-on-the-Mountain.

Ratepayers were also curious as to when and what the public school properties would be disposed of. School trustee, Ernest Bedard, said it would probably be done by public auction at a later date, and the highest price applied against the cost of the new school.

Principal speaker at the meeting was retired Air Vice Marshal, Murray Lister, a new resident of North Marysburgh. He spoke on the transition from military to civil life. His talk was interspersed by remarks on Canada's new defence program, of which he was somewhat critical. He also outlined some of the space age defence developments.

Cablevue Director Applies For Licence to Operate

TRENTON — Frank C. Murray, station manager at CJBQ and a director of Cablevue, Belleville, met with members of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission yesterday to present his company's case for supplying cable TV to Trenton.

Mr. Murray said more than 80 enquiries had already been received from Trenton residents about the installations began in Belleville and indications were that many more were interested.

A check with Canadian Forces base Trenton had given the company the green light to proceed with plans for supplying the service by air base and Middleton Park, Mr. Murray said.

Trenton Installations would start in June or July and the cost would be $17.50 for installation and $5 a month thereafter. Those paying on an annual basis would have one month's rebate.

Apartment houses, institutions, hotels, and the hospital would pay on a unit basis and no rental would be charged at the schools.

An office would be opened in Trenton and possibly three persons (local) employed, a receptionist bookkeeper, a salesman and a technical man. Otherwise, wherever possible, local help would also be employed.

Following Mr. Murray's presentation, commission chairman C. A. Baker said that since a publically-owned utility was involved, the commission had checked the agreement between various utility commissions and the communities where the service was located.

On the basis of these agreements, the local commission now felt it must charge Cablevue an annual fee for providing facilities. The suggested charge is $2,000 a year with the agreement subject to revision each Jan. 1st.

TERMS OF AGREEMENT

Other items in the suggested agreement are a right for the PUC to cancel its agreement with Cablevue in 30 days for default of payment or improper installation or maintenance; a 60-day period provided for Cablevue to remove its equipment or sacrifice it in default should the occasion arise; the posting of $10,000 "performance" bond by Cablevue; that the company carry a $300,000 liability insurance policy and a provision that if Cablevue changes hands a new agreement would be drawn up between the new owners and the PUC.

Mr. Murray said that since his company would be paying a rental for poles to the Bell Telephone Company (which in turn pays a rental fee to the commission) he felt the $2,000 annual fee the commission wanted was a little steep. (Bell and the commission have a reciprocal agreement. Bell uses some hydro poles — hydro uses some Bell poles — Bell pays the commission $1,300 a year for the use of "extra" poles not covered in the reciprocal agreement.)

Mr. Murray said his company did not expect to realize a big profit for at least a year or so — and perhaps not even then, if the service doesn't "catch on."

In the final analysis, the commission members agreed that the $2,000 figure could be established for a three-year period, after that, an annual review, it might go up or down.

Cablevue would pay only part of this year — from the first "drop" into a home until the end of the year.

Mr. Murray will present the PUC's proposals to his board of directors and report to the commission later.

Greetings on Way to Alaska

Alaska is also celebrating a 100th birthday. It was a century ago the United States purchased the far northern state from Russia. As a friendly gesture today Trenton's Mayor D. Jamees MacDonald sent Mayor H. A. Boucher of Fairbanks, a Canadian Centennial flag and mementos of the town. F/L H. Medical Needs

References of late to the availability of medical services in small communities showed that the doctors serving them were, as might be imagined, very busy people. While no one seemed to lack for medical attention, the inference was that more doctors and nurses are required, and that this is the general situation throughout Canada.

Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon has been looking into the problem in this part of the country and he suggests the government must act quickly to ward off what he regards as a gathering crisis in the province's health services.

He says that although Ontario has one doctor for every 768 persons, a survey involving 5,000 doctors shows that only 54.1 per cent of them are taking direct calls from the public. The rest are involved with industry, teaching and government.

Mr. Nixon says the shortage is acute in some districts, such as in the Renfrew area where there are four general practitioners to serve a total rural-urban area of some 15,000 people. Chapleau, in northern Ontario, has only one doctor to serve its 4,000 population and 6,000 others in outlying areas.

From this it may be appreciated that an extension of Canada's hospital services as well as an increase in the number of doctors and nurses, and in the areas they serve, is essential. In the Soviet Union, it is interesting to note there is some health service available in every part — from complex hospitals in Moscow to a small first-aid post on a remote collective farm. And this in a country which covers the largest land area in the world.

Dr. Helen Mussallem, executive director of the Canadian Nurses' Association, visited Russia last October and found that not only are the nurses there nearly all women, so too are 75 per cent of the doctors. In addition there are the feldshers, women whose training is between that of a nurse and a doctor.

She says there are about 742,000 nurses in the Soviet Union, compared with about 108,000 registered nurses in Canada. This works out at about seven times as many nurses to serve more than 11 times the population.

To come back to the situation in Canada, the standards are comparable with the best anywhere in the world, and in many instances better, specialist services are of a high order. But inevitably, where there is such specialization the medical men who provide it are under great pressure.

The profession is one which, if it is to function properly, should attract as many new trainees as is possible, and in all of its phases, from doctors and nurses to laboratory technicians and orderlies. With the population expected to reach 30 million within a decade there will be all the more people who will be interested in medicine as a career. At the same time it is going to take all that interest just to keep pace with expanding needs. And if more women are drawn to the profession, as in Russia, so much the better.

He Survived

Heart surgery and the treatment of heart attacks by drugs and other methods are so advanced today that lives are being saved that assuredly would have been lost only a few years ago.

Such a case came to light in Montreal recently. Lucien Masse, of Dorion, a 45-year-old construction worker, survived 30 "clinical deaths" from heart attacks in 48 hours.

Dr. Emile Marcotte revealed that in two days up to Christmas Eve Masse, the father of four children, suffered attacks of severe irregular heart rhythm and had to be "defibrillated" 30 times with an elaborate team procedure that included electric shock to the heart, cardiac massage, administration of oxygen and injections of sodium bicarbonate.

Another specialist said such cases were unusual but not rare these days, although they would have meant "irreversible death" 10 years ago.

Fibrillation is a condition arising when the heart goes out of control, losing its capacity to pump blood in the normal rhythmic pattern. The emergency procedures described are aimed at restoring this rhythm so that the heart can function properly once again.

More Cars

Car drivers are said to be falling behind again in the matter of obtaining their 1969 plates.

But that is of less concern to us than the information in the same report that some 300,000 more cars will be on the road this year compared with the same period a year ago.

What this means in terms of highway safety is anybody's guess — but it is safe to regard it as being of no comfort either to the police or the highway safety people, not to mention the driving public generally.

To Your Good Health

Bottling Up Emotions Is Dangerous Practice

Dear Dr. Molner: I need help. For reasons you will discover as you read on, I am not signing this letter.

I am in so much trouble I don't know where to turn. I have 45 tranquilizer tablets, 100mg. size. Don't tell me to call a psychiatrist. If I told him what I told you he would have me committed. I took an "overdose" last year. And I am not going through electric shock or insulin again — and talking doesn't help me.

Please tell me what to do. I know what shape I'm in, but nobody else does; neither my husband nor friends realize the trouble I'm in. I think my husband just doesn't want to. My family doctor doesn't know either, and I don't trust my minister. — No Signature

No way to respond to this so-man except by this column. Yet there isn't any reason she shouldn't have signed the letter.

It doesn't take a psychiatrist to read between the lines. This is an intelligent woman, an educated woman. She has a record of emotional problem, evidently severe.

She's trying to keep it all bottled up inside her. That doesn't work very well for anyone.

Apparently she tried to submerge her worries in an overdose of tranquilizers, and is afraid she might try again.

She is determined not to be committed to a mental hospital. Well, perhaps she won't have to be — but she does need help. She needs to unload some of her troubles on someone who understands how heavy an emotional burden can become.

She has reached the point (I gather) of not trusting anyone. Or hardly anyone. But it's part of life for all of us to have to lean on others some of the time.

Despite her insistence that I mustn't tell her to see a psychiatrist, that still is the best advice for her. I think it is quite reasonable for her to tell the psychiatrist that she doesn't want to be committed, and that she will co-operate in therapy if it will help her avoid commitment, as probably it will.

If she still balks at that, she should tell her doctor the story, for even get the advice of a friend who can keep her mouth closed. The friend, I trust, will help her make up her mind that psychiatric help is, after all, the one thing that can help her.

But she mustn't try to keep everything bottled up inside herself. Everybody in this world has to ask for help at times.

Dear Dr. Molner: I know a blood test is required before a marriage is performed here. I am planning to marry a girl who lives in Mexico City. Is it possible that after a journey from Mexico to Ohio she would find that we cannot marry because of incompatible blood types? — D. R.

The blood tests are to guard against venereal disease. Blood type don't not matter.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I was given radium treatment to dry up my varies and stop hemorrhage. Should I now take hormone pills? — H. D.

If the treatment was only to control hemorrhage, and you are now having symptoms of menopause, hormones would be in order. But if the treatment was used because cancer was present, hormones might not be advisable. In short, this is another example of a situation in which it is very important to follow your doctor's informed advice.

Today in History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jan. 25, 1967 . . .

A British punitive force led by Sir Garnet Wolseley, hero of the Red River Expedition in Canada, sacked Kumasi, western Africa, 93 years ago today—in 1874—and successfully intimidated King Koffee of the Ashanti tribesmen from interfering with European traders. The king agreed to pay a fine of 50,000 ounces of gold for the trouble he had caused; 2,400 European troops had taken the field and more than 30 per cent caught fever. The Ashanti later attacked the Europeans again and their country was virtually annexed with the Gold Coast, now independent Ghana.

1777 — Washington ordered all Americans to sign an oath of allegiance to the 13 Colonies or else to depart behind the British lines.

1863—The United States formed its first Negro regiment during the Civil War.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1917—HMS Laurentic was sunk off the Irish coast, with 112 crew members saved; the French transport Admiral Magon was sunk; a German ship bombarded the Suffolk coast.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—Thailand declared war on the Japanese side the day after the RAF bombed Bangkok; Japanese forces landed on Celebes and Borneo; London announced the 35,000-ton battleship HMS Duke of York was in service; food rationing began in Canada with limitation of sugar supplies to 12 ounces a week each.

Why Not Belleville?

Tories Seek Convention Locale

A political convention in Belleville . . . as a compromise solution to the dilemma facing the Conservative party as it contemplates the leadership issue and the federal attributes of Centennial Year? is the following article, DONALD M. SOUTER, managing editor of The Intelligencer, puts the case for Belleville. He suggests that in the Armouries and the Arena the city affords adequate convention facilities, while in the general area there are some 5,000 hotel and motel units which could accommodate delegates and their families.

Canada's Progressive Conservatives, already split over the leadership question, appear to be equally at odds over the date and place of the national convention authorized last year to be held in 1967.

The pro-Diefenbaker group is now calling for an early convention to name the leader for the next federal election. This group, taking its cue from John Diefenbaker, would like to see such a convention within two months.

The pro-Camp followers echo the argument of national party leader Dalton Camp, who claims a convention before this fall is not a practical undertaking.

Like most political differences, it will probably be resolved through compromise.

It raises an interesting thought . . . what about a political convention in Belleville to determine the next leader?

The first reaction might be that the Quinte area would never be considered for such an important plum.

Politically, the historic Tory tradition of the area augurs that such a move could not be out of line in this, ex-Grit, city.

Political decisions will no doubt rule out many areas.

The Diefenbaker supporters will blacklist Toronto (host of the anti-Diefenbaker forces) and Ottawa where their leader fared so poorly last fall.

The Camp contingent claims Montreal and surrounding area is impractical because of the crush of Expo visitors.

Suggested are Winnipeg and Vancouver. Both are large enough, but Winnipeg's communication en the Pan American Games this year as well as being the Big Eight's first choice and Vancouver's West Coast location might not be attractive to the Big Eastern.

It rests the case for a small city area to campaign for dedication as convention centre facilities.

Too major problems face the organizers of the national convention — accommodation and convention facilities.

Accommodation shouldn't be the big bogey it might appear at first glance. The Belleville department of tourism and information lists 1,000 first class approved bed hotel units in the Bay of Quinte vacation area. Add another 1,000 motel units easily in Kingston and 1,000 used to Oshawa and it provides enough accommodation for the delegates and their wives and families.

Facilities might be tougher. But then they are going to be difficult no matter where the convention is held if the major convention cities are ruled out.

In Belleville, the armouries and the arena are virtually across the street from each other. Either one is big enough to hold the voting delegates. The alternates and spectators could be housed in the other.

Closed circuit television and a giant screen could bridge the gap.

It sounds like a project if the area Chambers of Commerce should investigate.

After all, it seems reasonable delegates from the prairies and the East should favor an Eastern Ontario convention over the west coast — especially when Canada's governing party, Expo '67, is only 225 miles away.

And, wouldn't it be exciting!

Monastery Children

Montreal Gazette

Attempts by police and welfare agents to break the children involved in the Apostles of Infinite Love religious sect in St. Jovite, and to settle their legal status afterwards, will probably be a long, involved story.

The human story is equally long, and sad.

What kind of hopeless, empty people has twentieth-century life produced, people that can apparently find no meaning or fulfilment in life, a few dreary variations all over North America.

Then there is the question of abuse. How much right does the modern state have—in this case, Quebec's social welfare department—to tell parents how to raise, or not to raise, their children? Can society demand that deviants return to the fold, even if the deviants are children whose lot in life is supposed to be settled by their parents?

Historically the answer has been yes. Society must guarantee its members a wideness of choice that does not exist within the confines of a fanatical sect. But the process of guarantee will always involve soul-searching and bitterness.

Unrest Among A Minority

Peterborough Examiner

When Judy LaMarsh was in Oakville, performing a centennial task at the week-end, she obliged newspaper reporters with several observations about Canada's celebration. Signs of discontent — in Quebec particularly — were being exaggerated, she said. The 100-years-of-history celebrations, with commemorative plates, the possibility of demonstrations at Expo '67, and other rebellious manifestations left her largely unperturbed.

We note that during the same weekend, vandals in Montreal splashed bright orange paint on the statues of Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Georges-Etienne Cartier, and Queen Victoria. The irreconcilable slogan was also daubed across walls. In this connection, we cannot imagine why the statue erected to the Boer War in Montreal was left untouched, since Quebec's complaints seem to have a number of parallels with those of the Boers. But logic does not appear to be a strong point with the FLN.

But Miss LaMarsh is right. Such manifestations of dissatisfactions are the expression of a minority of people. At the same time, the existence of the minority (as an examination of any social movement will demonstrate) have a habit of becoming those of the majority — given enough time, persistence and resentment to feed on.

Letter to the Editor

"Today's Chuckle" Offends Reader

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In my opinion it is in very poor taste to use quotations from the Holy Bible and fracture them into "jokes".

I am referring to a "Today's Chuckle" in last week's paper, when Jesus saying, "The Meek Shall Inherit the Earth", was used.

Even if someone does not believe in God, he should have enough common courtesy forbids ridicule of what is held holy by millions.

And this goes for more than double for a newspaper, considering its influence on thousands of readers, young and old.

Jerry Brunsma,
Corbyville.

Anthem Debate Would Be Unseemly

Ottawa Journal

Nobody has been in any hurry to "O Canada" declared the national anthem and "God Save the Queen" the royal anthem in Canada, but now time presses.

A resolution proposed by the Prime Minister to make these changes effective, has reated peacefully on the House of Commons order paper since last January.

The Government has announced that it will not proceed with the proposals to a parliamentary committee in the new year. That is the best way to facilitate a decision and allow both the anthems to be officially sung on Parliament Hill on July 1.

"The country wants no renewal of the heated controversy that over issues raised when the new flag was debated."

The anthem of "O Canada" is familiar and respected everywhere. If it is made the official national anthem it will suffer no disrespect because God Save the Queen" is also sung on appropriate occasions. Canada remains a monarchy.

There is time for a course, those who would think it awful if the new national anthem did not pray for the Queen. There'll be others furious at the suggestion of retaining any official recognition of "God Save the Queen".

The situation demands a strong common consciousness of wise and reasonable parliamentarians and some experience in the dividends of tolerance.

We hope they would retain "O Canada" but cut out its repetitious words and shorten its tune rather than add new words to the God Save the Queen.

But whatever the committee proposes is bound to displease some and for that reason it is essential the party leaders should at the very outset name their leader to the committee. The Commons should pass the matter to the committee with a minimum of preliminary debate, and the House could accept the subsequent recommendation with a quick blessing.

A protracted, bitter and prejudiced debate in our parliament on our anthems in centenary year would prove the pessimists among us to be right — that we are neither mature nor a nation.

Strictly Personal

Lost Causes and All That

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

There are men proud to be fighting for lost causes, who would be horrified and struck with impotence if they thought their causes had any chance of winning.

Skepticism is the best method of inquiry, but the worst philosophy of life; then skepticism ceases to be a means, and becomes an end; it neutralizes its own moral force.

When a man finds it hard to believe in anything, he usually is worrying about tomorrow; when a woman finds it hard to sleep, it generally means she is worrying about yesterday.

The greatest resister to a movement is the man who started it; only he knows how and why he learns that his followers are taking it further than he ever contemplated. An interesting modern example is Supreme Court Justice Black, in his recent civil rights decisions.

All governments, all police forces, all authoritarian organizations, no matter what they preach in public, privately believe that the end justifies the means — and this deeply-held belief is responsible for more cruelties and evil in the world than all individual wrongdoing.

Battle Over Timmins Ore Body Has Canada's Rich Stakes

TORONTO (CP)—It's a trial with the biggest monetary stakes in Canadian history and the setting is appropriate—an opulent room with oak panelling, blue broadloom and padded benches in Toronto's new $15,000,000 courthouse.

There's more than $2,000,000,000 in the ore of Timmins, Ont., a mass of copper, zinc and silver under the ground 15 miles north of Timmins, Ont.

Texas Gulf Sulphur Inc. of New York and Canada pays the everybody, possibly the largest in the world. The company already has spent an estimated $60,000,000 bringing the property into preliminary production.

Leitch Gold Mines of Toronto says the orebody is theirs. But even if it doesn't get the mass of minerals it's asking for $450,000,000 in damages.

The dispute arises from an agreement between the companies which gives Leitch certain rights to land in the Timmins area which had been purchased by or prospected by Texas Gulf.

The huge orebody was found on land which Texas Gulf said wasn't included in the agreement, Leitch disagrees.

But no matter who wins this case there will be more of the same in the future because Royal Trust acting on behalf of an estate, is claiming the land on grounds of an agreement it says exists between the estate and Texas Gulf.

Chief Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court so far has heard more than a month of testimony and Leitch has presented its evidence. Witnesses for Texas Gulf will give their evidence when the court resumes next week.

Much of the evidence so far has been from mining men using highly technical terms. One exchange, for example:

Dr. Harold Salgsi, geophysicist, testified:

"I have here a sample of pyrrhotite and a small magnet, and you can see that the magnet adheres to the pyrrhotite. It is strongly magnetically polarizable, which is another way of saying more technically that it ..."

"Don't say it more technically, rather reverse that process," said Chief Justice Gale.

It will be Chief Justice Gale's task to sift through the mass of evidence and decide who owns the discovery, which touched off one of the wildest staking sprees in Canada in April, 1964. It also brought new prosperity and hope to Timmins, a gold mining camp which had lost its glitter.

However, the case won't rest with the decision of this court. No matter who wins, in a case of this size appeals are sure to be launched.

With appeals and the probability of another fight with Royal Trust, both sides have prepared for a long siege, but neither will say how much money they have spent, or expect to spend, in asserting their claims to ownership.

On the sixth floor of the courthouse, Texas Gulf has taken over an unfinished room, about the size of a large gymnasium. It is strewn with maps and other documents deemed important to the case.

Down the hall Leitch has three offices for storing its documents, talking to witnesses and having legal discussions.

In the courtroom are hundreds of exhibits — about 600, one court official estimated. One map of the discovery area cost almost $18,000 to produce. It stands to the left of the judge's bench and is about seven feet high and 12 feet long.

Fred Hall, president of Leitch, attends every day while Thomas Stephens, president of Texas Gulf, frequently appears after taking the company jet from New York. Vice - presidents and other executives often show up.

Presenting Leitch's case is J. J. Robinette, one of Canada's most eminent counsel, aided by two colleagues and two students.

John D. Arnup, former treasurer of the Law Society of Upper Canada, is on the other side with six colleagues.

Cost of this isn't discussed, but it generally is accepted that they are "high - priced help."

Much of the evidence is dry as dust — as well as unintelligible to non-mining people — but there are occasional bright spots.

Recently, Mr. Arnup asked for exhibit 198. The clerk of the court and an assistant had trouble locating it. After a delay of about three minutes, the clerk asked:

"Would you settle for 199?"

While this brought a chuckle from a handful of spectators and the lawyers, the party which gets the last laugh in this case will have something like $2,000,000,000 to laugh about.

Auto Sales Continue Slumping

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp. have all reported continued automobile sales slumps in the second 10 days of January. Sales in the first 10 days of the industry as a whole were off 21.1 per cent.

General Motors' reported preliminary figures showed its dealers sold 101,444 passenger cars in the 10-day period, compared with 125,206 in the same 1966 span.

Chrysler reported retail deliveries in the mid 10 days of January were 33,631, or 17 per cent off 40,345 of a year ago.

American Motors reported dealer sales of 5,062 for the period, compared with 6,390 in the Jan. 11-20 period of 1966.

Ford awaited reports from its Ford and Lincoln-Mercury divisions.

DAILY SALES UP

Despite the continued decline over-all, Chrysler said its daily selling rate of 3,737 was up three per cent over the 3,632 rate that prevailed in the first 10 days of January.

GM's Cadillac division reported its sales of 6,508 at a mid - January record, topping the previous mark of 6,343 set last year. The division's sales in the first 20 days of the month were 11,328, against 11,600 in a similar 1966. Last year was a record sales year for Cadillac.

In passenger cars and commercial vehicles combined, GM reported its dealers sold 120,181 in the middle 10 days, compared with 145,668 last year, with commercial vehicles accounting for 18,737 and 19,462 respectively.

Total unit sales by PM in the first 20 days of 1967 were 218,472, compared with 269,354 in 1966.

Rand Called Capitalist By Labor Delegate

TORONTO (CP) — Royal Commissioner Ivan V. Rand, conducting a one-man inquiry into labor disputes in Ontario, was called a capitalist Tuesday by a member of a delegation from the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (Ind.).

William Swack, an employee of Canadian Westinghouse Ltd., in Hamilton, who asked to be heard, protested that Mr. Rand had classed himself earlier as a working man.

"You call yourself a working man but you are a capitalist," he told the 82-year-old former Supreme Court of Canada justice.

"Why do you say that?" Mr. Rand asked.

"By your special position you are a capitalist."

Mr. Swack replied.

"What's a capitalist?" the commissioner persisted.

"A person who exploits labor," was the reply.

"What exploitation do you charge against me?" Mr. Rand said. "You're much more of a boss than I am. You are more of a capitalist —you have people under you."

Mr. Swack replied he was just an ordinary worker.

Later, John Farrell, a union steward at United Carr Fastener in Hamilton, and another member of the UERW delegation, suggested that those who are not on the production line cannot appreciate the problems of workers.

He had invited a member of management who had come up from the ranks to spend a month watching the employees at their work, he said.

"Maybe I should pass the same suggestion on to you," he told Mr. Rand.

Commissioner Rejects Injunction Comment

TORONTO (CP) — Ivan C. Rand, commissioner in the Ontario royal inquiry into industrial disputes, Tuesday rejected a union leader's statement that picket-limiting injunctions deny workers the protection of the law.

The 82-year-old retired justice of the Supreme Court of Canada had been listening to Ross Russell of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America who said that such injunctions make the law act against the worker and denies him his right of assembly.

"I'm not impressed with extreme statements like that," the commissioner said. "It's the same law that protects that worker's property."

The union brief said that through ex - parte injunctions, Ontario's courts allow themselves to be drawn into labor disputes on the side of the employer.

Centennial Tattoo Members Converge on Camp Picton

PICTON (STAFF) — Preparations are continuing at Camp Picton for the Department of National Defence Centennial Tattoo. So far as Camp Picton is concerned some of the more recent preparations are the installation of several extra telephone lines and extensions to handle the increased personnel, (expected to be between 600 and 700). Much work has been done on a huge stage in one of the hangars which will be used for rehearsals. The increased heavy load will also mean the camp must increase its cooking and kitchen staff and the transport deartment has added extra buses and trucks to help move more troops around. Rehearsals are slated to begin February 15.

To date one of the earliest groups in for the rehearsals is a motorcycle squad, and several items of an archange party to deal with stores and equipment such as props, uniforms, antique weapons and so on. These may represent all three services.

Most of the 700 tattoo members will arrive between Feb. 9 and Feb. 14 and will train under the producer Major Ian Fraser of the Black Watch.

The special corps will be divided into two groups a red group and a blue group. When the show hits the road on April 9 one group will go to the West coast and the other the East. On these tours they will perform in large size arenas in city - sized communities. Both groups will meet finally in Victoria B.C. and will be augumented by more specially trained personnel to make a total of about 1,600 performers. The massive collection of military personnel will perform the same show in what has been termed "stadiums" across Canada winding up at Expo '67 in Montreal. About 350 man group will be reconstituted to perform in the Eastern provinces. Final performance should fall near the end of September.

Tasty Fowl Casserole

By MARY MOORE

The chicken and rice in this excellent casserole were cooked in advance. From the time I started to assemble this casserole until I put it in the oven 35 min. had elapsed. It was a main course with a generous crisp salad and hard rolls. I am sure our casserole cooks will enjoy it.

One of the virtues of this casserole is that you may use up leftover fowl. You might decide to take advantage of the continuing low price of turkey and roast another one late in January. If so you could use three cups of the leftover turkey meat in above casserole as suggested.

SLICK CHICK (OR TURKEY) CASSEROLE (serves 6-8)

3 cups coarsely cut chicken (see below)
½ cup chicken broth (or milk)
Two 10-oz. cans cream of mushroom soup, undiluted
1 tbsp. chopped onion
4 cups cooked long grain rice (see below)
1½ cups grated old Cheddar cheese, packed
2 tbsp. chopped green pepper, or canned pimiento
Use leftover cooked chicken or turkey, or do as I did, boil a 3-lb. chicken in 4 cups water with 1 bay leaf, 1 tbsp. onion and 1 tsp. salt until tender and strip meat from bones and chop and measure 3 cups.

You can use leftover chicken or turkey meat or start by boiling a chicken for this main course casserole Mary Moore gives you today. A grand one-hot-dish meal for it serves from six to eight people. Add the recipe to your casserole file.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked Pork Chops in Mushroom Soupsauce; Spanish Rice; Broccoli; Iceberg Lettuce Quarters with Herb Dressing; Banana Cake with Crunchy Topping; Coffee.

To make 4 cups cooked rice add 3 cups boiling water and 1 tsp. salt to 1 cup raw long grain rice in heavy saucepan (or double boiler) and bring to boil and cook covered 20 minutes until all water is absorbed and rice is tender.

In very large saucepan or kettle mix together soup and broth (or milk), onion and salt and heat until smooth and hot. Add cut chicken, rice, cup of the cheese and the green pepper or pimiento. Turn into large casserole, (I used a 3-qt. size.) Sprinkle remaining cheese over top.

Bake at 375 deg. F.a.hr. about 25 or 30 min. or until bubbly and golden.

NOTE: There is enough salt in the rice and the soup so do not be tempted to add salt to this mixture.

Ann Landers

Man of 35 Makes Fool Of 60-year Old Mother

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mind is so fogged up over this thing I no longer trust my own judgment. I hope you can help.

ANN LANDERS

Mother, who is in her late 60's has been fooling around for three years with a man 25. He has made a complete fool of her and it is obvious to everyone that she has been keeping him. She bought him a car, outfitted him at a leading men's store, paid attorney's fees to keep him out of jail and she is supporting his ex-wife.

This man is rotten through and through and we are certain he will toss Mother aside when her money is gone. She knows how we feel because my sister and I have told her. Yet she continues. Is there anything we can or should do to help her? — SICK AT HEART SON.

DEAR SON: You cannot force help on a person who doesn't want it. The man is sick, and so is your mother. The more I see of people who loose themselves up, the more thoroughly persuaded I become that the sick chicks find each other. Whenever you see a seemingly well-adjusted person involved with an oddball, make up your mind that the seemingly well-adjusted one has developed a good facade. Underneath he is a little oil killer, or he would not tolerate the abuse.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a recent column you said, "Sixteen-year-old boys are not thinking about love and marriage. They are thinking about sex."

I was engaged to a man 28. He was in the Navy. When I wrote him that I was three months pregnant he got himself transferred and I am still waiting to hear from him. That was five years ago.

Recently I read some excellent advice for single women. It was written by a physician. He said, "When an unmarried woman tells me that her boyfriend wants to get intimate and asks me what to do, I suggest that she ask him to give me a piece of paper saying he slept with her on such and such a date. When he refuses, which he most assuredly will, she should ask him why."

I wish I had read that advice long ago. — SORRY.

DEAR SORRY: Thank you for a fine suggestion. I'd like to hear from the girls in my reading audience who try this out. What did he say?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last night, your column about a woman who stole from relatives — towels, address, trading stamps, anything in sight — was discussed at a party. I felt my face get hot. This has happened to me before. Whenever the subject of stealing is raised I become flustered and ill at ease.

I have never stolen a thing in my life. My stepfather was such a fanatic about honesty that I never would have dared. Yet I get these horrible guilt feelings whenever stealing is brought up. I am sure people must suspect that my conscience is killing me. I need someone who is smarter than I am to explain why an innocent person should feel guilty. — BAFFLED.

DEAR BAFF: Guilt feelings can be triggered in strange and mysterious ways. You may never have done a thing in your life but you do feel guilty about something. It is these feelings that surface and make you feel uncomfortable.

Susanna's Family Fare

Let Juices Permeate Chicken

Dear Sue: For a fine moist exceptional roast chicken, I carefully turn the bird completely over for the last half hour in the oven, and let it cook upside down, with the fat on for these final 30 minutes.

I'm sure this lets the juices run through and permeate all the white meat. — Mrs. B. Glenn

Dr. Susanna: While perpetually turning dinner together, my doll of a mother-in-law watched with unblinking big butcher knife trying to hack my way into the rhinoceros - tough hide of a flabbard squash until she couldn't hold back another instant.

With a "Let me help, dear," she picked it up, walked to the back porch and dropped it away on the cement floor. It broke into four.

The pieces were now quite manageable, and it was a simple matter to cut and peel them. — Lucky Daughter-in-Law.

If you have any hints for running a successful household — or any problems — write to Susanna, in care of this newspaper.

Successful Living

Can't Get Credit Due To Bureau Mistake

Dear Doris: We bought our TV on credit and paid it off in a couple of months. We had it home for a month and something went wrong with the picture, so we took it back to the same place to get it fixed, which cost us $22. We paid it in two payments and that was fine with them.

But in a month's time we got a letter from the Credit Bureau saying we were owing so much on our TV. We immediately took the letter to the office and the fellow found that it was all paid up; and he said that he would call the Credit Bureau and straighten it up.

Now we have a lot of other things to get and I asked the store manager if I could have credit on a couple of items, so he said that he would have to phone the Credit Bureau to see if our credit was good. It turns out that we can't get credit, just over that letter they sent us, which was their mistake.

What do you think I should do to get our credit good again? — Discredited.

Dear Discredited: Track it down. Go first to the office worker who promised to straighten things out and did not; take some proof of past credit — like a series of paid-up receipts — and go to the Credit Bureau.

It reacts to their discredit to make such a mistake.

Dear Doris: The only time I lose any weight is when I take pills and then not too much but the doctor doesn't like to give them to me, as I have a murmuring heart condition and am supposed to take it easy. If I overdo anything I get all out of breath and feel sick.

I am 50 and weigh 175 pounds. The doctor said I should come down to 135. That was four years ago and I've still never made it.

I avoid cream and sugar in tea, no butter for breakfast, never eat between meals. Have a late lunch in the evening, only when we are out. My husband can't see why I don't lose weight, with all the housework I do for five people. I also curl two nights a week.

My weight is all from my waist down. My friend said your exercises were good ones so please send them to me. — Can't Shrink

Dear Can't: Sometimes I think that losing weight at 50 calls for a starvation diet; those bulges are so loath to disappear! — I must be wrong.

But you can't cheat on your diet. Nibbles and late lunches can ruin a day's regime. Keep the proteins high, the carbohydrates low; and don't expect exercise to do anything at all but rearrange the fat.

If I send you my "Simple Reducing Diet" and "Be Figure Perfect" will you promise me you'll do nothing at all before showing them to your doctor? A person with a heart murmur must take no chances on too much exercise.

(Note: The above leaflets are available to other readers for 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Thank you very much for your kind reply. It lifted my spirit. I now feel that with your understanding and help I can go on fighting the battle.

And you will hear from me again, about the rest of my truth-twisting in-laws as well as my husband. Until then, may God bless you and keep you. We need people like you.

— In-Law Troubles.

Dear Troubles: Your thankyou lifted my spirit. If you would like to enlarge on just how I helped, your story might inspire someone else to work away with their own tough problem.

Ask Doris for the information you need. If she doesn't know she'll find out from one of her consultants. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

BAY OF QUINTE WI

WHITE'S DISTRICT — January meeting of the Bay Quinte Women's Institute was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred St. Hilaire on Wednesday evening.

Sidney South Institute extended an invitation to the Bay of Quinte Institute to meet with them at the home of Mrs. Reid for a departmental meeting on procedure, showing the entire way to conduct a meeting. Mrs. Arnold Redmond and Mrs. Ross Stickle attended.

An invitation was received to attend a Quinte Belle meeting in Belleville. The president, Mrs. Lloyd Bealey and Mrs. Cecil Jeffery attended.

As a centennial project each Institute member is to place a stem on her mail-box. Mrs. Cecil Jeffery as convener for February meeting has offered a prize to the member providing the most information on the history of local farms, historical pictures, wedding anniversaries or anything of interest for the curator's book.

Mrs. Frank White and Mrs. Ross Stickle will be conveners for the next card party at Harder's School. Mrs. McCormick will open her home for the February meeting.

Mrs. Arnold Ketcheson gave a humorous reading.

Mrs. Donald Sandercock gave a talk on sleep. Many people can do with six hours of sleep, she said, but not the majority. A tired brain causes lapses which are the cause of many accidents. Lack of sleep is also a drain on vital energy.

Chapter 55, Eastern Star Inspected

A large number of members and visitors of Belleville Chapter No. 55, Order of the Eastern Star filled the auditorium of the Masonic Temple on Friday evening for the official visit of inspection by Mrs. Marjorie Morgan, District Deputy Grand Matron of District No. 12.

Among the distinguished visitors were: Mrs. Gage Smith P.W.M. of Trenton Chapter No. 118, Grand Representative of the State of Minnesota in Ontario; Mrs. Lottie Gibson P.W.M. of Lakeside Chapter No. 81, Wellington, Grand Representative of the State of North Dakota in Ontario; Mrs. Phyllis Berry P.W.M. of Belleville Chapter No. 55, Grand Representative of the State of West Virginia in Ontario; Mrs. Helen Cross P.D.D.G.M. of Quinte Chapter No. 59, Ameliasburg; Mrs. Luella Brickman P.D.D.G.M.; Mrs. Dorothy McGlashon P.D.D.G.M., of Belleville Chapter No. 55; 15 presiding Worthy Matrons and 15 Worthy Patrons and 42 Past Worthy Matrons and Past Worthy Patrons from other Chapters throughout the District. All were welcomed by the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Margaret Booth, and the Worthy Patron, Earl Gray. All of the officers were present, and initiated two new members into the Chapter.

After the work of the Chapter had been inspected, Mrs. Morgan thanked the Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron and complimented the officers on the quality of their work.

She gave an address on the theme "Am I My Brother's Keeper?". Mrs. Morgan said that each one should be his brother's keeper, and that "brother" means all other human beings everywhere. She told of many ways in which everyone can help someone else, not only the families, but neighbors, friends and even strangers, by little acts of kindness and helpfulness wherever there is need of it.

The presentation of a gift was made to the District Deputy Grand Matron on behalf of the Chapter by Mrs. Lois Chaplin, Associate Matron.

The corsage worn by the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Margaret Booth was a gift from the Chaplain, Sister Merle Simpson and her husband P.W.P.

After the closing of the Chapter, a lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed by all.

Farmer Not Blamed for Bread Cost

WINNIPEG (CP) — The cost of the unwrapped loaf of bread was presented to Canadian housewives as one slice of bread that they shouldn't blame the farmer when they throw fits over rising food costs.

The example was given by James M. Bentley of Edmonton in his presidential address to the annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

Mr. Bentley said unwrapped bread costs almost twice what it did in 1949.

The basic raw material, wheat, accounts only for from three to four cents of the price, and between 1949 and the present there is not enough difference in the price of wheat to account for even as much as one cent of the change in the price of a loaf of bread, he said.

The simple truth is that while the farmers' price return and the sum total of the consumers grocery bill are related to some extent, they do not necessarily move in step.

"Between the farmer and the consumer there has developed a large processing and retail distribution industry which provides each year more and more service to the consumer," he said.

"Today, when a consumer purchases food at a store he is buying not only a commodity but he is also buying a service."

REYNOLDS — REID

The Experts Say
Canadians Are Beginning to Show More Interest in Paintings, Sculpture

OTTAWA (CP)—Art collections in airports and universities are signs of the "exciting" interest Canadians are beginning to show in painting and sculpture, says Marie-Louise Funke of Carleton University's newly - established fine arts department.

As an example of our change in attitude in recent years, she tells of a group of rare German expressionistic paintings which used to languish in the offices of a Saskatoon meat - packing plant.

Thanks to our new support of things artistic, the paintings now hang in their own section of Saskatoon's civic art gallery, Miss Funke says.

A tall, brown - haired woman, she speaks with a trace of the accent of Germany, where she was born. She came to Morrisburg, Ont., with her parents in 1948.

A 1957 graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., in history, fine arts and German, she has studied and worked in the art field in London, Munich and Paris. She was supervisor of the education program at the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts from 1961 until her Carleton appointment last September.

The expanding art field should provide lots of jobs for graduates of the degree course planned for Carleton. Besides museum workers, teachers "and critics" will be needed, Miss Funke says.

Although about half the students in the department's two courses this year are male, she says art specialists are usually women.

"I think it's still largely a woman's field because salaries in private institutions aren't good enough to support a man with a family."

Her Carleton classes find good study resources in the National Gallery. Miss Funke says it is especially good in English portraiture, but feels it would be difficult for Canada to build up an internationally-renowned art collection because of the high cost.

"Anyway, you can't compare the situation on this continent with Europe. Their national - art galleries were built up with generations of royal collectors and outright looting from other countries. Many of the treasures of the Louvre were taken from Italy by Napoleon."

Her course in art history explains art as "a means of exchange of ideas."

"There are many things a man has to express without using words."

She feels there is too great a tendency in the art world to "put pedestals under names."

Women Swinging to Lipps' Loop

OTTAWA (CP) —An Edmonton gynaecologist says his practice indicates that women are swinging to Lipps' loop from pills as contraceptives.

Dr. C. A. Douglas Ringrose reported to the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons Thursday on studies among 800 women using the loop in the Edmonton area.

Theloop is a plastic device shaped like a series of S curves which is inserted in the uterus.

He told a press conference later that the loop has overtaken the pill in popularity in his experience, particularly among women who had one or more children.

An intensive study of 136 women who had borne at least one child indicated that two in 100 became pregnant. This compares with statistics of 100 per cent effectiveness of the pill when it is taken without interruption or isn't stopped because other medication is being taken.

SIDE EFFECTS MINOR

He also said that side effects from the loop are minor and there are fewer of them than from the pill.

Four-fifths of childless women who had the loop inserted did so without noticeable side effect. Ninety-seven per cent of women with at least one child experienced no side effect.

In fact, said Dr. Ringrose, among the 136 women with a child, 59 per cent reported more enjoyable sexual relations and 40 per cent reported greater interest in sexual activity.

He also said that 30 per cent of these women felt there would be an increase in extra-marital or pre-marital sex relations as a result of this method of contraception.

Based on experience with 800 patients, Dr. Ringrose said there were 15 pregnancies among loop users. Two of the 15 were pregnancies in the Fallopian tube, a greater number than usually occur in the general population.

SOCIAL and PERSONALS

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. William Kelly, Malone, Ontario will be "At Home" to friends, relatives and neighbors on Sunday January 29, 1967 from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m., on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. Donald Brady, Marmora, with Miss Evelyn Ash of Madoc hostess. Recipes From Every Part Of Canada Found in Laura Secord Cook Book

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

A centennial project to relish in a dinner party of dishes representing every part of Canada.

A suggested menu: British Columbia smoked salmon, tourtiere from Quebec, a wild rice casserole from the Prairies, Maritime fiddleheads, sourdough a la Northwest Territories and Ontario butternut spice cake.

All the recipes are in The Laura Secord Canadian Cook Book collected and edited by the Canadian Home Economics Association as a Centennial project. Some of the proceeds will go to the association's scholarship fund.

Editor Sally Henry says she knew Canada had a cuisine but didn't know what it comprised until recipes began coming in from the association's 1,019 members. Each was asked for a recipe for a food specialty of her part of the country and for some anecdote or historical background on it.

Miss Henry says the recipes sent most often and from most parts of the country were for oatmeal bread, oatcakes and lemon bread. She says she suspects lemon bread and butter tarts may have been developed in Canada.

Some recipes have had to be modernized, such as a chicken pot pie originally designed for a bake-kettle and open fire.

GASPE TOURTIERE

For Gaspe tourtiere, two-pie size, cut in 4 to 6 pieces a 4- to 5-pound boiling fowl. In a saucepan combine the chicken with 1 onion stuck with 1 whole clove, 1 branch celery leaves, 1 carrot sliced, 1 sprig parsley, 1 small bay leaf, pinch of thyme, pinch of marjoram, 1 tablespoon salt.

Add cold water until chicken is just covered. Cover pan and cook over low heat until chicken is tender. Cool in broth 1 hour.

Meanwhile, lightly brown in a lightly greased frying pan 2 pounds ground lean pork. Stir in enough broth from chicken pot to cover meat. Cover and cook over low heat for 2 hours.

Remove chicken from bones and chop. Mix well with pork and taste for seasoning. Allow to cool.

Preheat oven to 450 degrees.

Prepare enough pastry for two 2-crust pies. Divide into four equal portions and roll out each separately. Use ten points to line four deep 9-inch pie plates.

Divide cooled meat mixture between pie plates. Cover with top crusts. Flute and seal edges and slash top crusts.

Bake in 450-degree oven for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 and bake for 30 to 40 minutes longer.

Makes 6 to 7 servings per pie.

FIDDLEHEADS

Fiddleheads are the edible frond of the ostrich fern. They now are marketed in canned and frozen form. The book describes them as resembling a combination of asparagus and broccoli. They may be served hot with butter or sauce or cooked, chilled and marinated for salads.

RICE CASSEROLE

For the wild rice and mushroom casserole, grease a 1½-quart casserole. Wash 1 cup wild rice thoroughly and soak for 30 minutes. Drain.

In the top of a double boiler combine the wild rice with ¼ teaspoon thyme, ¼ teaspoon basil leaves, ½ teaspoon salt. Mix to dissolve and add 3 cups boiling water and 3 beef bouillon cubes. Cover and cook over boiling water for 45 minutes or until tender, stirring occasionally.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

In a frying pan melt ¼ cup butter. Add 1-3 cups finely chopped onion and cook until transparent. Push to one side of pan, add more butter (about ¼ cup) and lightly brown ¾ pound sliced fresh mushrooms.

Combine rice and a little of remaining liquid with sautéed onions and mushrooms. Season to taste and place in casserole. Dot with butter and bake in 350-degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes. Serve from casserole. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SOURDOUGH

Sourdough, now associated with the gold rush and the Yukon, was once among the daily supplies for settlers. The book includes a modernized recipe.

In a large bowl, dissolve 1 teaspoon granulated sugar in ½ cup lukewarm water. Over this sprinkle 1 envelope active dry yeast. Let stand for 15 minutes then stir briskly with a fork.

Stir in 3 cups lukewarm water, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 3 cups all-purpose flour. Cover and let stand at room temperature for three days, stirring down batter daily.

On the third day, scald 1 cup milk. Stir in ¼ cup granulated sugar and 2 tablespoons shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Blend in 2 cups yeast mixture. To remainder add 2 cups lukewarm water and 2 cups all-purpose flour. Let stand at room temperature for 1 day then pour into glass jar, seal and refrigerate. Use for next batch of bread.

Beat in 3 cups all-purpose flour. Add another 3 to 4 cups all-purpose flour. Work in last of flour with a swaying motion of the hand.

Turn dough out on a lightly-floured surface and knead 8 to 10 minutes. Shape into a smooth ball and place in a greased bowl, rotating dough to grease surface. Cover and let rise until doubled (about 1½ hours).

Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until smooth. Divide in three. Roll out each portion and shape into loaves. Place in greased 8½- by 4½-loaf pans. Grease tops and let rise again until doubled. (about 45 minutes).

Bake in preheated 350 oven for 30 to 35 minutes. Makes 3 loaves.

SPICE CAKE

A spice cake was made in Ontario's Bay of Quinte area with buttermilk from nearby farms. Now pecans or walnuts may be substituted.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease generously 9-inch tube pan, plain or fluted. Sprinkle bottom and halfway up sides of pan evenly with ½ cup finely chopped butternuts.

Sift together 2 cups pastry (soft wheat) flour, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon allspice, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon salt.

Cream 2-3 cup butter. Blend in, beating until light and fluffy, 1 1-3 cups lightly-packed brown sugar. Beat in 2 eggs. Stir dry ingredients into creamed mixture alternately with 1 cup buttermilk or sour milk. Make 3 dry and 2 liquid additions, combining jointly after each.

Blend in ½ cups finely chopped butternuts. Turn gently into prepared pan.

Bake in 350-degree oven for about 45 to 50 minutes, or until cake springs back when lightly touched. Cool in pan for 10 minutes. Turn out on cake rack and cool completely.

Leave upside down and sprinkle sifted icing sugar over cake before serving.

Color, Gaiety Enliven Spring Fashion Collection

PARIS (AP) — Color and gaiety enlivened Maggy Rouff's spring fashion collection shown here Tuesday.

Guy Douvier, Maggy Rouff's designer, said he chose this emphasis "to give women clothes in which they will feel relaxed and happy."

He translates this into figure-trimming sheaths, topped by tailored suit jackets and faced in traditional white touches. The sleeves are often short, the jacket cut to be worn open.

There are mini-shrug boleros with mini-puffed sleeves. The jacket is often in white, contrasting with the dress.

Waists are dropped to the hipline and often belted in white leather. A deep flounce placed below the hipline to above the knees takes care of skirt fullness. This is found on dresses and follows through in coats.

Charming shantung sheaths in bright colors step forth with their own boleros. Bicolor effects are introduced in vokes and repeated in the bolero.

Cadaques, where Picasso spends summer months, is evoked in a dress with a giant daisy embroidered across the front and its stem falling down the dress.

Daisies again in light blue guipure embroidery make a youthful party dress.

Douvier does a dress he calls "baptiso" patterned on a lace-frilled christening robe.

Jean Louis Scherrer showed a sophisticated, elegant collection. He favors capucine, nasturtium, red, turquoise, luminous greens and plaids. In his street suits and coats his millinery is of the same coat or suit plaid.

C.P.T.A. - SEPARATE SCHOOL

MARMORA — Mr. F. B. Allore, B.A., M.Ed., Separate School Inspector for Belleville district addressed members of Unit 32 of the P.T.A., Marmora Separate School, on Monday evening on the subject of "A New Science for 1967 — Change".

"Everyone is aware of change," he said, "that quality of becoming different; what is different today is the rate of change. The past gave us the luxury of time for thought, discussion and calculation — but now the sudden availability of calculations through new machines has enabled man to increase his competitiveness and productivity. Thus the people of today have to turn more and more to their leaders for advice in order to help them make a decision to jump the shortened gap of time between idea and action. Efficient change makes demands from both the leader and the worker. Should either member of this team shirk a responsibility change cannot take place, and the team together reap the consequence of failure."

He concentrated on the role of the leader with reference to the responsibility of the worker. "One of the most difficult problems which leaders face is resistance to change. What employees resist is usually any technical change and social change — the change in their human relationships that accompanies technical change."

FASTEST CHANGE

"Our Roman Catholic schools and Church are involved in the fastest rate of change in their history. The greatest changes lies in the ecumenical ideal of lay involvement leading to the rebirth of Christian and Intellectual democracy. Educational changes are bent towards trying to get the right teacher with the right ideals working with the right child at the right time. The efforts of all persons assisting with your school have been directed towards providing the conditions which will produce this intangible relationship.

Mr. Allore was introduced by the principal, Mrs. E. P. McNamara and thanked by Monsignor F. J. Spence.

A question and answer period followed with the Inspector explaining the testing program with scoring and machine analyzing for correlating of data, the future unit system which will provide a program for each child's potential ability and through which he will go at his own speed.

He discussed ranking of students which is being deemphasized today, stating that competition is a constructive force but it has been found to cause educational and emotional harm in a school to introduce competition but it cannot be entirely wiped out.

Regarding help for students at home, he recommended letting a child learn how to do his work and research himself, unless there is a severe problem. He noted that a healthy secure climate at home and use of the public library are essential.

During the business meeting conducted by the vice-president, Mrs. Bernard Doyle, a refreshment committee of class mothers was set up. Arrangements were made to have two delegates attend the CPTA convention in Toronto at Easter. The February meeting will be in the form of an "Open House" at the Separate School.

SOME SMALL HOPE

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — After Brazilian housewives complained when the cost of living went up nearly 15 per cent in a week, the semi-official Getulio Vargas Foundation reported the cost of living in Rio rose 41 per cent in 1966. But this was four per cent less than in 1965.

Women Are Pillars of Churches But Few Allowed to Be Ordained

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

In Canada, women are the pillars of the churches. They raise money, attend services, teach Sunday school, fill many paid positions.

But the clergy remains overwhelmingly male and so does membership on boards that run churches locally and nationally.

Change is currently in the air. There are new laws, new looks at old laws, quite a lot of talk. But if it is a revolution, it must rank as the quietest ever.

In June, 1966, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada voted to allow women to be ordained and to become elders taking part in administration of a church. The margin was narrow and a number of delegates remained unswayed. Results have been slight.

The United Church has ordained about 60 women since 1936 but few have had full charge of a church. Women are also eligible for United Church administrative boards.

Ordination of women is a thorny issue in discussion of union between the United Church and the Anglican Church of Canada. It is not at all certain Anglicans are ready to accept the idea.

In the last 20 years eight of the 28 Anglican dioceses in Canada have voted to allow women members in the synod, the administrative unit.

Baptists have ordained women for about 20 years, but not many.

HARDLY AN ISSUE

There are occasional unofficial suggestions from Roman Catholics that no real barrier exists to the ordination of women except tradition, but the subject is not officially open. Administration is handled by the clergy.

Among Jews the idea of women becoming rabbis doesn't seem to be the subject of even idle speculation. One synagogue director burst out laughing at the suggestion. Women are represented on administrative boards only as officers of women's auxiliaries.

When church people are asked why the role of women remains restricted, they mention tradition, psychology, public opinion or prejudice, the fact that Jesus chose no women as disciples, and St. Paul's writings.

Psychologically, it is seen as difficult for Canadians to accept the idea of a woman filling the father image of the clergyman and also difficult for women to see themselves in this role.

The reference to St. Paul is based largely on three verses.

In the First Epistle to Corinthians, chapter 11, verses 7 to 9, St. Paul wrote:

"For a man indeed ought not to cover his head, for asmuch as he is the image and glory of God: but the woman is the glory of man."

'KEEP SILENCE'

In chapter 14, Verses 34 and 35, he wrote:

"Let your women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law.

"And if they will learn anything, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a shame for women to speak in the church."

Some church people take these words literally. Others now argue that St. Paul's objections were not theological but social and based on behavior patterns that don't exist today.

Discussing the modern focus on the question, Rev. Eoin S. Mackay of Toronto says: "At this point we are concerned about principle. We say is (refusal to ordain women) is a denial of the grace of God. There are not first- and second-class people — man means generic man."

Mr. Mackay was convener of the Presbyterian General Assembly committee on the place of women in the church. He says his church's concern with the question is less a reflection of the current social climate than it is a part of the revival of theological concern reflected in ecumenism.

Whatever the reason for change, Mr. Mackay doesn't expect much immediate action.

"There won't be a great flood of women ministers. There is a problem getting men."

THREE ARE ELDERS

Seven months after the General Assembly decision, Dr. E. A. Thomson says there are only three women elders in the church. No Presbyterian woman has applied for ordination though several have the academic requirements. Dr. Thomson is secretary of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

In the longer experience of the United and Baptist churches, there have been few women ministers and acceptance of them still seems far from complete. Some congregations are still reluctant to "call" a woman.

Rev. Harriet Christie of the United Church Training School for girls in Toronto says:

"At the initial calling of a woman there is the extra factor for a congregation of whether they want a woman. For the most part the only places where women are stationed are those too difficult for men to take or where they couldn't find a man to take it.

"Once they are in a situation, however, they are accepted by fellow ministers and by the congregation."

Dr. Leland Gregory, general secretary of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec, agrees.

"The likelihood of a church inviting a woman is slight. I'm sorry to say. We have a handful of ordained women in this country, I'm not certain any of them is in full-time pastoral charge.

"Though there is a tendency to put men in charge, there is no barrier to a woman's going beyond the more or less normal—and it is normal, whether we like it or not. There is a failure on the part of society to acknowledge the rightful place of leadership women should have."

HOUSEWIVES GULLIBLE

KIRKHAM, England (CP)— A hoaxer pretending to be a post office engineer persuaded four women in this Lancashire town to cut off their telephones with scissors. He told one woman she was blocking all the lines in the area and convinced the others their telephones were about to catch fire.

Prairie PCs Claim Pickersgill Reversing Pegged Grain Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs accused Transport Minister Pickersgill of trying to pull a fast one on them in the Commons Tuesday. His calm protests of innocence were rejected.

The upshot was a delay of at least another day in approval of the minister's massive transportation bill that has been before the House on and off since last Aug. 29.

A battery of critics, mainly Prairie Conservatives, spent nearly three hours on allegations that the minister:

1. Was attempting impoperly to reserve an earlier decision of Parliament.

2. Was conniving with the railways to undermine the historic Crowsnest Pass statute which pegs the freight rate on export grain at 1897 levels.

A ruling on the first point was to be made today by Herman M. Batten, the Liberal MP for Humber-St. George's who acts as chairman when the House is in committee study. He declined to make a snap decision when the complaint was made.

It all arose from a proposed government amendment to the transportation bill that would allow the railways to apply for an investigation into the costs and revenues resulting from any statutory freight rate.

Such a study, which could not be sought until two years after the bill passed, could lead to proposals for a subsidy if it was found that a loss was being incurred.

Last Wednesday the Conservatives caught the government off base and managed to delete from the bill an original clause instructing the proposed new Canadian transportation commission to carry out within three years a cost study of Crowsnest Pass rates.

The government tried to stop the deletion but couldn't muster enough of its members in time. The standing vote in committee was 59 to 58 for deleting.

On Tuesday the Conservatives charged that the latest amendment was an attempt to u ment was an attempt to unify that vote, something not allowed under parliamentary rules.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Bow River) entered a formal protest. He said Mr. Pickersgill was trying to revive the deleted clause by "intellectual trickery."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said such a move could ultimately lead to the destruction of the Crowsnest Pass grain rates. "The door of the Trojan horse is nothing to what the minister is trying here."

Mr. Pickersgill, who managed to retain his good humor throughout the affair, argued firmly that there was nothing wrong with the amendment.

It contained "a substantial and fundamental difference in principle." First, all statutory rates were involved, not just Crowsnest. Second, the former clause made the Crowsnest study obligatory. This one allowed a cost study only on the specific request of the railways.

"But the object is the same," said Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre). That made the amendment improper in the light of last Wednesday's decision.

Mr. Woolliams said the inclusion of all statutory rates was a red herring. The minister himself couldn't think of one statutory freight rate apart from the Crowsnest that had any significance.

Jack Bigg (PC—Athabasca) said the government was trying to get in the back door what Parliament wouldn't allow in the front door.

Mr. Knowles said the railways are eager for a Crowsnest rate study because they want to obtain a subsidy. The government, or Mr. Pickersgill at least, seemed to favor the idea.

Several MPs took the line that acceptance of the amendment would set a dangerous precedent and make votes in committee meaningless. They would be subject to immediate reversal.

Quebec and BC Legislatures In Loud Debate on 1st Day

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Quebec and British Columbia legislatures opened Tuesday and immediately plunged into loud debate.

In Quebec, the Union Nationale government quickly ran into a non-confidence motion.

In B.C., the Social Credit government faced an unexpected uproar from opposition members and a round of boos from hundreds of spectators.

Two other legislatures are in session - Newfoundland's, which faces a crisis caused by a government - defying strike of hospital workers, and Manitoba's where school and salary problems are at issue.

Ontario, formally opening its legislature today, has finance, housing, labor and pollution high on its urgency list.

The non - confidence motion in the Quebec house erupted over teachers' strikes. Opposition Liberals lost a strong bid to have the house adjourn and debate debate on the strike issue.

The motion, presented by Richard Hyde (L—Westmount), said the government had lost the confidence of the people because of its lack of action in the Montreal Roman Catholic teachers' strike in which 217,000 children and 9,000 teachers are out of school.

The non - confidence motion had not come to a vote when the house adjourned Tuesday night.

The booing at the B.C. sitting in New Westminster began after Opposition Leader Robert Strachan and his 15 New Democrats tried to amend a routine motion to include Hansard-type accounts of proceedings.

Applause, against protocol at formal opening ceremonies, came when 22 opposition members were joined by Social Crediter Ernie LeCours in voting for the amendment.

The applause turned to boos when the remaining Social Creditors stood to vote against the amendment.

The legislature was opened in a hockey rink in New Westminster instead of the chambers Victoria on the 100th anniversary of the first session of the legislative council of the united colony of B.C.

Major items in the throne speech forecast were plans to protect consumers, a separate tourist industry department and a home purchaser's grant.

In Newfoundland, hospital workers in Grand Falls, who Tuesday defied a provincial cabinet order not to strike, were awaiting an afternoon legislature session today for the Liberal government's next move.

Labor Minister Clyde Wells told the House Tuesday that he would introduce an act reopening hospitals and an amendment to the Labor Relations Act.

In Winnipeg, Premier Duff Roblin's Conservative government was criticized for ignoring the financial plight of a minority group by not extending its proposed $50,000,000 foundation program to private schools.

Prison Design Upheld

OTTAWA (CP)—The design of new federal maximum security prisons, criticized as unnecessarily restrictive, was defended Tuesday in the light of assaults on guards in recent years.

However, the defenders also gave a Commons-Senate committee figures that showed a decrease in such assaults as well as a decrease in the total prison population.

The committee was told that the number of prisoners has been dwindling for two years and now is about 7,100. Assaults on guards reached a high of 33 in 1963, but numbered 28 in both 1965 and 1966.

The figures were given by Penitentiaries Commissioner Allan J. MacLeod, who said the six maximum security institutions to be built under the new universal design will hold the worst 35 per cent of the prison population.

Solicitor-General Pennell testified that criticism by the Canadian committee on corrections has resulted in some design changes and may result in more.

The corrections committee said the design is "unnecessarily rigid and centralized, the consequent restrictive atmosphere resulting in serious loss of time and disrupting programs." It also said there isn't enough program space.

Mr. Pennell said 18 cells had been removed from the 150-cell design to allow more program space and that wire screens had been removed from corridors.

But he also told the committee it is imperative that the new prisons be built soon to alleviate overcrowding at Kingston, Vincent de Paul and Kingston penitentiaries.

He emphasized rehabilitative features in the new design and said the fact that all cells have outside windows is unique.

Defending restrictive features, he said there is a duty to protect guards and even prisoners against violence and to prevent escape.

The parliamentary committee agreed during the session to hire Ron Price, an assistant professor of law at Queen's University in Kingston, as an adviser.

Mr. Price prepared a report on juvenile delinquency recently for federal use and lectures in criminology.

The only objection to his hiring came from Harold Stafford (PC—Elgin), who wondered what special qualifications Mr. Price had that penitentiary officials or committee members didn't.

Committee chairman Jim Watson (L—Chateauguay-Huntingdon-Laprairie) said independent advice was needed.

Mr. MacLeod told the committee it is difficult to get psychiatrists, social workers and teachers to work at prisons. Fifteen jobs for psychologists now were open.

The atmosphere more than the wages, which he said are comparable to other areas of government service, seemed to be to blame, he said.

Replying to Senator Muriel Fergusson (L—New Brunswick), Mr. MacLeod said he never could understand why the RCMP has a dietitian and the penitentiaries service hasn't.

However, there was a dietitian on food services who consulted with dietitians on prison menus.

Mr. MacLeod denied that the menu was at fault in a recent sit-down strike of 250 prisoners at Kingston.

He said organizers later complained that French fries weren't served often enough and that a prisoner giving out butter didn't wear rubber gloves.

Meeting Cancelled

OTTAWA (CP) — The first meeting of a special parliamentary committee on the conduct of Mr. Justice Leo Landreville was cancelled Tuesday because of the absence of several senators.

The Senate stands adjourned until Jan. 31 and few senators are in Ottawa. The special committee, comprising 12 MPs and six senators, is expected to meet early next month.

Mr. Justice Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court was censured in a royal commission report last year for having accepted a gift of gas company shares shortly after being named to the bench in 1957. The judge, mayor of Sudbury before his appointment, later sold the stock for $117,000.

Bootleg Beethoven, Blackmarket Bach Peddled by Pirates of the High C's

NEW YORK (AP) — This is the story of bootlegging, blackmarket Bach, purloined Pubecinl and — the mind boggles at the thought — filched Frescobaldi.

It is about a black market operation that is dashed with the glittering names of musical legend and in which the marketeers, far from feeling twinges of guilt, regard themselves as a sort of worldwide cultural heritage board.

Ever since recording tape was brought within easy economic reach of the public, somebody, somewhere, at any hour of day or night, is committing what has been referred to as "piracy on the high C's."

To the music-lover, the pirate treasure outclasses pieces of eight by a country mile: Maria Callas and Joan Sutherland singing roles they've never recorded commercially, deadeas-old broadcasts conducted by the late Arturo Toscanini, the legendary piano artistry of Schnabel and Rachmaninoff, the excitement of actual performance at a Bayreuth or Salzburg festival.

Because opera fans are among the most fanatic of music-lovers, opera is by far the most popular object of piracy.

Among these jolly robbers, the most numerous are the amateurs, who settle for taping concerts off the radio in the safety of their own homes. They meet other amateurs, swap duplicates to enlarge their tape libraries and contrive ways to afford better equipment.

Then, the big time: smuggling equipment into Philharmonic Hall or the Met and snatching the performance right out of the congress' mouths, so to say.

Within recent years, tape recorder manufacturers have shrunk their product to handy portables, some as tiny as a cigarette package. The most popular unit—for smuggling into halls is about the size of a transistorized cigar box, easily concealed in an attache case or handbag.

Some composers and performers are irritated at the thought of their work being passed around without permission. They complain that the performance might not represent their highest artistic standard, then that the recording quality might not set off their talents in the best light, and finally that they're not being paid royalties.

Others, however, musicians are flattered at the fanatic devotion that motivates this business and often pitch right in to help peddle the tapes to their adoring fans.

By Ed Reed

"My big mistake was demanding justice."

As with any black market where laws do not regulate there is no limit to the thrill. Some record shops get $25 and up for a complete opera—more than most commercial albums cost.

Most black marketeers, however, are in the underground for fun rather than profit, and if you can track them down they usually share the loot with you for $3 to $5 a tape, which is just about at cost.

Commercial record companies generally do not sink a lot of money into mass pressings of unfamiliar music, but tape buffs, able to run off a tape on a one-at-a-time basis, face no such limitations. They dart in after the prize, unencumbered by the weighty complexities of contracts, copyrights and royalties, they often emerge with odd loot: world premieres of new works, rarely performed ones, far-out stuff.

The underground has any number of performances by famed musicians whose contracts limit what they can do on discs but not on stage. There are tapes of hundreds of live performances by singers who have never sing together on conventional recordings.

The Scotsman Success -- Thomson

EDINBURGH (Reuter)—Lord Thomson said Tuesday night that when he bought his first British newspaper 13 years ago he thought he had reached the culmination of his business life.

The 72 - year - old Canadian-born owner of one of the world's largest newspaper groups was speaking at the 150th anniversary dinner of The Scotsman, the Edinburgh daily he bought when he came to Britain in 1953. He said:

"It was my intention to stay in Scotland and run The Scotsman. I thought this would be a worthwhile culmination, of my fairly varied and hard life. But other things seemed to keep coming up.

Lord Thomson, the son of a Toronto barber, late last year fulfilled the long - cherished personal ambition of owning a major British daily by buying the 181-year-old Times of London.

He said that when he came to Edinburgh the situation of The Scotsman was not flourishing, but now the paper is a financial success.

Florence Henderson Looks Good Like, She Says, Singer Should

NEW YORK (AP) — Florence Henderson, a smiling young woman with a happy voice and apparently without a resentment in the world, does in fact harbor two grudges.

• The first is directed towards Hollywood. After nine years of pretty constant television exposure, she has only now begun to crack the West Coast studios and sound stages. And she has never, not even once, been offered a filmed situation comedy series of her own.

The second, less serious, is directed at audiences: "There seems to be a general impression that if you make terrible faces when you sing, or even have little beads of perspiration on your brow, you have a good voice."

Miss Henderson, it should be noted, sings as effortlessly as a lark.

"It takes practice," she said. "But you don't really have to distort your face and make ropes of your throat muscles."

The trick is to make it look easy and effortless.

Miss Henderson, who is small, blonde and loaded with energy, has covered all the dramatic tastes of television since her career started rolling in 1958.

She came to New York at 17 from Dale, Ind., to study, not music but acting, at the Academy of Dramatic Arts. While a student, she got a small part in a Broadway musical, quitting in a month to play the lead in a touring company of Oklahoma! She came back to Broadway in the title role of Fannie, and stayed for two years.

During the current season, Hollywood's doors have opened a crack. Miss Henderson recently appeared on the Dean Martin Show, as made-in-Hollywood as any program could be, and on the Pat Boone Show.

Meanwhile, Florence has managed to keep busy and extremely solvent. Her annual income will make a corporation president envious.

Currently she is in the process of cutting a new facet in her career, a supper-club act.

She has been married to a theatrical producer - manager, Jack Cassidy, for a dozen years, and they have four children, ranging in age from 10 years to 11 months. The births of the last three have been events shared by viewers of assorted, television programs, since Miss Henderson has always discussed the matter frankly and appeared publicly almost to the moment of departure for a hospital.

The family lives in a spacious apartment overlooking Central Park.

Film 10th in Money Makers Had Total Cost of $ 50,000

DANA POINT, Calif. (AP)—Recently a film called The Endless Summer placed No. 10 on Variety's weekly list of the money - making films in the U.S., which included The Sound of Music, Doctor Zhivago and The Bible.

Those epics cost more than $10,000,000 apiece. The Endless Summer ran up a total bill of $50,000.

Dubbed Fellini of the Foam and Bergman of the Boards, Bruce Brown has accomplished what appeared to be impossible. He took his simple, beautifully-filmed movie in New York and achieved reviews that many a producer of epics would trade his yacht for.

After eight months, The Endless Summer is still playing at the Kips Bay Theatre in Manhattan, and it has broken records in other key cities. Now it is up for an Oscar as best documentary of 1966.

I dropped down to this sun-swept community 70 miles south of Hollywood to find out if success had spoiled Bruce Brown. It hasn't. He remains the same independent soul as when he was showing his surfing films in high school auditoriums of southern California.

"Yeah, there has been a lot of action since The Endless Summer was accepted by a mass audience, he conceded. "Producers call me with ideas for movies, all of which I dont want to do.

"The other day I was up at MGM talking to Ivan Tors (producer of Flipper, Daktari, Etc). He told me if I wanted to make a television series on surfing he could sell it in a minute. But I told him: 'I don't want to make a television series about surfing.'

"What I want to make is a movie about commercial fishing for swordfish. But every time I mention it to people in the television business, their eyes glaze and they say: 'Nobody wants to see a film about fishing.'"

For a couple of years, the same persons were telling Brown, "Nobody wants to see a film about surfing." But Brown figured there would be general interest in his movie, which concerns the. around-the-world search of two young surfers for the perfect wave. He hocked everything he owned to finance the New York opening, and the gamble paid off.

'Essay on Women' Leaves Producer Open to Criticism

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK(AP)—If Andrew Rooney, writer spd producer of The 4 year's Essay on Women is as smart as he seems, he'll leave town until furious feminists cease to bite his effort on CBS dies down.

And that twinkle in the eyes of his narrator, Harry Reasoner, did not make amends for all those snide things he said about us. What made it worse was that he demonstrated by film that he was often right.

Risking a generality, his thesis was: What men want from women is love, a clean house, forgiveness and a stubborn hobbling to moral values.

Obviously, he wishes we would stop worrying about establishing our own identities, and get back in the home where we belong to concentrate on dinner and dusting.

Rooney poked fun at working women and at chalkwomen freeing over vacation status.

But when he was dealing with the family woman—wife and mother—he was downright sentimental and close to nostalgic.

He did agree with many women that housewife is a terrible word, and that modern housewives have actually increased woman's work because both their help she now tackles twice as much. He stated unequivocally that most American women do good shoppers but bad cooks, that women will work give up their own sense of values for men's—position, power and money. He said that women with power "are mean to each other," and use more authority than is necessary.

But the unkindest cuts of all were his illustrations: Fat lady shoppers in tight toreador pants; bossy supervisor brusquely ordering around a member of her staff, a military review of women in mannish uniforms.

Ontario Legislature Opens Today

TORONTO (CP) — Finance, housing, labor and pollution are high on the list of problems Ontario's two opposition parties would like to see tackled by the 1967 session of the legislature which opens today.

Finance is expected to become the most heated topic as opposition members question the government on its handling of the collapse of Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd. and a number of its subsidiaries.

The government, perhaps in an effort to take some of the heat off, announced recently that an accounting firm has been hired to help the Ontario Securities Commission investigate the $30,000,000 collapse. An interim report is expected in March.

And the government Monday proclaimed certain sections of the Securities Act, passed by the last session to give investors added protection. The balance of the lengthy act will not go into force until May 1.

James Renwick, the New Democratic Party's financial critic, Tuesday described the May 1 date as "inexcusable" because most companies will not have to comply with the act until the end of their next fiscal years in 1967 or 1968."

He said his party would demand that the act's provisions relating to insider trading, takeover bids, proxies and financial disclosure be implemented immediately.

In addition the NDP wants the federal and provincial governments to reimburse those who lost money in the collapse.

The Liberals want Ontario to mature deposit insurance for banks, trust companies and similar institutions.

Liberal and NDP members met separately Tuesday to discuss strategy and private members bills while the cabinet put the final touches on the speech from the throne.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon told a reporter his party would press the government to give some "real tax relief to property owners and solve a housing shortage prevailing in some sections of the province, particularly Toronto.

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald said in a statement his party would press for "a comprehensive housing program featuring government financial assistance for new construction . . . and government subsidies on mortgage interest rates."

Mr. Nixon said "the people are prepared to support a strong government move to bring about abolition of pollution" and Mr. MacDonald called for "a program to combat pollution and conserve our vital natural resources."

The Liberal member for Brant, who enters his first session as leader, predicted labor troubles ahead as demands for higher wages increase.

Mr. MacDonald, member for York South who enters his 12th session as leader, wants "a comprehensive and modern program of labor legislation, with special attention to labor's right to participate in decisions involving the introduction of automated industrial methods."

Meanwhile, both parties are working on the assumption Premier John Roberts will call a spring election. The premier's five-year mandate expires in 1968.

The Conservatives, in power the last 24 years, have 78 members in the 108-seat legislature which will be expanded to 117 in the next election. The Liberals have 22 and the NDP eight.

Trappers Number 600

Tweed District Beaver 'Crop' 14,000 Annually

By MAURICE SWITZER
(Staff Reporter)

Market time comes twice a month if Tweed for some of the most valuable commodities "harvested" in the Quinte area. Every other week, from November through March, an average of 30 trappers in the 8,000 square - mile Tweed lands and forests district offer their pelts for sale to fur buyers at Tweed's chief ranger office.

Game Management Officer William Bittle says beaver is by far the area's main fur - bearing animal, although fox, muskrat, mink, and otter also are trapped in the district.

Annual beaver harvests in the Tweed District have been as much as 14,000 pelts. About 2500 beaver are being sold at each of the Tweed sales. The majority of the animals were trapped within a 20 - mile radius of the village.

"Trappers may belong to one of three categories," explains Mr. Bittle. "Licensed" trappers may operate without a licence as long as they only set traps down in their own property. The title "resident" applies to a Tweed district trappers who has a $5 licence fee, the licence for anyone not in the province is $25. Licence money goes to the province's natural resources department.

traps on "Crown land."

"Although there aren't many men in the area who try to earn their livelihood by trapping, right now we're catching as many beaver per square mile as any other area in the province."

Although trapping methods are being streamlined, such as by the use of snow crutches, the practice still involves a lot of tedious snow-shoe trekking for anyone enthusiastic enough to try his hand at Canada's first industry.

One innovation that most trappers seem to be quickly adapting to is the recently introduced "Conibear" trap — a strong steel-wire device designed to deal instantaneous death to its victims.

Once the beaver have been skinned, the pelts are cleaned, then dried on stretching boards for about a week before being offered for sale. A beaver fur may be sold without being groomed in this manner, but this means a loss of several dollars per pelt for the trapper.

All furs are tagged by a conservation officer before sale at the Lands and Forests office in order that exact records of the harvest may be kept up to date.

Buyers measure pelt dimensions, give the fur a quick but careful once-over to determine the quality, and make their offer to the trapper. At present, beaver are auctioning for an average of $15 at Tweed, with "super" pelts selling up to $25. District trappers may receive up to $10 for a fox, $15 for mink, and $1.85 for muskrat, depending on quality.

Any person killing a wolf may claim a $35 bounty shared by the province and county as well as a $5 township bounty.

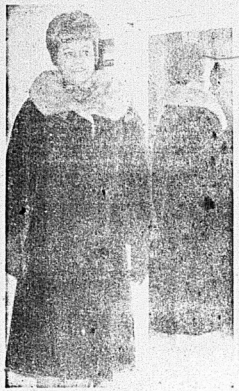
Many Tweed district pelts find their way to Tweed's tannic furriers, transforms them into fashioned coats, hats or accessories.

Prices for beaver coats might not be at all exorbitant when one considers the work that has gone into the finished product. Although the original pelts used in a coat may be quite large, only a select portion of that fur can be used. This has to be carefully matched with about a dozen others of similar size and quality before a stitch can be sewn.

It may take as many as 50 painstakingly assembled rabbit pelts to yield a garment of that fur.

For this reason, a highly skilled individual is the fur business's fur cutter, whose skill and patience are largely responsible for the uniform quality and appearance of every fur coat.

But it's still the men on snowshoes who are the backbone of the fur trade, and the harvesters of one of the richest natural resources this county has to offer.



Reflections on Fur

This full-length beaver coat, from Bellville's Ashley Furriers, medium size 9 to 11, by Partridge, is made from about a dozen pelts.

Everything in Order

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Toe Blake's fiery blast in which he allegedly called his Montreal Canadiens "a bunch of quitters" after their 4-1 defeat by the Black Hawks caused many an eyebrow to raise in the exalted circles of the National Hockey League, and in fandom in general.

Sports editors of the country had a field day with that denouncement. It was splashed across the pages in wartime type with a Chicago paper carrying an eight-column banner, "Blake Calls Canadiens Quitters."

The charge was an unprecedented one in the annals of the National Hockey League. Coaches have been known to blow their tops before, even threat to take to the ice and engage in mortal combat with officials, or one another.

But to level such a charge within earshot of scoop-hungry hockey writers is without record in the circuit.

Pat Curran writing in the Montreal Gazette said that Blake didn't deny the story out of Chicago but qualified his remarks made in the heat of Sunday's setback which may have been Canadiens last gasp at catching the Hawks for the league championship.

Curran quotes Blake as saying: "What I said was 'Either they're quitters or they haven't got it any more'. Anybody who knows me knows I did not mean it that way. The others . . . Well, I don't care."

Blake, Curran said, was reminded that such a charge could have an adverse effect on the Canadiens who are already the busts of the National League season. Sunday's loss left Montreal still in fourth place 15 points below Chicago and only two ahead of Detroit for the last playoffs spot.

"Maybe something like this will waken them up," Blake said. "And if it does I'm not sorry. I've tried everything else. In Chicago Claude Larose could have played a lot better. Claude Provost could have been better . Yvan Cournoyea was on for the power plays and seemed alright at regular right wing and hardly had a shot on goal. Bobby Rousseau didn't do too much. Even if he's hurt Jean Beliveau might have worked harder. It was the same with several others."

"So what does it all come down to? They are not working as hard as they can and should, right? Is that quitting or is it something else? Figure it out yourself."

Blake, says Curran, obviously disappointed that his blast had been blown up in the newspapers since he usually reserves such things for the dressing room, said he has been criticized all season long for not using certain players."

"Hell, I used all eighteen of them Sunday and we didn't get anywhere. Some guys came off the ice without showing a bead of sweat."

"How could this whole team be over the hump after winning both championships last season? They played so well in the exhibitions. All right, they were exhibitions but at least the fellows were skating," Blake is quoted.

Curran said Blake claims he has been criticized continually for blasting his players and not using a little more sugar. "All I remember," Blake said, is that we won games after the team has been blasted. We've lost games after they've been blasted. But in 11 years I can't remember any game that we won after I've been soft with the players."

Blake was told that the word "quitting" is a nasty one no matter how it is used.

"Okay, maybe quitting isn't the right word. But there must be another one in the English dictionary that means what I really want to say."

Then, Curran said, Blake found his sense of humor and chuckled, "If they beat the Leafs Wednesday (tonight) and this thing works, I'll call them quitters again. I'll do anything to get this team going."

Share Problem ★★★★

Punch, Toe "Wanna Know"

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Imagine that! Toe Blake and Punch Imlach have a common problem.

Used to be that Blake's problem was how Montreal Canadiens would beat Toronto Maple Leafs. And Imlach had to figure out how his Leafs would beat Blake's Canadiens.

The problem they now share is: How do we beat anybody?

Both National Hockey League coaches are trying to get some scoring punch from their players in an effort to end slumps. The Leafs have lost their last four games and the Canadiens have only one win and a tie in their last six.

Among the Leafs, Frank Mahovlich and Dave Keon have only two goals in their last 15 games and Eddie Shack has three in his last 15. George Armstrong and rookie Brian Conacher have scored only once in that span.

Ron Ellis and Mahovlich are the only two Maple Leafs in the plus-10 goal bracket after 40 games. Ellis has 15 and Mahovlich 12.

The picture is just as bleak in Montreal, where Bobby Rousseau has only three goals in his last 15 games while Gilles Tremblay, Claude Provost and Claude Larose have scored two. Henri Richard has one goal in 15 games.

Both clubs will be out to improve when they clash in Toronto tonight. In the other NHL game tonight, Boston Bruins will meet the Rangers in New York.

Imlach had his club on the ice as 1 p.m. Monday after it arrived home from Boston at 3:45 a.m.

After the practice, he made his players watch (a horror?) film of the club's 5-4 loss to Detroit Red Wings Saturday night. The Leafs led 3-0 in that game but the Wings came back to win their first road game of the season.

They got the same treatment Tuesday—a lengthy practice at 11 a.m. plus a rerun of the Saturday movie.

"PUNCH" IMLACH

★ ★ ★

Red Kelly practised on the same line with Ellis and Larry Jeffrey Tuesday for the first time since Kelly was hurt Jan. 4. Imlach isn't sure whether Kelly will play tonight.

Imlach said Bower will serve as backup netminder to Bruce Gamble for the game. Bower has been sidelined with a broken hand.

The Canadiens have never really been off the ground in their bid to retain the league championship. They trail the third - place Leafs by five points and are only two points ahead of the Red Wings. Chicago is first by five points over New York.

Following Montreal's 4-1 loss to the league - leading Black Hawks Sunday, Blake voiced the suspicion his players were "quitters." The word might spur them to play better.

The Canadiens will be at full strength for the game and no lineup changes are planned.

The Rangers are also in a slump and will be looking for a victory against the Bruins tonight in their first home game since Jan. 8. The Rangers were forced on a five-game road trip by an ice show in their rink.

They went through a disastrous weekend, thumped 6-2 by the last - place Bruins Saturday and walloped 7-2 by the Red Wings Sunday.

Meet Tonight ★★★★★

How?

Larry Mickey has been called up from Omaha of the Central Professional Hockey League in a bid to boost Rangers strength.

Harry Howell, a 34-year-old native of Hamilton, Ont., will be honored with a special night during the game.

Howell will be playing in his 1,002nd NHL game as a New York player and about 50 persons from the Hamilton area are expected to be on hand, including Mayor Vic Copps and Ray Connell, Ontario Minister of public works.

Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York presented the city's Bronze Medallion to Howell Tuesday in a brief ceremony at City Hall, in honor of the players' professional excellence as a member of the Rangers.

The Bruins will be trying to stretch a two-game unbeaten streak. Their victory over the Rangers Saturday and the 5-1 win over Toronto Sunday Sunday marked the first time since early season that the Bruins have won two straight games.

Brawl In Stands

Police Quell Fan Fight

HULL, Que. (CP) — Police were called in Tuesday night to break up fighting in the stands as Hull Hawks scored four unanswered goals in the final period for a 6-4 victory over Ottawa Capitals in a Central Junior Hockey League game.

One youth was reported taken to hospital for treatment and three others were carted off to the police station. About 30 persons all told were reported involved in the fighting.

Capitals led 3-1 at the end of the first period and 4-2 at the end of the second. But Hawks stormed back in the third.

Ottawa players protested one of the third-period Hull goals, saying it had hit the post. A group of spectators started shouting at the goal judge.

Just before time ran out in the game, the fighting broke out in the stands.

Richard Gosselin, Gerry Riopelle, Jean Canuel, Claude Renaud, Phil Legault and Guy Smith got the Hull goals. Wes Peters scored two for Ottawa and Mike Curry and Rick Paton added one each.

14-Year-Old Skater Rated Favorite

TORONTO (CP)—Karen Magnussen of Vancouver has nerves of steel or she's the best 14-year-old actress in the world.

"I try not to think about the competition and I don't get nervous," she said in an interview before today's opening of the Canadian figure - skating championships.

"Sometime I get a little jittery before I go on the ice, but once I start to skate it's all right. I never worry about it—that's bad."

Karen is one of the favorites in the senior women's singles and the pick of many coaches to represent Canada at the world figure - skating championships Feb. 26 to March 5 in Vienna.

She was fourth to winner Petra Burka of Toronto in the Canadian finals at Peterborough last year after bringing a crowd of 5,000 to its feet with a brilliant display in the freestyle section.

One judge gave her 5.9 points out of a possible six, highest mark of the competition. She finished second in the freestyle, but a weak school figures performance—one had only entered senior ranks five months before—lowered her mark to fourth over-all.

And Karen, who started to skate because she wanted to be a snowflake in a winter carnival, is ready for this year's finals, to be skated Sunday.

She's been practising five hours a day, six days a week at Vancouver's North Shore Winter Club. Most of the work is gone into her compulsory figures, which count 60 per cent of the total.

"I haven't changed my free-style performance much," she says.

"I don't like to tamper with success. But I've been working on the school figures and they are better now."

Canadian Junior champion in 1965, Karen is just over five feet and likes to call herself an ash blonde. "But it's really brown though."

She refuses to say anything about her competition this year and won't predict the outcome of the senior finals.

"Everybody's good. If I improved a little, so did they. I don't want to talk about the other skaters. I don't like to say anything because people will say you're prejudiced."

She doesn't like to say anything about her own freestyle solo either, brushing it off with "It's mostly combinations and camel turns and splits and stuff. It's kind of a tricky to explain."

And Karen, one of the main cogs in the strongest British Columbia team ever sent to the national championships, has a rocky road ahead.

Among the rocks is Valerie Jones, 17, of Toronto, who finished second to Miss Burka in the National finals and seventh in the 1966 world championship at Davos, Switzerland.

The B.C. practice session was marred Tuesday when Betty McKilligan, 17, of Vancouver, a strong favorite in the senior pairs with her brother John, cut her toe.

"She got her right foot tangled with her left as John was dropping her in a double lutz," coach Jean Westwood explained. "But she's all right now and will practise today."

Canada's national skating team will be selected at the end of the competition Sunday with 11 senior skaters making the trip to Vienna. Twelve seniors will also be named to compete in the North American championships at Montreal Feb. 9-11.

Careless Practice Shooting

A misguided shot, when fired over the boards in an unscreened or unglassed area, can result in serious injury. A safe place to practise shooting is usually at the ends of the rink where spectators are protected

"Not Fired I Just Quit," Says Manager

TORONTO (CP)—Sam Hooker denied Tuesday night that he was fired as general manager of the East York Argonauts of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, defending Canadian senior champions.

"I resigned at the meeting on Jan. 17," he said. "How can you be fired from a non-paying job?"

Club president Harry Feldstein announced Monday that Hooker had been fired.

Hooker said Tuesday he had planned to take the Argonauts out of the ORFU for one season and give them solid competition with strong United States college teams.

"We had gone as far as we could in the ORFU," he said. "There was nothing we could do but clobber some of these teams 60-0. That hurts when you get beaten like that every game."

He said he told the executive that if they wouldn't go along with his plan there was no use of him staying on as manager.

Crawford Hopeful

Gimpy "Mo's" On The Mend

"The injury situation is not as bad as we first feared but we're keeping our fingers crossed," Mo-Hawk coach Floyd Crawford said this morning.

Lionel Botly, one of three Mo-Hawks selected for the OHA Northern section All-Stars, was back on skates for last night's practice.

"Lionel was hobbling but the X-rays showed no break in the foot and the doctors said if he could skate it would help prevent the blood from clotting," Crawford said. Botly was hit on the side of his foot in Sunday's 1-0 loss to Toronto.

Ralph Plane also injured a knee Sunday but worked out last night. Crawford and Greg Marchen are also operating on gimpy legs. Wayne "Wiener" Brown has been playing with a sore foot and has been advised to sit out this week's practices.

"Wiener" will be ready for Friday's game, though, and we hope to have a full squad out against Woodstock," Crawford said.

The club practised Monday and Tuesday in Belleville and has another workout scheduled for tonight in Trenton. We'll rest Thursday," the coach says.

Steve Rese, the young goalie who joins Botly and Mattie Menard on the All-Star team, was the latest Mo-Hawk to suffer an injury.

Rese was hit by a hard shot on the knee, just where his pads failed to cover, in last night's workout. "We had to help him from the ice but we are hoping its just a bruise". Goalger Douret, who played the club's first 18 games, is the Mo - Hawks' other goalie. It should Botly find the injured foot too painful to permit him to play in the All - Star game in Barrie on February 1, he will likely be replaced by Bob Taylor.

"As if things were not tough enough, we run into all these injuries right now", Crawford said, "but we'll just have to overcome them".

The Mo-Hawks will be hiding in MAD at three - game loss string against the tough Woodstock Athletics here Friday. It's their only game of the week.

Minor Hockey

Bill Whyte chalked up the night's lone shutout as Barons blanked the Mo-Hawks 4-0 in Belleville Minor Hockey Association tyke play last night.

In other games, Leafs and Bruins tied 4-4, Canadiens topped the Hawks 4-1 and Wings dumped the Rangers by the same score.

Sandy Waterson, Brad Elrenga, Bob Wild and Glenn Trendell scored the Barons' goals while Whyte was registering his fourth shutout of the season. Wild also drew two assists, Randy Cox and Brian Wing one each.

Brent Walmsley netted two of the Leaf goals with one each for John Hipwell and Tommy Coulson; John Osborne was a two-goal performer for the Bruins. Peter Coates and David Elmy notched the others.

In the Canadiens' victory, Michael Bennett, Brian Kerr and Simone Belch fired a goal each. Mark Sudeard from Randy Hutchinson was the Hawks' scoring play.

Wings won on goals by Kevin Browning, Peter Kincaid and Paul Weeks. Kincaid drew one assist. Bill Armstrong scored for Rangers with Bob Crawford assisting.

Plainfield Eyes Berth In Playoffs

Plainfield clinched right back into the middle of the battle for playoff berths in the Centre Hastings Hockey League last night by nipping the slump-ridden Walfbridge Warriors 6-5.

In the other half of the double - header, at Madoc, Frankford Shoemen hurt Ivanhoe's chances for the pennant by shading the Knights 9-8, on the strength of Bob Chesher's big scoring effort.

The current standing shows Glen Rose with 32 points, Ivanhoe 24, Frankford 17, Foxboro 12, Wallbridge 12, Thomasburg 11 and Plainfield 10. The schedule ends February 19.

Plainfield trailed the Warriors 4-2 going into the third but scored two quickies to tie it. Earl Reid again shoved Wallbridge ahead but 25 seconds later Rod Mallory scored Plainfield's winning goal.

Other Plainfield marksmen were Don Reid, with three goals, Bob Hunter and Gary Kay, with one each. Tom Bennett had two, Reid, Rick Denard and Al Johnston one each in defeat.

Bob Chesher came close to equalling Andy Faulkner's seven-goal effort while sparking the Shoemen win. Chesher scored a total of six goals. Brother Bill Chesher had one and two assists, Jim Chard and Gary Pooley a goal each and Wayne Nelson four assists.

Larry McMaster, after missing two months of play with an injury, scored two Ivanhoe goals. Richard Chapman also scored twice, Dale Benson, Harold Douglas, Jack Francis and Bob Chapman once each.

The game between Wallbridge and Glen Ross, scheduled for Friday at Stirling, has been postponed.

Charges N. H. L. Boycott

HALIFAX (CP)—The president and general manager of the Halifax Junior Canadiens said Monday that what appears to be a boycott by junior teams controlled by and affiliated with National Hockey League clubs may be responsible for his club's lack of strong opposition.

Fred J. MacGillivray told a news conference that most NHL - sponsored junior teams have "told me they would not come to Halifax."

Indians Trump Aces 4-1

QUEBEC (CP) — Springfield Indians scored two goals in the first period and added two more in the second period to defeat Quebec Aces 4-1 in an American Hockey League game Tuesday night.

The victory was Springfield's 17th of the season, against 21 losses and four ties for 38 points in the league's Eastern Division standings.

The Indians now trail the third-place Aces by five points. Serge Boudreau, Jimmy Anderson, Brian Cook and Yves Locas scored for the Indians. Andre Lacroix scored for Quebec early in the third period.

Jerome Record Is Official

LONDON (CP) — Harry Jerome's 9.1 seconds for the 100-yard dash was officially recognized as a world record Tuesday, seven months after it was set.

The Vancouver sprinter's name was included in the official list issued by the International Amateur Athletic Federation and nominated by Tommie Smith of the United States and Ron Clarke of Australia.

Jerome ran the 9.1 dash at Edmonton in the British Empire Games trials July 15, 1966, equalling the record set by Bob Hayes of the U.S. at St. Louis in 1963. Hayes later turned professional as a football player. Sprinter Smith of San Jose, Calif., voted Sportsman of the Year by the magazine World Sports, appeared in the record list four times.

Clarke was listed seven times for distances ranging from three miles to a one-hour run.

Also recognized officially was the 3:51.3 mile by Jim Ryun of the University of Kansas; the 11-foot, 5½-inch pole vault of Bob Seagren of the U.S. and the 17-6¼ pole vault of John Pennel, also a U.S. athlete.

The records officially recognized were submitted to the IAAF between Jan. 1 and Dec. 31, 1966. Some have since been broken and new marks will be considered at a later date.

Attention Bowling Leagues!

Starting next week a weekly bowling column will replace individual league scores as published in the past.

The column will contain highlights of leagues activities, high scoring players, etc. Outstanding league or individual efforts will be given separate coverage. It will be published each Wednesday or Thursday.

All Belleville leagues, both 5 and 10 pins, are asked to submit a teams point standing, plus one or two high individual scores, each week. Also note the name of the team for which top individuals bowl.

Any special events, such as tournaments, immediate past or near future, plus high singles, triples and averages at the completion of schedules, plus outstanding achievements, should be included.

It is most important that the correct name of the league and whether it is five or ten pin be included on ALL information submitted.

The name and phone number of your league secretary or a league contact should also be included.

The co-operation of all leagues will be appreciated and will benefit both the league and this newspaper in providing publicity.

Will Be Even In 3 Years

NEW YORK (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, believes it will take three years for the six new expansion teams to reach the level of existing clubs.

But after that, warns Campbell happily, watch out.

Campbell presided over the NHL's board of governors meeting which hammered out a stocking plan for the new teams in Montreal last week and, although satisfied, he was not overjoyed with it.

Campbell said he believes that after three years the two divisions will be playing on a par with each other.

"And I believe that we'll be able to have a genuinely and thoroughly competitive Stanley Cup Playoff series between the two divisions."

Campbell gave no indication that formal plans had been made for a playoff system for next season when the NHL's new teams play their first games.

It was a close contest from the start with Belleville holding a slim 33-32 edge at half time.

Clare Leahy, one of the Aces' better - shooting forwards, enjoyed his second high - scoring game in succession. Leahy hooped 22 points to spearhead the victory attack. Civil War Was Near In China Last Summer

The lines of conflict in China are slowly becoming discernible. How the "cultural revolution" has skirted the edge of civil war is reported in this analysis by an Associated Press specialist in Communist affairs. It is the third of a five-part series telling the background of China's troubles as far as they can be traced from available information.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

China's current convulsion came closer to civil war than at any time since communism took over the vast nation, say students of the scene.

Study of Red Chinese documents has led these analysts to conclude that last summer a division from north China was moving on the Peking-Tientsin area and was stopped only at the 11th hour.

The documents also indicate that in some respects what is going on now in China is a Chinese version of what happened in Moscow in 1957, when Nikita S. Khrushchev came within a hair of being thrown out. The opposition group he labelled "anti-party." There is a similar "anti-party" group in China.

The story of the Chinese regime's close brush with civil war, as the students of China piece it together, goes back to November, 1965. That is when the current phase of the developing upheaval began, and the outlines of a power struggle became clearly discernible to the outside world.

The evidence is that every time party hairman Mao Tse-tung faces political trouble he disappears from Peking, betakes himself to his Shanghai stronghold or weather the storm and plot counter-measures. He did this in 1954, when a grab for power by the one-time boss of Manchuria, Kao Kang, resulted in a political clash and purge.

He turned up in Shanghai when the battle lines were being drawn late in 1965, and again only recently, when the combination of his "great proletarian cultural revolution" was reached a peak.

Mao would return from Shanghai to Peking when the time of decision was near. When a central committee session or some similar meeting was about to take action.

As Mao disappeared from Peking in November, 1965, Wu Han, the playwright and deputy mayor of the capital, was being denounced for his 1961 drama, Hai Jui's Dismissal. The play, in essence, had been a symbolic protest - understood by millions of Chinese-against Mao for purging those who disagreed with him.

Wu became the first important victim of a new purge. Then his chief, Mayor Peng Chen, a power in the politburo was brought down in disgrace. The evidence indicates Peng was purged in April last year.

The first attacks on Wu and Peng appeared in the Shanghai newspaper, Wen Hui Pao, suggesting Mao's hand. This probably was because Mayor Peng and President Liu still controlled the central press in Peking.

Then Liberation Army Daily, the newspaper of China's defence ministry, mounted a vicious attack on intellectuals, concentrating on editorials of the main newspapers, including the most important: People's Daily, the mouthpiece of the party.

This attack brought down several other high - ranking persons, including Lu Ting-yi, head of the party's propaganda department, and his deputy, Chou Yang; the head of Peking University and the editorial staffs of practically all Peking newspapers.

Nothing is sure about Communist politics, but it appeared that both Premier Chou En-lai and party Secretary - General Teng Hsiao-ping had thrown in their lot with Mao and Defence Minister Lin.

The situation in Peking became tense as summer neared. There was evidence of discontent among army officers and of opposition to Mao's policies from Lo Jui-ching, the chief of staff.

Lo is believed to have issued orders to a division in northwest China to move toward Peking. Defence Minister Lin is believed to have ordered a division commander to get in contact with the commander of Lo's division and order him to halt. Part of the Peking-Tientsin area. It worked. If it had not, civil war was just around the corner.

Chief of staff Lo Jui-ching was purged.

At the point there is reason to believe that party Secretary Teng chided sides again, allied himself with President Liu and planned to call a central committee meeting to deal with the crisis. But then he changed his mind yet again, the evidence indicates. Thus, when a central committee meeting finally was called for the first part of August, Mao was able to be back from Shanghai in time to attend it. The fact that there was no meeting until then may have saved Mao from being overthrown.

The central committee met for two weeks, then issued a set of instructions calling for a "great proletarian cultural revolution." Mao seemed in control once again with the help of Defence Minister Lin and forces loyal to him.

The emerging picture was one of Lin himself striking out for supreme power through control of the propaganda apparatus and the army. To do this he had to bypass many persons. The young Communist League had been Peng Chen's creature and a source of possible opposition to Lin. The All-China Federation of Trade Unions had belonged to President Liu, and it was yet another source of opposition to Lin.

Most China - watchers agree that Lin won Mao's blessing for a new phenomenon. The Red Guards of Defence (Hung Wei Ping). It seems to have been Lin's creation.

It was made up of students up to 18, millions of them, all born under communism, all indoctrinated from the cradle, all too unsophisticated to know what really was going on, and all spoiling for a binge of reckless violence - with licence from on high. The intellectuals, the trade union people and the middle-aged Young Communists would be no match for them.

Lin turned their wrath on the party apparatus and bureaucracy at local levels. Swarming into the streets by the hundreds of thousands in city after city, they beat and humiliated many a lower - level party leader accused of straying from "Mao Tse - tung's thinking." And they terrorized urban populations.

Lin meanwhile, broke up the Peking city party committee and repopulated it with his own men, thus depriving the opposition of command over the Peking garrison. He fired the central committee of the Young Communist League and abolished the organization. He shot up the staffs of all important provincial newspapers. In purged universities, the decree suspension of all higher education in September so that students could devote themselves to the cultural revolution and "Mao's thinking."

Few think there is even an early purge victim because he probably was most dangerous to Lin and Mao. His position was not unlike that held by Soviet secret police chief Lavrenty Beria in Moscow when Stalin died. Beria had command of an army of his own—the MVD—and could have struck for power. Peng might have been able to do likewise with the Peking garrison.

President Liu had been close to Peng. But Liu was much less vulnerable, after so many years as Mao's heir - apparent, and with so much support in the party apparatus and the trade unions.

Now all this was only the beginning.

Their Inspiration Comes From Mao

Caption accompanying this picture from Red China says that these young women pledged their loyalty to the thoughts of Mao Tse-tung forever.

The mass rally was staged in Peking on China's National Day, in October.

Russia, U.S. and China Watching China Closely

By KEN PRITCHARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The current convulsion in mainland China is being watched closely around the world, but nowhere with greater interest than in Moscow, Washington and Taipei, the Formosa capital.

The Soviet Union is run by men who were youths when Marxism was transferred by revolution and struggle to their country 50 years ago. These men are more responsive than were their predecessors to the demands of Soviet citizens for a bigger share in the benefits of their economic system. In addition, Soviet communism has progressed to the point where coexistence with countries of differing ideology is a fact of life.

All this is anathema to Mao Tse-tung, the 73-year-old Chinese Communist party chairman, who has repeatedly branded his Soviet counterparts "revisionists."

China's present upheaval is described by experts as the direct result of the aging Mao's latest attempt to maintain the purity of what he regards as true communism.

The London Economist recently put it this way:

"What Mao has set himself to achieve is perpetual revolution—to be precise, a regular succession of upheavals, following each other at intervals of a generation or less. He believes that nothing short of this will keep the original revolutionary impetus alive."

Mao mustered undying hatred in the Kremlin 10 years ago when he and his close adherents proclaimed China's communism, with its emphasis on perpetual struggle, as the only true communism.

Now Mao struggles to purge China of domestic revisionists —those who lack sufficient zeal for his revolutionary policies. His chief foe has been Liu Shao-chi, who took over from Mao as president after the calamitous "great leap forward" of 1958. In that episode, the peasants were herded into communes and an abortive attempt was made to increase steel production by setting up backyard smelters.

China's bureaucracy, reported leading the opposition to Mao Liu, was run efficiently by Liu. The bureaucrats manage China's factories and farms, do its state planning and advance its science.

The Soviet Union appears to fear that China may lash out in some new direction during its internal struggles. Possible is an attempt to reclaim parts of the Soviet Union which once were in China's realm. Moscow has ordered its defences strengthened along the 3,500-mile border with China.

The Kremlin can be presumed to wish that from the Chinese chaos will emerge a brand of communism closer to that of the Soviet Union—and without plunging the world into new wars.

Hoping just as heartily that China's struggle can be kept within her own borders is the United States. Washington has had much to say publicly, but there must be satisfaction there about the apparent virulence of the U.S. policy of containing China.

MAO'S WAY BLOCKED

U.S. determination to defend South Vietnam has perhaps played an indirect role. It stands directly in the path of Mao's policy of spreading communism by "peoples struggles" and guerrilla warfare. Some of the opposition to Mao is reported to come from Chinese who wish to reduce support for national liberation struggles.

Meanwhile on Taiwan, 100 miles from the China mainland, Chiang Kai-shek and 600,000 well-armed Nationalist Chinese wait and watch. Chiang, ousted by force from a torn and bleeding China after the Second World War, now is 79 years old. But he has been strengthening his Kuomintang and the Nationalist body, in preparation for any eventuality.

Taiwan under Chiang has the second strongest economy in Asia—next to Japan—and the strongest government.

Chiang cannot move against the mainland without U.S. aid but he and his heir-designate Chiang Ching-kuo are following every move—and keeping their hopes high.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Could you please tell me how to get to Dorval Airport, and how far from Belleville it is?

ANSWER: Take Highway 401 and 2 to Montreal, then 8 and 17 to 28 or Cote de Liesse Road, and this will take you right by the front door. The mileage from Belleville to Dorval is approximately 220 miles.

QUESTION: Would you please list for me some good places to ski in Ontario, and anything you can tell me about them.

ANSWER: There are a dozen top places in Ontario where you can go. They are:

1. Blue Mountain, Collingwood. The biggest (eight open slopes, 16 downhill runs, 12 lifts), busiest ski spot in Ontario. Blue Mountain is top-rated by a good margin. "It has the greatest variety of runs and the hill is the highest in the area."

2. Beaver Valley, Flesherton. "A most pleasant spot for the average skier." Beaver Valley is one of Ontario's oldest ski areas; its hill is ideal for the intermediate skier.

3. Georgian Peaks, Collingwood. "It has some fine easy skiing plus a good test for experts." "It has the best artificial snow in Ontario," was another comment.

4. Horseshoe Valley, Barrie, Craighurst. "Horseshoe has a very friendly environment and is one of the best organized areas in Ontario." The area's situation in a snow-belt, plus the sheltering shape which provides the name, allows Horseshoe Valley to hold its snow long after the other hills are bare.

5. Mansfield Skiways, Alliston. "A pretty, much friendly ski area." Mansfield has aimed at the family trade. The hill is not overly difficult, the atmosphere relaxed.

6. Talisman, Kimberley. This patch complete resort in Bruce Peninsula Ontario's finest, except for the shortness of its ski runs. "For facilities and atmosphere, it's the top spot."

7. Hidden Valley, Huntsville. With its three-tiered chairlift and T-bar, Hidden Valley is the top spot for the go-go crowd. The cold Muskoka nights and an expert snowmaking crew up to gave the area more days of skiing than any in Ontario last winter.

8. Mount St. Louis, Barrie. Opened three years ago this area rapidly gained popularity. It's easy to reach from Toronto by Highway 400. "A good hill which holds its own there."

9. Limberlost, Huntsville. Despite its small hill, this homey old lodge in the Muskoka bush attracts the skier who wants peace and quiet. "After a snowfall and with the lake in the background, it's one of the most beautiful spots in Canada," enthused one pollster. "And the food there is superb."

10. Nacoma Skill Hill. Nipanee. Two open slopes, one down-hill run. Poma Ski Lift and one tow. There is a Club Chalet and coffee bar at this area.

11. Ottawa-Hull, Camp Fortune Ski Area. 15 open slopes, 16 downhill runs, 6 chairlifts, 2 T-bars, one J-bar, two Poma, two T-bar, ski lifts, six rope tows.

12. Smiths Falls, Rideau Ski Club. Two open slopes, one downhill run, one cross-country trail and two rope tows. Under development, chalet, snack bar, skating and tobogganing.

Diefenbaker's Rivals Reluctant to Tip Hand in Leadership Bid

GEORGE HEES

OTTAWA (CP)—The precise intentions of George Hees on whether to run for the Conservative leadership at the forthcoming convention may be known soon.

Informants indicate the former trade and transport minister may make a statement shortly on the question. What it will contain, though, is anybody's guess.

The 56-year-old MP for Northumberland has long made it known he has an eye on the top job, but only when there is a vacancy.

He has remained silent on the leadership question ever since Conservative Leader Diefenbaker's call last week for an early convention to decide who should have the top job.

As a result, it's not known whether that televised speech has changed his thinking or confirmed it.

Davie Fulton, whose leadership position had been much the same as that of Mr. Hees, said unequivocally the day after the Diefenbaker speech that he would be a candidate.

Mr. Fulton, 50, the MP for Kamloops, remains the only seriously-regarded politician to place himself firmly in the contest. Provincial premiers and other high-ranking MPs have either ruled themselves out, said nothing or taken qualified stands.

The general reluctance to declare is blamed in some quarters on Mr. Diefenbaker's canny televised speech that left everybody wondering whether he would run again.

One respected view is that Mr. Diefenbaker carefully-worded speech was designed to smoke out possible rivals before he makes up his own mind definitely.

Informants say Mr. Diefenbaker has indicated to possible candidates he counts on as supporters that he will step down.

However, confirmed Diefenbaker watchers learned long ago to take nothing for granted about a political strategist of Mr. Diefenbaker's skill.

He's gained some political convention, where strong dissident elements forced a decision to hold a leadership convention this year.

Rolling with the punch, Mr. Diefenbaker startled many observers with his mid-January call to get the convention over with quickly.

At this stage the interest surrounding his intentions ranks ahead only of those of Mr. Hees, who returned to the Commons in 1965 after quitting the federal scene in 1963 after a dispute with Mr. Diefenbaker, then prime minister.

From his actions thus far, Mr. Hees is considering carefully what to say and when to say it rather than making a quick declaration like Mr. Fulton.

Whatever he does, there is considerable evidence to indicate the process of political jockeying leading up to the leadership convention is in full swing.

And it's not even known yet when it will be. The executive committee of the party will meet in Toronto next weekend to discuss this.

The 25 - man executive had been set to meet in Montreal a week later but Monday President Dalton Camp announced the change in time and place.

Household Pets to Be Inoculated

PORT HOPE (CP)—A campaign to inoculate household pets against rabies in Northumberland and Durham counties begins next month, a federal department of agriculture official said Tuesday.

Dr. A. W. Harris, a veterinarian with the health animals branch, said the western section of Durham County is experiencing the worst outbreak of rabies in years.

Twenty rabid animals have been discovered since Nov. 1 and Dr. Harris' office is receiving at least two new reports a day.

Dr. Harris said skunks and foxes are the animals most affected.

Those adults and five children have received anti-rabies vaccine in the last six weeks.

Although North umberland County had only six cases of rabies in 1966—the lowest rate since 1956—inoculation clinics will be operating in an effort to prevent the disease from spreading, he said.

Commons Banking Group Divided on Citibank

Liberals Back Bill's Terms As Conservatives Ask Change

OTTAWA (CP)—A Commons committee apparently remained divided today after grilling James S. Rockefeller of New York for six hours Tuesday on his bank's purchase of the Mercantile Bank of Canada.

Mr. Rockefeller, chairman of the First National City Bank of New York, second largest in the U.S., with wide international connections, urged the committee to lower Canada's barriers to foreign banks operating here.

He and Robert MacFadden, a vice-chairman of Citibank and president of the Mercantile since Citibank's purchase of it in 1963 from Dutch owners, labelled as discriminatory and unfair a government proposal to limit the growth of Mercantile as long as it remains foreign-owned.

Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. MacFadden said already there must have been an inability on their part to make it clear to Finance Minister Gordon, as he was in 1963 before quitting the cabinet after the 1963 election, that they had bought the Mercantile Bank.

Mr. Gordon has said this was not made clear to him when he told them July 18, 1963, that the government would not condone the purchase. A year later, Mr. Gordon introduced amendments to the Bank Act restricting Mercantile growth — a move which Mercantile and Citibank are staunchly opposing.

Liberal members of the Commons committee Tuesday argued that there was nothing discriminatory in treating Mercantile differently from other Canadian chartered banks when Mercantile was different. It is the only one which is fully foreign-owned, or has all its ownership tied up in one stockholder.

But Conservative and other members took the other tack, arguing some change is needed.

Mr. Rockefeller ended his day - long appearance in the packed committee room — he was certainly the biggest international financier parliamentarians have ever had on the witness stand to question—by emphasizing Mercantile wants to remain a Canadian chartered bank, operating solely under Canadian law.

In all Citibank's foreign operation—190 branches overseas—local law is scrupulously observed, he said, and extension of U.S. law beyond U.S. borders is fought against. He noted Citibank also had subsidiary interests abroad, including 40-per-cent control of a West African French bank about whose name Mr. Rockefeller was uncertain.

"We wouldn't presume to tell you how to run your banking laws in Canada," he told the committee, "but in our experience we'd heartily recommend you join the international money community."

"It might increase Mr. Gordon's and (Bank of Canada Governor) Louis Rasminsky's problems, but that's their job."

About the confusion about just what was said between Mr. Gordon and Messrs. Rockefeller and MacFadden in July, 1963, Mr. Rockefeller offered one explanation.

Their appointment was just after Mr. Gordon had been informed of the U.S. government's imposition of the interest-equalization tax, designed to curb U.S. investment abroad.

"We couldn't have picked a more unfortunate date to visit Ottawa. An hour before Mr. Gordon had been informed of the tax, and we were the first victims to get through his door."

While the testimony was being given the Commons finance, trade and economic affairs committee, Prime Minister Pearson told the House of Commons the government has rejected recommendations from the United States seeking a reversal of the decision to restrict Mercantile's growth.

Mr. Rockefeller told the committee Citibank had not asked the U.S. state department to intervene on its behalf. Nor had its organization formed any plan of action to take if the restrictive legislation does go through.

Chairman Herb Gray (L—Essex West) said after the committee meeting the next step

Gordon Shaken By Bank's Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—A 42-month-old personal memorandum written by James S. Rockefeller, chairman of the First National City Bank of New York, describes Walter Gordon as being disturbed and shaken when advised Citibank had bought the Mercantile Bank of Canada from Dutch interests.

Mr. Rockefeller tabled in a Commons committee his personal memorandum of a meeting with the then finance minister on July 18, 1963, after the First National had signed a deal to buy the Mercantile. It said:

"He (Mr. Gordon) said the government looked on the transaction with disfavor and advised against completing it. Fortunately at the moment nothing we opened the conversation by saying that we had made a deal with the Dutch and were coming to advise him of it.

"This is the one thing that seemed to disturb him and to fan his initial attitude of telling us what we should do. We made no commitment as to the course of action.

"We said that we of course would consider his views and then contact them but might feel that our contractual obligation with the Dutch was such that we could not . . . .

"His disapproval was very clear. He did not forbid us to proceed but made the point and threats of reprisal. On being asked that if we decided to proceed it was at our own peril, he said that he would not use those words but it was a correct appraisal of the situation."

The file memorandum by the head of the second largest bank in the United States was written, Mr. Rockefeller told the finance, trade and economics committee, immediately on his return to New York from the conference with Mr. Gordon.

Mr. Rockefeller recalled that Mr. Gordon had been advised of the purpose of his trip to Ottawa in advance by Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, who was informed 16 days earlier that Citibank had bought Mercantile.

Robert MacFadden, vice-president of Citibank and now president of Mercantile, also wrote a personal memorandum to the meeting with Mr. Gordon. In it he said Mr. Gordon raised the same objections as previously raised by Mr. Rasminsky about the American bank controlling Canada as owner of a previously-chartered Canadian bank.

These were that the Citibank action would open the flood gates for charter applications by foreign banks, and that the confidential nature of the Bank of Canada's discussions with chartered banks would be broken by having Mercantile report in detail to U.S. parents.

U.S. Laws Do Not Bind Mercantile Bank, Claim

OTTAWA (CP) — Even though the Mercantile Bank of Canada now is wholly-owned by the First National City Bank of New York, it is subject in no way to United States law, Chairman James S. Rockefeller told a Commons committee Tuesday.

He said that in its foreign operations, directly and through subsidiaries, the American bank scrupulously observes the law prevailing in the country where it operates and resists the extension of U.S. law beyond U.S. borders.

This practice has been upheld by U.S. court decisions, he added.

Mr. Rockefeller spoke in reply to questions by Ian G. Wahn (PC—Shefford) and Stanley St. Paul's about conflict between a Canadian-chartered bank and the law applying to its owners if they are Americans.

Henry Harfield, lawyer for Citibank, said the point is not decided by the ownership of the bank, but the operations of the bank. If the U.S. government sought to direct the Mercantile bank, "I would advise them to ignore the direction, and I would defend that to my last client," he said.

Mr. Rockefeller said the U.S. government had endeavored to safeguard the sovereignty of other countries in which Citibank operates directly or through subsidiaries, by asking information from its branches overseas.

"We have refused to give them that information, and we have been upheld by the courts," he added.

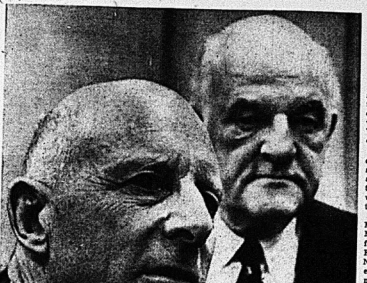
Two Testify Before Committee



James S. Rockefeller, left, president of First National City Bank of New York, and Robert F. MacFadden, right, president of the Mercantile Bank of Canada, testified before the House of Commons finance committee yesterday.

Study Will Not Delay Development Proposal

OTTAWA (CP)—Study of foreign ownership and control of Canadian industry will not delay legislative action on the Canada Development Corporation, Prime Minister Pearson informed the Commons Tuesday.

He said he will tell Parliament today the outline of future legislation including plans for the corporation.

The corporation, aimed at raising Canadian money for investment in Canadian industry, has been advocated by Walter Gordon, minister without portfolio, as an important tool in reversing what he calls the steady loss of control by Canadians over their own industry and resources.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and New Democratic Leader Douglas questioned Mr. Pearson about his Monday announcement that Mr. Gordon will head a ministerial committee to examine foreign ownership and control.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked whether the terms are wide enough to examine the "infringement of sovereignty" involved in acceptance by the Canadian government of guidelines laid down by the United States.

Mr. Pearson did not reply specifically to this point in the Opposition leader's question but quoted paragraphs from a press release announcing the task force.

They said:

". . . A committee of ministers has now been set up to examine the structure of Canadian industry, with special reference to foreign ownership and control.

"The study will include the significance, both political and economic, of foreign investment in the development of our country, as well as ways to encourage greater Canadian ownership of our industrial resources while retaining a climate favorable to the inflow of foreign investment, as required, for Canada's optimum development."

The prime minister said in reply to Mr. Douglas that a task force carrying out initial studies will include economists from outside government service who will be able to spend full time on the work.

HID SECRET PLAN

The spire of Chrysler Building was assembled in secret and erected in 1929 to steal the title of the world's tallest building from another New York skyscraper.

Gordon Presented With Fait Accompli

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal MPs suggested Tuesday that the transfer of the Mercantile Bank of Canada into American hands was deliberately presented to Walter Gordon as a fait accompli.

They said the multi-million-dollar investment could not possibly have been made in ignorance of strong objections certain to be felt by Mr. Gordon, who was finance minister when the deal went through in 1963.

The Liberal members put Mercantile President Robert F. MacFadden and J. S. Rockefeller, chairman of the parent First National City Bank of New York, through a rigorous examination before the Commons finance committee.

Mr. Rockefeller told the committee Citibank had made a firm commitment to buy Mercantile from Dutch interests when he first met Mr. Gordon on July 18, 1963.

He said he was calling on the finance minister as a matter of courtesy to advise him of the transaction. He had been "shocked" when the finance minister warned that Mercantile's charter might be revoked as the result of the sale.

Mr. Rockefeller said he knew nothing of Mr. Gordon's 1961 book, Troubled Canada, which expressed extreme concern over foreign ownership of Canadian business and financial institutions.

He had been told Mr. Gordon was "not happy" with the deal — was about it. He did not know whether the finance minister was speaking for "Parliament, you people, the prime minister or the cabinet."

Joe Macaluso (L—Hamilton West) recalled Mr. Rockefeller's testimony that Citibank had for some time before 1963 "been exploring ways to get into Canada."

Mr. Macaluso suggested that Mr. Rockefeller knew that Parliament would reject a direct application for a bank charter, so he had decided to buy Mercantile and enter Canada that way.

John Munro (L — Hamilton East) took it a step further. He said the Rockefeller interests "knew Gordon would be unhappy" with the transfer and carefully worded their transfer agreement with the Rotterdamsche Bank N.V. of Holland with that problem in mind.

The committee took its, witnesses back to the sequence of events leading up to the meeting with Mr. Gordon.

They questioned Mr. MacFadden on a personal memorandum written after the meeting, in which he referred back to a conversation a month earlier with Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada.

According to the memo, Mr. Rasminsky had at that time said the Mercantile sale would "open the flood gates for charter applications by other American banks."

Presence of a subsidiary of a large American bank would disrupt the "confidential nature of the relations of the governor with the Canadian banks."

"Are you telling us you came away without any idea your course of action was unacceptable to him (the governor)?" Mr. Cameron asked the Mercantile president.

"I didn't feel there was any undue concern," Mr. MacFadden replied.

Citibank tendered the Dutch — Citibank agreement, signed six days after the Rasminsky-MacFadden meeting. It showed that the deal still was subject to approval of the boards of directors of both sides and of all governmental authorities concerned.

Citibank lawyers called by the committee to give a legal opinion at first described the deal as "bloody underhanded" at this stage, then conceded either she "might have had a legal, technical case on this."

The board of Citibank subsidiary International Banking Corp., formally approved the Mercantile purchase on July 16, 1963.

Mr. Gordon was told about the purchase at the controversial meeting two days later and Mr. Rockefeller said the agreement's reference to approval by "all the governmental authorities concerned" did not include Canada because the transfer was legal in Canada.

Mr. Rockefeller said the question of political objections to the deal never came up at the July 16, 1963, board meeting.

"We didn't get this feeling of nationalism or whatever you want to call it. We consider ourselves friendly neighbors."

Delay on Leadership Aids Opposition: PC

OTTAWA (CP)—Dalton Camp was the target of a critical blast Wednesday as factions in the Conservative party continued to jockey for field position on the leadership issue.

Robert C. Coates, MP for Cumberland, said Mr. Camp is "stalling on the leadership question and making public pronouncements as if the party were his servant available to do his bidding."

The Nova Scotia MP called a reporter to his office to issue the blast.

The 33-year veteran of the Commons, regarded as a Diefenbaker supporter, said Mr. Camp as national party president "supposedly should be endeavoring to promote unity."

But he couldn't think of a thing Mr. Camp had done in this line "since his re-election last November."

The November party convention was the one that broke the long - smouldering question of John Diefenbaker's adequacy as party chief into the open. It called for a party leadership convention sometime in 1967.

Last week, Mr. Diefenbaker called for such a convention to be held as quickly as possible. He warned that delay would leave party ranks in serious disarray.

Mr. Coates said Mr. Camp, Senator Wallace McCutcheon and Paul O. Trepanier, president of the party's Quebec wing, were contributing to this disarray by seeking to have the leadership convention held late rather than early in the year.

"It seems quite evident they are quite willing to allow the drift in evidence in the party to continue throughout 1967."

Coates, who organized policy conferences for MPs in an attempt to cement up some of the cracks that became evident at the November meeting, said polls have shown support for the Liberals and New Democrats has been growing ever since last November.

"Now with a leadership convention in the forefront of party affairs we find the president once again in a public dialogue on with the press without prior consultation with anybody to my knowledge."

Mr. Camp has called the party's 25 - member executive committee together in Toronto this weekend to discuss the timing of a leadership convention.

He has plumped for a convention late in the year, a move Mr. Coates said could lead to "destruction of the party" if the officials decided to call an election in the meantime.

William Davis and S. D. Hagerman at Chamber Dinner

Outside Investment OK: Davis

Education minister William Davis strayed from his appointed field last night long enough to take a swipe at critics of foreign investment in Canada.

Speaking at the Belleville Chamber of Commerce annual meetings, he assailed those people who cry for restrictions on foreign investment.

"Look at our economic situation," he said. "I am becoming more concerned about the philosophy that there is too much outside investment in Ontario or Canada.

"I don't think exiles can legitimately compare the situation here today with any other jurisdiction."

He said it is essential Canadians recognize they are not as yet economically mature. "As long as we can secure ourselves politically, then we should be careful before we discourage investment from an outside source."

Mr. Davis said the problem of many countries is the technological gap between themselves and the U.S. He said it makes it difficult for them to compete.

"This gap is not as evident in Canada because we have been available to their technique, and if we wish to remain competitive we must continue to share their new techniques."

Johnson Ask Plan For Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson directed today that plans be prepared to avoid a U.S. recession that might otherwise follow "the welcome day of peace in Vietnam.

The possibilities of quick tax reduction and spending speedups will be studied by a cabinet-level group, Johnson told Congress, as part of a "major and co-ordinated effort to review our reactions for the war's end—a day still not foreseen, he emphasized.

The announcement came in his annual economic report. In it, Johnson forecast a moderate advance of the U.S. economy through 1967, if it can be steered past the hazards of inflation on the one side and recession on the other.

The outlook is for a $47,000,000,000 rise of national output, he said, to a record $787,000,000,000—a slower climb than in 1966, but with smaller price rises, easier money and continued almost-full employment.

Hees Asked To Contest Area Riding

TRENTON — The newly-elected executive of the Prince Edward - Hastings Progressive Conservative Association has asked Northumberland MP George Hees to let his name stand as a nominee to contest the new federal riding.

The request was made in a telegram sent to Mr. Hees Tuesday by W. D. Whitley, secretary for the association, asking him to be a nominee at the Conservative riding convention slated for early next month.

In a reply from Ottawa received last night, Mr. Hees accepted the association's invitation to attend an executive meeting Friday afternoon at Trenton's Gilbert Hotel.

In the Nov. 5 1965 federal election, Mr. Hees contested and won the Northumberland riding seat formerly held by Dr. Pauline Jewett.

The new riding of Prince Edward-Hastings includes Cramahe, Brighton, Seymour, Murray, Rawdon and Sidney townships, and the County of Prince Edward.

Mr. Hees, whose name has been mentioned frequently as a possible replacement for Conservative leader John Diefenbaker, has made no comment on his chances of contesting the Tory leadership, but said yesterday in Montreal "once a leader is chosen, I will back the guy, it's best that it be held at the earliest possible time."

'Long Active Session' Draws Chuckles From Opposition MPs

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts drew chuckles of disbelief from the opposition benches Wednesday when he told the opening of the Ontario legislature he was looking forward "to a long and very active session of the House."

His statement came on the heels of a speech from the throne laced with measures aimed at removing areas of disagreement and packaged in the catch-all phrase, "program for people."

The throne speech lent support to pundits predicting a spring election for Ontario, which last went to the polls in 1963. An election before mid-June would mean a short-lived session.

The speech read by Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe outlined government plans to:

—Combat the private housing shortage through a new home ownership made easy program and a government purchase of "raw" land and sale or rental of homes built on the land.

—Tighten laws prohibiting discrimination against persons on the basis of race, color or creed in rental of accommodation.

—Revise the Mental Health Act and introduce new diagnostic and treatment centres for emotionally disturbed children.

—Expand capital grants program for farmers as part of a long-range program to preserve and stimulate Ontario's agricultural industry.

—Study problems related to divorce laws and transportation in the province.

—Stiffen and co-ordinate programs controlling air and water pollution.

—Set up a body with representation from labor, management and government to deal with labor relations.

—Introduce legislation safeguarding savings, in connection with the federal government.

—Convene a "confederation of tomorrow" conference to consider "the future course of our federal system of government."

Opposition reaction to the speech was predictably hostile.

Robert Nixon, leader of the official Liberal opposition party, said the speech did not mention two major concerns—"municipal taxation and government inefficiency."

He said the speech didn't even "hint that the government will assume more of the costs of education and take some of the burden off the sagging shoulders of the municipal taxpayer."

Donald MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, said the speech "confirms the Robarts government drift to the right."

The speech was to the NDP leader "for the most part a dreary confirmation or vague extension of existing programs, or a retreat to further study on urgent problems which have provoked public concern for some yearsm"

He said the speech had nothing to say on car safety, inflation, car insurance, medicare and "the range of explosive problems which now command growing attention in university affairs."

Defence Argues Date Bid Not Evidence of Foul Deed

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence lawyer Arthur Martin hammered home Wednesday the first of more than a dozen points he hopes will wipe out an eight-year - old murder conviction against Steven Truscott.

He said the Crown improperly used Truscott's simple request for a date with a classmate as evidence he planned to commit some foul deed the night of June 9, 1959, when 12-year-old Lynne Harper was brutally murdered in a wooded area of Clinton, Ont.

Mr. Martin was leading off final arguments as the Supreme Court of Canada resumes hearings in the government ordered review of Truscott's conviction of the girl's slaying.

Only 14 at the time, Truscott now is serving a life sentence in Collins Bay penitentiary. A book by Mrs. Isabel LeBourdais of Toronto, claiming his innocence helped build up a public demand for the high court review.

As Mr. Martin went over the facts of the case for the nine justices, he took up the full four-hour sitting. He probably will be on his feet most of today.

A leading Canadian trial lawyer, Mr. Martin said the guilty verdict rendered by the Goderich, Ont., jury was unreasonable on the evidence presented.

Much of the evidence was given by child witnesses and was "a very dangerous evidence for a jury to hear," said Mr. Martin.

There were great differences in stories these witnesses told at police interviews, the preliminary hearing and the trial.

He concentrated Wednesday, however, on the trial testimony of Jocelyn Goddette, then 13, who made a date with Truscott she didn't keep.

She told of the intended date and how Truscott four times had asked her out and how one of their intention to enter the woods near the Clinton airforce base to look for new-born calves the night of Lynne Harper's death.

She said she didn't keep the date because she had a late supper.

"The evidence of Jocelyn Goddette was adduced by the prosecution to prove that Steven intended to lure her into the woods, by means of a fabrication about finding new - born calves, for a sexual purpose and that when he was unable to carry out his intention with respect to Jocelyn Goddette, he selected another victim, Lynne Harper," declared Mr. Martin.

He quoted the Crown attorney at the trial telling jurors that Truscott wanted to keep the date secret and saying it was God's blessing that the Goddettes had a later supper.

Lynne Harper became a substitute for her and she went with Truscott into the bush to her doom, the Crown attorney told the jurors.

Mr. Martin said the evidence does not establish a relation of the part of the accused to lure her into the bush for an improper purpose.

It was Jocelyn who brought up the subject of calves, not Truscott. Mr. Martin also said it was inconsistent for a boy wanting secrecy to speak to the girl four times in a classroom as Truscott did.

Truscott also had gone to the Goddette home that night about the date, hardly the thing to do if he desired secrecy.

By assuming that Truscott had killed Lynne Harper, the Crown had colored the Goddette incident. By so doing, the Crown thus supported its theory of Truscott's guilt of murder.

Such evidence was improper, Mr. Martin declared.

Finger-jabbing MP Stirs Up Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — An angry Conservative MP stormed across the floor of the Commons Wednesday for a finger-jabbing session with Transport Minister Pickersgill after the House chairman ruled in order a controversial amendment to the government transport bill.

"A shameful ruling, a partisan ruling!" shouted Jack Horner, after Herman M. Batten (L—Humber-St. George's) accepted an amendment the Conservatives contend would reverse a vote last week which the government lost.

There were angry rumblings from Opposition benches as Mr. Batten read his decision from a prepared statement. It was immediately appealed by Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre).

Moments later Mr. Horner, an Alberta farmer, was in front of the treasury benches remonstrating with the transport minister.

After the exchange—Mr. Pickersgill didn't budge—Mr. Horner the Prairie MP started back to his desk but turned at the center of the floor and shouted at Mr. Batten, and shouted at the minister:

"When you own a man you can do what you like with him, eh!"

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux, summoned from his chambers, agreed to a Conservative request that debate on the appeal be delayed until members could get copies of Mr. Batten's ruling for further study.

The debate is to take place today and is expected to be heated.

The controversy on the government amendment goes back to 1958 when the Conservatives moved to delete a section from the bill requiring a cost study after three years of the statutory Crowsnest Pass freight rates on export grain.

They amended the Crowsnest rates, established on levels set in 1897, are sacred to the West and should not be changed. Mr. Pickersgill said there was no intention of interfering with the rates and that the review would only determine whether the railways are making or losing money under them.

But the Conservative amendment was put to a vote and the Liberals, caught with more than half of their members absent, lost on a count of 109 to 58.

Mr. Pickersgill served notice Monday of an amendment that would restore the study to request a cost study of any territory or fixed rate after the bill had been law for two years.

Gordon to Head Brinco Project

MONTREAL (CP) — Donald Gordon comes out of a two-month retirement March 1 to head Brinco Ltd., Canadian Javelin Corp. Ltd., a company which over the next seven years will seek to develop between $700,000,000 and $800,000,000 to develop Churchill Falls in Labrador.

The capital expenditures associated with the plan will be more than that for the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Mr. Gordon, it was announced Wednesday, has been appointed president and chief executive officer of Brinco and chairman of Churchill Falls (Labrador) Corp. Ltd., the Brinco subsidiary which will handle the huge hydroelectric development.

His responsibilities will be administrative. The technical and engineering aspects of the project, on which construction is scheduled to begin in earnest this spring, will be handled by the president of Churchill Falls Corp., Don J. McPharland.

Mr. Gordon described Mr. McPharland as "one of the ablest engineers in the world."

Mr. Gordon, 65, ended an often stormy 17-year career as president of the CNR last Dec. 31. On his retirement he said he was planning on doing some fishing, that was all.

Asked Wednesday when he was approached by his Algoma Mines Ltd., the organization which supplies administrative talent to Brinco, Mr. Gordon was emphatic in stating that it was after Dec. 31.

Mr. Gordon said he decided to come out of retirement because he was attracted by the magnitude of the project and the implications it has for the prosperity of Canada and its people.

Trenton Yukons to Switch Touchdown to Lahr

Trenton airmen who supply Canada's NATO commitments will have a new European destination starting this summer.

The government shortly will announce the RCAF will take over a base at Lahr, West Germany, as an air transport terminal, the Canadian Press said today.

The Lahr base now is occupied by the French air force. The RCAF will need a new terminal this summer when it must abandon Marville, under a French policy requiring all NATO troops to quit France.

Acquisition of the new base is vital to the continued operations of both the RCAF air division and the Canadian infantry brigade in West Germany.

Canadian Forces Base Trenton is the main supply departure point for RCAF flights to Marville.

An average of five flights a week leave Trenton for the French base. Marville also is a staging point for transport aircraft from Trenton supplying UN police contingents in Cyprus.

The Trenton - Marville route is serviced by Yukon aircraft. The many flights departures count three freight and two passenger flights.

A Yukon can carry about 120 service personnel or 85,000 lbs. freight.

The two CF-104 reconnaissance squadrons at Marville will be moved to the RCAF's Zweibruecken and Baden - Soellingen bases in Germany.

The number of CF-104 nuclear strike squadrons at Canada's fields will be reduced to four from six.

Informants said no hitches are expected in the move, which will be completed sometime in 1968.

Diefenbaker Appointment

Mr. Diefenbaker announced the Marville withdrawal in Ottawa Dec. 16 after a meeting of the North Atlantic Council.

He said the move was made at the request of France.

Mr. Diefenbaker's announcement was made in the House of Commons.

Defence Minister Hellyer said the withdrawal would not affect the Canadian commitment to NATO.

Mr. Hellyer said the Canadian forces would be moved to Germany.

New Belleville Fair Board Executive

Local fair board executive members get their heads together following last night's annual meeting. From the left are vice-president Cameron Bunnett, fair president Dr. Harry Burns, secretary Everett Gowsell and 2nd vice-president J. M. Bush.

Dr. Harry Burns Heads Fair Board

Belleville veterinarian, Dr. Harry Burns, was re-elected president of the Belleville Agricultural Society at that organization's annual meeting held last night at city hall.

Other executive officers are Cameron Bunnett, 1st vice-president and Jack M. Bush, second vice-president, replacing Donald McKevin who retired in that capacity last year. Mr. Everett Gowsell remains as secretary of the board.

Earl M. Dafoe, fair treasurer for the past four years has tendered his resignation effective at the end of January. A replacement is expected to be named to the next executive meeting.

THREE DIRECTORS QUIT

Under the board's by-laws the mayor of the city of Belleville or his representative automatically become a board member. City Council has again named Alderman Kenneth Soden as the city's representative.

Three of last year's directors, Past President Robert Phillips, Douglas Harry and Dr. J. F. McCorquodale, asked that they not be re-appointed although they assured they could continue to assist the fair in any way possible.

Delegates to the Central Fairs Association annual meeting in Belleville will be Steven Garvin, Donald Spencer, Cameron Bunnett and Miles Benedict.

Attending the Ontario Fairs Association annual convention will be life directors Harry Rollins, Ben Bleecker, with Cameron Bunnett and secretary Everett Gowsell.

Western Horse Show, Black Diamond Stake To Feature 5-day Fair

Belleville will again have a five-day fair this year with an opening day Western horse show and the Black Diamond Stake Race as a closing day feature.

Fair dates set by the Belleville Fair Board are August 15-16-17-18-19.

The Quinte Western Horse Association will provide the opening day attraction for the five day fair which this year starts on a Tuesday and runs through to Saturday evening.

Western Horse Associat i o n president Bill P e r r m assured last night's fair board meeting that his organization was prepared to cooperate to the utmost to provide an attractive opening day show.

Director Gerald Vance said a bigger than ever entry was assured for the Black Diamond Stake Race which this y e a r was expected to have a purse of more than $2,300.

CHAMPION RACING

The Friday night feature at the fair will be the Ontario Championship motorcycle races.

Fair officials say three days of the fair are still to be confirmed by the fair board.

Fair officials are going forward for a "bigger and better" centennial year. A board directors' and exhibitors' attending last night's meeting heard that last year's fair was a financial success with receipts exceeding expectations by $8,000.

Fair Board treasurer Earl M. Dafoe said that the increased receipts were due to the new cart due to increased entrance fees at the gate.

Gate admissions last y e a r amounted to $27,510 and c o m p a r ed with $18,981 in 1965.

Total receipts for the y e a r amounted to $70,970. Grandstand admissions totalled $6,129 and midway returns were $7,136.

On the other side of the ledger the amount of prize money paid out totalled $17,521, made up of $16,187 for the senior fair and $1,353, for the junior fair. In 1965 prize money totalled $15,493.

Special attractions at the fair cost the board $6,515 last year, horse races cost $4,417, and motorcycle races $2,844.

Maintenance and operating expenditures totalled $21,460 — up from $17,973 in 1965. The "pot of gold" attendance prizes cost the board $1,294.

Capital expenditures during the year totalled $2,812.

The board was told that the fair board had assets of $85,413, including $60,000 tied in building and equipment.

Attendance figures for Belleville's fair over the past five years show that the paid adult admissions are remaining fairly consistent. Adult gate admissions last year totalled 21,334 compared with 22,000 in 1965, 20,821 in 1964; 19,500 in 1963 and 22,029 in 1962.

NO NEW BUILDINGS

Grandstand admissions l a s t year totalled 5,432 with a five year average of 25,456.

At the last meeting of the fair it was expected that new f a i r grounds accommodation might be completed for the centennial year fair, but it has now been agreed the present manuscature and merchants buildings will still see use this year.

Prior to the fair's fate the two 40-year-old buildings have been classed as unsafe by the city building inspector and temporary strengthening was done on the understanding that the structure would be town down after the fair.

Plans for a new fairgrounds building to house an arena, indoor arena and other facilities, are still not finalized by the fair board and the fair board understanding is that the two old show buildings will be used another year.

Medical Health Officer Resigning Post End of Feb.

TRENTON — Dr. E. W. Dow, medical health officer for Trenton since May, 1953, yesterday informed the members of the board of health that he was resigning effective Feb. 28. Council, the controlling body will be notified immediately.

At the same time, Dr. Dow strongly recommended that Trenton join the Hastings County Health Unit.

H. S. Pane, re-elected chairman of the health board yesterday, said he had recommended this move to council last year. In September, council did not join the unit giving as the reason that the unit was not staffed to look after the needs of Trenton at that time.

Mr. Pane said he had checked with a health unit official and that as far as he could see this was not a legitimate reason for the town not joining the unit. Mr. Pane said Trenton could keep on its own school nurses and the VON nurses . . . provided the town paid the salaries.

In commenting on Dr. Dow's resignation, board member Miss Marjorie Gothard said she doubted Trenton residents realized how much work the MOH's position entailed. She said Dr. Dow was "on duty 24 hours a day, seven days a week" . . . "for a pittance."

The remaining board members, E. D. Topping and Mr. Pane expressed their regrets at Dr. Dow's decision.

In his annual report, read yesterday, Dr. Dow said there had been 374 births and 84 deaths in Trenton last year. The largest percentage of deaths, 38 per cent! were due to cardio-vascular disease, he said.

There were no maternal deaths and no cases of infectious hapatitis, (11 in 1965) Nor no cases of poliomyelitis.

WATER TESTS GOOD

One new active case of tuberculosis was reported. Chest clinics are held at Trenton hospital twice a month.

Salk vaccine, by injection was given for polio rather than oral vaccine, Dr. Dow reported. In all, 1,911 children attended the 26 immunization clinics held during the year, including the school clinics.

Progress in eliminating undesirable housing was slow, the MOH said in his report and while sewers were being installed and hooked up to the sewage treatment plant, progress here seemed slow also.

Water tests in Trenton have been good in the past year as have milk tests from the local dairy and tests from beverage rooms and restaurants were the best in 1966 for several years.

Mr. Pane said work on the swimming pool had been delayed and the pool would not be completed until the end of February at least. Mr. Panc also reported the contract with Rushnell Ambulance had not been renewed by the town. He said the government will pay the $3,000 subsidy . . . but could only do so when notified of the contract renewal.

The board passed a resolution to ask council to renew the town's contract with Rushnell immediately . . . subject to certain regulation changes regarding equipment.

Four-day Warm Spell Ends

Quinte-district weather yesterday set a record — but hold it right there.

The flip side of the record has a jarring note today.

The weatherman today warns a four-day warm spell is now ending and snow and freezing rain are possibilities after midnight.

Across Ontario, yesterday was one of the mildest days likely in history.

At Trenton, the Canadian Forces Base weather office reported a high of 58 — the highest since records were first compiled almost 30 years ago, beating the previous all-time record of 56 degrees, set the same day in 1950.

At Tweed, it was 58 and Bancroft — one of the coldest spots in Ontario a week ago at 30 below — had a balmy high of 51 degrees.

It was 51 in Toronto, another record. Since temperature readings were begin in 1841. In Northern Ontario, it reached an unprecedented 43.

The mercury began slipping today and the Trenton weatherman predicted it would stall between 36 and 37 for the day's high, then drop slightly to 30 for tonight's low.

However, he warned a storm centre brewing up as far away as Kansas, will cause precipitation throughout the district late tonight.

Elsewhere in Ontario:

The weather brought ice and freezing rain to some sections, thick fogs that closed airports in others, warnings against children playing on ice-covered ponds and streams, and a temporary halt to the commercial fishing industry at Port Stanley.

The fishing fleet at Port Stanley, 10 miles south of St. Thomas, was stopped when huge ice-fields were blown into the harbor from Lake Erie Fishermen said they will remain bottled up unless there is a long spell of mild weather — and temperatures in Ontario ports seldom rise above as much as 30 degrees in a few hours late Wednesday.

There were severe electrical storms Wednesday at North Bay and Kingston, where such storms are rare in mid-winter. At Sault Ste. Marie, freezing drizzle brought traffic to a standstill and forced the closing of most rural schools.

A risk skipped by Bill Lewis and Ron Sons and Bob MacInnes as members from the Canadian Forces Base won the Trenton curling trophy in the provincial finals to be held in Orillia on February 9, 10 and 11. There were three rinks in the local competition and will be a double knockout draw and the winner will represent the province in the Consuls to be held in Ottawa due to it being Centennial Year.

Opponents in the two-out-of-three series was a rink from the Kingston Curling Club of Gary Wyness, Alex Scott, Doug Rawson with Bob Mann as skip met the Lewis rink at the CFB rink on Wednesday. In the first game Mann drew to the four-foot with his last rock to win the match 7-6. The tables were turned in the second game when the Trenton rink outscored their opposition and won by a close 5-4 count. This set- the stage for the final match last evening and wil-nessed by a large gallery, many being from the Kingston Club and again Lewis was victorious by a 7-6 count. The curlers showed their excellence whether it was a knockout or Price but it was one of the best games in some years were witnessed. The Trenton rink is well balanced and in their skip they have one of the best ice readers in the game. This rink will not be disgraced at Orillia and there are a lot of curlers in this district pulling for popular Bill Lewis to come through.

Area Not Depressed Says Chamber Head

Public critics of Belleville are depressing people thinking in negative terms and seeking publicity through sensationalism.

Fred B. Deacon, retiring president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, said last night: "Belleville is by no means a depressed area.

"All of us are capable of destroying — few of us are capable of creating.

"When citizens in our community give freely of their time and efforts to help to the best of their ability to achieve progress in our city," he said, "it is heart-breaking to find there is an element among us who for reasons of sensationalism and publicity choose to cast disparaging remarks on their efforts."

He said boards and committees in this city, "whether elected or appointed, are made up of men and women with the same faith in the bright future our city can achieve.

"I sincerely hope that we all share in their optimism and will positively assist them by looking at the good that has been achieved and have faith that by working together even more can be accomplished."

Donation Made To Buy Fire Dept. a Boat

TRENTON — A Trenton citizen, James B. Smith of Dufferin Ave, has come up with the suggestion that a public subscription to raise money to buy a boat and trailer for the fire department be taken. Mr. Smith made a donation to back up his suggestion.

Fire Chief Cecil Ellis said when contacted that this might "be a good idea." The chief has twice failed in attempts to induce town council to provide the department with a boat for life saving purposes.

Last Saturday, two men drowned in the Trent River. The fire chief borrowed a boat from a friend, but it was launched too late to save the second man who had clung to his overturned boat for more than half an hour awaiting rescue.

NO FUNDS FOR EXTRAS

Ex - mayor Ken Couch has asked the public to send in donations with which to buy flowers and shrubs for Centennial Park. These should be sent to "Centennial Flowers, 15 Dundas Street East, Trenton."

A per capita government grant must be used to complete ground work, build roads and curbs and install sewers.

Hagerman Installed As Chamber President

S. D. Hagerman, president-manager of Stewart - Warner Corp., last night was installed as president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce for Canada's centennial year.

Judge J. C. Anderson inducted Mr. Hagerman to office along with the new executive and directors.

"With this our centennial year," Mr. Hagerman said, "it must be a memorable and productive one. We expect all members to assist on the various committees, whereby your Chamber may benefit from your knowledge and experience.

"By co-operating with City Hall, we help to solve today's and tomorrow's municipal requirements. It is home town leadership, with team work, which has to do the job.

Besides Mr. Hagerman, other officers inducted were J. A. Ireland, second vice-president; D. Scanlan, treasurer, and Fred. B. Deacon, immediate past president. H. H. Murray, first vice-president, was absent.

The 10 directors inducted were: J. Roland Belanger, A. D. Cameron, H. J. Fast, V. L. Lewis, T. C. MacDonald, H. Myles Morton, E. G. O'Connor, R. Temple, W. S. Wills and C. I. Wilson.

Plaques were presented to retiring directors: John Legate, Don Templeman, Wilbur Fox, Dave Kerr, George Hume and Neil Davidson (accepted by Mrs. Davidson).

Retiring president Fred B. Deacon said membership increased 27 per cent last year, from 195 to 249 business members.

He said the beautification of the downtown area is one of the most important tasks now involving the Chamber.

Also on display last night for the first time were the four-color centennial brochures about Belleville, produced by the Chamber of Commerce to promote tourism in the city.

The brochure, entitled "Belleville Invites You", will be distributed to newcomers and tourists to the city. It outlines Belleville's historic, industrial, educational and athletic facilities.

Last night's annual meeting was the 101st for the Belleville Chamber, and retiring president Fred B. Deacon was the third generation of Deacons to serve as President — his father and grandfather having served previously.

Education Minister Tells Chamber No Alternative to Rising Costs

The man who should know says education is going to cost Ontario taxpayers even more than it's costing now.

Speaking at the Belleville Chamber of Commerce annual meeting last night at the Hotel Quinte, the Hon. William G. Davis, Ontario Minister of Education, said: "I see no alternative. There is no other direction than up." The educational costs, so obviously we must be concerned."

He said 45 per cent of the total Ontario budget goes for education and about 50 per cent of the local tax dollar in Ontario's municipalities is allocated to it.

"The future economic success of Ontario depends directly upon the investment we are prepared to make in the field of education."

Mr. Davis said business and industry must become more involved in education.

"Businessmen and industrialists cannot divorce themselves from education," he said, "it is their duty to make sure our schools produce the kind of people they need.

"How can educationists know what types of programs to teach unless business and industry tell us what they actually require.

"It is your investment and I suggest you must, in a very real fashion, participate."

He said no longer can education be operated separately from society because it's the very basis of everything that's happening in society.

Mr. Davis said his department is embarking on one of the most important and exciting projects in education today, referring to the new colleges of applied arts and technology.

"The need for them exists today to a substantial degree," he said, "but five years from now it will be an absolute essential.

"In the U.S. right now many industries require two years post-secondary training before they even consider a person. We have not yet reached that point here, but it is fast approaching."

The speaker said the Ontario school system has traditionally been geared to the academically gifted; those who would be university students.

"We must now consider those young people not bound for university.

"I think there is an awareness and acceptance by educators now that we do have this responsibility to each and every student.

"No two children are alike," he said. "Each child has specific interests and abilities and I hope we'll be able to adapt our programs to meet these specific areas.

"If youngsters are better prepared to enter society as productive persons, then the economy will return will more than pay for the investment."

He cautioned we should not minimize the difficulties in the development of the applied arts and technology program. "It is exciting and important."

He said Canada is no longer a nation of "hewers of wood and drawers of water. We have become an industrial nation and our educational system must be patterned to meet the requirements of industry."

Mr. Davis said some type of national approach to education is necessary.

"The constitution clearly shows that education is a provincial responsibility and history will prove the reasons for this are sound," he said.

"With a national scheme, there is the danger of overcentralization. Yet I think we can achieve some national purpose or national approach to education.

"I'm not suggesting centralization, just a co-operative approach so one province will know what the other is doing. A free exchange of information and a sharing of progress and experience between our sister provinces."

The education minister said by the time his own son, who is now in kindergarten, completes the education program, "there will be more new knowledge available than has been available since 1853 to the present.

"We must escape from the regurgitation of facts and be concerned about developing youngsters' capacity to think.

"We must treat youngsters as individuals and rely less and less on straight factual information because no one will be able to assimilate all the factual information available in some areas."

He said the day is coming when elementary school teachers must have some form of degree level education.

Mr. Davis said there is great potential for educational television in our schools.

"Television is a medium with which young people have some rapport. They not only view it, they enjoy it. It has tremendous potential in education and would be an abdication of our responsibilities not to recognize this."

Britain Cuts Interest Rate

LONDON (AP)—Britain cut interest rates today in a cautious government move to ease the squeeze on the economy. The Bank of England's lending rate dropped to 6½ per cent from seven.

The reduction means a slight drop in the austerity program imposed last July to save the pound sterling from devaluation.

The lower rate may give a push to industrialists who have shied away from expanding for fear of a major recession.

Mayor Praises Kiwanians for Civic Banquet

TRENTON — Trenton's Centennial mayor . . . D. James MacDonald . . . described as "by and large a good guy" by Frank Miron who introduced him at last night's civic dinner, branded the Trenton Kiwanis Club for coming up with an idea of getting all the members of elected and appointed boards together at the banquet.

"Boards touch on every phase of a citizen's life, and their members, who work long and hard, are really working for the future of Trenton," said the mayor.

"The Centennial committees have a particularly difficult job. They have a target to hit. There's no turning back. These boards are charged with seeing that Trenton has the best Centennial celebration in the country."

Mayor MacDonald was presented with a special Kiwanis certificate by the president, Ben Kroeze. This will entitle the mayor to a one year's subscription in the Kiwanis international magazine.

Special guests at last night's dinner were members of the Middleton Park council.

Madoc Householders Warned to Boil Water

MADOC (Special) — A public health order has warned householders and operators of public services in this village to boil all municipally-supplied water before use.

The alert was issued today by Dr. C. R. Lenk, Hastings-Prince Edward Health Unit medical officer, after a defect was discovered in the village pumping system.

The breakdown affected chlorination of the municipal supply drawn from a deep water well.

Reeve Thomas Burnside said the breakdown apparently occurred yesterday and the shutdown was ordered after inspection by officials of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, which regularly scrutinizes water supplies.

Reeve Burnside said he hoped the defective machinery would be replaced by the end of this week, while tests also were being run on the present conditions of the water.

"As far as I know, in all probability, it's perfectly good," he said.

However, in the interim all water being used by this village's estimated 1,400 residents must be boiled.

Reeve Burnside said the measure would particularly inconvenience the town's restaurant operators.

"However," he said, "he knew few details of the breakdown and had just been notified of the warning shortly before noon."

The pumping system was installed in 1950 and part of its operation is to inject purifying chlorine into the well-drawn water supply.

Fire Threatens Garage Owner

FRANKFORD (Special) — Volunteer firemen here put a garage fire under control this morning which threatened the life of the building's owner.

The fire broke out around 11 o'clock in a machine hobby shop in a garage owned by Cecil Reid, and located near Frankford's Four Corners.

Reid, who was overcome by smoke and unable to escape the building, was rescued by an unidentified volunteer.

Firemen had the fire under control before it could threaten Reid's adjoining house.

The cause of the fire, which may have caused several thousand dollars damage, has not yet been determined.

Trenton Address

Conservative spokesman George Hees is usually positive in his thinking. And as he demonstrated as trade minister when his party was in office, he knows how to project Canada as an industrial and trading nation that must push even harder if it is to compete in world markets.

In Trenton the other night he touched on a number of matters vital to the wellbeing of this country. For one thing, he said Canadian manufacturers must make goods of better design and better quality to compete in world export markets.

What is the competition? Well without naming them it is clear he was thinking (apart from the United States) of Britain, West Germany, Sweden and Japan to name just a few. But it is not only the western world where the competition lies. Mr. Hees also spoke of goods from the Communist bloc—mass-produced and often of good quality.

Indeed, we recall a report in this newspaper some time ago alluding to a special type of quality table which had been imported from Poland for use by a Belleville concern.

Mr. Hees also spoke of educational needs. He pointed out that in Russia every student who is capable of passing the entrance examinations is sent to university by the state. He revived the idea of others before him of free university education for any student who could pass the required entrance examination. This way Canada could develop more "top flight" brains to keep it on a competitive basis with other countries.

Of work stoppages — a factor very much related to production and competition — Mr. Hees said the country could no longer tolerate strikes in vital services. He believes an independent arbitrator should be appointed to rule when negotiations between management and labor break down.

More long-distance planning was another need, with advisory groups being set up in various spheres, according to the member. A reasonable suggestion this, provided it does not become another excuse for red-tape and delay in getting things done — in much the way that socialist theories of planning often kill individual incentive at its source, and royal commissions often compound the problems they are established to solve.

To Canadians individually Mr. Hees counselled renewed confidence in their native land as a place to invest savings and suggested increased investment in sound industrial stocks.

It was a thoughtful speech Mr. Hees gave in Trenton, one which addressed itself to major issues at home that are the concern of all Canadians, and of both the Government and the Opposition.

Winter Days

An Ottawa Journal writer has been browsing through the Old Farmer's Almanac of 1843, "and as ever it is a nostalgic experience for anyone who draws strength from history, the habits and mores of days gone by, and the attention to fundamentals which characterized much of that era.

The editorial speaks of January's slow-plodding days as those of yesteryear as well as modern times, and counsels patience while awaiting warmer temperatures and opportunities for gardening and other outdoor activities.

Meanwhile, January has its own charm. Indeed, the winter season is one of interest for those who accept it for what it is. Without the balance of natural elemental forces that winter provides, life would be well-nigh intolerable. All in good season, as the saying goes, is one that makes sense.

To be sure, it is a strange period we are passing through — balmy for the most part, with fog and murky days and only occasionally the numbing bite of falling temperatures. We recall January days that were colder, crisper, keener, and days which though cold were bright with mid-winter sun.

But winter is winter, whether we see it as Cornelius Durham does his log-cabin, pioneer days — a time of hard work and hardship but also of self-reliance; or as the winter sportsman sees it today, a time for skiing and curling and hunting, or yet again the homebody's view of it as a time to read and relax at home.

Of one thing we are sure — we can't recall a winter passing as swiftly as this. It seems only yesterday it was Christmas, and now it is almost February. And speaking of the Farmer's Almanac, the editorial writer looks to its for hard winter days yet to come. That may well be, but those same days are becoming noticeably longer, for we are now long past the winter solstice.

By way of a postcript we might mention that in Kingston last weekend a group of young people plunged in among the ice floes around the Lake Ontario coastline for a dip. It was during the mild spell, so it was not such a bad idea at all. For the young people, it was a day to remember.

A Subdued (But Hard) Dief May Be as Formidable as Ever

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Conservative Presidient Dalton Camp's Teeny-Boppers, or "The Blue Guard," as they're now known, who booed and hissed John Diefenbaker at last November's Party rally and then voted for a leadership convention this autumn, have long since gone home. (Their convention call, of course, has been overtaken, and politically upstaged by Dief's own.)

But they won't soon be forgotten.

For they have wrought startling changes here on Parliament Hill under the long dark shadow they cast not only on their own torn and tortured Party, but on Parliament itself and even the Liberal Cabinet.

The boners and the hissers among Camp's followers were most brutal obviousness — help him when Dalton Camp's Teeny-Boppers were at his throat.

So, win or lose for Dief, either way, unless there is a miracle of unexpected overnight unity, the Conservatives will be split wider than ever, all hope gone of winning the next election.

What causes even more anguish to those older and more responsible elements in the anti-Diefenbaker ranks is that they didn't need — certainly didn't want — the help of the Teeny-Boppers in dethroning the Old Chief.

They now unhappily suspect they could have engineered the call for a leadership convention unassisted by "The Blue Guard," closed Party ranks and gone on to mount a campaign with a good chance of beating the always accident - prone Liberals next time around at the polls.

But what the Teeny-Boppers did to their own Party, horrendous as it was, really isn't any more interesting and important than what they did to Parliament and the Liberals.

They so shook, among others, State Secretary Judy LaMarsh that she sounds like she wants to turn the country and the government over to the Beatle-and-Beach-Boy age group.

More than half the voters, she keeps crying, are under 25, and she's having trouble "hammering it into my colleagues (Prime Minister Pearson and Company) and the public who keep forgetting it."

So she wants key government appointments, including the CBC presidency, handed to those in the new Youth Wave, who, as she puts it, "are with it," and can make the contemporary scene.

It's got so that LaJudy thinks only she and Walter Gordon, the Cabinet's great comeback artist, are racing politically in her step with the Youth Kick.

Difficult to tell whether Dief's humiliation in "The Blue Guard" frightened or delighted her, but whichever it was, she's now collectible.

But you should see what the Teeny-Boppers have done to the Liberal Cabinet.

It's just not the same old uproarious place.

Dief no longer explodes in great thunderclaps of wrath.

The accusing finger that for so many years spoared so many Liberals across the floor of the House now is limp, and the Prime Minister — no longer squirms, impaled on it.

Dalton Camp's "Hitler Youth" as Dief called them, fet the air out of the Old Chief, and the winds of controversy that howled for nine years rocking the Commons have died to a whimper.

But oddly — and you'll have to see it to believe it — it could have made the Old Warrior more formidable than ever.

He speaks softly now, but the words are hard as ever.

His Party remains unusual, but carry a real point, sharper than ever.

And the Prime Minister who, after long exposure to the bitter edge of the Diefenbaker gale, was getting so he could brace himself against the storm, isn't quite sure now how best to handle the sweet, easy-does-it Dief.

Just look how Dief waltzed him around on the hot griddle of the Company of Young Canadians (that youth syndrome again.)

The House these days is so subdued as to be almost hushhush.

Silicone Injections One Way of Enlarging Bust

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I read an article about topless dancers in night clubs having silicone injections to increase bust size.

I have no intention of ever being a topless dancer but I am very self-conscious about my extremely flat chest. I have been considering plastic surgery but the expense is too great. Could you comment on silicone injections, safety, cost, etc.? — G.

Many inquiries about this. Let's first make it clear that such injections are a procedure done by plastic surgeons, and cost would be comparable to any major surgical procedure.

The breast is a complicated structure. The tissues, like any in the body, reject foreign materials. In the past, too often material which was injected or implanted shifted position, changed shape, caused irritation or other wise was undependable.

Silicone has been developed to the extent that it can safely be used for medical purposes, but a plastic surgeon tells me it is not injected directly.

No doubt techniques vary, but the method he uses involves putting silicone gel into a polyethylene sac, fashioned to suitable size. The sac in turn has an outer lining of dacron.

An incision is made and the dacron placed against the muscles of the chest wall. It adheres firmly since tissues can work into the weave of the dacron. Thus the sac cannot shift position although the silicone can change shape in one or changes position, just as normal tissues do.

From all this you can readily judge that this is not a simple, easy surgical procedure.

The natural ways to develop the bosom are to wait for maturity, to put on a little weight, and — this is so often regretted or not appreciated — to take pains to develop good posture. The last factor alone can make a seeming change of several inches.

But let's face it. We aren't all created with the same shape. In some cases failures are the most economical and painless way of conforming to what seems to be the fashion these days.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please advise us older people about grange juice. Many will not touch it because the story has it that it causes arthritis or makes it worse. — G. C.

It doesn't cause arthritis. It doesn't make it worse. But we all need daily Vitamin C for good health, and orange juice is one of the best sources. Tomato juice or citrus are others.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can water that has been softened be harmful to the heart? We have a water conditioner which uses rock salt, and were under the impression that it was healthful until we were told that it could harm the heart. — Mrs. R. C.

It does not harm the heart or cause heart trouble. The only point of significance is that the softened water contains sodium in place of other minerals. If because of high blood pressure or some other condition your doctor has ordered a low-salt diet, then do not use the softened water. Otherwise it's perfectly all right.

The Fountain of Youth

Prierborough Examiner

The elixir or life or, put another way, eternal youth has long eluded man, but it is clear that he is still working at it. Take for instance, a book called "How to stay young" till 90 by Clement G. Martin, M.D., which offers 'a revolutionary new method of adding up to 40 health-packed years to your life.'

It reports the case of the Russian man, who lived to be 161 and fathered his last child at 104; the American businessman who was affiliated with premature old age, 'who decided to rejuvenate himself although he was not dead', and who by the age of 73 regained a body as slim and hard as a youngster's; the French beauty, who invented exercises to preserve her face and was worshipped by men at 80 — her figure was as dazzling at 79 as at 19. Also there is the amazing 101 year-old roue, who eats mountains of spaghetti, washes it down with wine and relishes sweets, to say nothing of the American town, whose inhabitants have late in life, a fiercesexlife, eat too much 'but simply don't have heart disease.'

It's odd, it's not the usual approach to the subject of longevity. It's not the usual 'Eat this and you'll live forever' or 'Don't eat that or you'll die tomorrow.' It's not the usual 'Exercise or else.' It's not the usual 'Relax and live.'

It's not the usual anything.

It's odd, it's not, it's refreshing, it's provocative, it's worth reading.

It's not, it's not, it's not the fountain of youth.

Advice for The Young

Calgary Albertan

There is a place for youth in politics today, and if it needs any advice it is that it should never be too quick to discard the ideas of older, more experienced men as being old - fashioned. Ideas, ideals and the variances of the democratic system are not the property of youth; they belong to the ages and to man.

Stirctly Personal

Economics and Survival

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

My recent column on "barbarism" and "civilization," in which I questioned how much of our so-called progress was real and how much was illusory, brought down on the reader an apt quotation from Goethe:

He enclosed a paragraph from the recent book, "The Deadlock of Democracy," by James MacGregor Burns, that widely read political scientist and historian Burns writes:

"One wonders whether we have advanced much beyond the caveman in the stakes and style of our politics. He fashioned shelter, gathered food, and doled out sustenance to the weaker members of the clan; he and his fellows huddled together in defense against the outside foe . . . So, too we produce and distribute goods and grants welfare to the poor; we huddle with our allies behind our nuclear weapons; and we act politically in a shadowland of old governmental fetters and outworn stereotypes. Politics is still mainly a matter of bread economics and sheer survival."

I agree with him, but need we accept this as the permanent and inevitable fate of mankind? Since I'm in a quoting mood, I'd like to offer a more hopeful paragraph from another new book, "Spaceship Earth," by Dr. Barbara Ward, the British economist:

"One of the fundamental limitations of the past — and the present — has been the inability of human societies to see themselves as a whole. Each group, each nation, each culture has had its own picture of the world, its own explanation of the universe, its own religion, its own ideology. Each has been convinced that its own picture was the only true picture, its own religion the only true religion, its own ideology the only true ideology. Each has been ready to impose its own vision on the rest of mankind, and to fight to the death to defend it against all comers. Now, for the first time, we have the chance to see ourselves as a whole."

Is this the most radical age the world has ever known, in the root sense of the word. Everything in it is changing at a rate far faster than ever before — science and technology, family life and sexual mores, job functions and education all demands, even the role of the churches is being revaluated as never before in 2,000 years.

The only thing that has not changed since Caesar's time is the twin operation of diplomacy and war. This operation is barbarous, outmoded, futile, and probably fatal in our time. As Buaz as it persists, we shall remain far closer to barbarism than to civilization.

January's Chilly Philosophy

Ottawa Journal

The Old Farmers' Almanack, 1844, put it well. "A good fire and a clean conscience are the man's house look rich." A good fire is generally necessary at this time of year in our cold climate.

Tell the cook not to hang the kettle too high over the fire. A small basket of chips with the kindler near the top will answer the purpose. If you have a stove, wood may be unnecessarily consumed. A word to the wise is sufficient: see that the roads are not blocked by snow drifts.

The countryman agrees with the principle of thrift and hopes that the stitch does not fall. January requires solid philosophy to take the slow-plodding days, winds, snow and ice, and coal bills run high and the fodder shrinks rapidly on the scaffold. It would be good to hear once again the big, creaking snow roller go by after a storm.

The best advice for this month may be that the two-faced Roman god is to be patient.

The Liberal government of Canada published the reciprocal trade treaty it had signed with the United States 56 years ago today—in 1911—after years of negotiation. A reciprocity treaty had been in force from 1851 to 1866, when the United States Congress proposed, and was ended by the U.S. because of resentment against British support of the South in the Civil War. Since then the Americans had turned down all attempts to revive the policy. The U.S. Congress ratified the 1911 treaty but in Canada the Conservatives defeated the Liberals in the game year and it never went into effect.

Clash Over Mercantile Bank Mild Compared to Past Disputes

OTTAWA (CP)—The current But compared with the weight dispute between Canada and the United States over a bank—of all things—is a teapot tempest compared with some of the great rows between the two countries in the last decade.

Prime Minister Pearson when external affairs minister said in 1963 that relations between the two neighbors could never be easy and automatic and were bound to become more complicated.

This statement has been confirmed over and over again.

Officials more or less agree that the current argument about the status of the Mercantile Bank of Canada has put a strain on Canada-U.S. relations, of previous strains, this one is a fairly light burden.

In 1963, First National City Bank of New York was negotiating for purchase from Dutch interests of Mercantile of Montreal.

There was a warning from the Canadian government — specifically, from then finance minister Walter Gordon—that if the purchase went through Mercantile could face restrictions on its operations or revocation of its federal charter.

The dispute arises over whether the Canadian warning came before or after Citibank's purchase of Mercantile was a firm deal.

Mr. Gordon's views were hardly secret. One month before his warning to Citibank, he had proposed in the Commons a takeover tax on sales of Canadian companies to U.S. interests. He had to withdraw the plan later as unworkable.

The U.S. state department has sent a formal note to Canada, apparently backing Citibank's claim that amendments to the Bank Act would discriminate against it retroactively.

Canada's reply was delivered to the state department Wednesday. Officials here found it fairly easy to draft the Canadian reply after Mr. Pearson said in the Commons there would be no retreat on the legislation to restrict Mercantile's operations.

None of the notes in the case — four altogether — has been made public.

Mr. Pearson also has said he sees nothing in the Canadian position which would warrant retaliatory action by the U.S. administration against Canadian banks in the U.S.

In 1957, there was a classic row between Canada and the U.S. after the suicide of Canadian Ambassador Herbert Norman in Cairo. He had been branded as a Communist by the U.S. Senate internal security subcommittee.

Canada threatened to withhold security information in its possession from the FBI if Canadians continued to be named in such fashion.

The U.S. reassured Canada. The subcommittee turned right around and promptly named another Canadian, Canada said its trust in the U.S. had been misplaced.

In 1963, the U.S. state department accused the Diefenbaker government of not pulling its weight in North American air defence—namely, by refusing to accept American nuclear warheads.

Canada accused the U.S. of having broken the air defence agreement by not consulting this country at the time of the Cuba missile crisis in October, 1962.

When the Liberals took office in April, 1963, they said they'd put relations with the U.S. back on an even keel.

Six months later, then labor minister Allan MacEachen was accusing U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz of leaking confidential information concerning trusteeship over Great Lakes unions.

And Mitchell Sharp, now finance minister but then trade minister, said the U.S. had released confidential information on Canadian wheat sales.

The U.S. agriculture department said Canada over-protects farm products and the U.S. Congress killed a U.S. Coast guard order for Canadian transport planes.

There have been disputes over energy resources, Chinese representation in the United Nations, fishing rights, sales of certain goods to Communist countries by Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. companies, American import quotas on certain minerals, airline services, Welland Canal tolls—and what have you.

A special report on Canada-U.S. relations in 1963 suggested that Canada avoid public disagreement with the U.S. on critical world issues where Canada has no special interests or obligations.

Three months earlier, Mr. Pearson had made a speech in Philadelphia calling for a pause in the U.S. bombings of North Vietnam.

TORONTO STOCKS TODAY

TORONTO (CP) — Prices retreated across a broad front in light trading today on up on the Toronto Stock Exchange in reaction to the proposed doubling of the U.S. interest-equalization tax.

As a result the industrial index dropped .60 to 158.50 after its slide of 1.50 Wednesday.

Part of the decline can be attributed to the weakness on the New York market where profit taking gave stocks their first setback of the year.

The effect of the U.S. announcement would be that U.S. purchasers of foreign existing Canadian stocks will have to pay a 30-per-cent tax instead of 15.

A number of observers point out that there has been little U.S. participation in the Canadian market since the tax was imposed in 1963.

In industrials, Algoma Steel, Domtar, Dofasco and Bank of Montreal dropped ¼ each to 24, 29¼, 30¼ and 58¾, respectively.

Western oils suffered another sharp decline on index, falling 2.35 to 208.56. The index slid 3.02 Wednesday.

Dome tumbled 1¼ to 35¼, Scurry-Rainbow ¼ to 21¼ and Banff ¼ to 15.

On index, base metals eased .81 to 89.31 while golds' edged up .10 to 128.27. Volume by 11 a.m. was 629,000 shares compared with 681,000 at the same time Wednesday.

Wednesday's announced doubling of the interest - equalization tax caught many investors by surprise and resulted in the industrial index tumbling 1.50 to 157.24.

However, the market recovered somewhat in the late afternoon.

The U.S. move, if approved by Congress, means an American buying a Canadian stock will pay 30 per cent more than a Canadian. However, many U.S. and Canadian issues are not affected.

These include three groups of issues: Where 65 per cent of the shares are owned by U.S. residents, where 50 per cent of the shares are held by U.S. residents, where the shares are listed on a U.S. stock exchange and the major market for shares is in the U.S.

Issues are also exempted if the main operations of the company is in a designated underdeveloped area of the United States-based companies.

The western oil index suffered the sharpest decline in the session, falling 3.02 to 239.89.

TSE Chairman John Deacon said that in the last two years there hasn't been much American participation in Canadian issues.

In the last four years Canadians have been buying back Canadian stocks from the U.S., he said.

Canadians also have been buying more U.S. issues in the last three years than Americans have bought from Canadians.

Toronto - Dominion Bank slid 4¼ to 61¼, Moore Corp. 1½ to 29½, International Nickel ¾ to 43¼ and Versatile 1 to 26.

Among western oils, Canadian Superior declined 1 to 31½, and Central-Del Rio and Great Plains ¼ each to 13¾ and 12.

On index, golds were off 2.14 to 158.17 and base metals .95 to 89.92. Volume was 3,909,000 shares compared with 2,620,000 Tuesday.

Unable to Trace Letterhead

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario Securities Commission investigator said Tuesday that a blank letterhead bearing the name of a firm he was unable to trace was among material in a file from the home of Kenneth George Lennie of Toronto last June.

Lennie, 60, a former president of the now - defunct Racan Photo-Copy Corp., is being tried in Supreme Court on a charge of fraud involving $248,000.

The Crown alleges that Lennie and 42-year-old Elias Rebibah, defrauded Racan for $248,000, but does not claim that the money went to Lennie.

Investigator H. G. McGuire said he found ledger sheets and a blank letterhead in Lennie's home for a firm called Copy Distributors. The letterhead carried the address 8350 Drummond Ave., Montreal, but he was unable to locate the address or company.

The Crown alleges that there never was any such firm as Copy Distributors.

Harold Rona, a chartered accountant, said Racan's books appear to represent that considerable business was done with Copy Distributors, but he was unable to locate vouchers supporting purchases.

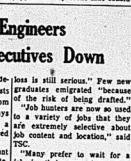
APPOINTMENT



Demand for Engineers Scientists, Executives Down

TORONTO (CP) — The demand for engineers, scientists and executives is down from last year's record levels, says a Technical Service Council, a non-profit, industry - sponsored placement service.

The TSC's annual job count showed 1,281 jobs in these categories from coast to coast, compared with 1,404 listed in January, 1966.

"The positions with salaries from about $5,000 to $35,000, are with an estimated 800 manufacturers, construction and mining firms, consultants and government agencies," the council said in a statement.

The council also said that fewer Canadian engineers and scientists emigrated to the United States last year "but the loss is still serious." Few new graduates emigrated "because of the risk of being drafted."

"Job hunters are now so used to a variety of jobs that they are extremely selective about job content and location," said TSC.

"Many prefer to wait for a job in their own city rather than move out of town. Hence many companies are forced to recruit overseas. Most employers now pay moving expenses for professional employees."

The statement said Western Canada was the only region to show an increase in the number of jobs, up 7.8 per cent over January, 1966. "Positions vacant in Ontario dropped 6.7 per cent, while there was a 16.1-per-cent decrease in Quebec and the Maritimes."

Kinsmen Hear Of Eye Bank At Meeting

At the regular bi-weekly meeting of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville, held at the Sirloine Club on Monday evening, the members were entertained with a talk by Mr. Ed. Wheeler, District Field Secretary of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. Mr. Wheeler was introduced by Kin Maurice Stotesbury and was accompanied to the meeting by trainee assistant Mr. Roy L'esperance.

Mr. Wheeler spoke in great detail about the formation of the Eye Bank in Canada and throughout the world, the type of sight defects that can be cured through corneal transplant and pointed out that at the present time there are some 1,500 persons in the blind group in Canada whose sight can be improved in some degree through such a transplant. It was suggested that a good Centennial project would be to secure pledges of donor eyes for the Eye Bank and copies of pertinent literature and pledge cards were distributed to the members.

Mr. Wheeler was thanked by Kin Harry Hutt and President Bill Lafferty presented Mr. Wheeler with a tape talking book to be used by a blind person in the district. Mr. Wheeler was also given a personal gift in appreciation for his fine talk.

The names of five Kinsmen were presented to the meeting to be considered and voted upon at the next meeting for the election of Kinsman of the Year. The winner will be presented with a trophy at the Anniversary Night to be held on February 20th, at which time Mr. Hal Taggart, National President of Kinsmen Clubs, will be present to make the award.

Take it easy.

As it happens, we can't. Making whisky that goes down this easy is a difficult job. It means selecting whiskies from our five distilleries across Canada (only Seagram's has five, by the way). Then blending and re-blending them to get 5 Star's easy taste. How can you find out if the taste is worth all the trouble? That's easy, too.

SEAGRAM'S 5 Star. Easy whisky.

Susanna's Family Fare

Chores for Puppy

Dear Susanna: We wonder how all those little puppies that people got for Christmas are getting along? Fine, no doubt, but how about the rugs in all of the houses? Their progress is bound to be spotty (you'd better believe it), in spite of strategically placed papers.

When the papers are misted and the rug is bit dewd on, try a sponge to soak up the error immediately. Then rinse and rub with cold water, leaving it fairly wet. This is most successful, we've found.

But time is of the essence, and it must be done immediately.

And don't young puppies love to chew! To save your best slippers and the telephone cord from being demolished, tie a knot in an old woollen sock and let poochie have it. They love a piece of rope to chew on too, and an old vendor's shoe is a heaven. If you are a little besotted with your wee beastie, you can buy a small stuffed toy for it as well.

In response to these small chores, you are guaranteed years of devotion, and that's a bargain in any language. — Mickie and Jim

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: When asked about the wisdom of a man of 22 being in love with a woman in her mid-thirties, you simply burned up two of my friends — one girl 30, and a widow in her mid-thirties.

Is not a man of 22 years mature enough to be called an adult? If he is not, he is retarded. A woman is in her prime in her thirties. On this continent, it is still the common thing to play up the idea that a man must be older, and that only a very young woman is fit to marry. This was just one of the many ways of pandering to the fancies of the male. First he had to establish himself as a provider — and, too, to "play off" his excessive sex drive in the most repulsive quarters — but his bride had to be "a virgin".

Always giving the most freedom to the male. Keep down the female. The woman writer for a newspaper is upholding the superiority of the male to please the boss. Only when we have women publishers will the true worth of able women be known.

With regard to marriages of men younger than their wives several prominent cases could be mentioned. One case was the marriage of Winston Churchill's mother to Lord Fercheser, who was younger than Winston, when she was in her mid-sixties. According to Lord P., it was a most wonderful union. — Burned Up.

Dear Burned Up: Wish I could have printed your whole letter, which develops your case beautifully.

But look back at what I said: "If the 'boy' (22), (so deffned by the correspondent, not by me) has carried a family load early and grown mature, and if the lady is youthful in spirit, they might just click." Do you think that in general a young man 22 should be courting a woman 35?

Put me down as one syndicated female columnist whose "bosses" depend on me to speak my honest opinions and to report professional findings completely free of any ideas they or anyone else would like to think was the truth.

P.S. We do have women publishers.

Dear Doris: I am a successful farmer. I am 40 but look much younger. In August a girl of 21 came from Holland to visit her uncle. I liked her and she went out with me but she would not let me kiss her or even take a picture of her because she was going back home.

Now we write letters and I would like to get married. If I marry this girl whether it will be a success or failure is hard to tell.

Should I send her a ticket to come here by jet? What if things do not materialize for reasons like a blood test or if I didn't suit her? How would you write a letter to her? She writes that her brother and his wife are coming to Canada in the spring and I know that she wants to come here too. — Home on the Range.

Dear Home: Hold everything! The present state of affairs hardly warrants an assumption that she will sound at a flight ticket provided by you.

For one thing, you are old enough to be her father, youthful looks notwithstanding. For another, you are not a pro yourself of how you feel. Courtships comes ahead of marriage.

The best you can do is write that if she should come out again with her brother, you would like to see her and take her out sometimes. Failing that, a prosperous farmer like you could make a trip to Holland — if you are interested enough.

Confidential to Stymied: Money is powerful, but your husband cannot bamboozle the law. He can neither bribe the doctors intimidated, or fooled, by appearing rational and reasonable.

But you can sue for separation on the evidence of abuse you can give. And no court would award young children to the guilty party. What you need is a good lawyer. For guidance, contact Mr. L. Roscoe Robson, Sheriff and Legal Aid Director for the County of Hastings, Belleville.

Please make letters as brief as possible — not more than two pages. And remember that stamped envelope.

Worry Over Children In Event of Accident

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our problem is not unique. Others must have solved it. We'd like to know how.

If my wife and I should die in an accident together, what would become of our children? We have only one blood relative. She would consider it her duty to raise our children but my wife and I don't feel she is capable of rearing them properly. Also we would want our children to remain together if they should be orphaned.

ANN LANDERS

We have no close friends with families small enough so that they could raise our children through college, but love and affection is what they would need and that's what worries us.

Obviously the problem is resolved my wife and I refuse to fly in the same plane. We even hesitate to get into a car together. What do you suggest? — HERE TODAY.

DEAR HERE: Make a deal with the couple you would like most to rear your children. Forget about the size of their family — or yours. Agree to take their brood if they should die tonight, and ask them to take yours if you should be involved in such a tragedy.

Get it in writing. Be sure you have a lawyer prepare the wills and all the legal documents. And make sure the financial arrangements are all set.

After you have taken these wise precautions, put the whole matter out of your mind. The chance of this kind of thing happening is very remote.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 16-year-old girl, and attend a large high school in New York. The kids at school talk a lot about sex and I can tell you that most of them do more than just talk.

My best friend has been sleeping with her boyfriend but I am not writing to criticize her. What I need is some answers. We have had lots of arguments about right and wrong and I have been losing.

My friend says she is in love and that sex is the natural way to express complete devotion.

She also says if she refused to go along, her boyfriend would drop her and find someone who is more co-operative. When I asked her what she would do if she got pregnant she laughed and said, "The pill never fails."

Please tell me how to win these arguments. — OUTTALKED.

DEAR OUT: Why bother? Your friend has already lost the most important argument and now she is trying to justify herself.

I have had letters from other teen-age girls who also laughed and said "the pill never fails." They stopped laughing when the doctor said "You are pregnant."

Assuming that pregnancy can be avoided, it's still foolish for high school kids to play house. Why? Because society has decreed that sex belongs in marriage. Sex on the sneak can be ugly, frightening and disappointing. It can create guilt, resentment and a cockeyed notion of what life and love is all about. If it's love, it can wait. If it isn't who needs it?

* * *

Confidential to HOLD-OUT: Wise or foolish? I say you are wise. It's a funny thing, but when people refuse to accept anything but the best, they very often get it.

Thank Officer

MONTREAL (CP) — Sun Youth Organization, with 300 teen-age members from Montreal's Clarke Street district, presented Chief Inspector Rene Yvon with a plaque. The policeman was honored for "outstanding service" in helping the youth group.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Fresh Strawberry Pie

By MARY MOORE

This eight - word sentence from a reader's letter set me off on an early baking binge yesterday morning. "Can frozen strawberries be made into a pie?"

I barely had the pie out of the oven when Sue and Dan started begging for a piece. But I had to let it cool before cutting it. I had to know if the corn starch content was sufficient to make it cut neatly. It was.

Just as a lattice cherry pie is beautiful to behold this lattice strawberry pie coaxes you to taste it by appearance alone.

PIE (using fresh frozen strawberries)

Pastry:

2 cups sifted but not sifted all-purpose flour
2-3 cup shortening
4 tbsps. butter
4 tbsps. water.

Filling:

Two 15-oz. pkgs. fresh frozen strawberries — sliced or whole (20 per cent sugar added)
4½ tbsps. corn starch
½ cup sugar
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. red food coloring

First step is to thaw the fresh frozen strawberries and drain them through a sieve. When they are well drained, measure the juice. I had 1 2-3 cups. Reserve ¼ cup for a later step.

Dinner Menu

THURSDAY
(Gursta)

Slick Chick (or Turkey) Casserole (see Wed.); Gen-Gen Crisp Salad; Hard Rolls; Lemon Snow with Nutmeg Custard Sauce; Tea.

Make pastry while strawberries are draining; cut the shortening and butter into the flour and salt with a pastry blender until size of peas. Drizzle in water, 1 tbsp. at a time, tossing with fork until all flour particles are dampened. Pack into a ball between your palms. Divide in half. Roll out one half on lightly floured board to fit 9" pie plate, and trim edges. Roll out remaining half of dough, cut into ½"-wide strips with knife or pastry wheel and leave this on your board.

To make filling heat all but ¼ cup of the strawberry juice. Mix together in a bowl the cornstarch, sugar and salt, then stir in the reserved ¼ cup strawberry juice to make a smooth paste. Stir into the hot juice over medium heat until thick. Remove from burner. Stir in drained strawberries and red food coloring and pour into pastry-lined pie plate. Now carefully arrange pastry strips, lattice fashion, over strawberry filling and cereal strips to slightly moistened pastry rim. Carefully brush lattice topping with mixture of 1 tbsp. each milk and sugar or plain evaporated milk. Bake at 450 deg. F. for about 8 min. then reduce heat to 375 deg. F. for 20 to 25 min. longer or until bottom is lifted with gold and filling is bubbling a little and lattice topping is gold. Cool for at least 4 or 5 hours or until definitely cool before cutting. (Note: 1) If this pie is cut before it is sufficiently cool, the filling will run a little. If it is cooled in the pie dish as a pie. 2) I was impatient with "a devoted reader" who requested more for not giving me her name and address. Please send them and I will mail your remaining requests. But a big thanks for requesting this pie.

Survey Reveals Mothers Work for Combination of Reasons

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

Some mothers work because the family needs the money, some because they want to, most for a combination of the two reasons.

To do it they must organize their time with complete efficiency, they must hope for moral support and an occasional hand from the family, and they must decide whether it's all worthwhile.

For some the question is whether there will be any money left after clothes, taxes, transportation and lunches are paid for.

The biggest problem, however, and usually the largest expense, is finding someone reliable to take care of the children.

The Canadian Press, in a Cross-Canada Survey, interviewed working mothers in all provinces. Their solutions to the child-care problem ranged from $120-a-month live-in help to no help at all, but a job that allows Mom to race home for lunch.

In some cases, immediate dollar profit doesn't amount to much. The women aren't doing much more than breaking even but they feel they are investing, as does anyone who works, in a better job and higher pay for the future.

Mrs. John Findlay, who works for the Ontario government in Toronto, says her job does give the family a slightly better standard of living for now and she hopes in time to show a needed profit.

The Findlays have a seven-year-old son who goes to a private nursery school for lunch and after school. This costs $10 a week and Mrs. Findlay says she tries to keep a week of her holiday time to take care of emergencies such as illness.

She says some firms refused to hire her when they found out she had a child, and she believes employers are slow to promote working mothers.

"They don't think you're dependable. Well, I'd like to push on because we want a house and whatnot. I sometimes think we're more dependable than the single girls."

Mrs. Tadeus Treutler, now an insurance executive secretary, got her first Canadian job as a stenographer, two weeks after the family arrived in Toronto from the Netherlands in 1954.

"I was told, 'We don't want to be bothered with your son at all.'"

She was working close enough to the family flat to be able to have lunch with the boy, then six, but after school he was by himself. In the summer there were day- and boarding camps.

DOMESTICS COSTLY

The live-in domestic, perhaps the most satisfactory solution, is also apparently the hardest to find and keep, and often prohibitively expensive.

Olga Curtis, an Edmonton teacher, says daytime help is available at $100 a month, but lower-paid women won't stay with it.

Mrs. Curtis pays $44 a month to the nursery school their four-year-old attends. She estimates transportation costs at $12 a month, taxes, insurance and professional fees $75, clothes $20. She says she is left with about $240 a month that is helping to pay for and furnish a new home.

Mrs. Harold Winsor of St. John's, Nfld., went to work partly because of financial pressure resulting from family illness. The live-in domestic she found after some difficulty is paid $60 a month, but Mrs. Winsor estimates she actually spends about $120 a month on her.

In Montreal, Paula Fautre, after much effort found a gem of a young girl to be governess for three children.

"The girl receives a salary of $30 a week. She sleeps in and is treated as one of the family."

Mrs. Fautre is her own boss, a hairdresser who is currently putting her earnings back into the salon.

LEFT WITH WOMAN

Mrs. Egon Frech of Winnipeg leaves her three-year-old with a woman who lives nearby and pays $15 a week. She says they tried getting someone to come in but it was expensive and hard to find someone reliable.

Mrs. Frech, a bank clerk, says she clears about $0 per cent of her salary.

Mrs. Donald Shoesmaa of Saint John, N.B., makes the same estimate. The Shoesmaas pay an aunt to look after their three children, one a pre-schooler, at home.

Pat Attenborrow, a restaurant cook in Vancouver, has no household help but an occasional baby sitter because her husband works an opposite shift. One of them is always home with their two children, aged three and 18 months.

Mrs. Attenborrow says she works to help out with family finances, but believes they spend more because of her salary, and isn't sure it is worth it. She says she doesn't think the dual role affects her work, but feels she doesn't see enough of her husband and children.

"I'm tired all day long. I've no energy for housework but I do it and I'm always rushing. It's this rushing that wears you down."

NEEDS MORE SLEEP

Mrs. Richard Loiselle of Halifax is a teacher who says she probably needs more sleep than she did when she was home, but she enjoys working.

"Although I know people who are happy as housewives and although I know it's wrong to say a housewife has nothing to do all day, I don't like housework and I'm not an organized housekeeper."

The Loiselles pay $15 a week to a woman who prepares the children's lunches and takes care of housework in the afternoon. The children, ages six and seven, are in Grade 1.

Audrey Ashley, music and drama editor for the Ottawa Citizen, says: "I work mainly because I would be climbing the walls out of sheer boredom if I didn't. It's purely selfish. I don't see why I can't have the best of both worlds."

She has a cleaning woman who took care of her son, now eight, when he was younger.

Mrs. Ashley says she is perpetually tired, and does not think she clears much on her salary.

"But in some ways you're a better person for being out of the house. You're not taking your frustration at being cooped up out on your family. I didn't go to work to escape my child. We've been able to do more things for him because we have two salaries."

HAS FIVE CHILDREN

Helene Nantais, an information officer with the federal government, also works because she likes it.

The Nantais have five children, from 18 down to six-year-old twins. When the children were younger they had a five-day-a-week live-in housekeeper. Now they just have a cleaning woman. Mrs. Nantais says the housekeepers cost $30 to $50 a week and were hard to get. The cleaning woman costs $8 to $10 a week at a $1.25 an hour minimum.

Mrs. Nantais says her salary is enough now to help her with the children's college expenses.

She says she could talk for hours about the lack of day-care facilities in Ottawa. All of the women count their single-woman income tax status and non-deductibility as part of the expenses of working. Several says there should be tax deductions allowed on the cost of whatever kind of sitter service they have.

There are comments that the women value the moral support of husbands and family, though several say they would use a bit more family help around the house.

NEED SUPPORT

Roland Comeau of Charlesbourg, Que., says "a husband should do more than simply say, if you want to go to work, go ahead."

He is a teacher, as is his wife. Mrs. Comeau began working part time until the school board asked her to work full time.

"It was a real shrage," Mr. Comeau says. "My wife became an entirely different person and I found out that I had somewhere been her worst trial."

He picks her up after school. Occasionally they can help one another with work brought home, and he cries dishes.

The Comeaus have two children, aged four and 18 months, and a maid whom Mrs. Comeau says she treats as a big sister to the children. She says getting qualified help is a problem.

Mrs. Comeau says she has more time to spend with the children when she is working than on holidays.

"When I am on holidays I have a tendency to undertake a whole host of projects. So much so, that my daughter once said to me, 'Mummie, will you please stop working.'"

Working Mother at Home

Helene Nantais of Ottawa, a mother who works because she like it, gets along with the help of a cleaning woman, but when her children were younger she had a live-in housekeeper. Housekeepers cost up to $50 a week, compared with about $10 a week for the cleaning woman. The children are Pierre, 18; Gisele, 14; Leo, 10, and six-year-old twins Jean and Sylvie. (CP Photo)

Mother at the Office

Helene Nantais, an information officer with the federal government at Ottawa, has five children and is one of a growing number of Canadian working mothers. The extra money is enough to help her with the children's college expenses. (CP Photo)

WEDDING

Kirkpatrick – Hall

Ven. Archdeacon A. S. McConnell officiated at the wedding ceremony in St. Thomas Anglican Church, Belleville, on Saturday, January 21, 1967 at 12 noon, when Linda Gail Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Hall, Belleville was united in marriage to Jerry Andrew Kirkpatrick of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Kirkpatrick, Kingston. The church choir boys sang appropriate nuptial selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length bridal gown of white angel skin crepe featuring an Empire styled bodice with deep square neckline and puff caped sleeves. She wore a circular headdress of white velvet flowers from which extended a floor length veil of detailed lace, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations and white 'mums.

Miss Diane Hall, sister of the bride as maid of honor wore an Empire styled sleeveless gown of royal blue velvet, as did the bridesmaids Miss Bonnie Kirkpatrick and Miss Sandra Lott. Each carried a colonial bouquet of white 'mums and pink Sweetheart roses.

Mr. Carl Kirkpatrick was groomsman, while Mr. Peter Balson and Mr. Donald Kirkpatrick were the ushers.

For the reception at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, the bride's mother received the guests wearing an emerald green imported satin brocade sheath with matching jacket with silk Lurex turban, bone colored accessories and a corsage of Orange Delight baby roses. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother who wore a sapphire blue shantung three-piece suit with navy blue accessories and a corsage of pink baby roses.

Lending on the wedding trip, the bride donned a two-piece orange wool suit, gold fitted coat with brown accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick will reside at 235 Vaughn Rd., Apt. 20, Toronto.

Ordination of Women Facing Anglican Church

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

The possibility of union between the United Church and the Anglican Church in Canada has placed the issue of the ordination of women squarely before Anglicans.

The United Church has ordained women for about 30 years. The Anglican Church is undecided, partly because of an ecumenical dilemma.

"If we accept women in the priesthood, we're setting up a barrier between us and Rome —the church catholic," says Anglican Bishop H. R. Hunt. "Anglicans are traditionally between the United Church and Rome. In the catholic tradition the ministry is not extended, but there is a place for women which is suitable for their sex."

Bishop Hunt is suffragan bishop of Toronto and warden of women workers.

The Anglican Church does ordain its deaconesses in a communion service which Bishop Hunt says was established in 1962 to give the office more status. Broadly, a deaconess may do everything a minister does except administer sacraments. In some areas they serve where a minister is only occasionally available.

UNITED CHURCH FIRM

Whatever the Anglican Church decides it must do, certainly there is no suggestion from the United Church that it will reverse its stand.

An editorial in the United Church Observer, the church magazine, summed up the prevailing attitude:

"No office of priest, bishop or Pope should be denied a Christian because she is female."

There is occasional public speculation from Roman Catholics on the possibility of women and changes in their role in the church, but the subject is not officially open and it is difficult to get clerical comment.

Rev. J. J. Keating expanded a little. He is director of the Roman Catholic English secretariat on ecumenism.

"Just nobody thought about it—priests were males. It is just the qualifications laid down for ordination. Canon law calls for a male.

"Some reasons are theological, some psychological, some traditional. There isn't any change except that people are talking about it, and the more people who talk, the more there is a general feeling that the theological reasons are not so valid, though the psychological may be."

FAVORS CHANGE

Cecilia Wallace disagrees. She is one of the founders in Canada of St. Joan's Alliance, an organization of Roman Catholic lay women.

Miss Wallace says the whole question of women and of the laity generally needs examination in Roman Catholic theology. The alliance will work for this and members intend to write to bishops asking changes in canon law.

"We've had 2,000 years of what they call tradition and we call prejudice," Miss Wallace says. "There is no ecclesiastical doctrine now or in the past which prevents women from being ordained."

She says one result of the Vatican council has been the setting up of some lay church councils in Roman Catholic parishes, also it is concerned because some of them include no women.

"There is a tendency of Roman Catholic women to be passive and dependent. The Catholic Women's League has a constitution which says the spiritual adviser—a bishop—is the final say.

"Eventually women will be ordained and the ecumenical movement will span it."

JEWS STAND PAT

Rabbi Stuart Rosenberg of Beth Tzedec Congregation, Toronto, says though there is no law in Judaism to a woman becoming a rabbi, there is also no discussion of the possibility. He says it does not believe a congregation would accept a woman.

There have been some changes in the place of women in the Jewish religious community, but they are comparatively minor, a reflection of social change.

Rabbi Rosenberg says they are largely confined to the Western world and to conservative and reform congregations. Orthodox practice, for instance, still segregates women at a service.

One modern change he cites is that women now are teachers of religion, once a male preserve.

"It is a profession, not a Sunday school thing. Teachers have a bachelor of Jewish pedagogy with a BA.

"Of course, it doesn't say that much, so it's now largely a woman's profession."

80-year-old Spinster Descendant of Founder

FREDERICTON (CP) — A search for descendants of R. D. Wilmot, one of New Brunswick's Fathers of Confederation, has led to a shy 80-year-old spinster in Fredericton.

Wilmot, one of a group of 10 Fathers for whom no living progeny had been found, is survived by four grandchildren of whom Dora L. Hubbard is one.

Although she was aware that a search was under way by the centennial commission to find descendants of R. D. Wilmot she was reluctant to disclose her identity because, "I really don't like publicity."

Her grandfather, who died in 1891 or 1892 and is buried at nearby Gromoco, was a member of New Brunswick's delegation to the Charlottetown Conference and later served as governor of the province and as senator.

"We were always proud of our grandfather; we knew he was important," Miss Hubbard says.

Of his children, John, the eldest, was born in 1835 and died in 1894; his second son, Robert, was born in 1837 and died in 1920. His third was a daughter, Susan, who was born in 1841 and married F. Ambrose Hubbard. The couple had two sons and two daughters, of whom Miss Hubbard is the only one still living.

GRANDSON IN WEST

Wilmot's fourth child, Henry, has one living daughter, Mrs. Edith Goossens of Montreal; his fifth, Elizabeth, was unmarried and died in 1936; his sixth, Ashley, has one living son, Robert, of Victoria, and his seventh, Anne, has one living daughter, Mrs. Constance Mack.

Miss Hubbard keeps in touch with the three grandchildren, particularly Robert, who recently sent her a Christmas card with a portrait of the Fathers of Confederation.

Wilmot was born in Saint John, N.B., in the early 1800s and married Susan E. Mowatt in 1833 at the parish of St. Andrews in Charlotte County. Miss Hubbard still has the marriage certificate in her possession.

Wilmot settled in Fredericton in 1851 in a large two-storey wooden structure named Belmont.

"I was around 10 years old at the time, I can remember him well though of course all the memories are of an old man. He was more than 80 when I remember him."

Miss Hubbard says her grandfather was never mentioned in her school texts.

"All that was too recent, you see. It had just happened. It's only now, with the Centennial and all, that people are starting to make a fuss about it."

Time Running Out for China As Reds Still Wrestling Reds

The "cultural revolution" in China presents a picture of communism wrestling itself. Important elements of the struggle are analyzed in this article by an Associated Press specialist, published in a series of five back-grounding the upheaval in that nation of 700,000,000 plus.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

By AP Special Correspondent

Time is running short for China.

Mao Tse-tung's "great proletarian cultural revolution," spearheaded by hysterical teenagers, has stormed through China creating wild and violent confusion. It has reached into the trade unions and the factories. And now it is reaching out to China's 800,000,000 peasants.

Although most China-watchers agree that the danger of a shooting civil war has diminished, China remains in dire peril.

The economy of the cities has suffered severe wrenches from the riotous confusion, and now there is a prospect that the farms are threatened.

China's spring sowing must begin in April. If there is an interruption in that, the country is in trouble. It already has a problem feeding 750,000,000 people. Official reports to the contrary, experts believe the last harvests were poor. A new crop failure would be a major calamity.

But the "great proletarian cultural revolution" goes on.

This is more than a power struggle of conflicting personalities, although that is part of it. It is evidently a clash of fundamental conceptions of China's economic, social and political future.

Defense Minister Lin Piao, the man who seems to have the advantage, at least temporarily, has turned to the terrifying power of his cultural revolution apparatus as the power bases of his opponents, who seem to be led by President Liu Shao-chi and the party secretary-general Ten Hsiao-ping.

Much of the opposition's power has rested with the urban laboring class in the party-dominated All-China Federation of Trade Unions. Lin now has succeeded in abolishing that organization, as he eliminated another opposition power base, the 8,000,000-strong Young Communist League.

The Young Communist League was replaced by the teen-age Red Guards. The union federation now is to be replaced by the "rebel Revolutionaries."

Lin's forces moved in on the factories with disastrous results. Production was stopped in many. Essential services went out of fomenting strikes. The wheels of industry are being slowed, even stopped, by endless rallies and forced mass discussions of Mao's thought. Each side is attacking the other of sabotaging production.

Lin's forces joined the battle for the laboring class with a war on "economism," a Communist sin which suggests try ing to buy the loyalty of workers with promises of better wages, welfare and living standards.

The whole power picture at the top has been changing.

Mao Tse-tung

Emerging as a curiously powerful figure is Chiang Ching, Mao's wife. She has been guilty chief of the cultural revolution, and now is chief adviser to its special armed forces branch.

Mrs. Mao, while charging up the teen-age Red Guards with inflammatory speeches has taken off after the wife of the man considered Mao's most potent opponent, President Liu Shao-chi. She has been calling Mrs. Liu all manner of names, including the milder of which is "common prostitute."

Lin Piao's power bases are the People's Liberation Army—where he evidently now enjoys the majority support of the officer corps — and the government apparatus under the durable Premier Chou En-lai. Lin's newspaper, Liberation Army Daily, has been the instigator all along of the upheaval, and now calls the army "the pillar of proletarian dictatorship and defender of the great proletarian cultural revolution."

Powerful figures sometimes change sides occasionally with disastrous results to themselves. One was Tao Chu, able and ruthless boss of the central China. During this upheaval, he rose to fourth place in the politburo. Now it seems clear he has fallen. His job as chief of the central committee's propaganda department says a Peking announcement has been given to Wang Li. Wang not long ago was chairman of the Peking party committee, which had belonged to the once powerful Peng Chen, the first prominent victim of the purge.

So the indications are that the cultural revolution has reached a new stage. At least a dozen high-ranking, once-powerful Chinese leadership figures are under arrest, and the Red Guards are howling that opponents of Mao's thinking should be "burned to death."

The time of decision may be close—although it will likely be a long time before China recovers from the shock of this titanic struggle.

To informed watchers, the critical question is not which personality will win out, but which line wins: Whether China will continue belligerently isolated from her neighbors and whether she can recover from all the shocks of the last 1½ years.

President Liu, Teng Hsiao-ping, party secretary general, and Vice-Premier Po I-po, who is also chairman of the state economic commission, all appear to be in grave danger. At the same time, there is a good chance that there will be bloodletting before a decision is reached.

The indications are that the latest phase of the great cultural revolution — possibly the decisive one—has been unfolding since the turn of the year.

Broadcasts from Peking meant for Red Guard ears are becoming more violent. Provincial broadcasts are calling for the immediate arrest of all who oppose the cultural revolution.

Party leaders are being attacked in the provinces as "rascals, monsters and freaks."

The European and Soviet press reports that tension is high in Peking as Red Guards blare out their demands for a final settling of accounts with President Liu and Party Secretary Teng.

Program Will Assist Home Owners

TORONTO (CP) —A new program to facilitate home ownership and housing development in Ontario was promised Wednesday in the speech from the throne read at the opening of the legislature.

The program is to be called Home Ownership Made Easy—HOME for short and the speech said it will remove many of the major obstacles of the past. It said plans already have been drawn up for it.

While no details were given, the speech said it will operate under the government's Ontario Housing Corp. and will include land development, land lease, residential community development and housing for the encouragement of industrial development.

There was no indication of any spending by the government in connection with the program.

The speech read by Lt.-Gov. Earl Rowe said the government has been greatly concerned over the steadily increasing cost of home ownership.

It said the program will deal specifically with the problem of the small home owner who loses his home through expropriation. This is a matter which should be settled satisfactorily for all concerned," it added.

Transportation Policy Pledged

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government promised Wednesday a new transportation policy covering the needs of the whole province.

The speech referred to the government's sponsorship of the railway commuter service called GO-Transit, but did not mention any proposed extension of it.

Admission would be compulsory only when there is a question of public safety.

"Even when compulsion is required the law will mandate the least possible interference with the individual.

"Committal hearings before magistrates which have had the appearance of criminal proceedings will be abolished, as will mandatory admission to hospital on police judgment.

"The assumption of control of a patient's estate by the public trustee will no longer arise automatically but only where it is indicated upon an individual determination."

It would no longer be possible to hold a patient in hospital indefinitely.

"Documents of detention will expire at designated intervals and may be renewed only after a thorough reconsideration of the case.

"In addition, statutory boards of review will be available to scrutinize the case of any patient detained against his wishes."

The throne speech also said the province will be asked to consider a "co-ordinated" program of services for children with mental and emotional disorders.

"This will require that eight regional diagnostic, assessment and treatment centres be established throughout the province.

"The extension of group homes operated under the Child Welfare Act will complement the program and will play a significant role in meeting the needs of some children in the care of the Children's Aid Societies.

"Plans are also proceeding for the establishment of a reception and diagnostic centre for boys and girls. This facility will provide service for all children admitted to the training schools of the province from the juvenile and family courts."

In addition the government will ask that the department of public welfare be renamed the department of social and family services.

"This change arises from the notable advances made in the provision of social services and the enlarged facilities available for those requiring assistance."

The department's counselling and rehabilitation services would be increased.

Capital Aid To Farmers Is Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Several measures aimed at the farmer were announced in the speech from the throne read at the opening of the Ontario legislature Wednesday.

Capital aid to farmers will be extended to include wells, drainage and the construction of buildings and fencing.

The program to consolidate small or uneconomic farms will be "intensified."

With a view to increasing the number of veterinarians practising in farm areas, the government will grant fbursaries to students which will be non-repayable if the student remains in farm - animal practice after graduation.

Additional bilingual extension personnel will be provided through strategic to have the higher levels of agricultural training provided in French and English.

The speech also announced that the government will propose a program of bringing students from under - developed countries to Ontario to study modern farming.

New Mental Health Act Is Planned for Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government announced Wednesday it plans sweeping changes "not yet attained by any jurisdiction" in the establishment and operation of psychiatric services.

The speech from the throne opening the legislature told members "a completely new Mental Health Act will be placed before you" and the health department said in a statement the new law will remove the stigma attached to psychiatric treatment while guaranteeing individual rights.

"Above all, these laws recognise the right of the individual to treatment — an exemplary treatment — with dignity and fairness," the statement said.

"The new law will apply to all psychiatric facilities to ensure the development of "an integrated and balanced system of comprehensive mental health services."

"Standards will be set which will ensure an adequate level of patient care."

The new law will take steps "to make involuntary care more attractive to the individual and to remove the stigma attached to it."

Hospitalization for mental disorders would be regarded in the same light as hospitalization for physical disorders.

Treatment would be available at the community level.

'Confederation of Tomorrow' Conference Will Be Called

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario plans to call a conference of federal and provincial governments to discuss "the future course of our federal system of government."

The announcement, made in the speech from the throne at the opening of the legislature Wednesday, called it a Confederation of Tomorrow conference but listed no specific topics for discussion.

The speech said the legislature will be asked to approve the proposal, which it described as a Confederation Year development of "significance to present and future generations."

The government considered it "appropriate for Ontario, as one of the founding provinces of Confederation, to provide the inspiration and setting for such discussions."

The speech read by Lt.-Gov. Earl Rowe said:

"It is the hope of my government that the Confederation of Tomorrow conference will herald the beginning of a series of meetings through which our 11 governments are brought into closer communion and Canadian unity strengthened."

Ontario Plans Legislation To Guard 'Savings of People'

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government intends to introduce legislation which it says will "assure that the savings of our people are adequately safeguarded."

This was disclosed in the speech from the throne Wednesday at the opening of the legislature.

The proposed legislation was designed to bolster investor confidence. Two major finance companies have gone bankrupt in the last 18 months, leaving investors with losses running to about $60,000,000.

The most recent failure was Prudential Finance, which went under in December, 1966, leaving 8,500 persons with losses estimated at $20,000,000.

In July, 1965, Atlantic Acceptance Corp. collapsed, leaving losses of an estimated $60,000,000. Also involved in Atlantic was British Mortgage and Trust Co. of Stratford, which was forced into a merger with Victoria and Grey Trust when it ran into financial difficulties.

Shareholders of British Mortgage received about $2.50 a share for their holdings of stock which had been selling on the market for close to $30 prior to the Atlantic debacle—now being investigated by a royal commission.

The speech said:

"Recent proposals of the federal government in the field of deposit insurance are being analysed and, where additional protection is required, such protection will be provided."

The federal government has proposed that deposits in banks, trust companies and savings and loan companies be insured against loss.

The speech said:

"Every effort must be made to ensure that a climate is maintained which encourages investment in the development of our resources and our industry."

The new department of financial and commercial affairs was working closely with all government departments to encourage public confidence in Canadian investment. Participation by Ontario residents in the development of the province was of paramount importance.

To maintain the progress of Ontario's economy, the government said there is a need to increase Ontario's share of foreign business opportunities.

In a realignment of commercial trade officers, an "international trade force" would be launched to help manufacturers secure more export volume, arrange for manufacturing licence agreements, seek new industries and investment capital.

The government also said it would provide increased support for the Ontario Research Foundation, aid in continued economic and industrial growth depend on a high level of research and technological development.

Body to Deal With Labor Issues Planned

TORONTO (CP) — A labor-management - government body to deal with industrial relations issues was forecast Wednesday in the speech from the throne read at the opening of the Ontario legislature.

The precise functions of the new board were not defined. The speech said only that it would "explore and report on issues which may be raised by any of the three parties."

In other legislation, the speech forecast the introduction of legislation for a new labor standards act. It added: "The construction safety program will be strengthened with additional staff and an extension of the training program for enforcement personnel."

Discrimination To Be Banned In All Rentals

TORONTO (CP) — Removal of all discrimination in rental housing was promised Wednesday in the speech from the throne read at the opening of the Ontario legislature.

The speech said the house will be asked to amend the fair housing provision of the Ontario Human Rights Code to prohibit completely discrimination on the ground of race, color or creed.

Adopted in 1962, the code originally permitted discrimination in apartment buildings of six units or less. The permissible number was narrowed to three in 1964 and removed in 1965.

The speech read by Lt.-Gov. Earl Rowe said:

"It is the hope of my government that the Confederation of Tomorrow conference will herald the beginning of a series of meetings through which our 11 governments are brought into closer communion and Canadian unity strengthened."

Divorce Study Proposed

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Government will ask the Legislature to authorize a public inquiry into the divorce problem in the province.

The speech from the throne read at the opening of the legislature Wednesday said the inquiry will lead to a submission to a committee of Parliament studying the matter.

It said the inquiry is being made because of "public concern and jurisdictional problems." The only ground for divorce in Canada is adultery, and in recent years there have been occasional forums over the apparent use of perjured testimony.

Only 3 Whales Survive

EDMONTON (CP) — Three white whales trapped by ice in a lake 1,300 miles northwest of here "are healthier than pigs," P. J. Benson said Wednesday.

Mr. Benson, Edmonton co-ordinator for the Inuvik, N.W.T., Lions Club's zoo - the - whales campaign, said he talked Tuesday with a man who had seen the whales during the weekend.

The three mammals are all that survive of a herd of 17 trapped in Eskimo Lake, northeast of Inuvik, last fall. The freezeup prevented the herd from swimming 50 miles into the Beaufort Sea en route to wintering grounds in the Pacific Ocean.

Mr. Benson said the whales are being fed fish.

Workmen cut two more air holes through the thick ice but "after the men lifted out about 25 tons of ice, the whales wouldn't go near the holes," Mr. Benson said.

"They're still using the original breathing hole that men are keeping open."

Diplomatic Immunity at UN Doesn't Apply to Parked Cars

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — New York's Mayor John Lindsay Wednesday achieved the rare distinction of curbing UN criticism of the United States' Vietnam policy.

Diplomats were too busy carping about the mayor's strongest new parking restrictions to give more than passing thought to Vietnam, Rhodesia or apartheid.

The mayor, conducting a campaign of towing away illegally parked cars, this week ordered that those vehicles carrying diplomatic licence plates be removed also.

A special committee of UN delegates met all morning to consider the problem, apparently without reaching any conclusions. They were still arguing Wednesday night.

Viet Cong Volunteers Falling Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara says the war in Vietnam is nearing a significant turning point: The Viet Cong apparently are running out of volunteers in South Vietnam and may be forced to rely more on the North for men.

"We believe that any net increase (in Communist troops) during 1967 will have to come from North Vietnam," he told senators in testimony released Wednesday night. "The local supply of manpower is growing more limited with each succeeding year."

McNamara said the war efforts of the U.S. and its allies were so successful last year that "during the last half of 1966, the Viet Cong appear to have lost about as many men as they were able to infiltrate from North Vietnam and recruit in South Vietnam."

This emerged as a highlight of a lengthy position paper McNamara gave congressmen Monday shortly before he began testimony on the administration's request for a $12,800,000,000 supplemental appropriation to help finance the war through June.

In other key developments:

—Washington sources revealed that the Johnson administration has barred all U.S. bombing flights within five miles of the centre of Hanoi.

—Ottawa reports said the United States has refused a Canadian request not to use Canadian-made arms in the Vietnam war.

In his summing up, McNamara reiterated that the Viet Cong no longer are capable of a military victory. He said the key to ultimate victory, however, lies in the government's pacification program. He also noted again that the U.S. build-up in Vietnam will slow this year. There are about 400,000 Americans now in Vietnam.

McNamara said Communist troop - strength statistics show that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were unable to increase their strength significantly in the last six months.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

A Montreal story says that late in the period of an OHA Junior "A" hockey game between the Montreal Canadiens and the Toronto Marlboros, two of the laddybucks tangled in a bout of fisticuffs following a pileup near the boards.

The story says the pair exchanged punches as team-mates and the referee watched. Even the linesmen whose assignment in such instances is to separate the combatants enjoyed a ringside seat.

They continued to watch the battle even though one player outweighed the other by 30 pounds. Finally as the battlers punches became less and less active the linesmen stepped in — but only at the request of the referee.

The writer said the shout-face from the normal routine of a hockey game fight stems from a recent decision of the Ontario Hockey Association to let the players fight it out.

Boxing is a noble sport but not one that can be successfully pursued in hockey skates. The scientific punch requires a toe-hold on something less slippery and the average fan demands an attack which has something more than the grace and beauty of a seal trying to walk on its flippers.

Seldom do hockey players find it possible to land a solid blow. The harder they punch the farther they push themselves backward. They leave themselves wide open. They are thrown to the ice by the force of their own endeavors. Old boxing fans in the stands do well to cover their eyes.

By amending the rules to "let 'em fight it out" the powers-that-be would be doing a public service. The fans could see who was cracking down on who, and the referees and other spell-sports who are always crowding around the fighters and obscuring the view would be discouraged.

The "let-'em-fight-it-out" idea seems to me to be a good one. While the mainbouters are wrapping gloved-like tentacles around each other the linesmen could "police" the other players and prevent what in most cases leads to an all-out brawl.

I have seen it done — and so have you — that when the linesmen skate into the fray with separating ideas, it is the signal for two or more combats to break out and the thing develops into a battle royal.

The main bout wouldn't last long and likely end up with the footsored fighters perched side by side on the ice their sweaters wrapped around their heads like a grandmother's shawl.

The one writer puts it, "If they were permitted to slug it out from the beginning he fight would be confined to one area. And if the brawl was restricted to one main event there time-consuming penalty fiascos that require a Philadelphia lawyer to figure out would be avoided."

And some of these punch-hosting buckaroos might think it over before throwing that first punch if they knew that officials would not rush in to stop the action — and risk a punch in the snoot.

They might think twice, too, if they knew that any help expected from their backfiles would not be forthcoming with the linesmen hooking checkrein on them.

And "let-'em-fight" would do away with some penalty injustices that at times stem from these official-interfering cases.

I recall an incident at a Junior Macs game here when a city player became involved in a fight. He was stepped over with his face close to the ice when the linesmen stepped in. The youngster head down was still swinging and the official caught one. In a flash the kid was swinging blind and couldn't see who he was thumping. But allee-same he drew a five-game suspension.

Something of a similar nature occurred in Kingston the other night with the puncher fully aware of the identity of his target. Nothing was done, nor has anything been heard about it, so far.

So let 'em fight it out. And I would suggest that non-combatant players be held at least twenty feet from the scene of battle.

I'm sure the linesmen would be happy at being deprived of their roles as peacemakers and not risk a bump in the snoot or ribs. So would the fans. At least they're entitled to enjoy the added descort to the main hockey fare.

Habs Stretch Leafs' Losing String

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

This is the Year of the Cheer for Harry Howell, rugged defenceman with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

Howell, once a favorite target for criticism from New York fans, was honored with a special night at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night, climaxing a 15-year NHL career totalling 1,002 games with the Rangers.

and good wishes from everyone by assisting on a goal by Phil Goyette, which started the Rangers on their way to a 3-2 victory over Boston Bruins. Bob Nevin scored the other New York goals and Johnny Bucyk replied for the Bruins.

In the other NHL game Wednesday night, Montreal Canadiens extended Toronto Maple Leafs' losing streak to five games by downing the Leafs 3-1 in Toronto. Yvan Cournoyer, Gilles Tremblay and Claude Larose scored for Montreal. Dave Keon scored Toronto's goal.

Howell, a rugged 34-year-old native of Hamilton, Ont., used to be given a hard time by New York fans, So much so that he gave up being captain of the club.

But Howell rebounded and he came one of the league's best defencemen. The six-foot-one, 185-pound defencemen because so good that earlier Wednesday, it was announced that he was one of the defencemen named in this season's first-half voting for the NHL's first all-star team.

A capacity crowd of 15,925 was on hand Wednesday night to see Howell honored during a half-hour pre-game ceremony when he and his family were formally introduced.

Howell became the first Ranger player even given a special night by the team while still active.

Howell and Nevin set up Goyette's goal at the 37-second mark of the third period to give the Rangers a 1-0 lead.

Bucyk tied the score less than five minutes later, but Nevin broke the 1-1 deadlock with his goal at 12:35 of the third period to give the Rangers the win. New York now is three points behind the first - place Chicago Black Hawks, who were idle Wednesday night. Chicago has 52 points.

The Bruins fired 35 shots at New York goalie Ed Giacomin, who was particularly sharp after Nevin's tie - breaker when the Bruins pressed.

Giacomin, who leads the league in shutouts with six, was also chosen for the NHL's first-half all-star team Wednesday. Ed Johnston of Boston stopped 28.

Montreal's victory over the Maple Leafs was the club's first in four games in Toronto this season. The Canadiens, defending league and Stanley Cup champions, now are three points behind the third - place Leafs.

Cournoyer, Montreal's powerplay artist, gave the Canadiens a 1-0 lead at 11:29 of the second period while Toronto's Bob Pulford was serving a minor penalty.

Keon tied the score a minute later but Tremblay gave the Canadiens the lead again while Toronto's Bob Baun was off. Larose ended the scoring just before the middle of the third period.

Charlie Hodge of Montreal and Bruce Gamble came up with key saves, particularly in the first period when neither team was able to score. Hodge stopped 23 and Gamble 27.

The Leafs haven't been able to win a game since Jan. 14, when they defeated Detroit 5-2 in Toronto. Since then they have lost 4-0 to the Black Hawks, 6-2 and 5-4 to the Red Wings and 3-1 to the Bruins before last night's setback.

with defenceman Ted Harris of Montreal. He limped off the ice in the second period and missed the rest of the game. It was not known how long he would be out.

The Canadiens will have a chance to move to within one point of the third-place Leafs when they take on the last-place Bruins in Montreal tonight.

In the other NHL game tonight, the Black Hawks clash with the Red Wings in Detroit.

Face Tough Petes

Macs Seek Win Tonight!

To say the Quinte McFarlands are having troubles would be the understatement of the season right now.

And the high-flying Peterborough Don Byes hope to pound another nail in the Macs' coffin when they tangle in Picton tonight. Game time is 8.30.

The Macs are desperate for a victory and a look at the OHA Eastern Junior "B" League standing easily explains why.

After Monday's action (Cobourg 4 Oshawa 3; Kingston 7 Quinte 1), this is the way it looks:

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Oshawa	14	6	2	30
Peterboro	13	5	4	30
Cobourg	12	7	1	25
Quinte	10	10	0	20
Kingston	9	10	1	19
Trenton	0	20	0	0

Peterborough has without a doubt been the hottest club in the loop for some time but everyone has to toss at some time and the Macs realize "this must be the night".

The Don Byes' Ron Chittick also feasted against Trenton last weekend in 11-5 and 9-1 wins and has taken over the league scoring leadership from Oshawa's Phil Solomon and the Macs' Ron Riley.

With ten games each left to play for Quinte, Kingston and Cobourg, the Macs have time to snap their slump and grab a playoff spot. But it won't be easy. Kingston has back-to-back games against the hapless Trenton team this weekend while the Macs travel to Oshawa Friday night.

"We meet Kingston twice more, once at home and once away," says manager Jim "Snipe" Matthews, "and they are games we have to win".

But unless they win some in the meantime, the Macs may find Kingston too far ahead for it to matter by then.

Buckaroos Gulls Win Tilts

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The first-place Portland Buckaroos and last-place San Diego Gulls both won in Western Hockey League action Wednesday night.

The Buckaroos struck early for a 3-1 lead, then held off California Seals for a 3-2 victory.

Cliff Schmautz and Larry Leach scored in the first period before Wayne Maxner counted for the Seals. Doug Messier then made it 3-1 just before the first period ended, and George Swarvick scored midway through the second period for California.

The win gives Portland 39 points, 13 more than second-place Vancouver Canucks.

In San Diego, three goals in the second period sent the Gulls to a 5-1 upset over Victoria Maple Leafs.

Fred Hilts led the attack with two goals, and the others came from Del Topoll, Ed Ehrsavorth and Al Nicholson.

Rookie Mike Laughton scored Victoria's only goal, with 1:25 remaining in the game.

Hawks, Blues Dominate All-Stars!

MONTREAL (CP) — Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers, battling for the National Hockey League lead, have split the first six all-star team berths down the middle.

Each club grabbed three spots on the first - half all-star squad with goaltender Ed Giacomin and defenceman Harry Howell, both of New York, and centre Stan Mikita of Chicago unanimous choices in the balloting by sports writers and sportscasters in the six NHL cities.

The other selections from the Black Hawks are left winger Bobby Hull and defence Pierre Pilote. The third New York choice was rightwinger Rod Gilbert.

Every club in the league had one player picked on the second team, the first time in seven years.

Charlie Hodge of Montreal Canadiens is second - choice goaltender with Tim Horton of Toronto Maple Leafs and Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins on defence. Centre Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings, left winger Don Marshall of New York and right winger Ken Wharram of Chicago complete the second unit.

Giacomin, Howell and Mikita polled the maximum 90 points, while Hull received 84, Gilbert 80 and Pilote 78.

Points are awarded on a 5-3-1 basis.

Selection to the first team carries a $500 bonus and players on the second team receive $250.

It was the first time three New York players had been selected since the 1932-33 season.

Voting was for games to Jan. 11. Another vote will be taken at the end of the regular 70-game schedule and the combined totals will produce the over-all all-star team for the season.

Each of the New York players is making his first appearance on the first all-star team, but the three Hawks are holdovers from last season and all three have been named to the first team on four previous occasions.

Orr, 18, signed with Boston at the beginning of the season for a reported $50,000, is the first member of the Bruins to make the first all-star team since 1950-51.

He gained 31 points, seven more than Terry Harper of Montreal.

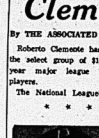
Highest Paid Pirate

Clemente Signs For $100,000

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roberto Clemente has joined the select group of $100,000-a-year major league baseball players.

The National League's most



ROBERTO CLEMENTE

* * *

Valuable Player in 1966 signed Wednesday to play again for Pittsburgh Pirates, who are expected by many to win the 1967 pennant.

Eddie Mathews, recently traded to Houston Astros by Atlanta Braves, signed a reported $50,000 contract with the Astros Wednesday.

Clemente, a hard - hitting outfielder with a lifetime average of .310, said he had "no problems whatsoever" in agreeing on terms with Joe L. Brown, the Pirate general manager.

Clemente said only that he got a raise, but a Pittsburgh spokesman indicated $100,000 would be about right, making Clemente the highest - paid player in Pirate history.

Other players in the $100,000 class include Frank Robinson of Baltimore, Joe DiMaggio and Mickey Mantle of New York Yankees, Ted Williams of Boston Red Sox, Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale of Los Angeles Dodgers, Willie Mays of San Francisco Giants, Hank Aaron of Atlanta and Stan Musial of St. Louis Cardinals.

DiMaggio, Williams, Koufax and Musial are retired.

The most Babe Ruth, the famed home run slugger, ever received in one year from the Yankees was $80,000 in the prefinlation era of more than 30 years ago.

Mathews, a veteran third baseman who hopes to reach the career plateau of 500 home runs this season, became the highest paid player in the six-year history of the Astros. His reported $50,000 compares to the previous Astro high of $42,000 to Nellie Fox in 1964.

Relief pitcher Dick Radtke and catcher Duke Sims agreed to terms with Cleveland, pitcher Wally Bunker with Baltimore and relief pitcher Casey Cox and first baseman Dick Nen with Washington in other Wednesday signings.

Fitness Council Report

Nationals Should Have Best!

OTTAWA (CP) — Any Canadian amateur, even those headed by professional hockey teams, should have the right to play for the country's national team if he wants to, says a special committee of the national advisory council on fitness and amateur sport.

Its report, which became public Wednesday, says the national team must be able to approach any amateur player and ask him to join.

The player, whether "drafted or not drafted by professional teams, should make the choice." The report says hockey is regarded as Canada's national sport and the national team must have players of the highest standard, the best coaching and training and a stable, well-financed organization.

A full-time coach, manager and publicity director of the highest calibre should be hired.

A pool of talent should be readily available to the national team through one or more B teams.

Also recommended is the establishment of a Canadian Hockey Foundation to raise money for the national team, with matching annual federal grants of up to $50,000.

It says the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association should continue to operate the national team in co-operation with the proposed foundation.

Another recommendation that a swipe at the trail of bad publicity teams, other than the nationals, have generated in recent years, in Europe.

It says "numerous incidents both on and off the ice" have damaged the Canadian image in East Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Russia and Sweden.

For this reason, any club other than the national team should on European tours "make clear in its publicity and by its insignia that it represents no home city and not Canada."

Minor Hockey

All three BMHA novice games resulted in shutouts last night but scorers in the midget section had a little more fire-ing luck.

In novice, Ameiks blanked ANAF Dukes 3-0, Wings won a tight 1-0 nod over the Bruins and Leafs whitewashed the Police Rangers 5-0.

In midget, Wings shaded the Hawks 4-3 while Rangers whitelasted the Bruins in another close but high - scoring affair, 5-4.

Steven Eggleton collected the novice Amerks shutout while Peter McInroy led the attack with a goal and assist. Billy Whalen and Mike Kirby also scored with James McCluskey and John-McAuley each having one assist.

Fred Babcock chalked up the Wings shutout in their 1-0 thriller. Dean McCormick potted the only goal with Bob McKay assisting.

Greg Mallory registered the Leafs shutout while mate Bruce Mayrie triggered two of the goals. Mike MacDonald earned a goal and assist, Ricky Sweet and Tony Meagher the other goals. Mark Boyd, Tim Fort, G. Cunningham and Glen Marlock an assist each.

MacIntoshs goal provided the midget Wings with their narrow win. Mulvahil, Mitchell and Drummond scored the other goals. Mitchell also gained two assists, Sero, Wall and Drummond one each. Romain scored two while Mallory had a goal and assist for the Hawks. Buckles also helped on one.

Murrays second goal of the contest enabled the Rangers victory. Bridge, Sled, Elmy, Wilkinson and Muldoon also scored. Single assists went to Murray, Clarke, Bridge, Muldoon, Elmy and Sled. Waite starred in defeat with two goals and two helpers. McKenzie, Pope, Rolston and Dempsey triggered homers, Rolston, Jones and McKenzie had assists. Richardson of the Bruins, was assessed a rough penalty and a match misconduct.

"Mike" Tributes Minors

OTTAWA (CP) — Minor hockey provides an opportunity for the good sportsmanship and the benefits of physical fitness, Prime Minister Pearson said in a Minor Hockey Week statement Wednesday.

"It is out of our reserve, bantam, midget and juvenile hockey leagues that most of the great Canadian players now emerge, year after year," the prime minister said.

He commended the sponsoring Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and extended best wishes to the voluntary coaches and young athletes in minor hockey.

OSHAWA (CP)—Oshawa Generals will be augmented by four Niagara Falls players for the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A All-Star game to be played here Monday.

Joining the Generals from the Flyers will be goaltender Bruce Durno, defenceman Ricky Ley and forwards Derek Sanderson and Bill Little.

Last-Minute Changes

Millrose Meet Merry Mix

NEW YORK (AP) — They won't be able to tell the players with a scorecard at the Millrose Games tonight.

Last - minute withdrawals, substitutions and changes have been rampant for the traditional meet, which opens New York's indoor track season.

Ron Clarke, the Australian long - distance star, cancelled out of the two-mile race and took his flu attack home with him. John Rambo, co-holder of the indoor high jump record, scratched because of a leg injury. And Ted Nelson, who won the 800-yard event last year, pulled out, saying that he isn't in top condition.

These and other late changes left Millrose director Fred Schmertz scrambling to fill events for the meet, in which Bob Seagren's attempt to extend his own pole vault record and the duel between Charlie Greene and Bill Gaines in the 60-yard dash figure to be the highlights.

Trenton Rink Captures Zone Finals

OSHAWA (CP) — A Trenton rink skipped by Helen Lord won the southeastern Ontario women's curling zone finals Wednesday by defeating the Lois Roberts rink of Unionville 8-5.

The Lord rink now will compete in the Ontario women's curling championships in Sudbury Feb. 5 to 8.

Oakville Shades Grads 7-6

OAKVILLE (CP)—A goal by Jim O'Brien with 23 seconds to play gave Oakville Oaks a 7-6 win over North York Varsity Grads in an Ontario Hockey Association senior game Wednesday night.

The goal was O'Brien's third of the night. Johnny Grouls, Carl Hadfield, Larry Shuker and Bob Bishop scored the other Oakville goals.

Moe Galand scored three goals for North York. Bob Beckett added two and Carl Hymers got the other.

Skating "Babies" Novice Champions

TORONTO (CP) — Sandra Beric of Toronto propped herself before a television set seven years ago and decided she wanted to be a figure skater.

The inspiration she got from watching skaters on television paid off Wednesday night as Sandra, 10, and her brother Val, 14, won the novice pairs title at the Canadian figure skating championships.

"The Berics, with practice, are good enough to be world pairs champions in a few years," said Mak Gould of the Canadian Figure Skating Association. "For the first time in a long while, we have a young team that shows the style and the finesse necessary for world competition."

The Berics, who have been skating together for years, overwhelmed eight other entries by scoring seven firsts in the ordinal total and 39.8 points.

They are trained by Ellen Burka, mother and coach of former world champion Petra Burka of Toronto, who has never coached pairs before.

A tiny blonde, Sandra said the most difficult freestyle figures she performed were "a double lutz lift, death spin and loop throw."

She calls her brother a hockey player with problems.

"He can skate well, of course, but his big problem is handling the puck—and scoring goals, I think."

Anne O'Neill, 14, and Fred Peddie, 15, both of Unionville, Ont., were second in the novice pairs with 51.3 points and Laurie Hunt, 12, and James Allen, 13, of Calgary's Glencoe Club, were third with 49.6.

Two other Canadian champions were named Wednesday night as Louise Lind and Barry Soper, 18-year-old students from the University of British Columbia, won the novice dance competition.

"I'm going to celebrate with a fudge sundae," said Louise.

Lind and Soper, who have been skating together for three months at Vancouver's Capilano Winter Club, had seven firsts in the ordinals and 86.7 points.

Two of the three compulsory dances, the fox trot and American waltz, didn't bother the western team, but Louise had trouble with the tango.

"It's always the hardest for everyone. The tango has more moves and it's easier to fall down," she explained.

Beth Ann Rabokisky, 18, of Toronto and Richard Dowding, 17, of Oakville were second in the novice dance with 81.8 points. Janet D'Altroy, who celebrated her 16th birthday Wednesday, and David Porter, 19, of Unionville, Ont., were a close third with 81.2.

Barrier, Donna Taylor, 18 and Bruce Lennie, 21, both of Toronto, took the lead in the junior dance competition by winning the initial round.

Los Angeles Open

Pro-Am; A Classic Foul-Up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The final annual Los Angeles Open golf tournament, with a purse of $100,000, was ready to get under way today following a classic foul-up in the pro-amateur prelude.

Arnold Palmer was back to defend the title he earned last year and won once before, in 1963. So were U.S. Open champion Bill Casper and the Masters champion, Jack Nicklaus, neither of whom has won this one.

The Big Three — there is no Big Four since Gary Player is not on deck—dominate the scene at the 6,821-yard, par-36-35—71 Rancho golf course.

The turf is damp and soft from heavy rains earlier in the week.

The pro - am event Wednesday turned into a shambles, and scores of all the professionals were erased. It seems a greens-keeper—kindly he was not identified—moved the position of several cups after play began.

MAKES TWO COURSES

Under PGA rules this meant that some pros, in effect, played one course, and the others, another course.

So the $50,000 pro-am purse was split between the 54 pros, each receiving $92.

"That'l buy me a couple of buffalo steaks," quipped Casper, a man noted for his bizarre diets.

Most of the players were unaware of the untimely development until after they had finished the round. Some were unhappy.

The sponsoring Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce went ahead and awarded prizes to the amateur regardless of the unofficial status of the pros' scores.

Hornets Stretch Win String

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pittsburgh Hornets decided early in the season that all losses in 14 American Hockey League games wasn't good enough.

Now they've played 42 games with only nine losses and five ties.

The Hornets won their fifth straight while running their unbeaten streak to eight games Wednesday night by defeating Providence Reds 5-1. Cleveland Barons defeated Hershey Bears 4-1 in the only other scheduled game.

Floyd Smith, Gary Jarrett, Parker Macdonald, Billy Harris and Duke Harris scored the Pittsburgh goals, while Brian Perry replied for the Reds.

Bob Courcy scored two goals for the Barons, while Joe Szura and Tom McCarthy added the others. Gene Ubriaco replied for Hershey.

Golden Gaels Bow To St. Lawrence

CANTON, N.Y. (AP) — St. Lawrence University's 13 varsity basketball players all played Wednesday night and they all scored in a 96-54 victory over Queen's University, Kingston.

Four of the home team's players hit for double-figure sores. Alan Patterson led the scoring with 16 points.

Doug Fraser scored 14 points for Queen's.

Visibility Obstructions Blamed

PORT HOPE — Visibility obstructions were blamed yesterday by a coroner's jury for a rail-train crash that took the lives of five members of one family Nov. 19.

The jury ruled an embankment obstructed the view of John Edward Dhaene, 28, as he approached the Hope Street CPR level crossing here late at night.

He died with his wife, Sharon, 22, and three of their four children, when the car was wrecked on impact with an eastbound freight.

The crossing at the time was without warning lights — but a system was installed a month later.

The jury recommended the signals be moved to be more readily visible to motorists. It also suggested that obstructions which block vision from any direction near the crossing be moved.

The Nov. 19 mishap was the second at the crossing last year. Two Port Hope school teachers were killed there Jan. 3 1966.

The tracks through Port Hope are part of the CPR's Toronto-Montreal mainline system which also runs through Trenton and Belleville.

Port Hope town council took up the safety issue with the railroad and the federal Department of Transport.

Hees Against U.S. Attempts To Dictate Canadian Policy

MONTREAL (CP) — George Hees, Conservative MP for Northumberland and a former trade and commerce minister, said Wednesday he favors continuing United States investment in Canada but is against U.S. attempts to dictate Canadian policy.

In an interview following a speech to the McGill University Progressive Conservative Association, Mr. Hees denounced U.S. intervention in the controversy over planned legislation limiting the scope of the Mercantile Bank of Canada.

"The U.S. government made a great mistake in trying to dictate to the Canadian government," he said.

He was sure Canada would succeed in limiting the scope of Mercantile Bank, wholly owned by the First National City Bank of New York.

Mr. Hees said it is enough to get the idea across to the U.S. that this kind of direction will not be tolerated.

"The U.S. is very reasonable and quite willing to step back into line."

Restrictions against U.S. investment in Canada would lead to unemployment and force talented young people out of the country to seek jobs.

Council has started a move to close two streets crossing the tracks which are unprotected by warning signals. There have been protests from residents who claim that alternate crossings are no safer.

L. S. William New Assistant In Recreation

Formerly staff officer for recreation and physical education at Air Transport Command Headquarters at Trenton, Lorne S. Williams, 15 Gould Street, Trenton, has joined the Belleville Recreation Commission as assistant director.

Mr. Williams fills the vacancy caused by the resignation some weeks ago of Mr. Norman Carter, now at Oakville.

Mr. Williams was born 46 years ago in Saskatchewan and since 1939 when he enlisted with the RCAF has been associated with physical fitness and recreational programs with the services.

Since the war he has served in similar capacities at Manning Depot, at North Luffenham base in England, North Bay and St. Hubert, Quebec. He has been at Air Transport Command at Trenton since 1964.

Mr. Williams is married with five children ranging in age from four to 18 years.

Electrical Systems to Be Connected for Test Purposes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Major electrical systems of the eastern and western United States and Canada will be interconnected for test purposes Feb. 7 to form a huge power grid, Interior Secretary Stewart Udall announced Wednesday.

The test closure through the Missouri River Basin project transmission system of the reclamation bureau will link virtually all power systems in the U.S. and major systems in Canada, Udall said.

Involved will be the tying together of some 262,000 miles of main transmission lines of 209 public and private power systems with generating capacity of nearly 245,000,000 kilowatts.

Udall said this will represent about 40 per cent of the world's electrical power supply.

Co - ordinating the operation will be the east-west tie closure task force, an informal organization of representatives of the several pooled public and private utility systems immediately involved.

If serious difficulties are encountered, the ties will be reopened while the problems are resolved. The ties will be closed permanently only when the data on the test closure has been fully analyzed and all parties are agreed that the interconnected systems can function successfully.

Ultimately, Udall said, large blocks of power may be exchanged between areas, to take advantage of differences in demand between time zones and seasonal loads from coast to coast and in power - production costs. A major benefit will be a reduction of the standby capacity that individual utilities must maintain.

Construction Industry Looks Bright

TORONTO (CP) — Despite a current slowdown, the near-term outlook for the Canadian construction industry looks bright, economist W. A. Beckett said Wednesday.

He told the 49th annual convention of the Canadian Construction Association that various economic factors indicate a growth in constant dollars of 6.7 per cent annually for the industry.

In ordinary terms, taking into account price increases, this would mean that by 1975 the industry could look forward to an over-all growth to $23,000,000,000 from $9,100,000,000.

Appoint Centennial Park Committee Chairman

DESERONTO — Bert Lloyd was unanimously appointed as chairman of the Centennial Park Committee Tuesday evening at a well attended meeting of enthusiastic people representing all the organizations of the town. Mr. Lloyd has been one of the most active members since the committee was formed.

Joseph Reynolds, the town-clerk-treasurer, will continue to handle the finances and Jack Layfield will continue as secretary. He was also appointed to look after publicity.

The planning committee is now to be a planning and construction committee, with power to act. Its members are: Mayor Gerald Lott, councillor William Higgins, councillor James Sharpe, Ralph Lawlor, Reginald Hall, Harold Bowles, Don Kimmett of the Fish and Game Club and Mr. Layfield. A full scale plan of the park was presented, and accepted.

Mr. Lawlor reported that 400 trees had been ordered from the Department of Lands and Forests, and that the department would oversee the planting. Some of these are quick-growing and will be planted near those of slower growth which will be permanent.

The extreme west end of the park, about 50 feet wide, and with about 228 feet of waterfront is separated from the rest of the development by a deep ditch, and it was agreed to offer this to the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides of the community for their use. It is hoped that they can take care of it for camp-outs or outdoor meetings. Precautions against using it at certain periods of the year when the water is deep would have to be taken.

The Council was made to move yet to tile the ditch along the road running full length of the park, but it is understood that funds have been made available for this purpose, and that the council is waiting for the plans which are now ready for submission to it.

Donald Kimmett volunteered to act as the go-between to co-operate with the Centennial Activities Committee.

Mayor Lott informed the meeting that an interested citizen had offered to donate $50, to help finance the project. Also, the Napanee Hydro crew has agreed to save all replaced poles and these will be used in building the dock.

Early in the meeting a letter was read from Mrs. F. Evans of Belleville stating that the Quintebelle Chorus had prepared a program of an hour and a half of music as a Centennial project and that bookings were being made for the year. The letter had been sent to the Centennial Planning Committee but as its president, Arthur Hill, is in hospital, the letter had been turned over to the Centennial Parks Committee for consideration. Ralph Lawlor volunteered to accept the invitation to attend a dress rehearsal Friday evening and bring in a report. All or part of the program would be given by the musical group on request.

The chairman concluded the meeting by pointing out that, although a great deal had been done to develop the park last year, there was still much to be done before July 1.

Straightening Of Bad Curve Urged by Jury

KALADAR (Special) — A coroner's jury last night called for immediate straightening of "dangerous curves" on Highway 41 near here — the scene of a recent fatal accident.

The jury brought in the recommendation after hearing an inquest into the death of Mrs. Edith Thompson, 41, of Kaladar. Mrs. Thompson was killed November 19 when the car in which she was a passenger collided with a cement tanker driven by Ronald Putman, R.R. 5 Belleville.

The mishap occurred on the highway 18 miles north of here.

The jury also found a "dangerous corner, bad visibility and slippery pavement" as contributing factors to the accident.

It ruled the rear wheels of the tanker struck the automobile.

Natural Gas Transmission Causes Tangle

WASHINGTON (CP) — A lawyer representing U.S. coal producers claimed Wednesday that Canada is trying to shove a natural gas transmission scheme down American throats.

The uproar came when examiner William Levy of the U.S. Federal Power Commission, hearing arguments on an application by Trans - Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., to transmit gas in the United States, complained of foot-dragging by opponents of the Trans-Canada bid.

He chided counsel Jack McGrath of the coal industry for not wanting to cross-examine a Trans-Canada witness on the spot and McGrath, in what appeared to be a well - staged temper tantrum, began shouting and banging the table.

Referring to a Canadian government agreement with Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, McGrath shouted: "We must rush now because of their (the Canadian government's) gyrations. It's high time we in the U.S. should get some consideration.

"Here these Canadians are, trying to shove this down our throats."

The Canadian government, in a decision last Aug. 25, rejected Trans-Canada's original plan to ship gas to the Eastern U.S., Ontario and Quebec customers using a route largely in the United States. This was spelled after Levy had concluded the Canadian U.S. gave it a moral hoarings on the plan.

Then the Canadian government worked out an enabling agreement with Trans-Canada whose main stipulation ensures that the Trans - Canada line through Northern Ontario will always be the main feed for Eastern Canada. The proposed U.S. route would thus be only a subsidiary supply.

U.S. Contacts Viet Cong On Informal Basis

NEW YORK (AP) — The Times says the United States has quietly made several informal but direct contacts with political representatives of the Viet Cong.

A Washington dispatch by Hedrick Smith says the disclosure was made by diplomatic sources Wednesday.

"So far, it is said, they have not proved fruitful," the report adds.

The newspaper says the sources reported that a channel of contact between American diplomats and officials of the South Vietnamese Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, had been used intermittently for several months.

The United Arab Republic, where the Liberation Front maintains one of its largest and most important political offices outside the Communist world, is reported to be one site of the repeated contacts, the report says.

The sources indicated that there might have been contacts in other capitals as well, the newspaper says.

American officials who acknowledged privately that the discussions have occurred, the story continues, explain that Washington has not publicized them to avoid embarrassing the Saigon regime.

The sources report that the discussions have not produced any tangible progress on any significant issue in the Vietnamese conflict, the times says, adding that they are believed to have been concerned in part, at least, with prisoner questions.

The Times also says it has been reported that United States officials conferred with North Vietnamese representatives in Burma, among other places, in January, 1966, during an American peace offensive.

Burns' Night Marked by Congregation

CAMPBELLFORD—The congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held their annual Burns' birthday supper in the church on Wednesday evening.

Master of ceremonies was Rev. Creba A. MacSween, pastor of St. Andrew's. Pipers were Carl Linn and Robert Watson. The traditional haggis was carried by Hector MacMillan and Murray Locke; the address to the haggis was given by Mr. Hugh MacMillan.

The musical part of the program was given by Mr. Francis DeCarroll in the singing of Scottish ballads. Mrs. Everna McKay of Port Hope favored with appropriate Highland dancing accompanied by piper David Pollock of Cobourg.

The address in memory of Robbie Burns was given by Rev. D. C. MacPherson of Stirling who outlined the reasons why Burns should command immortal acclamation, emphasizing the reasons by reference and quotations from his poems.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. Ross K. Cameron of York Memorial Presbyterian Church in Toronto, past moderator of the General Assembly, who described Burns as the greatest lyric poet. While some decried his possible lack of formal education he was not illiterate, he had considerable education and in Burns' words "Give me the spark of nature's fire, that's all the learning I desire."

Mr. Cameron described the characteristics of the man which made him great.

The speaker went on in his address to apply the philosophy of Burns' poetry to modern life by stating that love of freedom is the best tradition given any country, that true patriotism and religion are closely linked, that justice and righteousness are the foundation of society and tyranny has always and continues to be the greatest obstacle to brotherhood.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. Creba MacSween.

Accompanist for the evening was Mrs. Ferne Rutherford.

Mao Purge Creating Resistance

TOKYO (AP) — The New China news agency reported today resistance to Mao Tse-tung's purge by 10,000 workers in Shansi province and called for the immediate arrest of all opponents of the Communist party chairman and his heir apparent, Defence Minister Lin Piao.

Mao's forces had said they seized control of Shansi, adjoining Peking, from supporters of President Liu Shao-chi Jan. 12 with the help of army units. But the official news agency reported today that a few days ago the "despicable swine" who support Liu had thrown 10,000 workers against the Maoists.

"Some incidents even developed into struggles by force," the agency said, quoting a communique from pro-Mao "rebels" in Shansi.

". . . Operations in many enterprises were suspected, production was seriously affected and shocking traffic accidents occurred."

As the turmoil on the mainland continued unabated, Japanese correspondents relayed more reports from wall newspapers in Peking, none of them confirmable. These were the highlights:

—Vice-Premier Tao Chu, denounced as the power behind recent bloody resistance to Mao in Canton and Nanking, has died of heart disease in a Peking hospital.

—Large crowds in Peking assembled before a poster accusing Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, a leader of the purge, of sheltering reactionaries in two Peking universities.

—One of President Liu's daughters, Liu Tao, accused her father of buying a gold belt with party funds for his former wife as a "consolation gift" and a gold shoehorn for himself.

Conducting the installation ceremony, the 11th in the history of the Archdiocese of Kingston, was Archbishop Sergio Pignedoli, an apostolic delegate to Canada.

Crown to Test Strength of Case In Seeking Custody of Hidden Children

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP)—A test case is to be heard today to establish whether the Crown has good reason for seeking custody of 72 children hidden from court authorities by leaders of a breakaway Roman Catholic sect.

The case, brought in social welfare court by Crown Prosecutor Andre Faudeu, concerns a four-year-old girl who lived at the monastery and was found by provincial police and welfare court officers.

So far 26 children have been found in private homes to which sect leaders sent them.

Also set for today is an appearance by Father Jean de la Trinite, Quebec leader of the sect who vanished Sunday and now is being sought on an arrest warrant issued Tuesday. Father Jean is charged with allowing children in his care to be in "moral and physical danger."

He leads the Apostles of Infinite Love, who operate a monastery outside St. Jovite, 45 miles northwest of here. St. Jerome is 23 miles north of Montreal.

At closed hearings in Judge Raymond's chambers Wednesday, five children found by authorities Tuesday appeared under the authority of court warrants.

Judge Raymond ordered three children, all from one Ormestown, Que., family, taken into welfare court custody for medical, psychological and educational examinations. They are to appear before the judge again Jan. 31 when the results of the checks will be known.

The judge ordered the remaining two children returned to the custody of their parents in Valleyfield, Que.

Mr. Fauteux said he recommended court custody of the Ormstown children, aged 15, 11 and 7, because they seemed to be "physically and mentally retarded."

The other family had been granted custody of the children partly because the children seemed to be fit and well cared for and partly because the parents agreed to send the children to public schools.

Schooling has been the bone of contention that has dashed hopes of an early settlement of the dispute.

Mr. Fauteux made proposals Tuesday in which he offered to drop all charges against monastery adults if they would bring monastery conditions up to provincial standards and send the children to public schools.

Sect leaders have said public schools, with their mixed classes, constitute a moral danger.

Thomson's Comments Branded "Rude Wind"

LONDON (CP)—Lord Thomson receives mixed reviews today for a performance in the House of Lords described in The Times—latest acquisition of the Thomson newspaper empire —as "a great rude wind from Toronto."

The Toronto-born publisher's blunt castigation of slack newspaper managers, during a rare speech in the Lords Wednesday, gets prominence in both The Times and The Guardian—target of a Thomson scolding—and a panning in The Daily Telegraph. The three newspapers are rivals for the "serious" daily news readership in Britain.

Thomson completed a busy day by letting it be known during a late-night television interview that his appetite for newspapers is as keen as ever. He also said in a discussion of his personal views and tastes that going after his title was "just ambition" achieved by personally "the people who count."

Earlier, he was celebrated the 150th anniversary of The Scotsman of Edinburgh, a newspaper he bought in 1953 and described at a birthday luncheon as the "cornerstone" of his British career.

The Lords debate on the state of the British press followed, with Thomson opposing any government intervention on behalf of faltering newspapers and bluntly criticizing inefficient management.

"Many a modern Lord instinctively loves a millionaire, and Lord Thomson's speech was warmly cheered by a lot of peers who delighted in his Canadian home-truths," writes Norman Shrapnel, The Guardian's parliamentary columnist.

Writes William Norris of The Times:

"A great rude wind from Toronto went gusting through the House of Lords Wednesday, ruffling the ermine of many a noble peer. The unsuspected views of Lord Thomson of Fleet on the British press are not for the faint of heart or the thin of skin. . . .

"It was a speech of too little tact and too many home truths for much of his audience; the remainder enjoyed it hugely."

The Daily Telegraph report criticizes Thomson for "delivering a prepared discourse which had little or no relevance to what had been already said.

The Telegraph gives headline prominence to a new attack on Thomson by the Earl of Arran, a columnist and director of Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail-Sketch-Evening News group. Arran, who initiated the debate, described Thomson variously as "a compulsive buyer, a rogue elephant . . . a newspaper octopus, politically sexless."

Thomson, who sits on the politically-neutral cross-bench in the Lords, interrupted Arran when the Earl, in a tone of distaste, was rhyming off Thomson's properties and mentioned "103 newspapers."

"May I interrupt," Thomson said. "I own 140 newspapers."

Thomson later directed a counter-barb at Arran, known as a controversialist of unconventional views.

"Occasionally we write gossip columns—they are good for circulation—but they provide the sort of amateur management that has brought the press to its present state," Thomson said.

Dean Martin Having Trouble With Director

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The assistant director opened the door cautiously and said: "Dean, could you come up and look at the scene through the movieola and then do a run-through?"

Dean Martin viewed the suggestion with scorn in his sleepy eyes. He was seated in the basement of an abandoned department store being used as a location for his latest film, Band of Gold.

Director Fielder Cook was asking Martin to look at previous film on a movie viewer so he could match the action in the scene to be shot that afternoon.

"He's asking me to climb those stairs just to look at a movievola?" Martin said today, nasally.

"Forget it. You tell him when he's ready to shoot the scene I'll know my lines."

The assistant retreated miserably.

REPORTS OF DISCORD

This was the latest episode in a battle of nerves that has been the talk of Hollywood. The trade had buzzed that sports Martin and Cook were not seeing eye-to-eye. In fact, the star had not appeared for a scene by until the company had to be dismissed.

"Yeah, I had to lay down the law," Martin admitted. "This guy with the two last names, he was shooting eight or nine takes of every scene.

"He had a great big $3,000,000 toy and he was having fun with it.

"Trouble, is, he was playing with my money, 'cause the money that's spent, the less profit I get. But more than that, it ain't my style. How can you tell a joke eight, nine times? It's bound to get stale.

"Finally I told him: 'What are you doing with all those takes?' He said he might find something he didn't expect. I told him: 'Well, you find it in the first or second take, because that's all you're going to get.'"

Martin said the impasse was settled when Columbia production boss, Mike Frankovich, instructed the directors: "Shoot it his (Martin's) way."

Another assistant director appeared at the door and asked if Martin would not come upstairs for filming. No mention was made of viewing the previous scene.

"Okay," the star conceded, and he went to the main floor, which was filled with extras. His rehearsal was letter perfect.

As the final preparations were being made for the shot, director Cook minimized their differences.

"Up one-tenth of what was printed in the trade papers has really happened it would have been akin to the 1917 revolution," he said.

Robert Culp Drums Up Interest in New Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Culp, officially on vacation from his cloak-and-dagger assignments on NBC's I Spy, dropped into Manhattan this week disguised as a salesman.

Disguised probably is too strong a word since Culp was highly visible lunching in a restaurant beside the Rockefeller Centre skating rink.

Culp has wound up his second year co - starring with "Bill Cosby. His New York assignments is to drum up interest in the Feb. 1 episode, Warlord. Culp wrote and plays two parts in the episode. He will be in his usual secret agent role but also will play the title role, a Chinese of noble birth involved in a love affair with a rich girl kidnapped for ransom.

"I wrote it six years ago, for a single character," Culp said. "Then the show came along and I got it off the shelf and adapted it.

"You'd never recognize me in the second part under all the makeup. But I just had to play that part and finally they let me have it."

Culp has written six other scripts for the series, pounding out all of them in a four-month period before the series started in 1965.

I Spy, among the top 20 Nielsen shows, will return next season. Culp and Cosby go to Greece and Morocco in April for six weeks of location shooting.

Perry Como's NBC special Wednesday night was a pleasant change of pace — from sleepy to lively. Singer Eddy Arnold and guitar player Chet Atkins added some "Nashville sound". Two bright English comedians, Tony Hendra and Nick Ullett engaged in sharp satire, mostly directed at their own little island. It was Como's best this season.
